The BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD

FOREIGN MISSION NUMBER

JANUARY 1, 1955

E THE IEW YEAR
TO TELL
OLD WORLD

"...though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow..." (ISA. 1:18)

Reflections . . .

Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new (II Cor. 5:17).

New—

"New" is one of the most precious words in the English language. As those who have been saved by the blood of the crucified One, we have a NEW birth, are NEW creatures, enjoy a NEW life, and look for NEW heavens and a NEW earth.

This issue of the Brethren Missionary Herald is dated January 1, 1955. A NEW year is beginning. The divisions of time that make New Year's Day are manmade. Men will "turn over a new leaf," and attempt to make themselves new. New Year's resolutions, if all published, would fill volumes. I have no objection to all this; I might even speak of such sometimes. But we all need to remind ourselves that all manmade things will pass away. All new things, as man makes them, will become old so very quickly—they will become old and pass away.

Might it not be well for us to take the "new" emphasis out of the New Year and let it speak to us of the One who makes all things new. That which He makes new will not become old as doth a garment and fade away. If you have not already accepted Christ as your personal Saviour, won't you do so today—let Him make of you a new creature in Christ Jesus.

Retrospect——

I am reminded of the Scripture: "No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." Yet I believe it is not proper that we speak in retrospect of all that God has done for us in the year just past.

In Argentina we have new church-temples at Corral de Bustos and Rio Tercero; authorization has been given for lot purchases in some other places and this may have been done before the old year ended. In Brazil we have a new residence under construction at Icoraci, an addition to the residence in Macapa, and a large day-school annex now being erected at Macapa. In France we have begun negotiations which will probably result in a permanent meeting place in Lyon. In Africa our extensive building operations in the city of Bangui are rapidly nearing completion; in recent days a congregation has been assembling there which has approached the 1,000 mark in attendance. In Honolulu our fine believers have arranged for their newly remodeled and equipped chapel. In Mexico—really in Calexico, Calif.—the remodeling of the residence has been completed. All of this has been done in a year when, because of a smaller foreign-mission offering, it might have seemed that no expansion could be made.

New missionaries have joined our family during the year—for Mexico: Rev. and Mrs. Sibley Edmiston, Laredo, Tex., and Miss Dorothy Robinson, San Ysidro, Calif.; for Argentina: Rev. and Mrs. Donald Bishop, Rio Cuarto; for Brazil: Rev. and Mrs. Bill A. Burk, Icoraci; for Africa: Miss Rosella Cochran and Rev. and Mrs. George Cone, Jr., now in training at Lyon, France. Our missionary family now numbers 89 persons—in addition to all the children, and they are really missionaries, too.

Thousands more have accepted Christ—reports aren't yet complete, but probably between 7,000 and 10,000 will have personally accepted Christ and most of them are now in study classes. Between 2,500 and 3,500 will probably have united with Brethren churches in foreign lands, having been baptized by triune immersion in obedience to the teaching of our blessed Lord. Countless others have heard the blessed gospel story—so many have heard, in fact, that on any Sunday there could be a mass movement of people accepting Christ.

During this year, too, your general secretary has had the privilege of completing the visit in Argentina, and of visiting in Brazil and France. In matters of administration such visits are so very helpful not only to the missionary areas affected, but to these who hold the ropes here at home. He has also had the privilege of visiting in most of our Brethren churches during the year and very early in the new year he purposes to continue in visitation in our Brethren churches.

We rejoice in all these things which the Lord has accomplished through His servants, and that He enabled us to do it in a year when our total foreign-mission income dropped between 6 percent and 10 percent below the annual offering of the year before.

Prospect—

Only our blessed Lord knows what He will enable us to do in the year just beginning. He knows the end from the beginning. We want to be in the center of His will, neither running ahead nor lagging behind. With His blessing it does seem both possible and probable that we will have further church-temple building by the believers in Argentina and possibly erection or purchase of a missionary residence in that land.

In Brazil it seems very probable that Christian day schools will begin both in Icoraci and Macapa, that new and better small boats will become available for a limited amount of river evangelization, and that the believers in Icoraci will build their own chapel before the year is over.

We are praying that Bible-institute classes will be resumed in Rio Cuarto, Argentina, and that the Bible-institute program will be expanded in Mexico. We anticipate a completed place of worship in Lyon, France, as well as that national French believers may become available to assist Brother Fogle, and that some convenient and useful arrangement may be made for community evangelization in the Lyon area.

In Africa it will be our plan to complete the building program which has been begun in the city of Bangui; native believers will probably build a large church-chapel building there. The field council will just have completed its meeting in Africa as you read this, and in an early issue of the Herald we will give you the plans for the future as we see them for Africa.

As we look in retrospect and in prospect, we can only say, "Thank you, Lord." He has blessed us far above anything that we could have had the courage to ask or think.

Humanly speaking, we say "Thank you" to the multitudes of friends of foreign missions who have prayed with us and who have given largely of tithes and offerings that all these blessings might come to us, and to the missionaries in our great family for their unstinting service in this work so dear to the heart of God.

DETOURS ON GOD'S HIGHWAY

By Rev. and Mrs. Roy B. Snyder, Bouca, Africa

None of us like detours, especially when we are in a hurry to get someplace. They are, however, inevitable. One of our most trying experiences last summer was on our way to Camp Grace. Between the Pennsylvania Turnpike and Hagerstown, Md., there were four detours. Some of them were long and roundabout, others more direct. They were irritating although we did realize they were there for a purpose.

On God's highway there are detours as well. Sometimes they upset and irritate us and we fail to realize that they, too, are there for a good purpose. Yet we know from God's Word that our stops, starts, and detours are all ordered of Him.

We came to such a detour about the first of June when we were told that it would not be best for us to return to Africa because of physical reasons. We hardly knew what to say or do. But God, who is always faithful, gave the assurance that He was still working all things together for our good (Rom. 8:28). He opened up other channels during the summer that proved to be a blessing. A missionary rest home along the New Jersey seashore was the first thing He provided. Then came the fellowship and blessing of summer camps with our Brethren young people, where we had the opportunity of presenting to them the challenge of foreign missions. We were happy, too, for the privilege of supplying various pulpits and ministering the Word of Life to others. All of these were blessings along God's detour.

It was first thought that our detour from service in Africa would be at least one year. However, God used a Christian doctor in Philadelphia as a human instrument for physical restoration. So, after only three months, the "detour" sign was changed to a "go" sign. How we praise the Lord for His leading and direction! Through leading us to this Christian doctor, many others in our churches have been helped by him. We feel that this alone was worth the three-month detour.

We know that many of you were raising your voices to God in our behalf, and we're grateful for your prayer help. It was faithful, constant prayer that moved the arm of God. But also, along with the prayers of you white brethren, a volume of prayer was ascending on our behalf from our African brethren. The letters that we received from missionaries and natives alike told of their earnest praying for us. They wanted their spiritual "papa and mama" to return to them. They wanted their own missionary to sit among them again and show forth the affair of God to them.

Yes; God answered prayer! We're here in Africa today, again sitting among our people and ministering unto them the Word of Life. Continue to pray that God will use us to gather many precious sheaves along this African highway.

CHANGES OF ADDRESS

In order that you may keep your record of missionary addresses up to date, please make the following changes in your copy of the Brethren Annual, dated October 30, 1954, pages 41-43:

Balzer, Mr. and Mrs. Albert, B. P. 240, Bangui, French Equatorial Africa.

Beaver, Rev. and Mrs. S. Wayne, Bozoum via Bangui, French Equatorial Africa.

Cone, Rev. and Mrs. George E., Jr., 112 Avenue Berthelot, Lyon, France.

Kliever, Rev. and Mrs. J. P., Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind.

Tyson, Miss Elizabeth, Route 1, Hatfield, Pa.

THEY GAVE THEIR ALL

With the passing of the years, NINE of our beloved missionaries have laid down their lives "to get the Gospel out." They are: Mary Rollier, Myrtle Mae Snyder, Allen Bennett, James Gribble, Lester W. Kennedy, Sr., Edna Patterson, Florence N. Gribble, Joseph H. Foster, Clarence L. Sickel. How great has OUR gift been to the work for which they gave their lives?

Evangelizing Adventures in Baja California---

DURING JUNE, JULY, AND AUGUST

WITH THE WALTER HAAG FAMILY, MISS DOROTHY ROBINSON, AND MISS AMELIA HERNANDEZ

We climbed the mountains to Comondu, a double town in a palm oasis in the canyon. We went down the canyon to a great plain on the Pacific side of the peninsula. It extends for over a hundred miles and the road is a good graded road ready for the asphalt. After crossing the hills going east we were once more on the gulf side. Before us lay the bay at La Paz. La Paz has many high-priced hotels and caters to rich American tourists who come here by air to fish.

Below La Paz the landscape changes rather suddenly. It is very green with shrubs and small trees and naturally very beautiful. We were pestered on this part of the trip by small gnats which in the early morning and in the evening are so thick they get in your ears and eyes and nose. We breathed them, and doubtless ate quantities of them. They make one feel frantic.

In two days we arrived at San Jose del Cabo at the lower end of the peninsula. We looked up the believers and found that their pastor, an independent faith missionary, had left them for reasons unknown. Whether or not he will return is uncertain. Meetings had been abandoned and the believers were most discouraged. We rounded up some of them in the few days we were there and induced a young lady among their number to have a Sunday school for them.

San Jose del Cabo is a good-sized town located in a fruitful area. The principal means of livelihood are cattle raising and agriculture. The crops are cotton, cane, mangos, bananas, and avocados. We expected to enjoy the fruit when we arrived, but found there had been a rain and heavy wind recently which knocked off all the fruit. There was almost none to be had. Finally, just before we left, a friend brought us three small bunches of bananas which were delicious, but which we ate up entirely too soon.

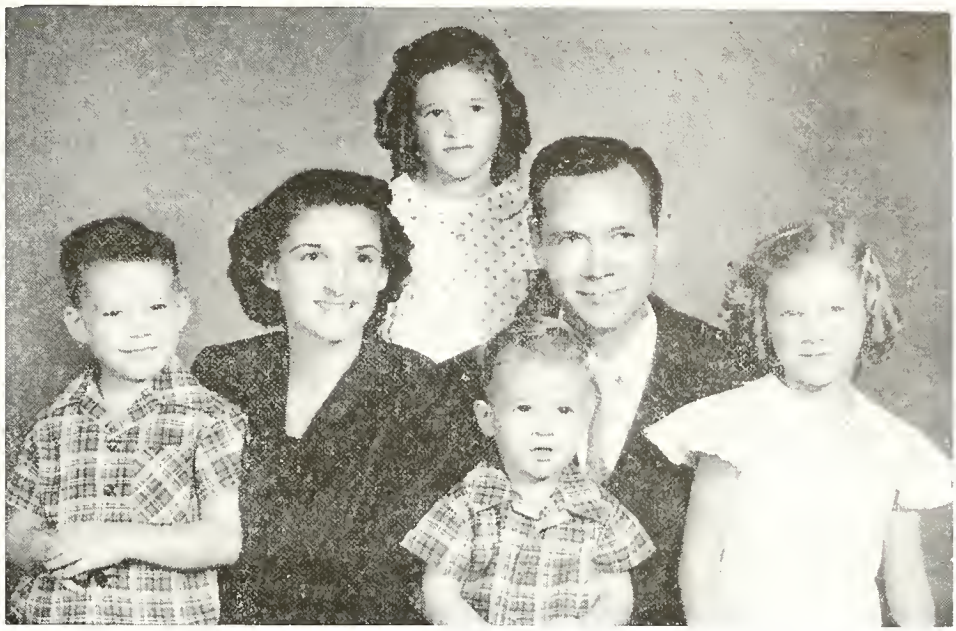
San Lucas is the town farthest south on the peninsula. The name means Cape of St. Luke. In this place we showered the town with illustrated editions of the Gospel of Luke. Everyone received his copy graciously, since it was generally recognized as the Gospel belonging in a special way to their town.

Sunday we were in La Paz again. We hunted up a believer and found that this city, which a few years back had run out two Lutheran women missionaries, now has four Protestant groups—Lutheran, Assembly of God, an undenominational group, and Jesus Only Pentecostals. We visited with the Lutheran and Assembly of God pastors and attended services at the undenominational church. We were encouraged by what the Lord has done in this fanatical city.

Returning we found deep mud in the road between the twin towns of Comondu, and when we climbed to the plateau above the towns, we found a truck stuck and men trying to dig it out. The owner of the truck, we found out later, was the subdelegado of Mulege. He and his men had to camp there for the night and came to buy food from us, as they had none. The next day they courteously received religious literature from us. Mulege is a fanatical place and to be able to do a favor to the subdelegado and give some literature, we feel, was the work of the Lord. Thus, little by little, God is opening doors and creating more friendliness toward the Gospel in the cities of Baja California.

We arrived once more in San Ignacio. When we went to the post office, the children, led by the priest, shouted

"They read the tracts."



"Tijuana—some are institute students."

MEET THE EDMISTONS

Rev. and Mrs. Sibley Edmiston and their fine family have, during this year, become a part of our foreign-missionary personnel in relation to our work in Mexico. They are located at Laredo, Tex., and work with the Mexican population in that city, as well as in Nuevo Lareo, Mexico, and other surrounding Mexican areas.

Brother and Sister Edmiston are members of the North Long Beach Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif. Brother Edmiston is a graduate of Grace Theological Seminary, having received his B. Th. degree (cum laude) in 1953.

Reports of the first months of activity in this center of testimony are very encouraging.

their song at us and the priest urged them on, saying, "Louder, louder!" Some came and sat on a bench in the plaza near our car and commenced to sing the same rude song. I took out my camera and was going to take their picture, but they immediately scattered like quail. They took refuge on the porch of the Catholic church and began to sing and dance up and down in defiance. I followed to a bench in front of the church intending to take their picture, but every time I would put the camera to my eye they ducked behind the banister. There were, as usual, men loafing in the plaza, and the sentiment seemed to be amusement at the situation and shame at the rude conduct of the children. One woman even came and called home her girl who was in the group. Finally, when I put away my camera, they returned to the bench beside our car. The delegado came out and scolded them for their disorderly conduct, but Mrs. Haag defended them, saying they weren't doing anything. Then she had the opportunity to get out and talk to them about the Lord, using the Catholic Bible as the basis. They admitted it was the same kind the priest used. The men in the plaza stood around close enough so they could hear, and the door to their hearts was opened a little wider for the entrance of the Gospel.

On the last night the priest passed with his children singing their praise to the virgin. The believers heard them coming and asked to sing "No lo hay" ("There's not a friend like the lowly Jesus"). So, as the priest passed by the porch, the believers sang at the top of their lungs the hymn honoring the Lord Jesus Christ. On this occasion the priest tore out the leaves of the hymn we had sung and threw them at us, meanwhile shouting "Si lo hay" ("Yes; there is, but you are not going to see her"), meaning the Virgin of Guadelupe is their friend, and equal to the Saviour.

One night Amelia gave a flannelgraph lesson, the second she had given in an evening service. A dance was being held nearby, so her story drew a large crowd. While she was talking, the priest passed and didn't return that night. People said he returned to town another way because he was put to shame by the crowd gathered to hear the Gospel. Amelia did very well with her story, especially considering that the crowd was mostly men. When she finished they clapped her. We were very happy because the Lord had so developed her ability and given her courage in His service.

The last night of our stay we had a social with games, and kool-ade for refreshments. An entertainment of a Christian nature was a new thing in the lives of these people, but everyone had a wonderful time. They said it was more fun than a dance.

Next day we headed north, taking with us one of the San Ignacio boys to go to our Bible institute. Four other young men there say they want to attend next year. We also took with us a young man from Rancho el Coyote to attend two weeks of special meetings. When we arrived in Tijuana, we left the young men at the mission because they did not have permission to cross the international boundary line.

Please pray that the Lord will have His way in regard to this matter of training Mexican workers. It is our desire that as many as possible should be fitted to meet the need we found for workers in Baja California, and the need is just as great elsewhere.

AFRICAN CHURCH GROWS

In 33 years the membership of our African church has grown from 1 to 13,424, with over 5,000 more in pre-baptism classes. Did ever such a small investment of money bring such large and eternal results?

First Three Weeks in Bangui

By Mrs. Orville Jobson

The opening of a new Brethren church in the city of Bangui has now become a reality, and how we do praise the Lord for answered prayer! Truly we can say with the psalmist: "This is the Lord's doing; it is marvelous in our eyes."

A Temporary Meeting Place

During the last week of October we, with Pastor Noel from Bozoum, came to Bangui and rented a small house in which to live until Brother Balzer has the new mission house completed. The week was spent in getting the grounds cleared around the house in order to put up a temporary meeting place for the coming Lord's Day. Brother Balzer and his carpenter built a shed—or should we call it a tabernacle?—20 by 40 feet, in one day. Of course seats were needed, so we bought lumber at the sawmill and benches were speedily nailed together.

During the week Pastor Noel was busy visiting the many different members and converts who formerly attended church at our different stations and outposts. Employment in this city has brought hundreds of our Brethren people to Bangui, and our first efforts are with them in order to have an organized church.

The First Lord's Day

On the Lord's Day morning, about 6:30, folks started gathering, and by 7:30 the tabernacle was full and overflowing. Some Sango records were played, then Pastor Noel opened the service with prayer, singing, and Bible verses, after which Mr. Jobson gave the morning message. The invitation was given to the unsaved and 32 responded to the call. There were approximately 300 present at this first service. In the afternoon at 3 o'clock a French service was conducted for the French-speaking natives here in the city, and about 75 attended the service. At 4 o'clock another service in Sango was held, which closed our first Lord's Day in the capital city.

During the following week classes were organized for the Christians and inquirers. Mrs. Balzer, with native helpers, is kept busy every afternoon teaching the inquirers to read and memorize Bible verses. Classes to instruct the members of the church are also held. Mr. Jobson teaches the men and I have the women. Many of these men and women ride bicycles, others come on buses, and many on foot; the whole front yard near our house is used for a parking lot and our front porch makes a good classroom.

The early-morning prayer meeting is well attended. Noel, who for many years had morning prayer meetings at the Bozoum chapel, is now faithfully meeting here from 5:30 to 6, after which a short message is given, and at 6:30 the folks leave for their day's work. Many of the working class of people finish their work at 2:30 and this gives them an opportunity to attend some afternoon classes.

The Second Lord's Day

The second Lord's Day here the attendance doubled, so we saw the need of enlarging the tabernacle. This was done, but still we find the building is not adequate to accommodate the crowd. With the increased interest and attendance, the enrollment of the classes has greatly increased. At present there are 220 in the inquirers' classes; also there is an increase in the number of members from our inland churches desiring membership in the Bangui church.

The Third Lord's Day

The Third Lord's Day we were prepared for a much larger attendance, but even the addition to the tabernacle did not provide seating space for all, and once again folks were obliged to sit on the ground surrounding the tabernacle. During this service many came forward to accept the Lord; others to apply for membership. Mr. Jobson continues his examination for those seeking membership, and we look forward to the first baptism and organization of the church sometime in December, which will be followed by the first communion for this charter group. Continue to pray for the establishment of our testimony in Bangui. There truly is an open door and many opportunities, but there are also many adversaries and much opposition. However, we are looking to the Lord for the wisdom and strength needed day by day. "Great is Thy faithfulness."

THE COMING OF THE LORD DRAWETH NIGH

(James 5:8)

This may be the last of the years quickly flying;
It may be the year when the Saviour will come,
When the Land of the Holy, for which we are sighing,
Will burst into view—the Father's glad Home.

It may be the last, all mystery ending,
In deepest of Peace, in the sunlight of God.
That sweet smile of welcome, from Jesus descending,
Will more than make up for the toils of the road.

TRIALS AND TRIUMPHS OF A

A Tent Campaign in Argentina

By Lynn D. Schrock, Rio Cuarto

One of the most interesting parts of a missionary's work in the Argentine is a tent campaign. The thing that contributes especially to its interest is that so many new folks hear the Gospel—some for the first time.

As this article is being written we are in the midst of our summer activities, including tent campaigns. Right now there is a campaign in progress in Jose Marmol in the Province of Buenos Aires, as well as in Pampayasta here in the Province of Cordoba. But the tent campaign about which I want to tell you is the one we just finished in Corral de Bustos.

Our "New" Truck

Not long ago it was decided that a small truck would be more useful by the mission than the Bible coach. Since there was one for sale in Cabrera, we bought it with the idea of selling the Bible coach. It was with this newly purchased truck (a 1929 Model A Ford) that Don Pedro Olthoff and I started out from Rio Cuarto the morning of November 22 (the day that Dr. Barnard left Europe on the S. S. United States, if I remember correctly). Our plan was to be in La Carlota for the noon meal with the Dowdys. Then in good time that afternoon we were going to continue our trip to Corral de Bustos. When we got to the road that leads off the highway into La Carlota, we were stopped by the highway police. This was nothing new, as they always do this as a routine matter. But this time they noticed that we didn't have a rear bumper on our "new" truck. Further, when they looked at my driver's license they noticed that I hadn't renewed it (a matter that I had overlooked). Well, they said that they would forgive the latter, as they saw it was involuntary, but we must have a rear bumper put on before continuing our trip. All persuasion proved to be useless. So at last, at 6:10 p. m., we were on our way again—about four hours behind our planned schedule.

Motor Trouble?

As we went along I mentioned to Don Pedro a couple times that I didn't like the sound of the motor. But the thing kept on going about the same, so we didn't worry much about it, thinking that it must be a characteristic of the truck we had purchased. But as we went up a hill, the car began to miss in a way that we didn't like a bit. So we got out and looked at the motor. It was hot—even to the point of the oil boiling. Then all of a sudden we realized why. There was the broken fan belt. Well, we thanked the Lord that the last thing we had done before leaving Rio Cuarto was buy a fan belt—just in case. Now we had the case. And it wasn't as easy a case as we had hoped for, but after struggling for awhile we got it on and were on our way again.

All went well until we got to the dirt road—as the last 35 miles are dirt. It was on this stretch that we were enjoying pretty good road. Of course, Don Pedro kept telling me that there was a bad stretch, especially right after rain. It had rained not long before, but that day the sun and wind had dried the roads considerably. Thus we hoped that the bad stretch wouldn't be too bad. It was about 11 p. m. when we saw a threshing machine parked at the side of the road. Our thought was that they had stopped there simply because it was time to sleep. We hadn't gone by them more than 30 yards when we knew why they were stopped. We were too! If we had been alone, we would have been there for the rest of the night. But immediately three or four men came from the threshing machine to help us. At last we found that the other side of the road was much better, so we kept going on that side. It was well after midnight when we arrived in Corral de Bustos and found Brother Marshall waiting up for us. We slept well, though not too much that night.

Our first meeting was the next night. There was a pretty good group. The thorough work of preparation on the part of Brother Marshall and his congregation had informed the town of the campaign. But a detail that was rather discouraging was that, after preaching definitely for decisions, the only one who spoke to me after the service about being interested was a drunk who never showed up after that night.

As the meetings went on there were others who showed real interest. By the time the meetings were over a good many children had made a profession of faith in Christ as Saviour in the DVBS classes that were held; also there were about five young people and adults who seemed to understand what the decision meant that they had made. Others raised their hands or stood up in the meetings in response to the invitation, but conversations with them after the meetings revealed that they did not understand what they had professed to have done.

The Harvest

I want to tell you of one triumph in particular that the Lord gave in these meetings. On Sunday night the message was on "The Three Great Enemies of the Soul" —a message based on the parable of the sower. At the end of the message I gave opportunity to those who had sufficient courage to stand and thus manifest publicly their faith in Christ as Saviour. No one stood up, though it was evident that the Lord was working in the meeting. After the service was closed with prayer I noticed a young couple standing near the tent, not seeming to be at all in a hurry to go home. So I went over to them and greeted them. I asked the man if he had understood the message. He said that he had and then said that he had felt a great heat in his body during the invitation and that he knew that he should have stood up, but didn't have courage to do so.

After talking to him a bit I assured him that it wasn't too late to accept Christ even that very night. He then said that Brother Maconaghy had talked to him about seven years ago about the need of accepting Christ as Saviour. He said that at that time he told Mr. Maconaghy that he agreed with us evangelicals, but didn't want to make a definite decision for Christ. It was then that Brother Maconaghy told him that he was like the man in the door who had to either go in or out. When he told me this, I asked him if he didn't want to come in that very night. We shook hands and he said that he did want to accept Christ with all his heart.

That, brethren, was a triumph—a thrill that we seldom have in this priest-ridden land. And the marvel of it is that his wife, too, confesses to be saved now. Other contacts with them during the campaign showed that they were rejoicing in their new-found Saviour, and they are planning to send their older boy to our children's camp this summer. I do not have any report from Brother Marshall as to how this man and his wife are following on since the campaign, but we are trusting the Lord to keep His own.

Home Again!

Immediately after the closing service we took down the tent and started on our way home. Roger Dowdy went with Don Pedro and me as far as La Carlota. But before we got there we again had troubles. The truck would putter along on two or three cylinders. And it even stopped completely on two occasions, but at last we discovered that if the lights weren't on we could keep on going. It was at 4 a. m. that we discovered this secret of our "new" truck. So for about an hour and a half we went along without lights most of the time—turning them on just enough to see the road sufficiently to keep on it. From then on we made our way to Rio Cuarto with relatively little difficulty. The principal problem was to stay awake. But a good strong cup of coffee pepped us up a bit so that we got home without completely going to sleep.

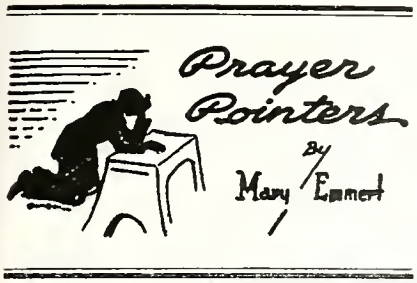
In a recent year the 50 students in our Bible institute in Africa, with their families all helping to carry their earthly possessions, walked 5,165 miles coming to school, and a similar distance returning home after the nine-months term of school.

DO YOU AGREE?

(Editor's Note—The quotation which follows was taken from "Paix and Liberte," a French Communist paper.)

"The Gospel of Jesus Christ and the Communist Manifesto. The Gospel is a much more powerful weapon for the renewal of society than is our Marxist philosophy. All the same, it is we who will finally beat you. We are only a handful, and you Christians are numbered by the million. But if you remember the story of Gideon and his three hundred companions, you will understand why I am right. We Communists do not play with words. We are realists, and seeing that we are determined to achieve our object, we know how to obtain the means. Of our salaries and wages we keep only what is strictly necessary; and we give the rest for propaganda purposes. To this propaganda we also consecrate 'all our free time and part of our holidays.' You, however, give only a little time and hardly any money for the spreading of the Gospel of Christ. How can anyone believe in the supreme value of this Gospel if you do not practice it? If you do not spread it? And if you sacrifice neither time nor money for it? Believe me, it is we who will win, for we believe in our Communist message and we are ready to sacrifice everything, even our life, in order that social justice shall triumph. But you people are afraid to soil your hands."

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER?



In our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches we have ONE missionary for every 235 members. Doesn't it seem reasonable that 234 of these members should fully support and supply all the needs for the ONE who goes? Yet, last year our offerings dropped 6 percent as compared to the year before. Just now we have almost frantic appeals from at least four of our six mission fields pleading for additional funds for necessary expansion to be able to accept unparalleled opportunities. Your answer must always be our answer, and your answer is in your gifts!

NATIVES DELUDED

The keeper of Mohammed's tomb at Mecca predicted and publicized all over Africa that Mohammed would make visible signs in the heavens in 1952. Said he, "The sun will darken at midday." He, of course, had the information which scientists had given out, telling of an eclipse to occur in February of 1952, but the poor natives not having this information were moved to honor Mohammed.

Our African press turned out 38,776 pieces of literature during a recent year, and the work was done to a very great extent by two native typesetters and one press operator.

Christianity is the one religion which proffers to save a man without eliminating, mutilating, or starving some part of his essential nature.—Heart Throbs.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Praise God for the way He supplies the needs of the school, and pray that the annual offering now being taken may meet all the current needs of the school.

2. Continue to pray that God will send in to the school additional gifts to make possible much-needed expansion.

3. Pray for the students as they take final examinations and begin their work of the second semester.

4. Pray for the new students that will be coming in, that they may find work and become adjusted to the school.

5. Pray for the Grace Bible Conference, sponsored by the alumni, to be held January 24 to 28, and for the annual day of prayer which closes the conference.

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Continue to pray for the health of our missionaries—especially for Mrs. Haag, Miss Thurston, Miss Tyson, Lester Kennedy, and others as you hear of the need.

2. Pray for the missionaries in Africa and for the plans formulated at the recent field council meeting, that through all avenues of the work more may be reached with the Gospel.

3. Pray for the midyear meeting of the foreign board, which is due to begin in Winona Lake on Monday, January 24.

4. Pray for the proposed missionary conference in each of our 11 districts during the months of February through May. The missionaries participating will travel in a party, and as many fields as possible will be represented at each conference.

5. Pray for the definite guidance of the Lord in the proposed purchase of property in France, Brazil, and Argentina.

6. Pray for the training of national and native workers in the various Bible institutes — for the continued effectiveness of such in Africa, for the expansion of such training in Mexico, for the reopening of the institute in Argentina, and for those training centers with which we cooperate in other fields.

7. Pray that the present open doors may stay open to the preaching of the Gospel in all of our fields. Pray that as the doors remain open we (Brethren) will sacrifice in order to enter the open doors.

8. Pray for the preparation and distribution of the foreign mission seasonal material to be used during the months of February through May, that such may be delivered on time and be used effectively.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Pray that the needs of the Temple City Brethren Church will be met since it has gone self-supporting January 1, and pray for their new pastor who has just arrived, John M. Aeby.

2. Pray for Rev. and Mrs. Ralph J. Colburn as they have entered into home-mission work this new year at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Pray that this work may develop rapidly and be the means of starting additional Brethren testimonies in the South.

3. Pray for the new building program that is about to get under way in Seattle, Wash., and pray especially for financing.

4. Pray that the Lord will provide the Fremont, Ohio, colored people with a suitable location upon which they may erect their temporary building and put it to use.

5. Praise the Lord for His blessings thus far on the San Bernardino relocation and pray that the Christian day school may soon be started in connection with the new church.

6. Pray that the Artesia church will have divine wisdom and guidance as to the future progress of the work.

7. Pray that all the home-mission churches will be able to assume the added financial responsibility placed upon them with the coming of the new year.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE—

1. Pray for your Board of Evangelism as we start a new year; that 1955 might be a year of real revival across the brotherhood.

2. Praise the Lord for the ministry of Brother and Sister Colburn in the recent meetings in the Northwest, and pray for them as they go into their new work in Florida.

3. Praise the Lord for two new Team Two members: Bill Byers, songleader, and Jim Martin, pianist.

4. Pray for Crusade Team Two meetings in York (Jan. 2-16), and Kittanning (Jan. 18-30).

WMC (Atlantic District)—

1. Praise the Lord for rich blessings we receive in our Bible study and mission study topics, and pray His blessing upon those who have written them for us.

2. Pray that "Our Daily Walk" may lead each WMC lady to her prayer closet often to intercede for our faithful missionaries.

3. Pray that every member may have a real missionary zeal, and that each of us may be a sincere soul-winner. Time is so short!

SMM (California District)—

1. Let us pray for our national officers as they through His strength fulfill their jobs. Remember them in their school work, and as they commune with other district Sisterhoods.

2. Let us pray for the birthday offering which is one of our projects each year. Let each one of us participate in the further education of the missionary children.

3. Let us pray that the aim of the Sisterhood, to develop the girl, might really be impressed upon our minds. Let us strive to do God's will.

4. Let us pray that the new goal regarding our bandages might be fulfilled and that more interest might be taken in this goal.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

Pray for the leading of the Holy Spirit as plans are made for the disposal of our present property and the erection of a new home for the Missionary Herald on the property recently purchased.

Pray for the missionaries who have the responsibility of the translation of articles in the Missionary Herald, in order that the articles can be read by the African natives.

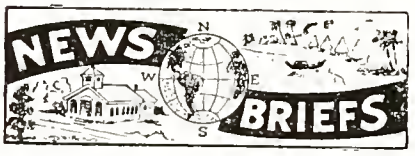
FORT WAYNE, IND. Rev. Mark Malles will move here about Jan. 3 to become pastor of the First Brethren Church. Dr. H. A. Hoyt occupied the pulpit during December.

TROY, OHIO. The address of Frank Brill, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church, is 527 N. Market.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Rev. and Mrs. Jake Kliever arrived here from Africa on Friday, Dec. 10, to begin a year of furlough. They returned from Africa on the S. S. Queen Mary, along with Miss Elizabeth Tyson.

SPECIAL. A total of 802 pupils are registered in the Christian day schools operated by the Brethren churches in southern California. Christian teachers are needed in these schools, and anyone interested in serving the Lord in this capacity should contact one of the following pastors: Dr. C. W. Mayes, Rev. Glenn O'Neal, Rev. Ward Miller, or Rev. John Aeby. Teachers will be needed for the 1955-56 school year.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. A pioneer in radio, Dr. Charles E. Fuller, will at the beginning of 1955 enter his 30th year of continuous broadcasting. From a modest beginning over a single California station, this popular hour is now carried by more than 600 stations around the world each week to an audience estimated at ten million persons. It is the oldest network religious program on the air today. An anniversary rally will be held following the broadcast at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium on Jan. 9. Key religious and civic leaders will have part on the program.



WHITTIER, CALIF. The Community Brethren Church had an average attendance of 313 for November, which is the best average in the history of the church. On Dec. 5, 350 were in attendance. There are 130 enrolled in the Christian day school. Rev. Ward Miller is pastor.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. Any minister interested in the pastorate of the First Brethren Church is requested to contact Mr. Victor E. Marquart, moderator, 8241 Rising Sun Ave.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. Rev. Charles Underwood has resigned as pastor of the Stearns Street Brethren Church, effective about March 1.

MANSFIELD, OHIO. Attendance continues to mount at the Grace Brethren Church. There were 438 present at the morning worship service on Dec. 12. Spiritual victories are evidenced in several men being saved in the past few weeks. Dr. Bernard Schneider is pastor.

ASHLAND, OHIO. Attendance at the morning worship services for November averaged 425. Rev. Miles Taber is pastor.

WHEATON, ILL. The headquarters office of the National Association of Evangelicals has been moved from Chicago to 108 N. Main St., Wheaton, Ill.

MODESTO, CALIF. The WMC of the McHenry Avenue Grace Brethren Church was in charge of the evening service on Dec. 5, presenting the playlet, "The Value of Family Devotions." Rev. Raymond Thompson is pastor.

CUYAHOGA FALLS, OHIO. The Grace Brethren Church is holding services in its new church building located at 1736 E. Bailey Rd. (at Treash Dr.). Rev. Richard Burch is pastor.

ALEXANDRIA, VA. The Atlantic District overnight youth rally will be held at the Commonwealth Avenue Brethren Church Feb. 4-5. Rev. Robert Markley will be host pastor.

CORRAL DE BUSTOS, ARGENTINA. Rev. and Mrs. James Marshall are the proud parents of a 9-lb. boy, born Dec. 17.

DALLAS CENTER, IOWA. Rev. A. D. Cashman has accepted the pastoral call of the First Brethren Church. He will assume the pastorate about Jan. 15.

ROANOKE, VA. The Southeast District overnight youth rally will be held at the Washington Heights Brethren Church Jan. 7-8. Rev. W. Carl Miller will be host pastor.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, PA. Seventy-five Brethren young people from the Brethren churches at Altoona, Juniata, Leamersville, Vicksburg, Yellow Creek, and Martinsburg, Pa., assembled at the Hollidaysburg YMCA on Dec. 11 for a time of Christian fellowship. Rev. Mark Malles gave the devotional message.

ROANOKE, VA. Ghent Brethren Church has started a weekly radio broadcast over WSLS. Rev. Robert Miller is pastor.

CUYAHOGA FALLS, OHIO. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robertson celebrated their 54th wedding anniversary on Dec. 6. They are members of the Grace Brethren Church.

NEW ORLEANS, LA. Dr. Billy Graham has been "quoted" by a secular magazine as having declared that it is possible for a minister to take part in worldly practices and still be a devout Christian. Dr. Graham denies that any such statement was ever made, and has demanded that the statement be corrected.

CHICAGO, ILL. The National Sunday School Association will conduct two conventions in 1955, according to Clete Risley, general secretary. The dates are: Oct. 5-7, Spokane, Wash., and Oct. 26-28, Providence, R. I.

This issue of the Missionary Herald has gone into 8,442 homes, offices, and mission points, and will be read by approximately 20,000 people.

CERTAINTIES AND UNCERTAINTIES OF 1955

By REV. EDWARD LEWIS

Pastor, First Brethren Church
Buena Vista, Va.

If the Lord should tarry, every person reading this article will probably face a new year—a year which we shall call 1955. It will be a year which will spell hardship or joy to everyone. It will be a year in which many who are now well and healthy will pass from our midst; a year that will bring many into our midst who are not now with us. Yes; 1955 brings with it many uncertainties. No doubt the Apostle Paul faced the year A. D. 63 with the same uncertainty that we face today. It was about that year that he wrote the Book of Philippians.

Paul's Confession of Shortcomings

"Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:12).

Paul was thinking, as did the sweet psalmist of old, how changeable he was—how many times through the years he had failed the Lord. We shrink in shame when we consider the zealousness of Paul as compared to our own defection. There is no doubt but what we made rash promises to the Lord—promises that were not wrong to make—but we failed to let Him have His way with us so that they could be carried out effectively. Many of us found ourselves on top of the world one day only to find ourselves at the bottom the next. If that has been your experience, think of the words of Paul: "Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect." We have One who can be touched with the feeling of our infirmities.

It may be that Paul was thinking of the changeable world. Things were changing rapidly in his day, as they are in this day. Paul remembered the solemnity of the apostles —the reverence that was given to the Lord as they first met together. Then he noticed a change—how lightly the Lord and the things of the Lord were esteemed. Think of the frivolity that has entered the house of the Lord in our day! Many children come into the house of the Lord today as though they were entering the local gymnasium. When the Word of God is being taught or preached, they ignore it.

When I was a boy, whenever we entered the church, we always bowed our heads and thanked God for the privilege of being in the house of God. We also waited at the close of the service until the piano finished playing before we lifted our heads. Today these things are ignored.

In Paul's day candles were used for light—in ours it is electricity. Heat, in those days, was furnished with wood—today it is oil and gas, and soon they hope to be able to harness the atom for that use. Yes; it is a changeable world.

Paul Had a Certainty of Aim

"But I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which also I am apprehended of Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:12).

Perhaps you had the same experience as I did. When I entered high school, I was asked if I wanted the commercial course or the academic course. I didn't know, because at that time I had no aim in life. You may not be a great success in life, but you should have an aim. I once knew a young man who changed jobs every few weeks. It wasn't that he could not do the work, but because he had no aim in life. Paul's aim was Christ Jesus. He attained unto the resurrection. I have often wondered, if some people are truly saved, how they are going to make the drastic change that will be needed to fit them for heaven.

He Had a Curtained Past

"Forgetting those things which are behind" (Phil. 3:13).

No doubt many of those things were worth forgetting—but on the other hand, many of them may have been worth remembering. No Christian can live on past victories—neither can the unbeliever. I have been in the home of athletes of the past. They have shown me some of the vast store of trophies they had accumulated. However, the accumulation of such prowess is wonderful, but you cannot live on it. When the last schoolbell rings, you must face the world. And although you may have made a fine record, remember, when 1954 rings out and 1955 rings in, you have to face a new record sheet.

A Concentration of Effort

"This one thing I do . . . reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:14).

Paul is closing a victorious life for Christ, and now the goal is at hand. The picture is one of an athlete coming down the stretch, and with a last burst of strength he throws his arm in front of him to break the tape and win the prize. Give it all that you have.

This brings me back to Psalm 102: 25-27. Sure; the world does change and men change, but I am reminded that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever. The other day I read that the authorities-that-be are considering changing the calendar year again in order to eliminate the so-called mixup in February every four years. And some day time will be no more, but at the end of our time is Jesus.

An old lamplighter, after being saved, was giving his testimony. He remarked that as he turned the lights out one by one it reminded him of his salvation—there was always another Light.

"But," someone asked him, "what about it when you put out the last light?"

"Then," he replied, "it is dawn, and I no longer need light."

To the Christian there is a bright picture for 1955, whether you live or whether you die, for when all the lights of this world go out, then we meet the Son of Righteousness, and there is no night there.

Religion in REVIEW

OUTSTANDING EVENTS IN 1954

By V. Raymond Edman
PRESIDENT, WHEATON COLLEGE, WHEATON, ILL.

Viewed in the perspective of the past, the year of 1954 showed a marked upswing of interest in religion. If we were to plot the pulse of public attention to matters religious as indicated by objective factors such as church attendance, evangelistic campaigns, space in the press, and the conversation of the man on the street, we would observe a low ebb in 1924 which was marked by open skepticism and scoffing at revealed religion; an even lower point in 1934 marked by the prevalence of Marxist philosophy and materialism which had largely silenced the prophets of faith in the days of depression; and 1944 was too preoccupied with the logistics of global warfare to be able to give much attention to things spiritual. The chart indicates, therefore, a very rapid rise in regard to religion by 1954; and from all indications the graph will record even greater achievements in 1955.

Signs of Revival

There is considerable difference of opinion among evangelicals as to the meaning of this increased interest in things spiritual, or even of its existence, but inquiry reveals that conservatives in theology regard a revival of religion only in terms of the Welsh experience of 1904, or of the ministry of Charles G. Finney in the United States during the mid-nineteenth century, or the awakening that swept Britain in 1859-60. The fact is overlooked by many that times of great spiritual awakening in the past have always been preceded by a period of preparation; and there are some who believe that such are the days of 1954.

An observant foreign journalist wrote in April of this year his impressions of America, in which he stated in part: "The question to be asked is this: Is there merely a 'movement' in America, or has a revolution occurred?" Opinions differ. Some observers think there is an interesting, nationwide movement which may develop into a revolution in the form of an historic religious revival. Others think the movement occurred some time ago, and has already become a revolution, the effects of which will have worldwide repercussions.

The fundamental movement in America is a sweeping, powerful, all-embracing religious awakening which, within two years, has entirely changed public affairs. Inasmuch as it is a Biblical revival, it is somewhat naturally, deeply anti-Communist in nature. Here are some facts connected with this revolution:

1. Eighty percent of the adult population of America are now associated with a church; whereas, at the time of the war of independence only 8 percent were churchgoers.

2. Religious books sold three times more copies in 1953 than all other books on all other subjects combined.

3. President Eisenhower has become a convinced churchman, and has only missed four times since his inauguration. He and his colleagues are deeply moved by the revival; Cabinet meetings open with prayer; many Senators attend devotional breakfast meetings. Newspapers find a religious topic better headline news than an international crisis.

4. American religious activities are spreading overseas with an extraordinary rapidity. There is a sweeping reaction against secularism and materialism.

Without doubt there is a very marked increase of interest in religion and attention to matters spiritual; and one shares the question asked of me by Dr. Edward R. Elson, the president's pastor, when he inquired: "What will the masses do when they begin to see that there is the cross central and inevitable in Christianity?" The future holds the answer to that pertinent question.

Several outstanding factors represent accurately the religious experience of 1954, in my opinion.

A year ago the name "Harringay" was unknown in America and elsewhere in the world, and was an arena habituated in Britain only by devotees of dog races and boxing. In 1954 it became a household name among Christians the world over, because it became during the spring of the year the center of the Greater London Crusade led by Billy Graham, Grady Wilson, George Beverly Shea, and the team from America.

It was my privilege to be with Billy Graham and the team members at the farewell gatherings in New York City and on board the S. S. United States. We shared Billy's burden of heart for Britain and the sense of holy awe and humility with which the team members set out for the London campaign. Within a matter of two weeks that prayer burden had been scattered throughout the Christian world so that not only hundreds of thousands of earnest believers in North America and Britain prayed earnestly for the campaign, but also there were petitions to the throne of grace among the evangelicals of Latin America in Spanish, Portugueses, and Indian dialects; intercession in a multitude of African languages, in India, Indonesia, and everywhere in the world. Harringay had become the focal point of worldwide prayer.

Of course there was great opposition and grave misrepresentation. The relatively small committee under the Evangelical Alliance had made every possible plan, but the British Christians were quite unprepared for the outcry in the newspapers: "Bill, go home!" and "Billy, apologize—or stay away." Some members of Parliament refused to attend a House of Commons dinner for the evangelist because of a statement on "Socialism" which proved to be a misprint for secularism. There was exaggeration out of all proportion as to the personality of the evangelist and his purported income; and he was represented as a "Hot-gospeller" (the British equivalent of a "religious racketeer") and a violent antisocialist.

The Intelligence Digest of London published this statement shortly after the beginning of the campaign: "We find that: (1) He is, without doubt, not very partial to socialism; he could not possibly be part of the American revolution were he otherwise. (2) He is not a hot-gospeller—far from it. He is a modest—even humble—man. Young, matter of fact, a minister of religion, an athlete, easy going—indeed, the antithesis of the inflammatory hot-gospellers. (3) He was invited to London by one thousand British churches, with very strong Anglican support. He has never lectured his London audiences, and our impression is that to lecture is not in his character. He preaches a simple, traditional Gospel, without emotion. Many people in Britain would think his sermons too little polished for their liking. So, too, do many people think Eisenhower's speeches less polished than Churchill's There is no more to it than that. (4) He is paid the normal salary (and no more) of an American minister or clergyman of any church in a big city.

The Archbishop of Canterbury made later comment: "It is significant to note how, as the campaign has gone on, the suspicions and hostilities which were felt by many at the start, have been steadily dissipated. I have spoken with many who went to Harringay, and I have heard hardly a word of adverse criticism. Always they have spoken of the simple sincerity of it all, the direct presentation of God's Word to man in Christ, the restrained but deeply moving impression given by it."

The gross attendance at Harringay Arena and the relay services held in auditoriums and theaters throughout Britain to which the message was brought by radio, was in excess of 17,000,000. Every level of society was reached. As reported by a British journalist, "The most extraordinary thing about the crusade was that an enormous number of men in the higher walks of life—who only a short time ago it would have been inconceivable to imagine at an evangelistic meeting—went, loved it, and are now intensely keen to give their utmost support to further and bigger efforts." Equally important was the impact on British university students.

The follow-up work was well organized by the Navigators, and that important part of the evangelistic effort has been continued since the close of the campaign. Among the reactions and impressions of church leaders it is important to note those of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who declared: "As we thank God for what this has meant to so many, the churches must take a lesson out of it for themselves. So often they do not begin far enough back. They expect people to understand whole sentences of church life and doctrine before they have been taught the letters of the Christian alphabet and the words of one syllable. It is the natural mistake of the keen teacher. Dr. Graham has taught us all to begin again at the beginning in our evangelism and speak by the power of the Holy Spirit of sin and righteousness and of judgment."

U. S. A.—1954

From this side of the Atlantic, David Lawrence, the distinguished and incisive editor of the U. S. News & World Report, editorialized: "Dr. Graham has appeared in the role of an Old Testament prophet or a John the Baptist declaring, 'Thus said the Lord God,' and thousands have responded to his message. Nineteen hundred years ago men were puzzled by the preaching of St. Paul, preaching which swept away the paganism of the Roman Empire and the dead ecclesiasticism of Judaism. The explanation which he himself gave is: 'The preaching of the cross is to them that are perishing foolishness, but unto us which are being saved it is the power of God.' Is not that the real answer to our questions today?"

In the Western Hemisphere large evangelistic endeavors have marked the year 1954; not only those of Billy Graham in cities such as Nashville and New Orleans, but also by clergymen such as Merv Rosell and Jack Shuler, and laymen like Howard C. Butt, of Corpus Christi.

Latin America—1954

Even in Latin America, in which evangelical missionary endeavor has moved quite slowly in most places during the last century, 1954 was a new day for the Gospel. Evangelist Tommy Hicks, of California, began services in Buenos Aires with attendance of less than 5,000; and this grew to exceed 60,000. On one night in the largest football stadium in the city the crowd was estimated by the local newspapers at 200,000. Eighty thousand decision cards were filled out by seekers, and the local evangelical churches were swamped with converts and interested individuals. All the Bible and New Testaments in the city were eagerly bought up, and additional supplies demanded.

In other Latin American countries evangelistic campaigns have been conducted, such as Trinidad, Venezuela, and Ecuador; and others are planned for 1955. Youth for Christ International will hold a gathering in Brazil early in the new year. (See Missionary Herald, Nov. 6, 1954, p. 698.—Ed)

In the past few years the impression has gone abroad through the channels of Soviet propaganda that freedom of religion is now an established fact in the U. S. S. R. Whereas there had been bitter and brutal savagery in the 1920's and 1930's against religion in Russia, so that the churches had been confiscated to be used as granaries or museums of the godless, several thousand priests executed or imprisoned until death, the 40's have been marked by some alleviation from antireligious persecution. The Communist League of Militant Godless had a membership of five and a half million in 1932; and that had declined to three million after the outbreak of the war.

In time the early revolutionary and wholly theoretical objectives of the quality, justice, and a better life which were designed to be a substitute for revealed religion, proved to be a bitter disappointment. Soviet despotism was more desperate than that of the Czars and brotherhood was shown to be a bitter mockery. In their disillusionment the Russian people began their return to the church.

During the war Stalin allowed the churches to reopen and the priests publicly to perform their ritual in a coldly calculated measure of military necessity. The Soviet dictator reasoned that he could use religion as a device to inflame patriotism and nationalism, and at the same time to impress his allies of official Soviet freedom of religion. Some churchmen abroad believed that a new day had come for the Russian masses; and in their language, the leaven of Christianity would ameliorate the rigors of Russian atheism and militarism.

During last year it was observed by Newsweek's contributing editor, Leon Volkov: "Now, however, Christianity has revived to the point where it is a real menace to the regime. If religion is, as Marx and Lenin contended, the opium of the people, then more and more Soviet citizens have become addicts. All the evidence is that the orthodox church is becoming an increasingly important force in the affairs of the Soviet Union."

This threat has not gone unnoticed by the Soviet leaders. The newspapers have taken up the cudgels against religion with articles such as Pravda printed on "Let us spread scientific-atheistic propaganda." The promotion of atheism is being stepped up in the public schools. It is reported that in the earliest grades the teachers take advantage of little children with sophistry of this kind: "Children, look at this wonderful nature. You know who takes care of this nature? Our Communist party . . . you see the trees; therefore, they exist. Only the things exist which you can see, feel, and touch . . . don't believe in God. God does not exist. You cannot sem him."

The statistics of Soviet suppression of religion are startling, even if we consider only those regarding the occupied countries. From Estonia, of whose population of 1,250,000 three-fourths are Lutherans, 90,000 have been deported; and only 30 Lutheran and 3 Catholic priests remain. From Lithuania 615,000 of the 3,000,000 have been deported and only 340 Catholic priests of a former 1,600 remain. In Latvia 4 Lutheran pastors, 13 Catholic priests, and 3 Greek Orthodox priests have been murdered; 12 Lutheran pastors, 37 Baptist ministers, 4 Roman Catholic priests, and 5 Greek Orthodox priests have been deported. In Rumania more than 30 percent of the parish priests have been dismissed and replaced by Red collaborators; and in Czechoslovakia 10 percent of the priests are in jail, 15 percent in forced-labor camps, and 5 percent in exile.

Headline news in August 1954 was the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches, which met in Evanston, Ill. From 179 Protestant and Orthodox Church bodies there came 1,300 official delegates and an even larger number of visitors and newspaper correspondents. These delegates represented 200,000,000 Christians in 54 nations.

It was the observation of The Christian Century that "The chances are that Evanston will be remembered principally for its size. It brought more people together; it commanded more newspaper space; it stirred up more kinds of hullabaloo than any non-Roman church gathering—the German Kirchentag perhaps excepted—in modern times."

Spirited debate in the various sectional meetings preceded the decisions and declarations of the council. In social issues the assemly went on record as opposing any form of segregation based on race, color, or ethnic origins. To be sure, there was a relatively restrained protest from the representatives of the Dutch Reformed churches in South Africa. To the astonishment of many outsiders the council accepted a committee report opposing any legislation against racial intermarriage.

In matters economic the assembly was distinctly more conservative than its predecessor at Amsterdam in 1948. At that time there were strong statements against capitalism and the traditional American way of life, with strong leaning toward socialism (and as some interpreted the statements, toward communism). The report of the Evanston discussion group on "The Responsible Society" was critical of Marxist ideology, and declared private enterprise to be a desirable part of a national economy. The eulogy for the executive and the businessman was balanced by an expression of concern for a more equitable distribution of economic goods; and the Chicago Tribune editorialized that the position of the World Council in these matters was approaching that of the GOP platform.

In matters political it was stated that "no one form of government has a universal claim on Christians," but there was the added warning that basic human rights and political freedoms are essential to prevent tyranny.

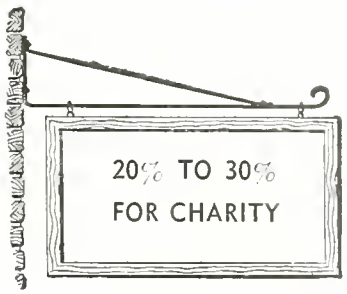
Peace among the nations was the principal burden of the pronouncements on international affairs. The assembly called for the prohibition of all weapons of mass destruction, and for the international inspection and control of atomic facilities. While totalitarianism was distinctly denounced it was held that there was no alternative in international affairs except that of "coexistence." The churchmen did not like that expression, so they used the phrase "living together in a divided world."

It was contended that there can be a development from the present competition among the nations to a genuine cooperation. Great reliance is to be placed on the United Nations, but the possibility of total war and national self-defense was recognized.

The World Council expressed itself as not desiring to become a world church, but to be a movement toward unity among Protestant and Orthodox communions. As one leading official expressed the matter: "The council can and must work to create a situation in which there is so much in common between the churches that there is no adequate reason for them to remain separate from each other."

While defining itself as primarily a religious gathering, the council was divided most seriously in matters of the faith. Early in the conference there developed sharp theological disagreements among the delegates, and these were not resolved when the sessions came to an end. The differences of opinions centered largely in the theme of the gathering: "Christ—the Hope of the World." It was the observation of a keen student of contemporary religion that "most Americans tended to emphasize the hope for improvement here and now, as well as the anticipation of ultimate redemption. Most Europeans preferred to discount human progress and to put their faith in the world to come or in the 'Second Coming of Christ.' Americans emphasized man's present responsibilities; Europeans placed reliance solely in God. There were diverse opinions within each group, and the cleavage along continental lines was by no means absolute. But many Europeans concluded that their American colleagues were largely humanistic and non-Biblical rather than specifically Christian, and many Americans found it difficult to distinguish between current European theology and the fundamentalism that bedeviled American churches a generation ago."

In some of the discussions there was public castigation of American evangelicals who hold to the fundamentals of the faith.



Candidly did The Christian Century observe: "Always at Evanston, and not far below the surface, there were grim disunities which the World Council may at limited times and to limited degrees transcend, but which it has hardly even begun to dissolve Evanston will not be remembered for having carried forward the cause of Christian unity. It might possibly (though we hope not) be remembered for having shown how far-off and blocked-off the goal of unity is."

The Message, the concluding statement of the council, is a stirring statement, and to much of it evangelicals can agree if the members meant what conservatives understand the words to mean; and there are conspicuous omissions.

Income Tax Relaxation

It is not often that Congress makes leading religious news for the year, but such has been the case in 1954. The Internal Revenue Code adopted this year reflects the position that there should be increased provision for religious and charitable organizations such as churches, hospitals, and regularly established educational institutions.

The stated purpose of the new income tax provisions is "to aid these institutions in obtaining the additional funds they need, in view of their rising costs and the relatively low rates of return they are receiving on endowment funds." The principal provisions favoring religious and charitable enterprises are: (1) Raising from 20 to 30 percent the amount a taxpayer may deduct from his income because of gifts to religious or charitable organizations; (2) Pastors not provided with residence or living quarters can deduct the cost of such housing in computing their tax, and those providing their own housing may deduct the actual cost thereof; (3) Contributions can be made to nonprofit burial and cemetery associations which are regarded as for charitable purposes; (4) Business corporations can carry over to future tax years charitable contributions made in excess of the 5 percent of their taxable income; (5) A liberalization of the tax provision for those who plan ultimately to give nearly all the money they would otherwise pay in taxes; (6) A change in the taxation of income from annuities which definitely favors those who give annuity funds to religious and educational institutions.

By way of summary we share the position of the British journalist who declared in July of 1954 that "Britain and the West in general stand upon the threshold of the greatest spiritual awakening for many centuries." Will 1955 bring into clearer focus the cross of the Lord Jesus Christ to show mankind God's judgment upon sin, His provision for the forgiveness thereof, and for newness of life to as many as believe upon the Saviour?

WHAT THE BIBLE SAYS ABOUT THE GOD OF TIME

By REV. FRED WALTER

Pastor, Aleppo Brethren Church
Aleppo, Pa.

We wonder what the new year holds for us. What is there to bring hope and cheer to our hearts? There are a number of things to cheer us on our way; not the least among these is the fact of our ever-present Saviour. Let us look into His Word for assurance and encouragement.

As the children of Israel journeyed through "that great and terrible wilderness" two things clearly manifested themselves: (1) A failing people (failing at the mount, failing at the rock, failing at Kadesh-barnea); (2) a faithful God, who bore with them in all their waywardness and rebellion, so that at the end of the 40 weary years it could be said: "These forty years the Lord thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing" (Deut. 2:7).

God had been with them and had provided them with—

Food (Deut. 8:16). Some have suggested that as much as 40 trains would have been required to bring that which daily fell from heaven from the faithful God.

Water (Deut. 8:15). God was faithful to His people and produced water from the most unlikely source, the dry, hard rock of flint. It was an unexpected but abundant supply.

Raiment (Deut. 8:4). Think of our God who supplied for some two to three million people who were without supplies, factories, or warehouses; yet their every need was met.

Rev. Fred Walter

Shoes (Deut. 8:4; 29:5). We do not understand the method that was used to supply this need, but our God wrought a miracle for his failing people.

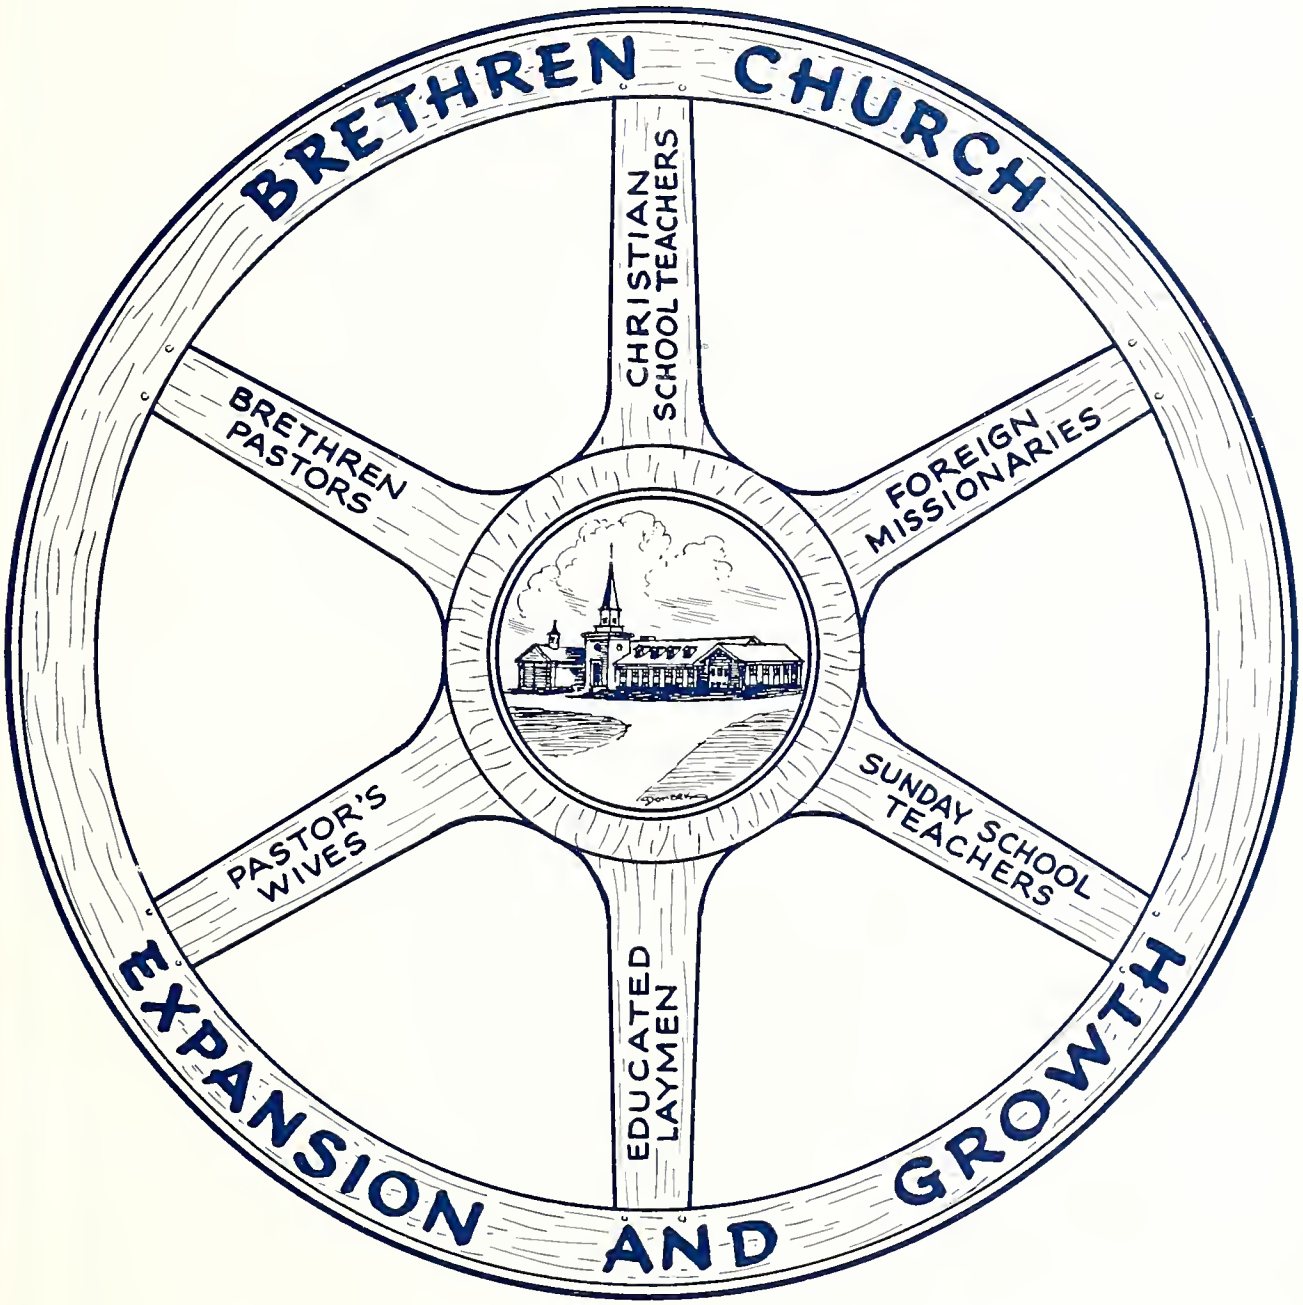
Everything. The grand summary is found in Deuteronomy 2:7—"these forty years the Lord thy God hath been with thee; thou hast lacked nothing."

We may cheer our hearts with the fact that this is true today. God is faithful to His promises. He supplies our needs day by day (II Cor. 12:9; Matt. 28:20).

Let us look again at Israel. The weary march is well nigh past. Moses is dead; the land lies before them; kings are to be conquered before they possess it; giants are numerous; walled cities are vast and great—yet they have this promise: "Be strong and of a good courage . . . nor be afraid . . . for the Lord thy God, he it is that doth go with thee whithersoever thou goest." If Moses, the mighty, is dead, Joshua, Moses' minister, is alive and is the God-appointed leader to take the multitude over Jordan and into the land of promise. Although they are still a failing people, and there is much land to be possessed, they have a faithful and unchanging God with them, assuring victory.

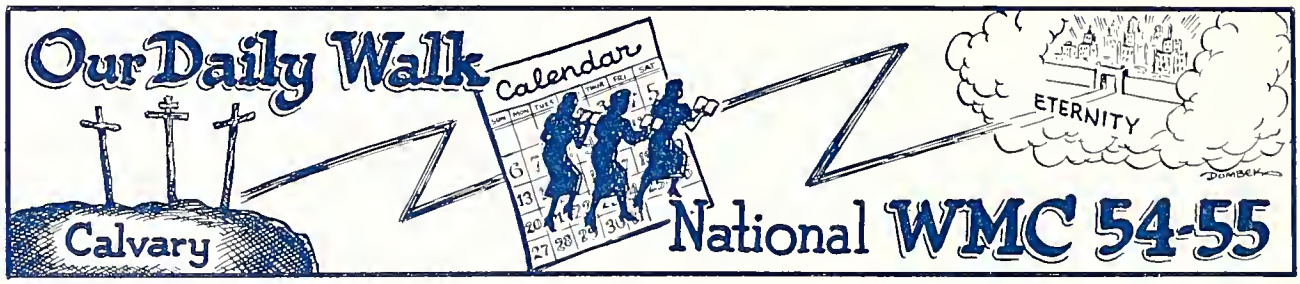
As we look at Joshua 23:, 14, we see that God was faithful to His promise: "For the Lord your God is he that hath fought for you . . . not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof." So does God deal with His own today. Their years may be 60, 70, 80, or even 90; yet each one it may be said that not one thing hath failed of all His good promises.

We have assurance from the past and for the present, but what about the future which we are now entering? We have the promise made to David: "The Lord God, even my God, will be with thee; he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (I Chron. 28:20).



When David, the sweet singer of Israel, was ending his days, and his son, Solomon, was taking his place, David commended him not to the accumulated wealth, vast as that was, but to God. He will guard, He will provide. Solomon failed many times, but God never failed him. God was with a failing people 40 years in the wilderness; He was with a failing King David 40 years.

In the New Testament we see our Lord Jesus Christ supplying our greatest need, a Saviour. When we have, by faith in Him and His finished work, received Christ as our personal Saviour, we can say, "The Lord my God hath been with me, is with me, and will be with me all life's journey through, until the goal is reached." We can enter the untried path of 1955 with a full assurance that our faithful God and Saviour will be with us. He said, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee," and again we have His Word: "He that spareth not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?"



Let us then go forward in 1955 with "good courage" and full assurance that our God will prove himself faithful.

WMC SUPPORTS GRACE BECAUSE IT IS THE HUB OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

OUR DAILY WALK IN CHRISTIAN SERVICE

By Mrs. Ruth A. Ashman

Some of the most beautiful pictures in the Bible are those of women serving the Lord in their daily walk—some in outstanding tasks, others in the very common things of life, but all glorifying and honoring the Lord God, and wielding an influence that was far reaching and sometimes changed the destinies of nations.

We have the picture of Jochabed, with a true mother's heart, trusting, planning, protecting the very life of the baby Moses, and then raising him for a place of leadership occupied by very few; Hannah, praying for the child Samuel and then giving him back to the Lord with no reservations; the captive maid's testimony, as she serves in the house of the Syrian captain, responsible for the complete healing of Naaman, the leper; Ruth, the Moabitish woman leaving all—home, country, and friends—to serve Naomi's God and then bringing comfort and blessing to her mother-in-law; Esther, the queen, requesting much prayer and following completely the instructions of the godly Mordecai who raised her, stepping out in faith and daring to go before the king, and finding favor, saved her people from destruction; the woman of Shunem, called great, because through her thoughtfulness, care, and hospitality, a room was added to her home that brought rest and relaxation to the Prophet Elisha.

Then there is Anna, the prophetess, who "served God with fasting and prayer night and day," recognizing the infant Christ; Mary, the sister of Martha, sitting at the feet of Jesus to hear His words; Dorcas, "full of good works and almsdeeds," whose death caused the many widows to weep as they showed the many coats and garments she had made, and who, when brought back to life, was presented to those who loved her dearly; Lydia, a seller of purple, "which worshipped God . . . whose heart the Lord opened," who, after her baptism and that of her household, constrained Paul and Silas to abide at her home when they were at Philippi; Priscilla, who with her husband Aquila, took unto them Apollos, the orator and in a humble way expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly; Rhoda, the little girl who attended the all-night prayer meeting for Peter's release from prison, and whose faith recognized and constantly affirmed the answer when Peter appeared at the gate. God used all these just as He can use all born-again children of God who are willing to give their lives wholeheartedly to Him and yield to the Spirit's control.

After all, it is the daily life of service that counts in the Lord's work, when in spite of the tests, the daily cares and discouragements, one's own burdens and those of others, the child of God still carries on in the strength of the Lord, and with a song in the heart, thankful and praising God always. Some might take issue that this is not always possible, but I am firmly convinced that it is not only possible but should be and is the normal Christian life.

I am not referring to service that is rendered from a standpoint of duty, or when it is merely convenient, or coming from a heart that is stubborn and rebellious, self-willed, and one that has never been fully yielded to our Lord. Neither does our Saviour delight in half-hearted service, when, as Israel of old complained that the work of the Lord was becoming such a "weariness," and they were offering to Him the torn, lame, or sick. God declared in no uncertain words that He hated their feasts, because their hearts were not clean.

I am thinking of the Apostle Paul's words, when he said in II Corinthians 5:14 that he was constrained by the love of Christ. Now we have a real motive for working for our Master, one that will cause us to be willing to "gladly spend and be spent" (II Cor. 12:15), which means sacrificial service. In fact, the whole pattern of our daily walk in service will be, "THY WILL, not mine be done," and "Whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men" (Col. 3:23). Then the One Hundredth Psalm will become a reality in our lives—service with gladness and singing, praise and thankfulness for every opportunity of entering His house.

What is included in this type of service? I believe it can all be summed up in one word, "faithfulness." "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (I Cor. 4:2). Faithful to what? one might ask. We must be faithful to Bible study, prayer, evangelism, daily witnessing, missions, and to all services of the church. In the study of the Psalms, I found this expression, "Planted in the house of the Lord" (Ps. 92:13), meaning that there our roots should be deep. I cannot understand how one can profess to love the Lord but have no love for the house of the Lord (Heb. 10:25).

Now this daily walk in service may mean a very busy, active life, one spent in teaching, in visitation, in the ministry or on the mission field, or it may mean one of just being helpful (II Cor. 12:28), or it might be a unique ministry from a sick bed. We do know the Lord makes no mistakes, and that Romans 8:28: "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose," and Philippians 4:6-7, "Be careful for nothing; but in every thing by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus" can and will be the solution to every problem in the life of the child of God. This normal Christian life will bring untold joy, for we will do all for the glory of God, steadfastness (I Cor. 15:58), and a full reward (Ruth 2:12).

Do we crave for the plaudits of man or do we desire to please our Lord? Very early in the Christian life I learned to do everything for my Lord, and then if appreciation came it was a grand surprise—if not, I was never disappointed, for the joy of the service of Christ can alone bring real happiness. Will it not be more than enough to just hear these words from our blessed Saviour, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

ANNUAL WMC REPORTS

NORTHWEST DISTRICT

Sincere greetings from the Northwest District. Among other blessings, we are praising the Lord for a new church, with its WMC group, at Seattle, Wash.

Our district rallies were well attended. The fall rally was held at Spokane, Wash., with Rev. and Mrs. Roy Snyder as guest speakers. The Spokane SMM girls entertained with music throughout the supper hour. At the spring rally in Harrah, Wash., Miss Marybeth Munn spoke to us three times. Our theme was "Our Precious Heritage," taken from Psalm 127:3: "Lo, children are an heritage from the Lord." Throughout the day we tried to show our responsibility as WMC members to the youth of the church. We used a four-leaf shamrock as a symbol, with each leaf representing a youth group: (1) the family altar; (2) child evangelism; (3) SMM girls; (4) young people's camp.

At our district meeting in July our theme was "Examination Days," taken from II Corinthians 13:5, "Examine yourselves." Our examination papers were the district officers' reports on the first day, and reports from the local presidents on the second day. Rev. Wayne Beaver and Mrs. Harold Etling were our guest speakers.

We gave $355.84 into the district treasury during the year for projects and district work. Six councils gave to all the national offerings as well. The district projects were $100 toward the purchase of chairs for the Seattle Sunday school and $100 to be used at Camp Clear Lake. We plan to give another $100 to the camp as our first project for this new year.

The local projects were many and varied. Each council furnished an article for the Don Bishop outfit, such as pillows, teakettle, sewing notions, dress materials, a pasteurizer, volleyball and net, etc. Things were done for missionaries on furlough; such as missionary hope chest gifts, aprons and nightgowns for African medical work, etc. Many groups met local church needs; such as kitchen supplies, cleaning and painting of local churches, flower baskets for the pulpit, baptistry robes, choir capes for junior choirs, etc. Showers, mother-daughter, father-son, and "family night" suppers were sponsored throughout the year.

Dinners were served at times of funerals, and Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets were given to the needy. One small group sent shelled beans to Taos, N. Mex., as well as a notion shower for the WMC women there. One group sponsored a "Family Altar" class, taught by the pastor. Canned fruit and vegetables, comforters, and used clothing were sent to local rescue missions, as well as to Taos and Counselor's Post, N. Mex. Several helped with child evangelism work in various ways, including a food shower for the child evangelism leaders in one locality.

Altogether we feel that the Lord has given us a wonderful year and we truly thank Him for it.—Mrs. Ernest Morrell, retiring president.

IOWA DISTRICT

We of the Iowa District present our greetings to our fellow districts, sincerely rejoicing in what the Lord is accomplishing through each of you.

Iowa has only six councils and a total membership of 185, but all six had a part in the major offering, the Thank offering and the Birthday offering. All likewise supported our district projects. We all used the program packets and followed the Bible reading. Two, however, do not observe a special day of prayer, nor use the Prayer Covenant cards.

We much enjoyed our fellowship together at the fall and spring rallies and the midsummer district conference. Our speakers were: Mrs. Roy Snyder, Miss Clara Schwartz, Dr. Barnard, and Dr. Grubb. We also enjoy having with us on these occasions our associate council, a fundamental Church of the Brethren of Des Moines, who fellowship with us.

Our district projects were: we bought a communion set for the new work at Davenport, Iowa, for $23; sent $124 to help with the Schrock children's education; contributed $87 for DVBS material for Taos; gave $20 toward the upkeep of the Missionary Residence, and gave a total of $70 in love gifts to our missionary speakers.

Our prayer is that we may ever be one in the Lord together with you all, and that our labor may ever be for His glory. Yours in His grace.—Mary Emmert.

A NECESSITY IN EVERY CHRISTIAN HOME

By Rev. H. W. Koontz

Family worship, once considered to be an absolute necessity in many Christian homes, is today fighting a life-and-death battle to survive. It has to struggle against the many attractions that now draw the family away from home; it must compete in the home with the newspaper, magazine, radio, and television; it has to make itself important enough to command the attention of the members of the home who are caught in the confusion of this fast-moving age. Because of these problems the great proportion of our Christian homes are afraid to give family worship a trial; some who have tried have given up in despair; a small and faithful remnant continue in spite of all the difficulties and handicaps. To these who will not let go of this age-old Christian institution there will come many blessings from the Lord.

Let us first of all consider why it is necessary that every Christian home have a family altar. It gives God and His Word a proper place in the home. The heathen have their houses filled with their idols of wood and stone, and they are not slow in letting the world know that these things hold a central place in their lives. Family worship is the Christian's testimony within and without the home to the true God and His infallible Word. From the hour of the exchange of the marriage vows there are numerous adjustments that must be made by the husband and wife that if not made properly may break up the home. Family devotions started in the newly founded home and continued consistently down through the years will solve such problems and thus preserve the home and keep love intact between husband and wife. The family altar will be a tower of strength when crisis hits the home—the serious illness of the husband or wife, the death of a son or daughter, the attacks of Satan, the fear of what might come in the future. Finally, it is one of the best ways of leading the children by example and teaching to accept the Lord Jesus Christ into their lives. The example of faith manifested by the parents as they read the Bible and pray will make the strongest possible impression upon tender hearts. In due time the Holy Spirit will use the Bible to do its convicting work and lead the children one by one to Jesus Christ. The parents will receive the reward before the Lord for bringing their little lambs into the fold.

If family devotions can be instrumental in doing these four things, then Christians should cast all obstacles aside and establish it at once. But how? This question is asked by many. The following suggestions may help. The initiative should be taken by the Christian father. This is God's plan. God has entrusted headship to the man, and with this position there go certain responsibilities, among which is child training in the ways of the Lord. If the father for one reason or another will not assume his responsibility, then lest there not be family worship, the mother may have to take the lead.

What should be the content of family worship? The daily devotions should have as the very minimum the reading of a portion of the Bible and prayer, for in the reading of the Word we hear God speaking to us and in prayer we are able to speak to God. Both are necessary. The length of the devotional period should be decided by the ages of the children. Since there is no set rule, changes in the order of the service will be helpful. Sometimes all members may read and pray, at other times one member may read and pray. We should avoid having the devotions become something that the children, and maybe the parents, do merely because of necessity and are glad when it is over. In some cases the singing of a chorus, song, or hymn will help the time of worship. When questions arise from the Bible reading, they should be answered as a part of the devotional hour. This is also a good time to quote memory verses.

Now as to the time for the daily devotions. This is a major problem, but not an impossible one. When the children are small, it should not be too hard a problem to find the time when the husband and wife are at home at the same time. The situation becomes more acute when the children are grown and employed at different hours. Then a family council will be necessary to set the best time for the largest number who can be present. Changing working conditions may make it necessary to change the time for the family altar. A time in the morning, noon, or evening can usually be found when all are at home if there is a genuine desire for family worship. Right after the meal when the family is present works well in some homes. Ask the Lord to arrange the time by changing working conditions if necessary. Anything that is worthwhile will take determination on our part and a dependence upon God to do the impossible. The family altar is important enough to demand the attention of both the family and God to establish it.

Rear you an altar that will last forever,
 Longer than any shafts or marble dome;
Erect it there beside your own heart fire—
 The chaste, white family altar in the home.
Chisel the Word of God upon the waiting
 Hearts and minds of the dear ones gathered there;
The blowing sands of time will not erase it,
 Nor friction dim the imprint of your prayers.

For memory will hold those chiseled letters,
 And prayer shall be imbedded in the heart.
O father, mother, rear that lasting altar,
 And the children whom you love will not depart
From the way of life. The Word will last forever,
 Though earth and heaven itself will pass away.
If you have not yet begun the building
 Of the eternal altar—begin today.

OUR PROJECT

We are now midway in the quarter in which we devote our thoughts and gifts to our second great national offering—the Christian Education Offering.

This year we have set a great goal for ourselves. We are hoping for $2,000 for Grace Seminary and $1,000 for the office equipment needed by the Sunday School and Youth Boards. The offering for Grace will be used to buy the additional pews needed to finish the rear of the chapel and bring it into harmony with the rest of the chapel.

The gift for the Sunday School Board will provide them with equipment that will make possible the sending of materials throughout our brotherhood.

May we as women get behind this offering and put it over the top.

Do doubt you are wondering what has happened to our news! Fact is, we haven't had space to print it. I have quite a folder of letters and cards that have collected during these months when we have been printing district reports. This month brings us to the last of them, so we can look forward to local news once again.

Your editor must admit that the news items may seem a bit "flighty" this month because she is fairly flying herself tonight. Suddenly, like a bolt from the blue, we decided this afternoon to fly home to California tomorrow for Christmas, providing we could get reservations on the plane on which our niece was going home. The Lord gave us those reservations, so we are finishing this Herald copy amid pressing, packing, putting our house in order, etc. Ere you read this we will be back at our tasks at the seminary, but we hope to see many of our California WMC members.

A glance through the letter file brings to light reports, long overdue, on several fall rallies.

Indiana District held their rally at Clay City on October 14. Mrs. George Cone, Jr., was the guest speaker in the morning. The feature of the afternoon was a skit presented by the district officers, emphasizing the national objectives and offerings. It was entitled "Before the Set Date."

The Iowa District held its rally on October 22, with Miss Irona Abuhl, of the Sudan Interior Mission, as guest speaker.

The California District met at South Pasadena. Their program presented a real panorama of the WMC program for the year. There were 176 women present and 25 babies in the nursery.

The Atlantic District got the jump on many others with their rally at Philadelphia Third Church on September 6. Mrs. Wayne Beaver was the guest speaker.

Another district rally held on October 21 was that of Michigan. It was held at New Troy, with Mrs. Russell Barnard as guest speaker. The district president is very much interested in the growth of WMC. She visits her local councils and recently organized a new council at Ozark, Mich. A number of new councils have been organized this year in other districts also, and we hope to make due recognition of them next month in the Herald.

The Southeast District rally was held at Radford, Va., on September 23, with some seventy ladies present. The morning session was spent discussing the national objectives. In the afternoon a skit was presented by the Covington ladies designed to promote more interesting programs and Christian service. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Edward Bowman, former national WMC president.

The following excerpt from a letter from Gladys Randall, of Dallas Center, Iowa, speaks for itself: "Since a report was given in the paper regarding the Red Cross chapter of Des Moines being a gold mine for bandages, let me straighten things out, if possible. I have learned recently that the Des Moines Red Cross has received orders for bandages to ship to Africa, and it is evidently from Brethren folk. Here is the situation: The Red Cross makes cancer pads from thin sheets for use in the city hospitals. I have a friend who spends one day per week there, and in a conversation she revealed to me that they had burned a big supply of material like we would use for bandages. I spoke of our need for material for bandages for Africa, and she very kindly began to save the leftover material from their work for us at Dallas Center. Through them we have received material for hundreds of bandages. They do not, however, make bandages to ship. They are a very busy group and I trust this will get things straight for them. Perhaps other cities have Red Cross chapters where leftover material might be available.

A report from the Lake Odessa, Mich., council announces that they have been busy helping others—sending boxes of foodstuffs to the Fogles and to Evelyn Fuqua, canning food and cooking for the young people's camp, and helping send needy children to Camp Bethany. They have also stopped paying "dues" in favor of freewill offerings.

The following item from South Pasadena, Calif., has been sent to the editor to share with the other councils: "At a recent meeting of the WMC the president felt led to ask for a verse of Scripture and a testimony in answer to rollcall. The result was that we never did get to the message of the evening because the Lord used His Word and the testimonies to speak to our hearts. It wasn't ended when the last person had given her testimony because several members had more words of praise, thanksgiving, and exhortation to give. When the meeting closed, after refreshments, it was unanimously agreed that it was one of the most inspiring and refreshing meetings we had had for a long time."

TEN REASONS FOR A FAMILY ALTAR

1. Because it will send you forth to daily tasks with a cheerful, heart more determined to do your work to the glory of God (Col. 3:17).
2. Because the family altar will help you to face with boldness the tests and trials of the day (Heb. 2:18).
3. Because it will make you conscious of the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit, by whom we are made to be conquerors (Phil. 4:4-7).
4. Because it will sweeten the homelife and enrich family relations (Eph. 6:1-9).
5. Because it will help dissolve misunderstandings and remove friction between individuals (Rom. 12:9-11).
6. Because the family altar will hold the children and lead them to Christ, and send them on rejoicing in their young Christian lives (II Tim. 3:15-17).
7. Because it will exert helpful and wholesome influence over those who may at any time be guests in your home (Rom. 4:7-9).
8. Because it will enforce the work of your pastor in pulpit and pew, and thus will stimulate the work of your church in its activity to reach the lost (Rom. 15:6-7).
9. It will furnish an example and stimulate others to live the Christian life (Acts 2:26-48).
10. Because the Word of God requires it, and by keeping it we honor our Lord (Rom. 12:1-2).

Who's Who for January

Homer A. Kent, Jr., the writer of our Bible study for January, was born at Washington, D. C., on August 13, 1926, the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. Homer a Kent, at the time his father was pastor of the First Brethren Church in Washington.

Homer A. Kent, Jr.

Homer was taught to trust Jesus from earliest childhood and made his first public confession at the age of seven in a Sunday-school decision service conducted by his father. Several weeks later he was baptized in a service in which Ralph Gilbert, a boyhood pal and also now a professor in Grace College, was also baptized. It was in a summer camp in Virginia that Homer publicly dedicated himself to the Lord for His service.

Homer spent his elementary school days in Washington. His family moved to Winona Lake in 1940, when his father was called to the faculty of Grace Theological Seminary. Three of his high-school years were spent at the Warsaw (Ind.) high school and the fourth at Bob Jones Academy.

He went on to Bob Jones University, and, completing his work in three years, he graduated in 1947 with honors. He then entered Grace Seminary, where he received the B. D. degree in 1950, and the Th. M. degree in 1952.

While a senior in the seminary he began to teach in the college division. The following year, while working on his master's degree, he taught several Greek courses in the college. In the fall of 1951 he joined the Grace Seminary faculty full time in the department of Greek and New Testament.

Homer was ordained to the Brethren ministry in February 1951. He does considerable preaching over the weekends, is a member of the National Brethren Youth Fellowship Board, and wrote the Brethren Teacher's Quarterly for two quarters.

Homer was married August 11, 1953, to Beverly Page, in the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif.

S. Wayne Beaver was born June 2, 1918, at Ganges, Ohio. His parents, Rev. and Mrs. R. S. Beaver, now live at Somerset, Ohio, where his father is a minister in the Evangelical and Reformed Church. One sister lives in Providence, R. I., where her husband is a teacher in the Providence Bible Institute. Another sister is serving as a missionary in Brazil with her husband. His brother, Dr. Harold Beaver, is a professor at Baylor University, Waco, Tex.

S. Wayne Beaver

After grade and high school in various places where his father served as pastor, Wayne attended Wheaton College for two years. He graduated from Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, in 1940, receiving his B. A. degree, with a major in history. After attending Dallas Theological Seminary for one year, he transferred to Grace Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1943 with the B. D. degree. While attending Grace he became a member of the First Brethren Church, Fort Wayne, Ind.

On August 7, 1943, he married Dorothy Mae Wolf, of Huntington Park, Calif., whom he met at Grace Seminary. They sailed for Africa in June of 1944 and have completed two full terms of service. They returned to the field in December 1954 after their second furlough. Brother Beaver was missionary pastor at the Yaloke station for some months after first arriving on the field. His sphere of missionary service now is at the Institut Biblique at Bozoum, where he serves as dean.

The Beavers have three children—Mary Hope, John Wayne, and James Stephen. A fourth child, Philip Ned, went to be with the Lord on June 2, 1953. He was just past six months of age.

Wayne is the author of our mission study for the month on the importance of Grace Seminary in the training of a missionary.

SWEET SOMETHINGS (COL. 4:6)

By Ava Schnittjer

Scripture: Matthew 12:33-37.

"Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man" (Col. 4:6).

MISS CHADWELL: We have reached the halfway mark in our journey through Colossians "In His Footprints." We've talked of our map, our Guide, His power in us, and other subjects relative to our walk. Tonight our subject is our "talk." We sometimes hear the saying, "Actions speak louder than words." How important is your speech?

ESTHER: It's very important, because it reveals what is in your heart. "Out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh."

JANE: Not only that, but it is by our speech that others know our love for the Lord. In Acts 11:14 Peter, in telling how the Spirit sent him to Cornelius to testify to him, said: "Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved." The Lord uses our speech to win others.

ESTHER: And that is the thing Paul is talking about here because in verse 5, where he speaks of their walk, he says "toward them that are without." In verse 6, the reason he gives for our care in speech is "that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man."

PROGRAM GUIDE FOR FEBRUARY

THEME SONG—Sing the theme song, "Footprints of Jesus," and repeat year's verse, Colossians 1:10.

TALENT—Here's an opportunity for those of you who need to meet the goal which requires you to take part in a devotional meeting. We should always be ready and willing to do something for our Lord.

LIFE'S ROADMAP—Read the Scripture, Matthew 12: 33-37.

PRAYER CIRCLE—This should be a time of real fellowship with the Lord and with one another. The Lord is ready to hear the prayers of His children.

HELP FOR OUR CHRISTIAN WALK—Seniors study "Sweet Somethings"; Middlers study "Prepared Unto Glory."

PRAISE TO HIM—Sing a number of favorite choruses and have a time of testimonies.

LEARNING THE PAST—Consider "History of the Brethren Church."

SMM BENEDICTION—Sing another stanza of theme song, "Footprints of Jesus," and close with benediction.

BUSINESS MEETING.

ALICE: Shouldn't we have the same answer for everyone?

MARY: That isn't the way our Lord did His work on earth. He looked at each individual's need and then presented eternal life to him in a way he could understand. He told the fishermen He would make them "fishers of man." As the woman of Samaria filled her pitcher with water, He promised her water so she would never thirst again.

MISS CHADWELL: Paul did the same thing in his preaching. When he was at Athens, where they were worshiping all kinds of gods, he didn't immediately tell them how idolatrous and brutish they were, even if it was true. He realized that error is like a sore that must be neither neglected nor roughly handled but touched gently, in a healing manner. Paul praised them for being devout, and then, looking at their altar to the unknown god, he preached to them the true God.

ALICE: But how can we know how to do something like that? I realize we must study the Word to know all these things, but still I feel I don't know how to speak to people.

MISS CHADWELL: We should consider the phrase "with grace." Margaret is to tell us what it means.

MARGARET: "With grace" sometimes means "agreeably" or "in a pleasing manner." It is probably good advice for worldly success to make our speech always "pleasing," but something deeper is meant in this passage. "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another" (Col. 3:16). Whatever you say should show the influence of God's Spirit in your heart, which will mold and sanctify your speech. The speech of the one in whom the Spirit abides will be truly beautiful, and His wisdom will help that person to know how to answer each one. Those who read and love great authors often catch their style of writing. In the same way, if we converse much with God, listening to His voice in our hearts, our speech will have in it an echo of the voice of God. Our accent will betray our country. The truest grace in speech comes not from voice culture, though it may be good, but from heavenly grace, the beauty caught from God.

MISS CHADWELL: Jane and Joan were to investigate the uses of salt and see how these uses apply to speech—how it can be seasoned with salt.

JOAN: Salt was used in the sacrifice.

JANE: Let the sacrificial salt be applied to all our words; let all we say be offered up to God, "a sacrifice of praise to God continually."

JOAN: Salt is used as a preservative to keep things from spoiling.

JANE: "Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth" (Eph. 4:29). Frivolous talk, dreary gossip, ill-natured talk, idle talk, any foul or wicked words will be silenced when your speech is seasoned with salt. But it will have a preservative flavor which will influence for good, the mind and heart of those who are without.

JOAN: Salt has the power of giving savor or distinctive taste to food.

JANE: Our speech as Christian girls shouldn't be insipid, but it should possess a pungency which will excite interest in the one we are talking to, a seasoning which will make it relished by those who hear it. Many recipes say, "Salt to taste." Salted speech doesn't deal in bland generalities but fits close to the characteristics and needs of those to whom it is spoken. Individual characteristics determine the wise way to approach each person. Among our friends are girls of all kinds, with all kinds of interests. It's better for us to fish with a rod than a net. We need boldness to speak for God, but wisdom to know how to speak to each girl; we need the dignity that accompanies our message, but graciousness to reach the heart of another girl; we need integrity to please God, but kindness and sympathy to conciliate other girls.

MISS CHADWELL: You have discovered many truths in this passage which should make you more effective witnesses to other girls. Some can talk animatedly of anything but the Saviour. Then timidity, misplaced reverence, a dread of seeming self-righteous, or natural reserve seem to close their mouths. But remember, out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh. All these barriers would be floated away if a great stream of feeling were flowing from the heart. What fills the heart will overflow by the floodgates of speech. So the real reason for the silence in which many Christians conceal their faith is the small quantity of it there is to conceal.

ALICE: Our problem then is to look to God, that by the Holy Spirit we may be so filled with this grace that we may effectively testify the Gospel of the grace of God.

MARY: Our valentine message won't be "Sweet Nothings" but "Sweet Somethings" because it contains the words of eternal life.

NATIONAL HONORS!

Here is a picture of the Pike Brethren Junior Sisterhood, which was the Sisterhood that received the trophy. They now have a group of 18 girls . . . makes some of the older groups, including the senior SMM groups look small. Congratulations!

OF THE WRITING CONTEST OF 1953-54

Short Story—Jean Pittman, Harrah, Wash., Sr. SMM.
Poem—Donna Johnson, Albany, Oreg., Middler SMM.
Honorable Mention—Geraldine Gillin, Mundy's Corner, Pa.; Charleen Spivey, Portis, Kans.

Congratulations to all of you! Which should remind you other girls—begin now to work on an entry for this year's contest. Let's have some entries that will be hard for the judges to choose winners!

PREPARED UNTO GLORY

By Mrs. James Dixon

In learning to walk worthy of the Lord we have found we must put off certain manners of living which are characteristic of the old nature. We must put to death sexual immorality, dirty-mindedness, uncontrolled passion, evil desire, covetousness. We must also put off anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy talking, and all lying. But the Christian life is not merely an undressing. It is a dressing.

Colossians 3:10 tells us to "put on the new man." This is the new nature we received when we were born again. In our first birth we received a nature that is bent on sinning. But when we are born again, we receive a new nature that is bent on righteousness.

Adam was made in the image and likeness of God. But Adam sinned. The image was marred. The born-again person is being renewed after the image of his Creator (Col. 3:10).

This renewing comes through knowledge of God. First, we must come to know Him as Lord and Saviour. Then the more we learn to know Him through the study of His Word and through fellowship with Him, the more we shall be renewed in His image. We shall have perfect knowledge when we shall see Him face to face and we shall be like Him, for we shall see Him as He is. This is the goal of our redemption, that we should be like Him. Romans 9:23 says we are "prepared unto glory." II Thessalonians 2:14: "He called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ." This is the hope that purifies a man's life. I John 3:9: "And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

Just to think that we shall share Christ's own likeness, His own glory, is almost more than we can comprehend. Let us bow our hearts to the God of all grace, to the God who is love and praise Him forever.

HISTORY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH—VI

By Mrs. Gerald Polman

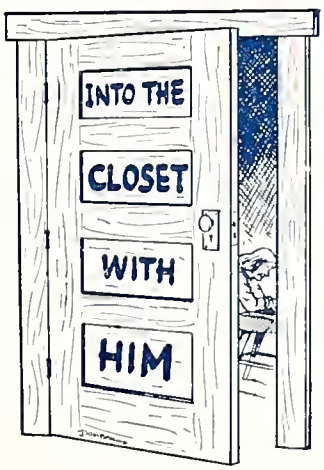
At this place in our study of the history of our denomination, we come to a very interesting development. This is known as the Ephratah (Ef'-ra-ta) movement. It was the establishment of the Seventh Day Baptists, who were an offshoot from the Dunkers or Tunkers. Our own denomination has no connection with this movement other than that we have the same origin and ordinances.

Conrad Beisel had been baptized and accepted in the Brethren Church in 1724. About a year later he became convinced that the Brethren were wrong in not worshiping on the Sabbath or seventh day. Beisel left his congregation and went to a secluded spot in what is now Lancaster County, Pa. Here he was followed by a few of his former congregation.

By 1734 a small settlement of Beisel's followers was established in what is now Ephratah. Besides observing the Sabbath, they were at first a monastic society. The men and women renounced their marriage vows and lived as monks and nuns. They adopted a distinctive dress, consisting of a shirt, trousers, vest, and a long white gown. The sisters dressed the same except for the substitution of petticoats for trousers.

This monastic life was not long a requirement of membership in the sect. Small cottages were built around the two main buildings to accommodate families. It was largely a communistic community where all worked for the common good. But it was also a republic where all enjoyed equality.

They were an industrious and frugal people, building their own buildings, operating a gristmill, sawmill, oilmill, papermill, and a printing press. The sisters worked at sewing, knitting, spinning, weaving, and copying books and music by hand.



Their life was very rigid, with very plain food and a steady schedule of work. Their beds were narrow boards and blocks of wood for pillows. It would naturally seem that they must have been a rough and hard-working group of people. But all reports agree that they were a most sweet, meek, gentle, and devoted group. They were hospitable to all who came their way. Their buildings were used as a hospital for General Washington and his troops during the Revolutionary War when they were at Valley Forge.

The Cloisters, as they came to be known, were especially noted for their singing. Conrad Beisel was a fine musician and he composed the music sung there. It was a very distinctive kind—entirely unknown to us today. All of the music was written in five, six, or eight parts. The whole was sung in falsetto voices, the singers scarcely opening their mouths or moving their lips. They had nearly 1,000 pieces of music. H. R. Holsinger, who has written "History of the Tunkers," from which most of the material for these articles has come, testifies to the moving quality of the music.

Though at the time Holsinger heard the music he was not a Christian, he could not hear the music without tears because of its great beauty. It was not only music for the ear, but music for the soul.

There are many interesting things about the Ephratah movement which we cannot touch upon here. Today the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has taken over the ruins of the Cloisters and is gradually restoring the ancient buildings. For any who live in the vicinity of the Cloisters, or pass close by, a visit there will be interesting and profitable to you.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Pray for the national officers, as they have a great deal of work to do. Also remember the district and local officers.

Pray that the National Project Goal will be reached and even exceeded.

Pray that the SMM girls everywhere will be blessed through the articles prepared for them in the Herald.

Pray for the writers of this year and next, for they are all asking God's will in their topics.

1. You haven't forgotten about Valentine's Day, have you? This would be a wonderful opportunity for you to HOP along in your Sisterhood group and remember the young people in your church away at school or in the armed services. They would appreciate anything in the way of candy or cookies that you could have fun mixing together. They like to know that somebody cares for them, too!

2. Have you made plans for your spring cabinet meeting yet? This is the time to take an inventory of what you have done and what you have yet to SKIP along and do in your goals.

3. Each one of you should really JUMP at this wonderful offer! SMM pins may be obtained at the low price of 50c apiece. These sterling silver pins were originally 75c. Order yours immediately from the national literature secretary, Carole Sue Quartz.

Note—This month emphasize articles for the missionary men instead of women in filling your missionary hope chest.

"FOLLOW THE LEADER"

Yes; we'd like a large number of girls to follow in the steps of CAROLYN OBERHOLTZER, who has already memorized the Book of Colossians. Congratulations, Carolyn, on being the first one to complete this personal goal! It isn't very hard to memorize a passage from the Bible when you consider the spiritual reward for doing it. Put forth an honest effort, won't you? You'll never regret it!

THE GREAT DECISION

(Writing Contest Winner of Last Year) By Miss Jean Pittman

Debbie Jones stood with feet planted in the middle of the floor, and surveyed her room. Never in her life had things looked so old-fashioned and desolate. Her heart throbbed and her eyes blurred as she struggled to hold back the ocean of tears that welled up inside her and threatened to overflow. Suddenly she threw herself on her bed and her body was racked with great uncontrollable sobs. Her thoughts were all a turmoil as she remembered the reason for her unhappiness. All because of Mary Jo and that crazy Sisterhood meeting!

Just last Monday it was. She had been standing by the ramp of the gym when Bob Henderson came by. Bob Henderson! Her heart had beat so loudly that she was sure he must have heard it! She almost laughed now at the way she had felt so panic-stricken. But something—she will always believe it was fate—had made him slip on an old gum wrapper and spill the coke he was drinking all over the front of her new green plaid skirt. How she treasured that skirt, for it would always remind her of that first time. Being the gentleman that he was, he had stopped to apologize for it, and as an indirect ending of this little episode, he had ended up by asking her to go to the Junior-Senior Prom with him. Think of it! Bob Henderson asking her for a date, and to the Prom of all things!

That evening as she and Mary Jo had walked back to the dorm together, after their last classes, she was bubbling over with joy; so when Mary Jo had asked her to go to a meeting at the church with her, she had promised to go before she thought what she was doing. That was the silliest thing she had ever done! Why she had promised herself never, never to go to a "fanatical" religious meeting of any sort, and here she was hooked into going when Mary Jo knew how she hated to go to church!

Well, she had gone, just as she had promised—and thought she was going to be bored to death. But she had really had more fun than she could ever remember having before! Why the spirit here seemed so much different than she had become accustomed to. The kids even seemed to enjoy helping and sharing with teach other. Imagine being glad to give someone else the dessert you had fixed for your refreshments!

But it wasn't all fun, for at the end of the evening, they all came together and had what they called their "business meeting." After they had conducted this, one of the ladies arose and began to talk to them about the Bible and God. Then it was that she had spent the most miserable evening of her life! For everything that she had ever done that she had known was wrong flashed in front of her memory, and she squirmed and wiggled around, until everyone was watching, most of them quietly praying, for they knew what was wrong and had experienced the same ordeal before they came into their dear Saviour's light.

Well, at the invitation call she had stepped down from her high, haughty pedestal; down from her sinful and wicked way, into the precious light of her Saviour. And though there was certainly rejoicing among the angels in heaven, there was surely no more than in the little club meeting where another soul united with the heavenly family.

If they had helped her then, why couldn't they do it now? Why, of course! Why hadn't she thought of that before? She snatched up her purse and umbrella and, throwing on her raincoat, called to her mother, and dashed out onto the street. On she went, helter-skelter, almost bumping into everyone on the street. At last she was at the door, or at least at the walk, but now her confidence almost left her; well, she wasn't going to chicken out now; she would go right up there and tell the patroness what her problem was, and let her help her work it out.

Running up the steps, Debbie timidly rang the bell. She heard footsteps coming, and for one panic-stricken moment almost turned and ran. Yes; that was what she was going to do: she would just turn around and leave, and Mrs. Williams would just think that she had never been there; she would probably think it was one of the neighbor's children playing a trick on her. But it was too late now; the door had opened!

Immediately after the door had opened, Mrs. Williams had noticed the panic-stricken face of Debbie, and had said:

"Why Debbie, is anything wrong? May I help you?"

"Hello, Mrs. Williams. I would like to come in and talk to you for a minute if you have the time."

"Surely; come in and sit down, won't you?"

"Thank you, Mrs. Williams, you know Bob Henderson, of course?"

"Yes."

"Well, last Monday night he asked me if I would go to the Junior-Senior Prom with him this Saturday night, and I told him I would go. But now that I am a Christian, and am placing my faith in the Lord, I naturally can't go dancing anymore; so I am all mixed up wondering how to explain to him the reason I can't go. I do like him a lot; he is a real swell boy, and I don't want him to get angry with me, but I cannot think of any way to let him know I cannot go without telling him point-blank that I'm not going, and that will surely make him angry; so do you have a solution for me?"

"Goodness; you are mixed up, aren't you?" Mrs. Wliliams said laughingly. "But now your visit here has cleared up a great mystery for me. You see, while I was shopping downtown yesterday, I came across this little book, and the Lord seemed to lead me to buy it, but I didn't know what I would ever do with it. Nevertheless, I bought it anyway, and now I think it will be the thing to clear up your troubles for you." Mrs. Williams smiled as she laid it in her hands. "Take it and read it; then come back and tell me if it is the answer the Lord would have for you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Williams. I surely will read it." Debbie breathed clearly and deeply for the first time in almost a week. "And now if you will excuse me, I must be going. Good-bye, Mrs. Williams."

Several weeks have passed since that encounter with Mrs. Williams, and now Debbie is telling of her experience to all the Sisterhood girls. Her face is aglow, and she has a smile that would almost put the sun to shame.

". . . and after I told Bob why I couldn't go with him, he was awfully quiet for a long minute; but then he turned to me, and he had tears in his eyes! He told me that he was a Christian, but that he had strayed far from the Lord. Then together we knelt down in the grass, and he renewed his faith in God. Thanks to all you girls, and especially to you, Mary Jo, we are both Christians now, and are planning to spend our lives in the Master's service together!

Youth at Harrah Active for Christ

Harrah, Wash., may be only a small town in a rural area, but its young people are active for the Lord. Our church there has a fine BYF group averaging about 20, a splendid Sky Pilot squadron meeting every Monday night with between 20 and 30 present, and several men of the church work with them faithfully. Then it is mostly Brethren young people that spark the White Swan High School Bible Club, which averages over 30 in attendance. And it is Brethren young people that head up "Powerhouse," a Tuesday-night youth fellowship group that includes young people from several churches.

During our evangelistic crusade there recently, Monday night was "Sky Pilot Night," and over half the total crowd of about 70 were Sky Pilot men and boys. They cut their regular meeting short—from 7 to 8 p. m.—and came into the church service at 8 in a group. They meet in their own building, right behind the church. They even provided special music for the meeting.

Tuesday nights were "Powerhouse Nights," and the young people were present en masse. After these services, they gathered in the Peugh home, up the road a half mile, and invited the evangelistic party and pastor to be their special guests. There were more than fifty present at both of these gatherings in the home.

Jan Houghton and Eleanor Culver, who grew up in the Harrah church, and now teach school in the area, and Gordon and Jackie Stover, a young couple in the church, are the leaders of this group. It is bearing a very effective testimony for Christ to young people in that entire end of the valley.

TIME!

At the beginning of a new year, we are always made conscious of "time." The year that has gone is pictured by "Father Time." He is an old man ready to die. The new year in contrast is portrayed by a tiny babe, ready to spring forth with all kinds of vim and vigor. As an old year draws to a close we become conscious of the importance of even seconds, for, strange as it seems, one second makes the difference between 1954 and 1955. At exactly 12 o'clock it is a brandnew year.

As I began to think about time and its relationship to the new year, I could not help but think of time and its relationship to our Sunday schools and churches. There seems to be abroad in the world (and in the hearts of many Brethren people) a desire to get all the "church" they need for the coming week in a short one hour on Sunday. If they come to Sunday school for an hour of study, they are ready to go home and do not care to remain for an additional hour of worship and sermon. Many pastors have attempted to meet the desire for shortened time by combining a worship service with its sermon and the teaching period into a brief hour and a half. However, even this has not been the answer, for we find many still cutting one part or the other.

At this season of the year it would be well for all of us to take inventory of our own lives. Perhaps the answer to the problem lies within.

If we are the ones responsible for the services of the church—the pastor, the superintendent of the school, the teachers and officers—we will need to take inventory of our services. We will need to lift them to the highest plane possible so that those who come will know that the services will be inspirational and informational. We will need to meet the needs of the students and worshipers who come. This will not be easy. It will require long hours of faithful work and study.

If we are the individuals who come to enjoy the services, we will need to take inventory of our own lives to see where we are falling short in desire. Perhaps more time spent in prayer and meditation before coming to the service would put us in readiness to enjoy the service.

This is the age of "capsules," and they are telling us that some of these days we will not need to spend time in eating meals—we will just take a capsule. This may appeal to you, but not to me, for "capsule food" would mean missing the fellowship that comes from sitting down to the table with my family and friends. It is likewise true in things spiritual. Our God reminds us again and again to wait upon Him! It takes time to be holy!

At the beginning of a new year, let us resolve as Christians and as Brethren that we will be present every Sunday in the Sunday school and in every worship service of the church, which will include as normal morning worship, evening worship, and the midweek service of prayer.

TIME—EVEN SECONDS OF TIME—spent in public worship and study will enrich our lives and the lives of those with whom we live.

CONTEST NEWS

The second month of our National Sunday School Contest is history. Seven more months to go in this year's contest. Each month is important, for there are seven winners every month, and then of course there will be the "Grand Winner" at the end of the contest. The Sunday school showing the largest gain for the nine-month period will be the winner. So again we suggest that YOU hold the key to success or failure in the contest. Every Sunday is important. And of course, just by being present every Sunday and bringing others with you, you are a winner personally, for you receive the joy of Christian teaching and fellowship.

But about those winners for November. I suppose you are just as anxious as we were, and since the results are all in and tabulated, here they are:

NOVEMBER WINNERS

Division A—Denver, Colo., Thomas Inman, pastor (winner two consecutive months).

Division B—Limestone Tenn., A. Harold Arrington, pastor (a new winner).

Division C—Listie, Pa., John J. Burns, pastor (a new winner).

Division D—Inglewood, Calif., Glenn O'Neal, pastor (winner two consecutive months).

Division E—Ashland, Ohio, Miles Taber, pastor (winner two consecutive months).

Division F—North Long Beach, Calif., George Peek, pastor (winner two consecutive months).

Division N (new schools)—Englewood, Ohio, Lon Karns, pastor (a new winner).

Our congratulations have already gone to these Sunday schools together with the banners. We are sure you are rejoicing with them. Our only sorrow is that not all could be winners for the month. It was a close race in some of the divisions. Why not determine now to make your Sunday school the winner next month?

WITH YOUR S. S. DIRECTOR

November was another month of real privilege and blessing as we shared in a two-week evangelistic effort with the Harrisburg, Pa., church. On the second Sunday of this meeting the Sunday school reached a new all-time high in attendance with 163 persons present for the Sunday-school hour. They had a real increase for the entire month of November, and we predict they will be well up in the standings every month of the contest.

During the campaign there were 15 various public decisions. Eight of these have already asked for baptism and expect to unite with the Harrisburg church. On the first Sunday morning, Pastor Sandy received into the membership eight persons that had recently been baptized. It was a wonderful sight on the first morning of a revival meeting!

It was a joy to share in the fellowship, hospitality, and Christian effort put forth by the pastor, Conard Sandy, his wife, and the people of the Harrisburg church. We are sure the Lord is richly blessing this people.

From Harrisburg we traveled to Alexandria, Va., for a one-night meeting with the Sunday school board of our Commonwealth Avenue Brethren Church. Never have we seen greater enthusiasm and optimism for Sunday school than here. Plans were begun for additional Sunday-school rooms, the division into departments, and some new

EVANGELISM SUNDAY—FEBRUARY 27

February 27 is Evangelism Day in the Brethren Church. On this day the laymen of the Brethren Church will take an active part in the services in our churches, which will afford opportunity for the laymen to present the aims and purposes of the National Fellowship of Brethren Laymen.

As laymen, we must seek to recruit other laymen in this great job of supporting the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade. On February 27, offerings will be taken to support this work, and our goal is $12,000.

Plan now to shoulder your full load in this activity. Look over the record and give of your time, abilities, and income as the Lord enables you.

Clyde K. Landrum, president of the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade, in his November 1954 letter, keynotes the situation before us.

"The Board of Evangelism of the Brethren Church has cause to praise and thank the Lord. Reports from the pastors of churches, verified by Evangelists Archie Lynn and R. Paul Miller, show that God is blessing the Word as ministered through the Spirit. One pastor writes: 'This has been the best meeting we have ever had. The people here are thrilled with the victories won. God has done good things for us, and we thank Him for the victories.' Another says: 'What a blessed time! God stirred the hearts of the people and prayers ascended before the throne of grace. . . . Yes; we had real revival. . . .' Praise God for His many blessings upon the Crusade!

"Immediately after National Conference Team Two went to the Northwest District to minister in all of the churches there. God has worked in a mighty way, as the pastors up in the Northwest will testify. There comes real encouragement for the LAYMEN from these meetings. One pastor has this to say: 'We want to thank the Brethren Laymen for sponsoring the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade. May these crusades continue, and even more teams be thrust forth into the harvest field.' LAYMEN, AREN'T YOU GLAD THAT YOU HAVE TAKEN THE BOARD OF EVANGELISM AS YOUR SPONSORED PROJECT? I am sure that you are, and we certainly are glad, too. We do appreciate your help, and you will receive blessings in seeing revival come to churches and souls saved for eternity. THANKS TO THE LAYMEN FOR THEIR INCREASED GOAL FOR THE CURRENT YEAR. THEY VOTED AT NATIONAL CONFERENCE TO MULTIPLY LAST YEAR'S FINANCIAL GOAL (IN SUPPORT OF THE CRUSADE) BY FOUR! Quite an increase, but the men are able to do it as the Lord leads them. . . .

"WE HAVE GREAT PLANS FOR THE FUTURE. Schedules are shaping up and God is leading us to His choice of workers. But we must have YOU to pray and work with us under God. We ask that you pray daily for the work. We ask laymen to become active in soul-winning and in supplying the needed funds. We ask you all to call on us if you desire a meeting with one of the teams. But particularly right at this time we are in great need of funds. If you have a gift that you can send, it will be greatly appreciated. Then, too, begin now to plan for a great time of revival-evangelism, AND for a fine offering on Evangelism Sunday, February 27, 1955. We are depending on you to stay with us all the way."

"Rejoice in the Lord, O ye righteous: for praise is comely for the upright" (Ps. 33:1). This is the testimony of the Board of Evangelism of the Brethren Church. Praise the Lord!

EVANGELISM OFFERING—FEB. 27

Regardless of the source of the offering, whether from an individual, a men's auxiliary, or some department of the church, please send the money to WALTER HOYT, TREASURER, NATIONAL FELLOWSHIP OF BRETHREN LAYMEN, 409 LELAND AVE., DAYTON 7, OHIO. Write on the left of the check "Evangelism Project." Brother Hoyt will forward the money as recorded to Herman Schumacher, treasurer of the Board of Evangelism. Only in this way can the men's organization obtain credit for their efforts. Brother Hoyt hopes to have special envelopes in the churches by Evangelism Sunday. If for any reason you do not receive your special envelopes, use any envelope and identify it for this purpose. Put it in your local church offering plate.

goals. Watch Alexandria in the days ahead.

From Alexandria to Philadelphia is a short hop. Here we were privileged to share in a five-day Sunday-school convention with our two Philadelphia churches and the Allentown church. The highlight of the convention came on Saturday night in a great youth and Sunday-school workers banquet shared by about 100 people. Everyone present came away with a new enthusiasm and zeal for "reaching the unreached" of the Philadelphia and Allentown areas.

HAGERSTOWN'S INVESTMENT IN GRACE

By Russell H. Weber, Pastor

Pastor, Grace Brethren Church, Hagerstown, Md.

Every time you pay tax money, whether willingly or grudgingly, you invest in the future of the nation; the nation could not continue to exist except for the various revenues exacted. Grace Seminary and College, the educational institution of the Brethren Church, carries on its work only as Brethren people and Brethren churches contribute to its support. Support of Grace Seminary and College is strictly voluntary; it is never forced.

Grace Brethren Church of Hagerstown, Md., has gladly contributed more than $5,000 during the past five years. THIS CHURCH BELIEVES IN "GRACE"! We also invest in "Grace" by sending our young people to the school for training. We are already reaping dividends through a missionary couple in Argentina, the Carson Rottlers, and an active pastor in Pennsylvania, William Wiles. We continue to invest in "Grace" with five young people in Grace College (two of these are daughters of the pastor).

We never feel "shaky" about our investment in Grace Seminary and College. The shares we hold are guaranteed by God himself. "So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it" (Isa. 55:11). We are proud to send our young people to "Grace," where we know they will receive a good education, and where they will become thoroughly grounded in the Word.

Preaching the Gospel

By Norman Rohrer

One of the first evangelistic campaigns this fall was conducted by Senior Dean Fetterhoff in one of the newest home-mission churches, located near Goshen, and pastored by Rev. Herman Hein ('54).

Norman Rohrer

Every night for two weeks, Fetterhoff preached pointedly on subjects ranging from the judgment of God to the peace of God. But the sermons were not all that made the campaign a success. Every Monday, service was canceled and members of the congregation huddled for prayer. Half of these then went out calling while an equal number stayed at the church and prayed.

The first Monday four teams of two each visited community homes and the second Monday three teams of two each did the same.

A survey of 275 unchurched homes was made around the church. Said Pastor Hein, "We dealt with people about their souls, not about church membership."

Fetterhoff's cause for rejoicing were the number of conversions and consecrations. He said, "God did more work through conversions to unite families than I have seen in my meetings for some time."

New Births

By Herman H. Hein, Jr. ('54)

Pastor, Grace Brethren Church, Goshen, Ind.

Born: a new church, a new pastor, new experiences, and many souls into the kingdom of God.

The new church is the Grace Brethren Church of Goshen, Ind., organized on February 14, 1954, with 19 charter members. Herman H. Hein, Jr., is pastor of this new church, and a graduate of the class of 1954, Grace Theological Seminary. The new experiences are those which come with pastoring a church, and the souls born again are the evidence of God's children witnessing for the Lord Jesus Christ.

We can also praise the Lord for the birth of a new seminary back in 1937; namely, Grace Theological Seminary. It was born because God needed such a school to train men and women to serve Him in needy fields. It was made possible because of the vision of God's children throughout the nation who were burdened for souls, saw the need for trained workers, and gave that this need might be supplied.

Already many things learned in class have been put to practical use. Although much is yet to be learned, after class work has been finished, the knowledge acquired during the years of training is priceless.

Grace Bible Conference—1955

By John C. Whitcomb, Jr., Alumni Secretary

Once again we are looking to God for a time of spiritual refreshment and blessing as the fourth annual Grace Bible Conference, sponsored by the Grace Seminary Alumni Association, convenes in the halls of Grace Seminary. In addition to the messages and testimonies that our alumni will bring, we shall be favored with the first series of four messages in the annual Bauman Memorial Lectures, to be delivered by Dr. Charles W. Mayes, pastor of the famous First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif.

Many of the alumni who shall come to Winona Lake for these meetings will be surprised to see the tremendous increase in the size of our student body, and will also be happy to see the parking lot and the road around the building paved as a result of their having exceeded the alumni project fund goal of $1,450. On Wednesday evening at 5:30 there will be another Alumni Fellowship Banquet. Printed programs with full particulars are being mailed to all alumni and Brethren pastors. Make your plans to attend now.

THE LOUIS S. BAUMAN MEMORIAL LECTURESHIP

At the 1952 conference of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, acting upon the recommendations of a special committee, the conference decided to establish in Grace Theological Seminary an annual lectureship for 15 years to be known as "The Louis S. Bauman Memorial Lectureship," for the purpose of giving recognition to the great contribution made by his ministry in the Brethren Church over a period of 57 years. Some of the conditions attached to this lectureship are as follows:

1. Each course of annual lectures shall consist of not less than four lectures.
2. The lecturers are to be chosen by Grace Theological Seminary, and at least eight of the fifteen are to be selected from members of the Brethren Church.
3. The subjects are to be chosen within the range of the late Louis S. Bauman's personal interests and ministry, particularly in the fields of foreign missions, Biblical prophecy, denominational history, and theological education.
4. Those lectures which are deemed of permanent value are to be published in book form, and all others shall be bound and catalogued for the seminary library.

The seminary is glad to announce that the initial course of lectures will be delivered by Dr. Charles W. Mayes, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., during the week of the Grace Alumni Bible Conference, January 18-20.

Life's Greatest Discovery

Sir Humphry Davy was an eminent British natural philosopher and chemist. His experiments led to such valuable discoveries as potassium, sodium, and nitrous oxide as an anesthetic. He enunciated principles which led to other brilliant discoveries. Near the close of his life somebody asked Sir Humphry what he regarded as his greatest discovery. Without a moment's hesitation he said: "My greatest discovery is the discovery of Michael Faraday" (the brilliant chemist, electrician, philosopher, and devout Christian). It was the discovery of a man and the putting of his spirit into that man, so that Michael Faraday, the younger, could take up the work of the older when he left the scene of action.

The faculty of Grace Theological Seminary and College is dedicated to this very task—discovering men and women and putting something of their spirit and knowledge into them so that they will be able to take up the work laid down when those older than themselves leave the scene of action.

When Jesus Christ came into this world to do His great work, He took twelve men aside, and for three years He taught them and drilled them and impregnated them with His ideas, His ideals. That first Christian seminary began a work which was destined to shake empires to their very foundations. Thus, the task that confronts us is in harmony with the example set by our Lord himself.

But this work is not confined to a few men and women such as those who are busy on a hill in Winona Lake, Indiana. The job begins with YOU in your local town and church where, first of all, boys and girls and young men and women are led to receive Christ as their Saviour. YOURS is the privilege of infusing something of your own spirit into them by rooting and grounding them in the faith and by challengng them to "lift up their eyes and look" upon fields which are "white unto harvest."

However, responsibility doesn't end there. YOURS AND OURS TOGETHER is the task of equipping them so that they effectively fulfill their responsibility of standing for the faith, facing new frontiers, and expanding the borders of the church both at home and abroad.

Your hands join those of the faculty of Grace Seminary and College through daily prayer and your regular monthly gifts to the school. These consecrated gifts are especially needed just now.

Temple City Brethren Church Goes Self-Supporting

Editorials

By L. L. Grubb

A Year Crowned With Goodness

"Thou crownest the year with thy goodness." In Psalm 65, verse 11, written by David, are these words which so clearly express our reflections upon the past year of Christian service.

The "goodness" of the Lord in Brethren home-mission fields this past year is beyond any calculation. The only adequate way to express it is to borrow the words of David. God has "crowned the year with . . . goodness."

New churches established, hundreds of souls saved, thousands of dollars given to missions and expended in building church houses, and efforts in many different realms of Christian service have characterized the work in 1954.

The greatest interest in the evangelization of America has been manifested by our growing fellowship of churches. A greater burden of prayer for the millions of lost souls in America has been clearly evident. Greater and more sacrificial giving has been witnessed in many places. A growing pioneer spirit among our churches is manifesting itself in a desire to see more new Brethren churches in many different areas.

Yes; God has been infinitely good in His blessing in every way.

Our desire is to place an additional crown on the brow of our blessed Lord by turning His blessings upon us into precious dividends for His glory in the salvation of unbelievers during 1955.

Is the Church an Intrinsic Power in American Life?

The beginning of a new year is an appropriate time to ask and endeavor to answer such a basic and all-important question. Some think the answer is "Yes." Others would say, "No." We feel that there is a point between the two extremes where an understanding of this matter may be gained.

Just a few weeks ago the biennial assembly of the National Council of Churches met to hear a report on American church activity and life which stated that today American churches stand at a peak of "tremendous strength," but at the same time they are groping for ways to make that power felt in a topsy-turvy age.

It is apparent at once that the "tremendous strength" referred to is institutional strength rather than spiritual strength. Approximately 95 million people have their names on the church rolls of American churches. Denominational programs are at a new high in efficiency and advertising effectiveness. Millions of dollars were poured into new church construction this past year. It was agreed even at the National Council meeting that this organizational and institutional strength does not prove "spiritual strength." With all of the church's potential it was questioned whether the church is now "more or less influential in American life" than it used to be.

A local church and a national church are made up of members. Out of the present problem the question at once emerges. Are these 95 million church members qualified on a spiritual basis to be members of a church set up on the New Testament basis?

Thirty-one million plus of the 95 million total are supposed to be Roman Catholic. All who are informed know the legalistic basis for church membership in this church. Five million of the total are Jews. Tragically enough, very few Jews have found Christ as their Messiah and Saviour. Over 70,000 are Buddhists who cannot possibly be saved. From here on the standards for church membership, if there are any, are so weak and watered down that almost any relatively moral man—and even many who are immoral—may enjoy membership in good and regular standing in a local church.

Perhaps some of these significant realities caused the delegates to the National Council conclave to declare: "When we consider how little it costs to be counted among the church members in our country, we are troubled."

A church, no matter what its name or doctrinal platform or creed, is never any better than its members. It never has more power than resides in the average of its constituency.

Therefore, those who largely set the standards for church membership are vital figures in the condition of any church at any time in its history. The clergy are those who lead whole denominations in their spiritual thinking and who ultimately control the fixing of standards in the church. If the pastor resorts to the Bible, God's Guidebook for all church organization and standards for membership, there should be no difficulty, but often this is not done. Standards are manmade and just as spiritually powerless as an unsanctified human mind. Therefore, ultimately the pastor must be held responsible for low church standards and powerlessness in the pew. There must be a revival among the clergy before the present condition can be rectified.

While church membership increases each year in the U. S. A., crime and juvenile delinquency also rise in an uncontrolled tide. This strange paradox has only one answer and it is not the increase in our population, but must be traced to failure on the part of a church which is often peopled with unsaved and spiritually disinterested members. For this reason it is so often easy for teen-agers to walk boldly out of a church or Sunday school into a life of horrible crime. The spiritual power to combat human depravity and Satan is absent.

Brethren Home Missions Scores Another Victory!

The Home Missions Council is happy to present another self-supporting church to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. Temple City, Calif., is another splendid example of the growth and development of Brethren home-mission churches. This church has now completed the beautiful and spacious first unit of a building program. They have achieved an excellent record in missionary giving. The work has grown numerically and has displayed real vision in promoting and developing the San Gabriel Academy Christian Day School.

The Brethren Home Missions Council expresses its gratefulness to the Temple City folks for their fine spirit of cooperation, to all the Brethren who have contributed to home missions, to the California District for helping start the work, and to everyone else who helped in any way to score this victory. We commend Rev. and Mrs. Leo Polman for their tireless energy and leadership in developing this mission point into a strong testimony for Christ. We are deeply grateful to the Lord Jesus Christ, for it is under His blessing of power and grace that this occasion is made possible.

REMINISCING . . . A TEMPORARY 7-YEAR ASSIGNMENT

By Rev. Leo Polman
Pastor, Temple City Brethren Church

While managing the Biola Bookroom in Los Angeles one day in February 1948, the writer received a long-distance phone call from our home-mission secretary, Dr. L. L. Grubb. The substance of his call: "Leo, will you go out to our East Pasadena church until we can get a pastor for them?" This was to be a temporary assignment. It was temporary for seven years, lacking one month. And they have been wonderful years.

A group of Brethren from the South Pasadena church stepped out on faith, with the blessings of their home church and pastor, to begin a new Brethren work. First a Sunday school in a store building, then Bible classes, and finally a church was organized.

Rev. Al Flory, their first pastor, left a fine testimony. He now is superintendent of Brethren schools at Long Beach, with some 400 students. Then a period of discouragement came.

This discouraged handful soon took an interest, and anything their pastor pro tem. suggested, they were willing to do. I wish that could be said of all church members. Only 17 were present that first Sunday. Seven years later (December 5, 1954), here in Temple City, 145 were in Sunday school and 105 in morning worship service. With less than 30 in membership in 1948 it has increased to 72 in 1954. Thirty-six have been transferred to other churches from this membership, many to other Brethren churches. Of course, there have been some who had to be dropped for one reason or another. There have been close to 100 who have found their way to this church and their Lord in these seven years.

It soon became apparent that the church in East Pasadena would have to look for other quarters. Local ordinances were such that if and when the church considered any expansion they could not, as there would be no room for off-street parking. Then, too, the history of this property was not so good before the Brethren purchased it. It was used by a Pentecostal group and even after some years our church was, in the estimation of the community, part of this same group. So we considered relocating. There was a possibility that we would be offered a parent-controlled Christian day school which our church housed the first year of their operation. After its second year, operating in another church of Alhambra, it was being pressed to find some other place to hold its school. Some of our men were vitally interested in this Christian day school, the San Gabriel Valley Academy. They found a property formerly used by another church group for a day school, and this group was selling because they had built a new building. The Home Missions Council gave permission for us to sell our East Pasadena property and helped us with a loan to purchase this new property on Las Tunas Drive in Temple City, some three miles away. During the summer school vacation our people made the newly acquired buildings ready for our new venture into the Christian day school field. The school has proved a wonderful asset to our church and certainly a real mission field for Christian service.

For three years we worshiped at the Las Tunas location, seated at school desks in classrooms instead of pews or chairs. We had a fine two-acre piece of property with two good buildings on it and had plenty of room for building a chapel, but we saw commercial expansion on every side of us. We felt this would sooner or later become undesirable for a church and school location. It became apparent we should relocate again and we began looking for a new location. We found a two-and-one-half-acre property which certainly looked like just the place, but it had already been sold pending a zoning by the planning commission. However, the pastor had the word of the owner that if anything should happen that the zoning would hinder the sale to the subdivider, we were next in line and they would be more than glad to sell this plot to our church.

The Lord knew we needed a place and, believe it or not, the planning commission voted down the subdivision. This gave us the option on the property and the owners held it for the Brethren almost one year without paying a dime or making a deposit. All we had was a verbal agreement that we wanted it and would buy if we could sell our present Las Tunas property. Even during this one year of waiting, the owners could have sold the property for $30,000, which was $10,000 more than they offered it to us. Finally, with the financial help of a loan from the Home Missions Council, we again ventured out on faith. We purchased this acreage before disposing of the two acres on Las Tunas Drive. Brethren, the Lord has been good to this church. He knew that we had no money for such an undertaking. The Lord provided in a real material way.

Our church had $7,000 invested in the East Pasadena property. This we sold for $18,000 cash. We bought the Las Tunas Drive acreage for $28,500 with the two school buildings on it. In July 1953 we moved the two buildings to the new property on Temple City Boulevard. The two buildings were appraised at $16,000. That left an equity of $12,500 on Las Tunas. I say the Lord provided for us! Look at this: after moving the buildings we received $40,300 cash for the vacant property. Today, with our new chapel, schoolbuildings, and two-and-one-half-acre property on Temple City Boulevard, this church has assets of over $100,000 and an indebtedness of less than $25,000. Hasn't God done great things for us?

So much for material gains. Spiritually the work has shown real growth—not only among the children in our Christian day school which we are rejoicing in (kindergarten through eighth grade, but also in our Sunday school and church. In these few years the Lord has already led three young men from this congregation—Jerry Adams, Don Rough, and Larry Wedetz—to Grace College in preparation for Christian service. One of our fine young ladies, Miss Phyllis Campbell, is now attending the Bible Institute of Los Angeles preparing for Christian day school teaching. The work of our youth directors, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Frick, certainly is to be commended. With their splendid work among these and all those who yet are in secondary schools looking forward to further preparation for Christian service, we expect some real Christian workers.

TEMPLE CITY BOYS IN GRACE COLLEGE

Our church has a WMC, two SMM organizations, four BYF and CE societies, a departmentalized Sunday school with a record attendance of 185, Sunday-morning and Sunday-evening services, a midweek prayer meeting with an average of over 40, and regular visitation by Sunday-school classes and church members being done each week. We have a staff of five Christian day school teachers, two bus drivers, custodian, and office clerk, all sacrificing in salary as a missionary work for the Lord. Every one of these could go out into the secular field and get more than twice what we can pay them. Here is real missions.

Brethren, the Lord has accomplished all this through your giving, praying, and interest in home missions. We would be most ungrateful if we did not take this opportunity to say a big "thank you." May the Lord's richest blessings be upon each one of you as you continue to support home missions.

In the life of every pastor there comes a time to say a last official good-bye. And it's not because we had to say it, but only because we have been of the conviction

Temple City Brethren Sunday School; (Inset) East Pasadena Group

Many changes took place in the Temple City Brethren Church during its brief history. The small group above was known as the East Pasadena Brethren Church and was the original of the present Temple City church. Later the name was changed to Rosemead Boulevard Brethren Church and finally to Temple City Brethren.

The original location was on Rosemead Boulevard. Later the location was changed to Las Tunas Drive, and finally to Temple City Boulevard.

Not only was the name and location changing, but the congregation was changing rapidly also. It had changed from the small group to the 158 present on Sunday, November 14, 1954, as contrasted in the above picture.

that this was God's will for this work at Temple City. As I have been reflecting in retrospect the events of the almost seven years, they have been busy years for both Mrs. Polman and myself. Not only have we been busy with the work of the church, which is a full-time job anytime, we have been busy traveling up and down the Pacific Coast as field representative for Scripture Press. Together this work and the church has been for some time more than we could comfortably handle. The days were filled with various activities, programming, and administration, with the ministry of the Word from the pulpit, with the ministry of comfort in the sickroom, with the exhortation, challenge, and instruction always trying to lead with all that goes into the life of a pastor. These things could never have been done if the Lord hadn't given this pastor a REAL helpmeet. She has had much of the responsibility when I was away from home and the church. If any success here, much of it must be credited to this preacher's wife!

I cannot but think of the times of joy and sorrow of these years, and thank God for the privilege of having the opportunity of serving the church here and our Home Missions Council (which, by the way, we have served in three pastorates since 1929, with a few years out for evangelistic work among our churches). These have been wonderful years. It is not to the past that we must look now. Only the future lies before us—the future of Temple City and home missions and the ministry of the Word.

With the new pastor, Rev. John Aeby, and his family coming to the field here January 9, 1955, giving full time to this work, I look for a great growth here in the next few years. Having this beautiful new chapel, classrooms, and equipment which we worked without for so many years, this church should show progress as never before. With a people who have done so much with so little these many years, it cannot be otherwise.

To those who so faithfully support home missions, we must tell you that your investment in this place has not only accomplished the things which you have just read, but has for a number of years had its part in making possible an interest among this people in their giving. The records will show that they have been among those in the top bracket in per-capita giving to home missions,

DENVER GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH WINS BANNER AGAIN

Grace Brethren Church, Denver, Colo., a home-mission church, won the Brethren National Sunday School Contest for the first two months of October and November in Division "A." This home-mission Sunday school not only won the banner for the largest increase in attendance, but also showed the largest percentage of increase of all the Sunday schools reporting during the two months.

The increase in the Sunday school is reflecting increases in all phases and services of the church. A recent building-fund Sunday showed a record offering and it is being needed to complete the upper auditorium. The increasing Sunday school is taxing the present facilities to the limit.

The Brethren Home Missions Council is proud of the Sunday school records being made by other home-mission churches, with many of them finishing month by month near the top of the various divisions. We want to see our churches getting a good portion of those "60,000 by 1960," the national Sunday-school goal.

foreign missions, the seminary, youth work, Sunday-school work, etc. This is a missionary church. Pray with us that it will always be so.

Our future—Mrs. Polman and I—as we leave is certain. The ways and means of it are uncertain, to be sure, but it is in the hands of the Lord, so we know that it is sure. We do not know how or where He shall lead through the years, but we do know He will lead, so we doubt not. We only ask that you will pray with us that we shall always be willing to follow wherever He leads. It may be one day we shall again be building another home-mission church—maybe many of them. You may be sure that our hearts will always be in home missions.

VACATIONING IN FLORIDA?

If so, please remember the Brethren Church is establishing a beachhead at Fort Lauderdale. By the time you read this, Rev. and Mrs. Ralph J. Colburn will be on the field. They do not have a permanent address at this time, but they may be contacted by calling or writing to them c/o James W. Snyder, 1112 NE. 10th Ave., Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Better yet, if you are planning to move to Florida, why not consider Fort Lauderdale? By establishing a church there, you will help make possible other new Brethren churches in the southern States.

MINUTE-MEN BE ON THE ALERT!

To do a good job and do it quickly in Fort Lauderdale, you are going to be called upon to assist. A letter will be coming your way soon with the details.

IGNORANCE IS BLISS?

By Leanore Button

It was an open court—one of those where apartments close in three sides. In most apartment sections there are many doorways and much shrubbery so that speaking to the people is an easy matter because you are usually able to speak with one person undisturbed. As I went up the stairs to apartments 9 and 12, a little boy passed me going down. I smiled at him. His hair was blond, but his brown eyes marked him as a son of Israel.

The porch, if it could be called that, was very small. A playpen took up most of the room, and sitting on the doorsill of No. 9 was a very lovely young Jewess. On the other side of the playpen was a tall Jewess and her dark hair was set in pincurls. She also was very young.

"Good morning," I said cheerily. "I'm that pest around again with the Mediator. Since we haven't bothered you for such a long time, surely you won't be too disturbed this morning if I take only a few minutes of your time." I never like to find two women together because it is always difficult to get them to listen or to participate in any conversation. Alone, either might be interested.

The tall girl gave me a withering look. "I don't want that paper, and, furthermore, I don't want to be bothered by you at all. Why can't you leave us alone? You are always trying to make us believe in Jesus."

The other girl sitting on the doorstep refused the Mediator also, but quietly and unobtrusively. I didn't press her, feeling that next time we would catch her alone and she would accept it. I turned back to the tall one.

"I'm not trying to make you believe anything," I said. "I'm only interested in trying to get you to check the claims of Messiah and to ask you to read your own book, the Tenach, the Old Testament."

"I have read it!" she snapped, scooping up a little girl who was crawling rapidly toward the stairs. The other children seemed suddenly to become restless. The two in the playpen began to cry and slap at each other.

"Then what do you think of the prophecies made by your own Jewish prophets concerning the Messiah?" I asked her above the noise.

"Who am I to question God? I have my own belief. I don't want to know anything else. This is one place where ignorance is bliss."

"You mean you don't believe the Torah [the Law—first five books of the Old Testament] and you don't believe your Jewish prophets?"

"No. I am perfectly satisfied not to know what is in that Book. I wish you would go away and leave us alone. We don't want your Jesus. We want to be ignorant."

"That is your choice, of course, but whether you believe it or whether you are ignorant of God's law, the fact is, if you break it, you will pay the penalty. You should be sure that what you have is enough because it is not only your own soul that you are responsible for, but your children will follow in what you believe unless you direct them to the truth."

She was very angry and there was no point in talking further. I went downstairs, but she followed me. Her children were giving her quite a little trouble.

Another lady was in the court. I handed her a Mediator, which she took. As I left, I heard the tall one still grumbling under her breath: "These people are always coming around trying to make us believe in Jesus!"

Out on the sidewalk I ran into an elderly man with whom I had quite a talk several days before. He had taken a New Testament.

"How's business?" he asked, grinning at me.

"God's business is always good," I told him. We walked along together to the next apartment. "If you mean how is the message of salvation being received," I told him, "that's a different story. Your Jewish brethren are still blind and deaf and stony-hearted to the only One who can save them, but we don't worry about that Even that, He has taken care of because He promised us that He would save a remnant of Israel. We are in search of those few.'"

I waved good-bye to him, a little surprised that he would walk with me in plain sight of his Jewish friends. But as I went on my way, it was the tall girl I thought of—the one who said, "Ignorance is bliss in this case." What excuse will this young woman have when she meets her Creator—the Holy One of Israel? Ignorance will be of little help because what she actually means is that she chooses not to believe what the Jewish prophets have said in God's Word. No; more than that, for she has said in effect, "I will not believe in God."

Los Angeles, Ca'if., Jewish Mission (Isobel Fraser, Missionary)—

Yes; we're back into the swing of our calling program again and in it I have had several wonderful discussions and opportunities to present the claims of Christ. We do have interesting ones on occasion; I had one today. This Jewish gentleman invited me in. Instead of my asking the questions, he did the asking. Did I believe Jesus was born of the Holy Ghost? Was He also a descendant of David? He then took me to the genealogy in Matthew 1. His contention was that Jesus could not possibly be born of the Holy Ghost and at the same time be a Son of David. Therefore, Christianity was based on a lie. This was something new from a Jew—that is, in my experience. My explanation regarding the ancestry of Mary and Christ's legal claims as a foster son of Joseph stuck like water on a duck's back. We discussed the virgin birth to no avail. But God is able!

Brethren Navaho Mission, Cuba, N. Mex. (Evan Adams, Missionary)—

We had an all-day snow for a post-White Christmas December 27. Sixty-two attended the afternoon church service yesterday. Along with the regular service there was a good testimony meeting, followed by a time of prayer for those who desired to remain. Eleven remained, and among them was one young man who has never made any profession of Christ as Saviour.

to what the National Council delegates felt were major steps forward.

1. There is a renewed concern in the "great social issues."
2. "Increasing emphasis" on Christian vocation or how to get along on your job.
3. "Increased recognition of the importance of lay activity."
4. A "fresh realization" of the church's role in educational processes in America.
5. A "discernible and highly significant improvement in the religious morale" of church members. (We wonder where this fits into the above picture.)
6. The growth of a "great network" of cooperative agencies.

These things, the council felt, were advances of major proportions.

Indeed, they are every one commendable and should exist in any state of Christian society.

We cannot help but ask—

1. Where does the Lord Jesus Christ figure in this picture?
2. Are these emphases all the result of the clear teaching and exhortation received from God's Holy Word?
3. How many souls were born again through this program last year?
4. How many true preachers and missionaries of the cross laid their lives on the altar for home- and foreign-mission work?
5. How many spiritual victories were won in the lives of church members as the direct result of such a program?
6. Is the program for 1955 to proceed on the same basis? If so, what will be the story on crime and juvenile delinquency at the end of another year?

No; the church (Christendom in America) is not powerless, but it is weak, emaciated, sick, and misguided by men who no longer use the Bible as their basic and only source of information, instruction, and power. The only parts of the church as a whole today which have power are those we call "fundamental" churches for want of a better name. These assemblies and denominations stand squarely on the Scripture as the absolute rule of faith and practice.

Ninety-five million Christians with a vision could move the world for Christ. But, tragically, this is not the picture. On the other hand, many church members have never heard the Gospel of saving grace. In addition, the National Council of Churches is doing little if anything to change the situation.

The true children of God have a big job ahead until Jesus comes!

CHICO HOST FOR WORKSHOP

The Grace Brethren Church of Chico, Calif., will be host church for the second annual Home Mission Workshop to be held February 22, 23, and 24. This one is for the home-mission pastors and missionaries in the western section of the United States, and a similar workshop will be held at Winona Lake for those living in the eastern section. CASE DISMISSED

On October 27, 1954, suit was filed against the Leon Brethren Church, Leon, Iowa, by the plaintiffs (a minority group of members of the Leon Brethren Church under the guidance of Mr. George Ronk) who were sympathetic to Ashland College (Ohio) and to the National Conference of the Brethren Church. It was the Ashland faction of this conference that illegally wrested control of the National Conference of the Brethren Church in 1939 chiefly because of our opposition to legalism and liberalism in our Brethren denomination.

About January 4, 1955, the plaintiffs in the case requested of the court that the case be "dismissed without prejudice." This simply means that the status now stands as though the case had never been filed.

Indeed, Brethren, this is an answer to prayer. Thousands have been praying that God would intervene and change hearts or circumstances. Our prayers have been answered.

It has been the editorial policy of the Missionary Herald to keep from our pages all reference to the lawsuit that has been pending against the Leon Brethren Church, until the case actually went to court. However, with this turn of events, we publish the decision. We should all now unite in prayer that God will bless this church in its future ministry.

The Committee on Denominational Interests desires to express appreciation to Mr. Leonard Bosgraf, of Chicago, Ill., for his capable counsel in our behalf which assisted in bringing the dismissal of the case.

IT IS REQUIRED IN STEWARDS, THAT A MAN BE FOUND FAITHFUL

By REV. C. S. ZIMMERMAN

National Statistician

Another evidence of the faithfulness of God to the people of the Brethren Church is in the statistical report submitted at National Conference in August 1954. We see the increased accomplishment of the churches in every avenue of endeavor. There is a substantial gain in membership and souls won to the Lord. Finances have never been so good, and the per-capita giving of $100.92 is the highest in our history. But there are more interesting figures that did not get into the published report.

According to information received from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States the following statistics hold for the year 1953:

Population of United States—162,000,000.

Average persons per American home—3.4.

Average family income in 1953—$5,970.

Number of gainfully employed persons in United States—62,000,000.

Average income of gainfully employed persons—$4,589.

From the statistical report of the Brethren Church you will find the total membership to be 20,819 for 1953. If the average size of the American family taken from the above report of 3.4 is applied to the Brethren Church, there are 6,123 families in the churches. The average family income for the United States in 1953 was $5,970. This multiplied by 6,123—the number of families in Brethren churches — will show the total income of the Brethren families to be $36,554,310 for 1953. If this income would have been tithed, there would have been a total of $3,655,431 passed into the work of Brethren churches. From the annual statistical report there was $2,101,010.04 brought into the treasuries of the many churches for all purposes. This figure is $1,554,420.96 short of the tithe on the total income of Brethren families.

But let us take the figures another way lest there be some who say that only the unemployed children of some families are in the church. According to the report above from the Chamber of Commerce, the total number gainfully employed persons in the U. S. A. is 62 million. The percentage relation of this figure to the total population of 162 million applied to the total membership of the Brethren Church indicates that there are 7,967 gainfully employed Brethren people. Multiply this figure by $4,589, the average income for all gainfully employed people in the U. S. A., and the total income for gainfully employed Brethren is $36,553,563. There is only $747 difference in this total and the total for the family income. The tithe of this would be $3,655,356.30. The excess of this over the total coming into Brethren treasuries for all purposes is $1,554,346.26. Take either figure you desire and the amount withheld from the Lord in tithes is a staggering one.

Now take a quick look at the major items of expenditure. According to the statistical report of the church, approximately 74 percent was retained for local use; 12 percent sent to foreign missions; 9 percent used for home missions; 4 percent went into the field of education; and .3 percent used for publications. Now if these percentages were applied to the $1,554,420.96 withheld tithe, the following additional amounts could have been used as follows, with some to spare:

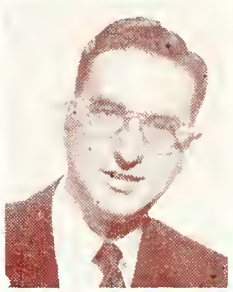
Locally	$1,150,277
Foreign missions	186,530
Home missions	139,898
Education	62,177
Publications	4,663

Now lest the accusation of being a legalist be made, we believe that the Scripture teaches that we are to give to our Lord according as He has prospered us, and we believe this heartily, but we also believe that the tithe is a good starting place to determine the amount of the gift. If applied to the income it will increase or decrease as we are prospered or prosperity is withheld. Brethren, let us think on these things; let us become hilarious givers. Remember, when we rob God, we rob ourselves!

COMFORT

Each "fate" in life is for the best—
 Though hard to understand;
The night as well as sunny day
 Is measured from His hand.

He metes the variant rains that fall,
 And clouds that dim the sun;
He tempers every shattered hope,
 Or human griefs that stun.



Each tear by Him is treasured up
 In vials of memory;
The cause, and healing, of them hold
 For Him no mystery.

And He who lights the stars of night,
 As gleams amid the gloom,
Will tend the tapers of our faith—
 If we permit Him room.

"It's the Oregon Trail to Portland in '55—August 10-17"

The Year 1955

By JOHN MAYES
Pastor, Paramount Brethren Church
Paramount, Calif.

Years come and go. With the passing of each one there are lessons learned and with the new there are opportunities for greater things. As we think concerning the year 1955, three words bring to us the urgency of living outwardly the life of Christ.

FAITHFULNESS

It was the Apostle Paul writing to Christians in the city of Corinth concerning their faithfulness as stewards of the mysteries of God who said "that a man be found faithful." This demands that we continue in the ministry of Christ, knowing our heavenly calling. Every believer is a minister of Christ. A spasmodic ministry on our part is insufficient. We must serve in faithfulness. This is conditioned upon several things.

A proper knowledge of eternal values will cause us to be faithful. Many desires and wants of this life are magnified out of proportion by our own earthliness and are to blame for the interruptions in our Christian service. This robs us of the rewards of faithfulness.

A willingness to do service for Christ when we do not feel like it is essential to faithfulness. If we would only serve Christ when we feel at our best, our year, our life, would be a dismal failure.

A desire to forego our own pleasure to do God's will is another necessary element in faithfulness. Those who have found the choicest of blessings in Christian service have been the ones who had a desire to sidestep many of the joys of living in view of the overwhelming burden of doing God's will. Without such a desire, faithfulness will soon give way to self's ambitions.

A consistency in the doing of the task at hand is the capstone of faithfulness. To be always the same is a characteristic of our Christian lives to be much sought after. Many begin the task with a flourish, but soon cease their efforts as the newness wears away. Some begin again at the next mountain peak, to cease again in the valley. Without a steady pace in Christian service great abiding faithfulness can never develop.

SPIRITUALITY

Spirituality is a quality in the life of a Christian which is difficult to define. In a real sense spirituality is much like humility, in that as one becomes aware of its presence, it is in great jeopardy of being lost A lack of spirituality is most easily discerned. The Apostle Paul wrote to the Corinthian believers that he could not speak unto them as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal He further states that strifes and divisions with other fleshly evidences were the basis of his conclusion.

Thus we deduce that the spiritual life is one of harmony with the will and program of God, resulting in abstinence from that which is fleshly or carnal. "For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." We learn from Colossians, chapter 1, several of the things upon which spirituality rests.

The work of the Spirit of God is the foundation of spirituality. Without this transforming work of the Spirit spirituality must by nature be nonexistent. In the heart of the natural man, who is the unregenerate sinner, death dwells. Until he is resurrected in the newness of the life in Christ he can never be spiritual.

The spiritual understanding which is brought into the believer's life by the Spirit of God is the guide which enables him to walk worthy of the Lord. A man cannot be spiritual while he is spiritually dead, and he can never be spiritual of his own attainment, even after becoming a believer. Spiritual understanding resides by the indwelling Spirit who enables the believer to live pleasing to the Lord from day to day

The strength of the life allied with the Spirit of God is a further basis of spirituality. Byproducts of this strength are patience, longsuffering, joyfulness, and thanksgiving. This is that strength which enables us to stand against sin.

DEDICATION

The last of these three words is dedication. This means to turn one's self aside from one thing to the motivated doing of another. Bringing this to bear upon the believer's life it means that we have turned aside from sin to do, by the motivation of our love for our Lord, service in living for Him. Dedication, too, has some principles upon which it is dependent.

To follow Christ is the prime requisite for those who would dedicate themselves to Him. Our Lord tells us that if we would be His disciples, we must take up our cross and follow Him. In this is shown our dedication to His work. To be independent in action and purpose is contradictory to that dedication which would have us act in regard to God's purpose.

To hear the voice of Christ is essential for the carrying out of His work to which we have dedicated ourselves. Jesus said, "My sheep hear my voice." The listening heart will be divinely guided, causing the efforts of the dedicated life to be spent in harmony with the purposes of God and thus to become fruitful unto every good work.

Ahead of us in a new year lies great opportunity. By living a faithful, spiritual, and fully dedicated life we may enjoy deeper fellowship and richer blessings than we have ever before experienced.

A Positive Faith for This New Year

By RAYMOND THOMPSON

Pastor of McHenry Avenue Grace Brethren Church, Modesto, Calif.

A brandnew year, 1955. A clean slate. A new chance to correct past failures and move on to greater accomplishments. These and kindred thoughts move through the minds of men as we pass from the old year and step into the new. We see others doing it and perhaps we find ourselves forming resolutions which are aimed to correct the shortcomings turned up by the inventories to which we may have subjected ourselves. Resolutions, as made by most people, are at best futile abortive attempts at self-betterment which, even traditionally, arrive on the surge of a feeling of a need for improvement and disappear even before the crest of enthusiasm has subsided into the turbulence of everyday life.

Besides there being a lack of strength or will to accomplish in the energy of human flesh alone, most resolutions have an aspect about them which causes them to be distasteful and to be soon broken and discarded simply because we do not want to keep them. We treat them as we do medicine—"mighty good fer what ails ya, but awful bad-tastin' stuff." We soon feel that the cure is worse than the disease and we abandon the effort.

The quality which causes failure in the keeping of many resolutions, personal betterment programs, and even plans for growth in the Christian life, is that of being negative rather than positive. Even when stated positively the thought behind many such worthy ideals is negative. We think in terms of what we ought to give up in order that we might benefit. Overindulgences in eating or other practices are seen as being harmful to us even though pleasurable, and so we decide to make the supreme sacrifice and forego that which we otherwise desire. The decision is commendable, but the result very often is not. There is a basic error in this sort of reasoning for the born-again child of God which it should prove helpful to consider as we enter into what we pray will be a truly prosperous year for each of us.

The natural man seldom thinks beyond the measure of material prosperity and physical well-being which brings enjoyment of life, but there is a great depth of meaning beyond the worldly conception in the word "happy" as it is used in the New Testament. The word occurs six times in the King James Version. However, the same Greek word which in those six instances is translated "happy" has 43 other occurrences where it is translated "blessed." Immediately we grasp a new depth to the word which is beyond our customary usage. We see it as a condition which is dependent upon and vitally connected with our relationship to God. We are "blessed" or "happy" when we through God's grace become united with the Lord Jesus Christ and stand as sons before our heavenly Father.

Subjectively, when we are clothed in God's blessing we will experience "the peace of God which passeth all understanding" and our cup will be full to overflowing with true joy and happiness.

Objectively, the peace, joy, and happiness which we inwardly feel will radiate from us and our lives will be living testimonies to the glorious grace of our God. Moreover, as we see that this same word "happy" or "blessed" is used by Jesus as recorded in Matthew 5 to describe those who are to be the subjects of His kingdom, it takes on another dimension which we have not yet mentioned. Persons evidencing about nine different characteristics are honored as "blessed" in this passage. These characteristics are not assumed as a veneer or a front behind which the true personality hides. Rather they are the evidences which flow forth from the character of the true person, a character which partakes of the very essence of God himself, for we read in I Timothy 1:11 of the "blessed God" who is the Author of the "glorious gospel." God not only communicates His benefits to His children as blessings, but He instills by the new birth His own nature in such a way that the acts which issue from the life so changed are described as "blessed" acts, being the result of a "blessed" nature. We see then that the Christian life is a positive thing from its very inception. It is not a mere removal of that which is bad from the old nature, but it is a new birth whereby the very life of Christ dwells within and motivates life.

Many professing Christians have wandered from a positive Christian life as evidenced by the gauges which they use to determine what they should or should not do. When contemplating some service in the name of Christ, a man may say, "What will I have to give up?" No Christian ever "gives up" anything for the cause of Christ. Because of our shortsightedness it may sometimes appear that we do, but in reality each supposed sacrifice is a steppingstone to a greater and an eternal blessing. The cross of Christ was in the path to victory and blessing. Through the channel of the cross He purchased infinite eternal glory to himself and salvation for the world. Aside from our identification at Calvary with Him, our cross, those things in which we are given a choice to either go forward to victory in His strength or to fall down to defeat in our own, is the path to eternal blessing and glory.

Another negative standard which blights the life of Christians is the question, "What harm is there in it?" by which questionable practices are so often measured. What business has a possessor of the light of life, one who is indwelt by the spotless Son of God, in seeing how close he can come to the slime pits of hell without being soiled? He has been sent on a positive mission of good. He is on an errand with a message, the message that Jesus died to save men from the mire and slime of sin. His standard then is not "What harm is there in it?" but "What can I accomplish through this thing which will honor my Saviour?"

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST

AND ITS RELATIONSHIP TO SATAN

By ALFRED DODDS
Pastor, First Brethren Church
South Gate, Calif.

UP FROM the mists and shadows of the ending age, like some colossal specter, is to start a mighty figure of sin and wickedness whose ominous outline against the twilight sky of the centuries is the sure and unfailing sign of the end-time to which this world is swiftly and inevitably wheeling. Paul tells us his name. He is the man of sin. He is the incarnation of sin even as God's spotless Christ was the incarnation of holiness. He is the Antichrist. He is an abomination; he is a desolator; he sitteth in the temple of God; he opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God; he is a false king and a false god; he shall be destroyed by the brightness of the Lord's own glorious coming. Thus a divine hand underscores the 15th verse of the 24th chapter of Matthew and marks as the first sign of the end the sign of Antichrist and tribulation.

"Antichrist shall come." Such is the inspired pronouncement, and "the scriptures cannot be broken." Therefore, immediately following the rapture of the church, this seven-year period of great tribulation will be thrust upon this world. Hence the superman, for whom all the world is waiting, will soon be here. Even now he may be alive. But who is he? From whence does he come? Such are the questions to which we seek an answer. Let us hear what God says.

1. The Antichrist will arise in the midst of a ten-leagued nation; namely, the revived Roman Empire, and, subduing three kings, will reign over the remaining seven (Dan. 7:8, 23-24).

2. He will hold sway until Christ returns, and, with the saints, establishes the kingdom. Therefore, the Antichrist will be manifested and will rule just previous to the return of Christ and His millennial reign (Dan. 7:21-22).

3. He will endeavor to change the calendar and establish laws (Dan. 7:25).

4. His reign will be characterized by hatred of God and persecution of the saints (Dan. 7:21, 25; 8:24).

5. He will make a seven-year covenant with the Jews, but will break it at the end of three and a half years (Dan. 9:27).

6. He will exalt himself to the position of God, and prosper greatly until the end of the tribulation (Dan. 11:36-39; Ezek. 28:2, 6, 9).

7. He will be the wisest, the richest, the proudest, and the most glorious of all rulers (Ezek. 28:3-7).

8. He will be accepted by the Jews (John 5:43).

9. He is the man of sin and the son of perdition. Apostasy precedes his manifestation. He presents himself in the temple as God. He will be destroyed by the return of Christ. His work will be satanic. He will have great power, will work miracles and thus deceive. He will completely delude those who reject the truth and love unrighteousness. And all who accept him will perish (II Thess. 2:3-4, 8-12).

10. He will prosper for three and a half years, energized by Satan, after being fatally wounded and healed. He blasphemes God, makes war on the saints, rules over all nations, and is worshiped by the unsaved (Dan. 8:24; Rev. 13:1-8).

11. He obtains worship by means of deceptive miracles performed by the false prophet, has an image of himself placed in the temple which is made to speak. He compels all to take his mark in order to buy and sell, and is designated by the number 666 (Rev. 13:11-18).

12. He leads the kings of the earth to the Battle of Armageddon, and is finally conquered by Christ at His second advent; his army is destroyed, and he himself, with the false prophet is cast alive into Gehenna (Rev. 19:19-20).

He is Satan's counterfeit of Christ. That is, he is both the imitator and the opposite of the true Christ. He comes up from the pit, even as Christ came down from heaven. He receives his authority from Satan, even as Christ received His from the Father. His reign, from the time of his open revelation, lasts three years and a half, about the same as that of our Lord's ministry upon earth. He is a false king, even as Christ is the true one. He is a boaster and a braggart, even as Christ humbled and emptied himself. He breaks all laws, whereas Christ came to fulfill the law. He controls the wealth of the world, whereas Christ "for our sakes became poor."

He is the warlord of the earth, to which Christ came to bring peace and goodwill. He is the opposer of God, while Christ came expressly to do the Father's will. He is the wolf who seeks to destroy God's sheep, whereas Christ is the tender shepherd who came to care for them and to give His life for them He is one of a satanic trinity; to wit, Satan, the Beast, and the False Prophet, just as Christ is one person of the Triune God. He is accepted and worshiped by the world; Christ was rejected and crucified by the same. He is hurled from his world throne at the last; Christ is exalted to His. He is finally abased in the lowest hell; Christ is lifted up to the highest heaven.

Terse, vivid, and authoritative is Jesus Christ's story of the end. The wickedness of all times shall be headed up in a man of sin, even as God's holiness was embodied in the Man of Righteousness. Satan's "time is short" and "his wrath is great." He vents this rage in a fierce tribulation upon the world which from the beginning he has sought to be-

Martinsburg, Pa.

The power of God was felt very keenly during the days of evangelistic services at Martinsburg, Pa., October 17-31. United prayer and cooperation were the backbone for the campaign. The average attendance for the two weeks was 160 and the visible results were five decisions for salvation and two for rededication.

Rev. Gerald Teeter did a wonderful job as director of music. The choir added much to the services.

There were representatives from every one of the seven Brethren churches in this area during the two weeks.

This was my first trip to Martinsburg and I continually thank our Lord that He let me be there during this time when He was going to bless.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

October 17-31 were days when God revived His work in Martinsburg, Pa. A genuine love for souls and sincere preaching of the Word was manifested by our evangelist, Bill Smith. This became contagious with our people and as a result we felt it was a united work of evangelist, pastor, and people in seeking lost souls for Christ.

The Lord rewarded the efforts with decisions that have been beneficial to the work.

Albany, Oreg.

It was getting dangerously close to Christmas. And the spirit of the season made some subtle encroachments upon the meeting scheduled for the Grace Brethren Church November 30-December 12 with Crusade Team Two. Notwithstanding, many of the members were faithful in attendance. Also, many bought up opportunities to go and invite others.

Average attendance for the meetings was above the 70 mark. During these services four souls came forward for salvation. Several others rededicated their lives to the Lord.

During the last week there were four afternoon "Happy Hour" services for children. An average of 70 children attended. Thirty children responded to the invitation to receive Christ as Saviour. This phase of the campaign was led by Rev. Ralph Colburn and his wife.

Some sow the good seed of the Gospel, others water, but God gives the increase. And we believe God will give more increase.—Glen Welborn, pastor.

Aleppo, Pa.

Aleppo recently enjoyed the blessings of special meetings with Rev. H. Leslie Moore as evangelist. Even hurricane "Hazel" didn't spoil our attendance, which ranged from 22 on the night of the storm and high water, to 160, with an average of 98.

A highlight of our meeting was our preprayer circle, never before so successful. The pastor and evangelist were busy calling, dealing with souls, and helping in the transportation.

Since then our Wednesday-night prayer meeting has doubled in attendance with more Sunday-school teachers present than for years before. Special prayer-request cards are being given out and exchanged each week. These are for daily prayer by individuals and will bring blessing.—Fred Wm. Walter, pastor, Aleppo Brethren Church.

Sugar Grove, Pa.

November 16-28 Victor Rogers, pastor of the Brethren church at Jenners, Pa., came to a Union Church at Sugar Grove, where we pastor the work part time. The Lord blessed in the meetings from the start Interest was good. Attendance was the best for many years, with an average of 118. Twenty-six people made decisions, most of them first-time decisions for Christ.—Fred Wm. Walter, pastor.

Beaver City, Nebr.

We had two good weeks in revival effort at the Brethren church in Beaver City, Nebr. The Lord blessed from the beginning and several vital decisions were made, including one family for the church. The pastor, Dayton Cundiff, led the singing, and Mrs. Cundiff made a chalk drawing each night. It was good work.

They have a splendid group of young people. Dozens of calls were made as pastor and people worked together in harmony. We thank God for the victories, and that a full-time pastor is now in Beaver City.—R. Kettell, evangelist.

Clayton, Ohio

In December 1953 the Lord gave us a blessed revival at Clayton, Ohio. In the recent evangelistic campaign conducted here, He gave us even greater blessings.

The passion and enthusiasm were in operation before I arrived for the meeting. Deep conviction and interest were evident at every service. There were seven precious souls who came publicly to receive Jesus Christ as Saviour.

Rev. Clair Brickel, the songleader for 1954 National Fellowship, was the songleader for the campaign. A revival choir, along with excellent special music, did much to prepare hearts for the message.

The theme for these two weeks was "Know Jesus Christ," with John 17:3 as the campaign verse. There were delegations from Covington, Bethany, Patterson Park, Englewood, Troy, Dayton First, Sampleville, and Columbus.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

The Lord blessed the Clayton church during the two weeks of revival services conducted by Evangelist Bill Smith. The attendance was excellent for the two weeks and the average of 130 was the best we have experienced. Souls were saved under the sound preaching of the Word by this energetic Spirit-filled servant of the Lord.

The interest in these meetings was keenly felt by pastor and evangelist. The Lord's people were successful in bringing out unsaved to the meetings. The Lord only knows the results that will come from the working of God's people and the faithful preaching of this evangelist. We were thankful that the Lord sent Brother Smith to bless our hearts by the preaching of the Word.—Clair Brickel, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Harrisburg, Pa.

Evangelistic meetings were conducted Nov. 17-28 with Rev. Harold Etling as evangelist, and Rev. Gerald Polman, of York Pa., as songleader. There were 14 public decisions and an average attendance of 114. From Nov. 14 to Dec. 5, 11 have joined the church. Eight await baptism. Rev. Conard Sandy is pastor.

tray and to wreck. God veils the heavens in darkness, the sign of His indignation against sin and of His near and swift vengeance upon its malignant author.

Titanic forces of evil gird themselves for their final struggle of the age-end. But struggle there is none! As easily as the white hissing lightning leaps from the midheavens and shivers to atoms the towering pines, so does He, whose coming is as the lightning flash, wither to palsied helplessness by "the breath of his mouth and the brightness of his coming" the braggart false god and king. He who had exalted himself to the heavens is cast into the depths of hell, while angel hands lay hold of and bind the prince of evil through all the golden centuries of peace and righteousness which now bring to a weary world the glorious reign of earth's lawful King—the Prince of Peace in truth. Of that marvelous painting, then, of the age-end which unrolls in stupendous and solemn grandeur in the Book of Revelation, the 24th chapter of Matthew is the Master's pencil sketch.

Thy Speech Betrayeth Thee

"How many of you children want a doughnut?" Mother asked her brood of nine as they surrounded the table.

"Me," came the chorus reply.

"No one gets anything unless he answers correctly. I get weary of having to forever correct your grammar. You older children especially know better and should set a good example for the little ones. Since the little word "do" is implied in your answer, and you most certainly wouldn't say 'me do,' how should you have replied?"

"Ah." In the chorus response this time Mother heard only one or two strong "I's." The "ah's" for "I" were as southern as corn pone and hominy grits. She burst into laughter and said: "You little Rebels. No one would know by your speech that seven of you were Yankee-born. You do the southerners credit."

"What else can you expect, Mother?" David questioned. "We hear it all around us every day. I don't even know I'm talking differently. And our little children don't remember the way northerners talk. You don't object to our accent, do you?"

"Certainly not. In fact, I find the southern drawl quite delightful. It is a refreshing change from the clipped Yankee speech, although I confess it took me several months to understand some pronunciations. I'll never forget the first weekend here in Roanoke when the BYF went on an outing to a place which sounded to me like 'Peak Sevada.' It was nearly two weeks before I understood that you had gone to the mountain known as 'Peaks of Otter.' I think that one of the compensations which come to preachers' families is a wide range of acquaintances with the mores and colloquialisms of the various sections where we are called to live and serve the Lord."

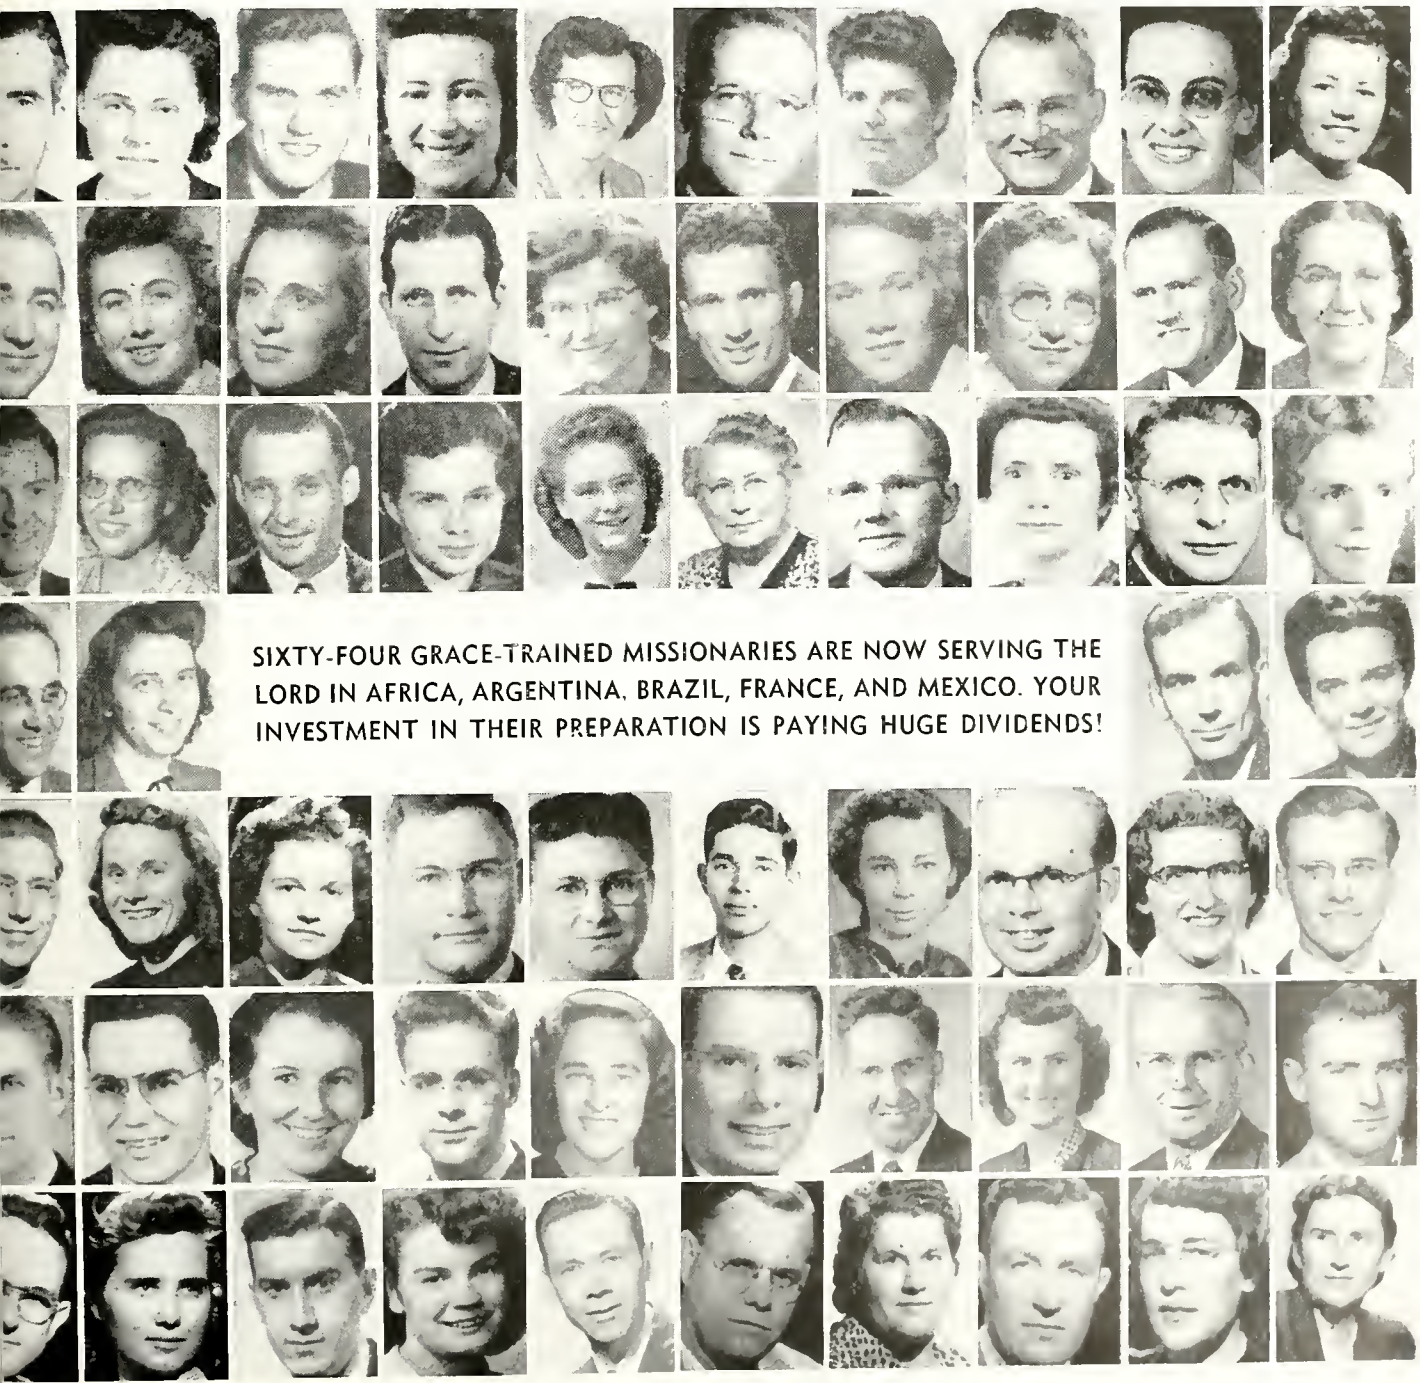
"Do you like to move?" Sharon asked. "Are we gonna move?"

"Who said anything about moving, Nosey?" an exasperated older brother remonstrated.

"Now, let's not get excited. Sharon has a right to ask questions. No; I can't say that moving is the most soothing experience in the world, Honey. Especially with the trappings of nine youngsters. But it can be done without turning the world upside down. If I never had anything harder to do than moving in my lifetime, I'd have no complaints. As for moving, we go where and when the Lord says. The pastor's life, and that of his family's, is one that recognizes in a special way that on this earth we have 'no certain abiding place.' We cannot let down our roots too deeply in any one spot because the uprooting would be very painful and upsetting. I'm sure pastors' families will really enjoy the sinless glory and permanency of heaven. Ardyth, stop pouring that salt into your milk! Come, children. Let's get to our work. It is 6 o'clock already and prayer meeting starts at 7:15."

As Mother worked at top speed to bed down the babies and prepare for the hour of prayer and Bible study, she chuckled again at the "ah's" of her children. How their speech tells where they've been living for better than five years. Northern friends have commented more than once, because to them it is especially noticeable. To Daddy and Mother it is not so pronounced because it has come gradually and they have been with it all the while.

How truly the maiden spoke to Peter the night his Lord was betrayed: "Surely thou also art one of them; for thy speech bewrayeth [betrayeth] thee" (Matt. 26:73). What of your speech and mine, oh Christian? What does it tell of us?



"Thy speech betrayeth thee." Does your speech honor the Lord you profess to love, or does it bring dishonor upon His holy name? If the speech is bitter, unkind, dishonest, sweet to one's face but like barbed wire in the back, it is evident that the heart out of which such things proceed needs cleansing, for "out of the heart are the issues of life." Nor is speech, however soft-spoken or gently handled, honoring to the Lord if it is not backed up by the life. The old proverb, "What you do speaks so loudly I cannot hear what you say," packs a mighty truth. "Thy speech betrayeth thee." The language of heaven will not deceive God or save the soul.

"Thy speech betrayeth thee." Oh, Father God, give us cleansed hearts and pure speech, coupled with a burning desire to win the lost all around us to Jesus Christ, who is the world's Way, Truth, and Life (John 14:6).

SIXTY-FOUR GRACE-TRAINED MISSIONARIES ARE NOW SERVING THE LORD IN AFRICA, ARGENTINA, BRAZIL, FRANCE, AND MEXICO. YOUR INVESTMENT IN THEIR PREPARATION IS PAYING HUGE DIVIDENDS!

A Grace---Not a Burden

By Dr. Homer A. Kent, Chairman of the Administrative Committee

Sometimes the matter of giving for the support of the work of the Lord is looked upon as a burden to be borne. Some preachers hesitate to present financial appeals to their congregations lest their people become irritated thereby.

The Apostle Paul had an entirely different conception of Christian giving than this. He looked upon it as a grace, not as a burden to be shunned. When writing to the Corinthian church on the matter of receiving an offering for the poor saints at Jerusalem, he cited them to the manner in which the churches of Macedonia had given, and said that their liberality was due to "the grace of God bestowed" on them (II Cor. 8:1). This grace was so active in their lives that even in the midst of deep poverty they could not be restrained from manifesting it. Prior to this manifestation, the grace of God had impelled them to first give "their own selves to the Lord" (ibid., vs. 5). The result of this operation of the grace of giving and living in the experience of the Macedonians provided Paul with just the sort of illustration he needed to impress the Corinthians with their privilege and responsibility.

Then after citing this example he proceeded to make use of the most perfect example of the grace of giving in all the corridors of time. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich" (ibid., vs. 9). The conclusion to be reached from Paul's two examples is this: the sort of giving that God wants and that God can bless is prompted by the grace of God in the heart of the believer.

Grace is the undeserved favor of God in the lives of those who deserve the very opposite. It is a gift from heaven. It is an attitude of mind and heart that takes possession of a person when he yields himself to the Lord Jesus Christ. The grace of God in the heart is a sure evidence of the new birth. That aspect of this divine grace known as the grace of giving is also a gift of God, and it is an evidence that a person is truly a child of God and loves God's work. Why are some professed Christians so niggardly in their giving? One of two things must be true. Either such as these do not really have the grace of God in their hearts at all and so are Christians in name only, or they, though being true children of God, have not fully yielded themselves to the Lord, and so refuse to let the grace of giving operate in their lives.

The grace of giving is a beautiful thing to behold in God's people. It is so Christlike. It may operate in different ways, but it always brings blessing to God's cause. It is heavenly in its origin. If all of God's people would manifest it as they should, God's work would always be cared for. When Israel in the wilderness possessed willing hearts, they brought more than enough in materials to complete the tabernacle (Exod. 30:5-6). If all the members of the Brethren Church would allow the grace of giving to be displayed, as these Israelites displayed it, and as the Macedonians did, there would be no lack in the support of any phase of the work of the church.

We who are connected with Grace Seminary and College are persuaded that this part of the Lord's work, having to do with establishing young people in the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ and with preparing them for His service in this and other lands, is of vast importance. For its continuance it is dependent upon a multitude of friends who experience the grace of giving. They who experience this grace and who see the necessity of an adequate preparation for those who desire to serve the Lord find real joy in having a part in this ministry. What ministry in our church offers more far-reaching results than that of Christian education as is offered in Grace Seminary and College? Year after year from its halls goes forth a steady stream of young men and women to assume leadership in pastorates, the mission fields, the classrooms, and other phases of the Lord's work.

We are sure that if Brethren people as a whole will let the grace of giving operate in their lives, all the material needs of the school will be met and an expanded program will be made possible. God has sent us 251 of the finest young people in the land. We dare not let them down!

NOT GUESSING

Sebastien Chamfort was one of the most talented of French writers. In college he advanced so rapidly in his studies that he astonished his instructors. In two years he captured nine of the ten prizes for which he competed. Yet he became so disgusted with some of the material he had to master that he paid his respects in the following epigram of rare irony: "What I have learned I know no longer; the little that I do know, I have guessed." Sad indeed is the fact that when a young man or woman finishes his education in one of the godless schools of the present day, if he is to retain his faith, he must spend a lot of time "unlearning" much of what he was taught. Having nothing left, he is compelled to say with Chamfort: "The little that I do know I have guessed." We should be thankful that the Lord has given to the Brethren Church a school which sends young people out into the world knowing and believing something. Are you a part of the Grace family through prayers and gifts?—P. R. B.

A REAL NEED FOR TRAINED WORKERS

By Dr. Russell D. Barnard

General Secretary of the Foreign Missionary Society

Since the beginning of our present mechanical age, we have been in an era of specialization. Specialization has increased as the years have passed. I seem to see a different trend in recent years toward specialization for the many while in years past this was reserved for the few.

Dr. Barnard

For all believers. Applied to spiritual matters, specialization has always been for the many—in fact, for all believers. On the subject the Bible teaches: "Train up a child in the way he should go" (Prov. 22:6). Specialization is to begin early in life. "Study to shew thyself approved unto God" (II Tim. 2:15). Specialization always requires faithful application; it is a lifetime job. "Search the scriptures" (John 5:39). Specialization results only from diligent research. It's not easy to be a Biblical specialist. "And go quickly, and tell" (Matt. 28:7). The purpose of all this specialization is that we may give the Gospel to others. "The same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also" (II Tim. 2:2). Trained specialists are to teach others also to be specialists in the winning of souls.

We need leadership! Training is necessary for our missionary pastors, teachers, doctors, and nurses. We need more trained people right now. As I am writing I have before me very urgent appeals from at least four of our fields asking for immediate reinforcements. What we need in foreign missions only reechoes the need in home missions and in the local church.

We need "followship"! Pastors at home or in the foreign field will be greatly assisted if the membership of the church can be a trained membership. The usefulness of the pastor will be greatly multiplied if those in the pew are so trained that they may serve well. I am sure the Scriptures quoted above apply to those in the pew—yes; possibly even more than to those in the pulpit. Training—effective training—is therefore needed both in the pulpit and the pew.

Sources. We look to Grace College and Grace Theological Seminary more than to any other institution of higher learning for our supply of trained workers. I believe we would all have it thus, that our Brethren schools should train our Brethren young people for the work in our Brethren mission fields. Not only are our young people well trained here in leadership, but they are prepared to train others in "followship" through leadership training classes, local Bible institutes, and various Bible classes. Believe me, please, as I again say there is a real need for trained workers!

Sixty-Six Grace-Trained Foreign-Mission Workers

No; the figures on the front cover of the magazine are not incorrect, nor is the number given above. No list of workers in Brethren foreign missions would be complete without the addition of two more who, along with the 64 men and women pictured this week, have received training at Grace Theological Seminary. So, although they are not serving on foreign soil, it is altogether fitting that we should add here the pictures of Miss Ruth Reddick and Miss Marcia Lowe, whom the Lord is using in a gracious way as assistants to Dr. Barnard in the offices of the Foreign Missionary Society at Winona Lake.

Miss Ruth Reddick

The faculty of Grace Theological Seminary is deeply grateful for the trust committed to them in the task of training men and women such as these. Eternity alone will reveal the tremendous value of the investments you are making in the lives of young men and women who will touch thousands for Christ because you first equipped them with the tools, and then sent them forth to do the work.

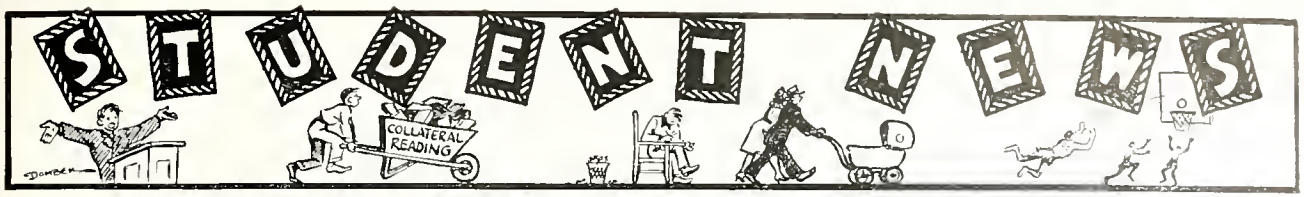
Grace Theological Seminary's president, Dr. Alva J. McClain, has had the honor of being selected as a member of a committee of eminent Bible scholars who are now at work on a revised edition of the world-famous Scofield Reference Bible. Mr. Henry Z. Walck, president of the New York office of Oxford University Press, publishers of this special edition of the King James Version, has pointed out that the "revision of the Scofield Reference Bible is a long-range proposition, for there is a vast amount of editorial work before the committee," and he adds: "I should say that it will certainly be five or six years before the new edition will be available to the public."

The chairman of the committee on revision is Dr. E. Schuyler English. Dr. English edited the "Pilgrim Edition" of the Holy Bible which Oxford published in 1948, and is also editor of the magazine Our Hope. Dr. Frank E. Gaebelein, headmaster of the Stony Brook School, Long Island, and author of "The Pattern of God's Truth," will serve as vice chairman. He is the son of the Rev. Arno C. Gaebelein, one of the consulting editors of the original Scofield Bible.

Other members of the editorial committee are: President William Culbertson, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Ill.; Prof. Charles Feinberg, Talbot Theological Seminary; Los Angeles, Calif.; President Allan A. MacRae, Faith Theological Seminary, Elkins Park, Pa.; Dean Clarence E. Mason, Jr., Philadelphia, Pa.; Prof. Wilbur M. Smith, Fuller Theological Seminary, Pasadena, Calif.; President John F. Walvoord, Dallas Theological Seminary, Dallas Tex ; and President Alva J. McClain, Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind.

The first meeting of the committee was held in Chicago, Ill., on October 25, with all members present, together with Mr. Walck and Wilbur D. Ruggles, manager of the Bible Department of Oxford University Press.

After the meeting Dr. English said: "We shall retain the King James Version, of course, with its familiar phraseology, beauty, and cadence. There are in it, however, words that are archaic and expressions that are not wholly transparent in modern speech. These need clarification. Furthermore, certain notes in the present edition of the Scofield Bible are capable of simplification, and there are some statements that require revision. New helps for the reader will be added also. However, the basic theological position which has made the Scofield Bible loved by millions of readers will be retained."



The committee will hold meetings periodically during the course of its work in the next few years.

The Scofield Reference Bible was first published by Oxford University Press in January 1909. Its editor was the Rev. C. I. Scofield, who had conceived the idea some years before and who began to devote the greater part of his time to it in 1902. He was assisted by a group of consulting editors.

Dr. Scofield worked on his project for several years before a publisher was selected. After consulting various authorities, he was told that the only publishing house which could handle such a project was the Oxford University Press, and arrangements were then made with the American office of Oxford. The Scofield Reference Bible was an immediate success, and a new edition, completely reset and improved, was issued in 1917. Dr. Scofield died in 1921, but his edition of the King James Version has continued to be a best seller year in and year out for nearly half a century.

On Friday evening, one week before Christmas vacation, Earl Witmer, collegiate junior, taught his child evangelism teacher training class in the "Little Church" at Winona Lake; then pondered a project en route home.

"How," he asked himself, "can we get into local schools with the Christmas story where simple flannelgraph lessons have lost their appeal?" Drama seemed like a good answer. Why not dramatize the event, say for instance, from the viewpoint of the shepherds?

Two days later actors were selected (Ron Meznar, Earl himself, and the writer); "angels" (Ruth Bennett, Anne Kliever, and Mary Bauman) tape-recorded trios; the Grace Trumpeters opened the transcribed production; and LeRoy Hawkins sang his inimitable solos. John Gallagher sandwiched his narration at appropriate spots, and the tape offstage from the three shepherds was ready to go! First assignment: Pierceton High.

AN APPLE FOR THE TEACHERS

Appreciative pupils seized an opportunity at the all-school Christmas party to outfit the faculty with proper equipment for manifold duties.

With gifts presented by Activities Director Don Hocking, Archaeologist John Rea went home with a thumb-sized rake and garden sprinkler. Astronomer Whitcomb was elated at the gift of a wallet-size pair of binoculars, and predicted many more important finds in the universe because of them. Dr. Boyer received a fishing game to help catch swimmers with coins-in-mouth so that the school would never suffer debt, and Professor Kent, Jr., expressed appreciation for a doll nursing outfit with the attached note, "No explanation needed."

EXERCISE PROFITETH FOR A SIX TO SIX

Twelve of the season's 24 basketball games are history, with a six-win-six-loss record at vacation time. The ping-pong tournament moves into its quarter-finals. Winona Lake is freezing over for the skating, and broad-shouldered grapplers Doug Cassel, Russ Schelling, Ron Eckstein, and Roy Dice are building hard muscles on a soft $180 wrestling mat donated by Doug Cassel's parents and grandparents, Hershey, Pa. The cost was shared equally by Mr. and Mrs. R. Earl Cassel, C. E. Cassel, and G. C. Saufley. We are grateful.

INFORMATION, PLEASE

Nobody would argue that Miss Dorothy Magnuson in the main office may not be the most efficient secretary in the world, but few have ever recognized her powers of extrasensory perception.

One day in early December she lifted her jangling phone and heard: "Will you please tell those two girls I need them for work this afternoon?"

"I'll tell them," said the secretary. And as the phoner "hung up," Miss Magnuson went out to find Velma Blackwell and Dorothy Haight. How did she know? You'd know if you knew Miss Magnuson!

IT'S MALE FOR MATH

Thousands in Winona Lake, Warsaw, and surrounding Indiana towns heard Bill Mollenhour's WRSW contest question, "What is twice as cold as zero?" but only Seminary Senior Bill Male came up with the right answer.

Bill's elaborate calculation produced the answer of 229.9 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, judged closest by engineers of the Cecil W. Armstrong Company.

Wrote Bill in parentheses ("It's cold down here!"). Then, after taking his picture, Announcer Mollenhour awarded him the Gast Fuel and Service Company's grand prize of 100 gallons of fuel oil, worth about $17.

SCIENCE CLUB VISITS GRACE COLLEGE

Almost every year at least one member of the student body in Grace's graduate division is engaged in teaching part time at the Warsaw High School. This year Archie Keffer, of Uniontown, Pa., a senior in the seminary, is teaching science at the local school. On December 21, Mr. Keffer and Mr. Lowell Knoop, teacher of chemistry and mechanical arts, brought the high school science club to the Grace Seminary campus. The group met in the social lounge, and Dr. Paul Bauman presented an illustrated lecture on "Egypt: Its Glories, Humiliation, and Restoration in the Light of Prophecy." After the lecture, members of the club were given an opportunity to ask questions, and refreshments were served.

This is the first of such groups to visit the campus of Grace College. The young people attending expressed some surprise and considerable interest in learning of a liberal arts college right in their own community.

Greetings From Macapa

By Edward D. Miller ('49)

It is a real joy to be able to tell those in the homeland a little about our work here in Macapa. Our main purpose and aim is to get the Gospel out to those who have never heard or, having heard, know little about the way of salvation. However, there are various ways and means of getting this message of salvation to those who have never heard.

Here in Macapa we have the regular services on Sunday morning and evening. We use the public-address system to play gospel records before the services and invite the people to come in and hear the message. Then too we use our Dodge truck to bring in those from the outlying districts who might not otherwise come. On Wednesday nights we have Bible study and prayer meeting. On Thursday nights we load up the truck with our public-address outfit and some of the believers and go to the "Fazendinha," a small village about seven miles from town. Here we have our own "prayer house" that was built just nine months ago. We have about 20 believers here, and we usually have a full house on Thursday night. Some of the believers come in their little sailboats from the surrounding islands to attend these services. On Sunday afternoons we have a Sunday school for these people in the Fazendinha.

However, we not only use the truck and public address, but when we go to Mazagao we have to use the motorboat. Mazagao is a little town in the interior with no roads; so the only way to get there is by boat. We make this trip at least twice a month, and the believers themselves carry on the work the rest of the time. Needless to say, the work of caring for these three different stations is a full-time job, but it is one that is worthwhile when we see men and women come to know the Saviour as their own Lord, and then see them grow in grace and a knowledge of the Word. Certainly all the sweat and tears and money that is spent in getting the Gospel out and evangelizing this area is worthwhile.

In February of this year we hope to start a Christian

Grace and Mexico

By Sibley Edmiston ('53)

Since laboring among the Mexican people for the past year and a half, I have learned something more about the great value of training before entering a mission field There are many times that I have had occasion to pause and be thankful to God for the wonderful training that Grace Seminary gave to me.

No matter where one labors, whether at home or abroad, men are basically the same. That is, they are a personality, and no personality is fully developed until it is regenerated and trained spiritually, mentally, socially, and practically. Even our blessed Lord grew as a man in these four graces (Luke 2:52). If we lack in any of these, we lack in that measure of being conformed to the life of our Lord Jesus Christ, and we are hindered from conveying that life to others. I am glad that Grace Seminary is putting a strong emphasis on all four of these necessary elements.

There is a great need for this type of training today. On every hand the enemy of men's souls is surrounding them through others who are trying to destroy or impair the life that Christ offers them. In Mexico this is as true as anywhere else. In this town alone I have encountered groups and individuals who fail at one or more of these points. They range all the way from gluttons to hyperspiritualists. For example, there are many who are being inclined toward the so-called "Jehovah's Witnesses." These are antigovernment and, in fact, anti-everything. It seems such a spirit has a strong appeal to many here. Then there are the Sabbatists who have failed of the grace of God. Some of them were even so bold as to enter one humble service and demand that they be heard! There are also the Mormons, who contend that they are the only true way. All three of these groups have been to our doors. It has not been necessary to go out looking for them.

Because of lack of space I will only mention other systems of error and evil such as Roman Catholicism, communism, socialism, modernism, atheism, and spiritism. Modernism is already making its subtle inroads into Mexico, even though the Gospel has been preached but a few short years. The past few years the door of Mexico has been opened much wider to the Gospel of grace. But it has also let in an abundance of false cults and ideologies. Every inch of ground that is being claimed for Christ seems to be challenged from all sides by the false.

Even among those who by God's grace are of Christ's own true body in Mexico there is often confusion and division both in doctrine and practice. This is largely due to insufficient and inadequate teaching. Yet it has been my joy to see weaker brethren strengthened in their faith when they have been taught properly and clearly. The training that I have received at Grace Seminary has had a large part in making this possible. And personally it has helped greatly to keep my own head from being overwhelmed by the winds of doctrine that sometimes blow in great fury about us. We seem to be at the point of being swallowed up in this generation by every device that Satan can muster against us. Thanks be to God for His superabounding grace, and for Grace Seminary which magnifies that grace as it touches every part of our personality, and puts it before us on a sound and solid basis.

Missionaries to Argentina Must Be Trained

By Jack Churchill ('49)

Concerning service for Christ in a foreign land someone has said: "It isn't so much a question of how soon we get there as it is what we can do when we get there." Not discounting that which the Lord himself does for those who serve Him, we must face the fact that there are some things that He expects us to do to make our service for Him more effective.

I am thankful that the Brethren Church takes seriously the urgency of Christ's command to evangelize the nations. I am just as thankful that it believes in sending out missionaries who are prepared in the best way possible for that task. Out of my brief experience as one whom the Brethren Church has sent to Argentina, and as a graduate of Grace Seminary, let me say something that I trust will be helpful to those who support this school and to those whom the Lord may send to Argentina.

A missionary to Argentina must know God's Word. I am not referring to a "blanket belief" in it "from cover to cover." In addition to accepting it as God's complete written revelation, he must "be able to move freely in thought among the grand doctrines of the Bible and present them in an impelling and convincing way to his hearers." For the great majority in Argentina the Bible has no relation to their daily lives even though the Catholic Church claims to be its sole custodian. A young priest who was my traveling companion for over an hour on an Argentine train one day "confessed" to me: "One thing you evangelicos have to your advantage is your knowledge of the Scriptures"!

Thank God for a school like Grace where men and women are given a training in God's Word that allows them to hold forth the Word with a thus-saith-the-Lord certainty.

A missionary in Argentina likewise needs to be prepared to face the followers of Mormonism, Russellism, Spiritism, Theosophy, Christian Science, etc. They are all there, and, unfortunately, they are looked upon by the average person as a part of the evangelical circle because they are not Roman Catholic. To show that their message is a perversion of the Gospel of Jesus Christ and therefore not the Gospel at all, and at the same time not have men whom you want to see accept Christ throw up their hands in dismay or disgust at the seeming confusion is not easy. The missionary who has a knowledge of what these groups teach, a knowledge of how to rightly divide the Word, and a graciousness and tact in doing it will be a more effective instrument for the Spirit to use than one who has not taken the trouble to prepare himself.

Again we can be thankful for a school like Grace Seminary which helps prepare us for this particular aspect of our service which is not pleasant but often unavoidable.

A missionary in Argentina also needs to be prepared to make himself "servant unto all . . . that by all means he might save some" (I Cor. 9:19, 22). We North Americans are often unconsciously guilty of a super-race complex. It comes naturally from the position that our nation holds in the world. But, as Dr. Barnhouse has said, Americans are too much hated throughout the world to allow the offense of being an American to be added to the offense of the cross. The flesh rebels against this, but we go to Argentina to talk of Him who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life and not of the American way of life, thankful though we should be for the latter. The Argentine is proud of his language, his history, his literature, his country. We can make our knowledge of these things serve to bring us closer to those whom we want to bring to the Saviour. It may be a chore to acquire some of this knowledge, but if we really want to win Argentines for Christ, we will not want to pass up any proper means of improving our effectiveness as a servant of Christ among them.

It may not be any intentional plan of the faculty, but as I look back to my three years at Grace I recall one passage that was continually brought into the lectures. It was Philippians 2:5-16. I am certain that it is the purpose of the Holy Spirit that this glorious example of our Lord's servanthood among us be used to challenge those who attend Grace Seminary. How much more effective my service in Argentina would be if I would only "let this mind be in me" to a greater extent.

If the Lord should lead you to serve Him in Argentina, it is quite likely that your path will lead through Grace. Be thankful for it and make your days there count for the time ahead when you will set foot under the blue-and-white flag of Argentina to win men for Christ. Remember that you want to serve Him in the most effective way possible once you are there.

CLASSROOM ECHOES ON THE MISSION FIELD

By A. L. Howard ('51)

In the work of the foreign field one learns to appreciate the real value of a thorough preparation for the service of Christ. The problems faced are basically the same everywhere; yet the methods and approaches may differ greatly due to cultural or economic backgrounds.

The Mexican, in general, is a deeply religious and emotional person. Traces of his early pagan practices are often found mixed with the form of Christianity forced upon him by his Spanish conquerors. For centuries he has followed the teaching and practices of the Roman Church with limited opportunities to hear of salvation by grace through personal faith in Christ. His devotion to saints and images is a marked characteristic. Thus his religion becomes one of the chief barriers to a true Christian experience.

In meeting such problems we are grateful that God's plan for us included the training offered at Grace Theological Seminary. An understanding of the Word and its teaching on sin and salvation is a basic requirement. A knowledge of the early church, its practices, and subsequent history is of utmost value in the challenge of Mexico. To know the background of the Bible is often important in effective witnessing when the validity of the so-called "Protestant Bible" is challenged. Above all else, the most gratifying experiences have been ours in witnessing the power of God in the lives of people who have found hope and peace in Christ. In this, truths spoken even softly in the seminary classroom still echo in Mexico.

"Set For" and "Holding Forth"

Rev. and Mrs. John Zeilasko with Ann and John.

By John W. Zielasko

"I am set for the defence of the gospel" (Phil. 1:17). "Holding forth the word of life" (Phil. 2:16).

In days such as these when communism, Romanism, liberalism, and neo-orthodoxy are advancing to capture the souls of men, it is imperative that the thoughts suggested by these two portions of Scripture should be an intrinsic part of the evangelical missionary program.

The Apostle Paul was set for the defense of the Gospel. He was not willing to yield an inch if it would mean the sacrifice of any part of the Gospel (Gal. 2:5). Peter (unwittingly, no doubt) was ready to compromise, but Paul was set. Peter had associated himself for a time with the Judaizers, and this association had colored his thinking. This should teach us that it is not possible to sit at the feet of those who add to or subtract from the Word of God and not be influenced to some degree by their subtle teachings. I praise the Lord for the privilege that was mine of attending a seminary whose professors are set for the defense of the Gospel and who instill within their students the desire to "go thou and do likewise."

However, it is not enough to defend the Gospel. The Christian is not merely to "hold the line" against error, but he is to advance with the Good News, calling others to follow our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Paul tells us we are to hold forth the Word of Life. No one can hold forth the Word who does not know the Word. Grace Seminary makes certain that her students know the Word of God. I praise God for the unequaled excellency of the Bible courses taught at Grace.

I feel confident that it can be said of Grace Seminary graduates that they are set for the defense of the Gospel and that they are holding forth the Word of Life. Such a seminary deserves your wholehearted support.

Reports We Like to Print

By Dr. Paul R. Bauman

It has been six months since our financial secretary, Dr. James L. Boyer, has smiled radiantly as he handed a copy of the monthly financial report to the editor of the Educational Number of the Herald. Earlier in the month it appeared that it would be necessary for the school to borrow if the salaries for December were to be paid (checks are ordinarily dated on the 25th). Thus, the prospect at Christmastime was a dim one, so far as the Christmas salaries were concerned. But, as the books for the month of December weer closed, there was real cause for rejoicing because the offerings given to the school's general fund reached a total of $6,027.97. In addition to this there were $274 in designated gifts.

Now, it is necessary for the school to receive a minimum monthly income of $6,000 along with funds coming in from other sources if the bare expenses of the budget are met. You will therefore understand the reason for the financial secretary's smile if you will check the records carefully enough to see that, until last month, only on three occasions since April 1953 has the offering income exceeded the $6,000 mark. These three months were February, March, and June of 1954.

The December offering does not put the school "out of the red," but it does keep us from going in deeper. The main purpose of the annual offering is to put us back "in the black" once more as we begin the new year. Let us make it the greatest offering ever given. Such an offering should be given, first of all, because it is pleasing to the Lord. Then, also, take a look at the face of our financial secretary!

REMEMBER THE GRACE SEMINARY AND COLLEGE ANNUAL OFFERING—JANUARY 30

ZEAL THAT AROUSES

The Apostle Paul once wrote to the Christians at Corinth commending them for their liberality. As nearly as his words can be translated from the Greek, he said to them: "Through your zeal many were aroused" (II Cor. 9:2). Through the years we have seen many examples of sacrificial giving at Grace Seminary and College, but nothing, in the estimation of the faculty, has surpassed the zeal recently displayed by the students, just as the first semester was drawing to a close, and they were soon to enjoy vacation and Christmas.

Let the story now continue as it was told to us by Student Reporter Norman Rohrer, whose page of student news is now being read with interest by so many.

When the school coffers were low last month, students' spirits were high, and they determined to reach into their pockets and pull the bursar's office out of the red.

Organized by Student Body President Nathan Meyer, and his eight-usher team, regular offerings began piling up cash. The scheme was for each student to give a dollar a week for a month, resulting in one thousand dollars.

As 251 budgets were juggled, the first offering (taken on payday Friday) totaled $253, followed by a "gleaners" offering on Monday. In the end of the fourth week, offerings nudged the goal with $16 short, which embarrassment was dissolved with a final pushover the day vacation began. Total: $1,066.50.

The faculty was pleased.

Nathan Meyer presents offering to Dr. Kent.

A Brazilian of Three Months

Mrs. Burk holds Arthur and Brother Burk holds Linda.

By Bill Burk ('54)

After planning for more than seven years, arrival on the field came quite on schedule, or more specifically, on August 17. We've been very happy to observe these past three months that our "schooldays" have prepared us in many varied ways for that most enjoyable occupation to which our Lord has called us. (Since Imogene also has studied at Grace, the use of the plural pronouns here is quite literal!)

One of the many things to which I refer is the way we've been prepared to meet the Amazon Valley from a purely physical standpoint. I refer, of course, to the section on Missions in the library at Grace, a rich source not only of descriptive facts, but of most pleasant and inspirational reading.

Quite naturally for new missionaries, our occupation is still language study, which language in our case is Portuguese. Both of us are convinced that our past study in school of other languages has made this present language study both enjoyable and of steady progress. Stated in other words, we're now observing a very valuable "byproduct" of our many hours of hard work with the far more difficult languages of the Bible. I'm satisfied that Hebrew and Greek are wisely required at Grace!

day school here in Macapa for the children of our own believers and others who have an interest in such a school. This is just one more step forward that the Brethren Church is taking in evangelizing this needy part of the Amazon Valley.

Before closing this article about our new work here in Macapa I would like to give just a brief testimony about the training that I received at Grace. Certainly those three years spent in training and studying the Word of God are years that have meant much already, and they will mean much more in the years that lie ahead. A basic knowledge of the Word of God is an essential for anyone who is going to the mission field. Such a school as Grace is the place to get a thorough education.

In Memoriam

Charles Edward Beard, 85, went to be with the Lord on Dec. 4. He was brought to a saving knowledge of Christ under the ministry of Dr. Paul Bauman, when he was pastor of the Second Brethren Church of Los Angeles. Brother Beard was faithful to the Lord until the very day that he was ushered into the presence of His Lord.—Rev. Henry Rempel, Norwalk (Calif.) Brethren Church.

LeRoy H. Bates, father of Rev. Robert Bates, was suddenly taken to be with his Lord, the result of a heart attack.—Rev. Henry Rempel, Norwalk (Calif.) Brethren Church.

Mrs. Mary Quinn was called from her earthly sojourn on Dec. 1. She had been a member of the First Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa., for many years. Dr. W. A. Ogden, pastor.

Mrs. Audrey Troutner departed from this life to be with Christ on Dec. 14. She had been a member of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., since Mar. 18, 1934.—Dr. C. W. Mayes, pastor.

Linda Kay Mason, 13, answered the call to "come up hither" and leave her frail body for a new and glorious one which the Lord will give her in that day when all suffering and pain shall be no more. Linda attended faithfully the services of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach in a wheelchair where her parents had just united with the church on Nov. 14. Linda was called into the presence of her Lord on Dec. 23.—Dr. C. W. Mayes, pastor.

CHICAGO (EP). The 49th annual Founder's Week Conference of Moody Bible Institute will be held in the brandnew Torrey-Gray auditorium building. The new auditorium, now under construction, will be dedicated during the week-long conference, Jan. 31-Feb. 6, marking the 118th anniversary of the birth of the institute's founder, Dwight L. Moody. It also will honor the 100th anniversary of his conversion.

MUZZLE NOT THE OX

By C. S. ZIMMERMAN
National Statistician

The above words were applied by the Apostle Paul to the faithful ministers of the Word in I Corinthians 9:9 and I Timothy 5:18, but lest some take offense, we will use the other words of the apostle, "The labourer is worthy of his reward."

In looking at the national statistical report for the year 1953, we discover the per-capita giving to be $100.92. This is the largest in our history, but this does not tell the complete story. It raises several questions of vital interest, one of which is: Who are the largest contributors to the Brethren Church? The following figures will help us to answer this question.

To the knowledge of the national statistician, which may be faulty because of lack of information, but accurate in accordance with known information, there are 116 preachers in Brethren churches who are employed full time in their pastorates. These 116 laborers received as salary and other allowances a total of $414,981.37 for the year 1953. This includes house and car allowances reported. By dividing this figure by 116, the average salary for Brethren preachers is $3,577.42.

But this is not the whole story. Salaries for the 116 preachers range from $1,300, in the lowest case, to $5,790 for the highest paid. But let us look further:

1 preacher received $1,300 per year.
5 preachers received from $1,500 to $1,900.
12 preachers received from $2,000 to $2,500.
7 preachers received from $2,500 to $2,900.
27 preachers received from $3,000 to $3,500.
30 preachers received from $3,600 to $4,000.
17 preachers received from $4,100 to $4,500.
11 preachers received from $4,600 to $5,000.
4 preachers received from $5,100 to $5,500.
2 preachers received from $5,600 to $5,800.

This summarized would be like this:

27 preachers received the average salary for Brethren preachers.
30 preachers received just a trifle above the average.
34 preachers received better than the average.
25 preachers received far below the average.

From a previous report it will be noted that the average income for the gainfully employed in the U. S. is $4,589 and the average income for the family is $5,970.

Now if we applied the average salary for those gainfully employed, which is $4,589, against the average salary for the Brethren preachers, which is $3,577.42, the per-capita contribution of each of these men is $1,012 plus $100.92 of which he had an additional share in giving along with the rest of his brethren. If you take it on the basis of the average income for the family, which is $5,970, then his per-capita giving is $2,393 plus $100.92. Now this is just for the year 1953, and his giving goes on like this year after year. Who gives the most to the work of Brethren churches?

But this is not all the contribution he makes. Most Brethren preachers do not get an allowance for the operation of their car. This item alone will run from $400 to $900 per year. There are other contributions made of a smaller nature which he makes cheerfully for his Lord. Remember, he pays income tax just as anyone else does.

The answer to this problem of pastoral remuneration lies in just one word; namely, tithing. In a previous article we referred to the staggering amount withheld from the churches in the tithe, and pointed out how much more there could have been for local use if all of the tithes were brought to the church treasury. This would enable all churches of the brotherhood to increase the salary of every pastor to one that would compare to the average income of the families of the churches.

ARE ALL CHRISTIANS
INDWELT BY THE HOLY SPIRIT?

By LOWELL HOYT
Pastor, Grace Brethren Church, Elkhart, Ind.

It Was Promised

That every Christian was to receive the Spirit there can be no question. The promise of the indwelling of the Spirit was stated clearly by Christ to His apostles: "I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; even the Spirit of truth . . . he dwelleth in you, and shall be in you" (John 14:16-17). He referred to it again in Acts 1:4-5, saying that it was "the promise of the Father, which . . . ye have heard of me," and that it was to come "not many days hence."

After the great outpouring of the Spirit at Pentecost, Peter explained some things in his sermon. He said what they had seen that day was the fulfillment (at least partial) of a promise given through Joel that God would pour out His Spirit upon men (Acts 2:17). He concluded his message by saying that upon the condition of repentance and confession of Christ the gift of the Spirit was available to his hearers. Then he extended that circle to include all believers: "For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call" (Acts 2:39). Every believer, then, was to receive the Spirit.

It Is a Necessity

Furthermore, it is clear from several passages that every believer must and does receive the Spirit. No person can be saved and not have the Spirit. "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:9). (Sometimes the Holy Spirit is called "Spirit of Christ," as also in Acts 16:6-7, ASV). Jude's description of unbelievers of the last days includes as a distinguishing mark, "having not the Spirit" (Jude 19). "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father" (Gal. 4:6). "Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts" (II Cor. 1:22). (See also II Cor. 5:5; Eph. 1:13-14).

The answer to the question, Are all Christians indwelt by the Holy Spirit? hinges on the time element. When does a Christian receive the Spirit? If there is a lapse of time between conversion and the reception of the Spirit, then not all Christians are indwelt by the Spirit. If there is no lapse of time, then of necessity, all Christians are indwelt by the Spirit.

The Problem

—concerning the time when a Christian receives the Spirit seems to arise from the Acts record. In the Acts period there were cases where there was a lapse of time between conversion and the reception of the Spirit. This was true of the original disciples at Pentecost (Acts 2:1-4). It ws true in the case of the converts of Philip in Samaria (Acts 8:12-17). It may have been true of certain disciples at Ephesus (Acts 9:1-6). There were also cases where the reception of the Spirit was immediate upon belief in Christ. This was true with Cornelius and his household (Acts 10:43-44). It was probably the case with the believers at Antioch in Pisidia (Acts 13:48, 52). It may have been true also in the case of the 3,000 converts at Pentecost (Acts 2: 38, 41; cf. 4:31). Now the question arises, Were the later experiences of believers to follow one or both of these patterns?

No Support

Outside the Book of Acts there is no Scripture that supports the idea of a reception of the Spirit subsequent to salvation. The King James translation of Ephesians 1:13b: "in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise," is corrected in the ASV to read: "in whom, having also believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise." There is no time period indicated at all, but rather a condition for the reception of the Spirit; namely, belief. And even in the Acts there is no statement which can be construed to mean that reception of the Spirit after salvation was to be the normal or the predominating pattern. Paul's question to the disciples of John he found at Ephesus (Acts 19:2) does not indicate a time element. In the King James Version his question reads: "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" but, more correctly, in the ASV it reads: "Did ye receive the Holy Ghost when ye believed?"

The Deciding Passage

The conclusive passage appears in I Corinthians 6:19: "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?" Evidently, Paul's statement is true of every person to whom he is writing. In chapter 1, verse 2, he addresses his epistle to "the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord." This last clause must, of course, be taken in the Biblical sense. This sense is given in Romans 10:13: "For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved." No manner of dividing those addressed into different groups of varying Christian experience can evade the point at issue, for Paul says every one of them is indwelt by the Spirit. So then he is referring to all Christians without distinction. The newborn babe in Christ and the mature Christian are included. Therefore, since the day Paul wrote the first epistle to the Corinthians, every Christian may be assured of the blessed truth that the Holy Spirit is dwelling within him, to abide there forever.

THE BOOK OF HAGGAI

BY RALPH S. BURNS

PASTOR, FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH, CLAY CITY, IND.

THE importance of Haggai is out of all proportion to the length of his book. His two short chapters contain a summary of only four addresses and a few short verses of narrative matter (1:12-15), but the ideas he expressed and the impulses he stirred produced a situation which profoundly affected the whole subsequent history of Judaism. This book explains the interest of the Prophet Haggai in the rebuilding of the Temple, and while Haggai touches upon many topics, he has been rightly described as "a man of one idea"; namely, the speedy restoration of the Temple of Jehovah.

CHAPTER 1.

The Jews who were exiles returned to Jerusalem in 537 B. C. to a dilapidated city and a ruined Temple. Anxious to reestablish their worship, they erected an altar (Ezra 3:2) and possibly made a beginning with the building of the Temple, but under the stress of many discouragements, little or nothing had been done during the next 16 years.

Verses 1 to 11.

The people had been disheartened by bad harvests; they had sown much and brought in little (vs. 6)—a drought had been upon the land, withering everything (vs. 11)—and worse still, there had been a drought upon their hearts. The promises of Isaiah 40-55 had not been fulfilled, and they were disillusioned men. Prices were high and wages were low (vs. 6). Sincerely enough they may have argued that the time had not yet come to build the Temple (vs. 2).

Haggai meets this mood, as prophets always did, by putting a moral interpretation on the people's disasters. Jehovah invited them to consider their ways (vs. 5). He reminded them that though they had neglected His house, they did not neglect their own (vs. 4). The reason for their receiving little (vs. 9) was their own fault; it was because of their apathy and negligence that the heavens had withheld their dew and the earth her fruit (vs. 10).

The message of Haggai was that they should change their policy and make a start on the building. Let them go up to the hill country and bring wood and build the house (vs. 8). If this interest was shown by the people, Haggai declared, Jehovah would take pleasure in it, and would be glorified (vs. 8).

The prophet's appeal was met with great earnestness by the people. In less than a month after it was delivered (vs. 15) a genuine response was made and the work was started (vs. 14). We find in verses 12 and 14 that everybody participated in the work, the civil and religious leaders and all the remnant of the people, i. e., all the people who returned from exile. These people recognized Haggai as divinely commissioned to declare this message (vs. 13), and their new enthusiasm was the work of God himself.

Verses 1-9.

After the people had been working on the Temple for about three and one-half weeks, Haggai found it necessary to address them again. They were discouraged by the clearing away of the rubbish and of the many difficulties. Soon they were to be found very downhearted. To meet this mood Haggai comes forward with a message of encouragement (vs. 1). In 536, when the people erected the altar, there would have been some who were present and had seen the glorious Temple which was destroyed 50 years before, but in 520 B. C. very few of them would still be alive. There was a great contrast between then and now. Its former glory had vanished (vs. 3). Quickly Haggai makes appeals for them to continue and keep up their courage and to go on with the work (vs. 4). In verses 6-9 this shaking of all nations would soon be the means of the glory that is coming in a little while. Into the Temple would soon be streaming the desirable things of all nations, silver and gold, which would go to beautify Jehovah's house, making its glory greater than the former Temple.

Verses 10-14.

Three months after the work had begun there was need for another appeal by the prophet. He must remind the people that now they were engaged in a very good work and to see that it was done in a right manner, for otherwise it would not be accepted of God. All are warned here to purify the hands they employ in this work, for to the pure only all things are pure, and from the pure only that comes which is pure. This matter is here illustrated by the established rules of the ceremonial law, in putting a difference between the clean and the unclean.

Verses 15-19.

If their hearts be right with God, and their eyes single in his service, they shall have the benefit of their devotion. God will take away the judgment of famine wherewith they have been corrected for their remissness, and will restore them great plenty. This they are called to consider.

Verses 20-23.

After Haggai's sermon to the people, he gives a sermon to the magistrates, a word directed particularly to Zerubbabel, the governor of Judah, who was a leading active man in this good work which the people now set about. Zerubbabel was grandson of Jeconiah and was to be the central figure and highest honors are showered upon him. He is compared to the signet ring upon Jehovah's finger (cf. Jer. 22:24), sealing as it were his purposes and clothed with his authority. He is invested with the exalted titles of Jehovah's servant and His chosen one (vs. 23). Haggai, like Zechariah (6:12), sees in this man the messianic King.

"WE LEAVE HEAVEN TO THE SPARROWS"

THE ERRORS OF UNITARIANISM

BY REV. BLAINE SNYDER
WINONA LAKE, IND.

Of all the "isms" cursing our country today this is perhaps the most difficult to catalog and say, "This is Unitarianism." The difficulty lies in making any line of demarcation between this and the entire modernistic movement. Unitarians as such have no authoritative or representative "statement of faith," which adds to the difficulty of defining their theological system. Their theology is primarily a reflection of their own religious experience, which fluctuates widely with time, personality, and circumstance.

Plan and Program for America

The history of this movement on our own continent makes sad reading. The plan has been to slowly get liberal leaders into positions and pulpits of importance and then to slowly permeate entire denominations with their teaching. How well they have succeeded is well set forth in the book, "The Leaven of the Sadducees," by Ernest Gordon, which we highly recommend. The philosophy can be summed up in the words of Rev. W. S. Morgan: "Don't label your heresy, was my advice. Do as I do. Give them heresy in such a fashion that the very saints will not suspect it. Bad ethics, you say! I say, very bad! But this is the only way in which hundreds of orthodox pulpits can be held."

Aversion to Creeds

One thing which you will discover about Unitarianism is that it is more of a negative religion than a positive one. Unitarians deny one doctrine after another without ever setting forth what they believe. From this it naturally follows that we can expect few creedal confessions from them. One of their leaders puts it this way: "We have no creed of any kind. Is it because we believe nothing or so little? No; it is because we believe so much we can find no formula to express our beliefs. To us Truth is infinite and cannot be enclosed in any statement of belief Each one of us should have his own creed, the result of his own best thinking, but he has no desire to fix that creed upon anyone else" (Dr. C. S. Wicks). Or again: "We stand for nothing but the liberty to stand for anything or nothing at all" (Dr. Dodson). We have found that men who refuse to state their beliefs usually have nothing to state! Let us now look more particularly at some of the theology of the Unitarian movement and see how far short it falls from being the revealed Word of God.

The Trinity

According to the Unitarians the Christian doctrine of the Trinity proclaims three Gods instead of one. There is only one uni-personal God and he is not Christ nor the Holy Spirit. Thus it would seem that the Unitarian still clings to the worship of one God—but is this one God the Jehovah of the Bible? Bruce Barton's declaration of God is this: "He must be at least as good as I am, for He created me, and my intelligence is a tiny fragment of His own." In light of its context this is a far cry from the exclamation of the psalmist: "Great is our Lord and of great power; his understanding is infinite" (Ps. 147:5). "Twentieth century people recognize God chiefly in the wonderful energies of sound, light, electricity, in the vital processes of plants and animals, in human loves and aspiration, and in the evolution of human society." This is the pantheistic God of President Eliot of Harvard.

Jesus Christ

In view of the foregoing paragraph one can well expect a most ruthless verbal barrage against this great Person. His virgin birth is "an insult to motherhood." Instead of the Alpha and Omega of the New Testament we read: "He was not the first; He will not be the last He was but one in a long line of revealers to men of the law by which they are called upon to live." Concerning His sinlessness, John W. Chadwick said: "That Jesus was a perfect man is an assertion as impossible to prove as that the inhabitants of Mars eat nothing but unleavened bread."

Substitutionary Atonement

What have the Unitarians to say of this great doctrine? In the first place, no salvation is necessary, for "What the human race needs is not redemption, but education." If mankind does need regeneration, most surely the Jesus of the Unitarian would be impotent to provide it. "It were a terrible mistake to think that any life, albeit that of Jesus . . . could fully answer to our utmost need. Mankind needs for its salvation all the best that science, art, philosophy, religion, literature, and life contain within their boundless scope" (Chadwick). Thus, the preaching of salvation through the shed blood of Christ is a great void in the Unitarian pulpit program. One of them confessed: "When it was whispered abroad that in my ministry of three years I had not preached a sermon on the blood of Jesus cleansing us from all sin, I saw clearly that I was discovered" (Rev. W. S. Morgan). "You cannot think of a Unitarian congregation singing 'Jesus paid it all, all the debt I owe.' We have no hymns in our books that cry: 'Great God, how infinite thou art, what worthless worms we are.'" The contemptuous cry of another was that "one might as well speak of the wool of the Lamb as the blood of the Lamb" (Prof. Kent).

Prayer

When God is stripped of all His might and majesty, He is no longer looked upon as One who might solicit our prayers. At the hands of the Unitarians man has been deified and God has been humanized. Men are still described as "flabby from long reliance on prayer." "As soon as men begin to think straight, that is, to think the thoughts of civilization, the childish conception of prayer fades away."

Second Coming

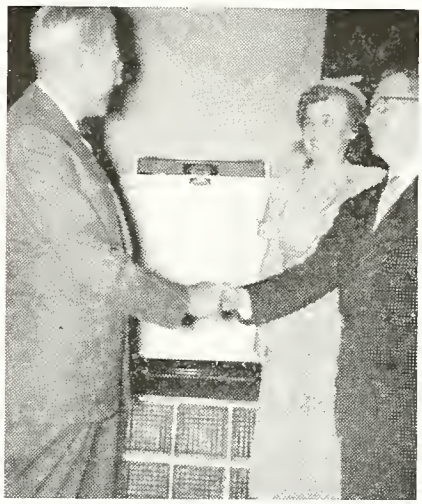
If the doctrines of Jesus Christ and salvation arouse the wrath of the Unitarians, this one stirs them to a fury bordering on hysteria! This great Christian truth is regarded as "doctrine more heinous and rotting to the soul than polygamy, witch-burning, and slavery combined"

(Christian Register). One Unitarian minister referred to this doctrine as "a medieval gospel of blood and the devil, a hydra-headed monster that has crawled out of the Dark Ages" (Rev. Weil). Rev. Maxwell Savage calls it "the debauching Second Coming enormity."

Heaven

It would seem that by this time we should have exhausted the liberalism and blasphemy of the Unitarian movement. However, we take one final glimpse at this great element of our faith. Instead of the words of our Lord, "I go to prepare a place for you," what are we offered by the Unitarians? Heinrich Heine said, "We leave heaven to the sparrows." Rev. Edward Cummings speaks of the abode of the blest as "that ridiculous spiritual roof-garden in the next world."

We are fully aware of the fact that these words may fall into the hands of some of the group about whom we have been writing, and if so, they will be branded by them as unjust, unfair, and altogether too critical. However, our analysis of their viewpoint is not nearly as scathing and diabolical as that of one of their own number concerning the ministry of the well-known Dr. Massee, of Tremont Temple, Boston. Concerning his radio ministry, Dr. Dieffenbach once said: "What awful stuff! And the great radio station of one of the stores in Boston is a broadcasting accomplice in this wretched business. Into thousands of homes evil things about a fiendish, murderous God are poured in the name of the religion of Christ. It is terrible. We should as lief hear a minister advise a maiden to yield her chastity, a youth to steal a purse, as to have people taught as they are by Dr. Massee" (quoted in "The Leaven of the Sadducees," by Ernest Gordon, p. 83).



Man's Real Need

This, dear reader, is modernism gone mad. But once a man has rejected the inspiration of the Scriptures and all its great teachings, deified the human race and made man sufficient to save his own soul, what else can you expect? What mankind needs is the Gospel of the great grace of our loving Lord. This alone is the sufficient antidote for the spiritual poison revealed in this brief study of this modern curse.

Fremont, Ohio

At the annual children's Christmas program Pastor and Mrs. Gordon Gordon Bracker were given a real surprise. During the program, the family of Brother Bracker was invited to the platform for a photograph to mark the first anniversary of his ministry in Fremont. Two notes were delivered to the platform. One was addressed to the Brackers, informing them that 200 pounds of meat were being delivered to their deep-freeze; the second note was handed to the chairman directing him to open the baptistry curtains. When this was done, a spotlight played on an automatic clothes-dryer, a gift to the Bracker family.

Camden, Ohio

We have just closed a campaign which we believe was a genuine revival effort at Camden, Ohio. The dates of the meeting were November 28-December 12, and during these days the blessings of God surpassed previous plans. Deep conviction was present at the first meeting and lasted through the entire campaign. There was a feeling by all that God was going to work. Prayers were offered and tears were shed and, praise God, genuine decisions were made.

Dr. Randall Rossman, the pastor of this church, surely is a man of cooperation and devotion to his Lord and Saviour. We thank God for what He did at Camden and we trust that this fire may burn brightly until Christ himself returns.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

It was indeed a blessed privilege to labor together with God and Evangelist Bill Smith in our recent evangelistic campaign. Brother Bill is a naturally born evangelist which, coupled with his second birth, his unique approach, enthusiasm, magnetic personality, and delivery of God's message, drew record crowds. The average attendance for each service was 94.4.

Four persons making first-time decisions for Christ have obeyed in Christian baptism. Three of them have united with our fellowship, one of them being unable to attend since baptism because of illness.

The spirit of revival continues, and we trust that the splendid spirit of unity now manifest among our people might continue on and serve to bind both pastor and people more closely to our blessed Lord and to one another. We covet your prayers for the Lord's work here in Camden. —Dr. R. L. Rossman, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Sunnyside, Wash.

The Lord sent gracious "showers of blessings" to the Brethren in Sunnyside, Wash., in the two weeks with Crusade Team Two.

We praise the Lord for the leadership of Evangelist Archie Lynn and Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Colburn. Only eternity will reveal all the results, but today we see a revived church, and have received new members into the fellowship and have many good prospects for the future.

No offerings were received until the closing Sunday, when we more than met the entire budget for the Crusade.—Harold D. Painter, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Crusade Team Two spent two very enjoyable and profitable weeks at Sunnyside, Wash., with Pastor Harold Painter. Attendance was the best of any Northwest church, averaging 163. Decisions were made at most of the services for salvation, restoration, rededication, and church membership. Sunday-morning services were broadcast over the local radio station, and a special service was

The Board of Ministerial Relief in Relation to Social Security for Ministers

A STATEMENT

In answer to inquiries concerning how the Federal social security provisions for ministers will affect the program of the Board on Ministerial Relief of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, we call attention to certain facts.

First—Beginning January 1, 1955, ministers may elect to be covered by social security under the same terms as self-employed persons. On or before April 15, 1957, a certificate must be filed electing such coverage. Only those who are qualified as ministers on January 1, 1955, will be covered from that date. Those ordained after the year 1954 will be covered from the first of the year in which they file.

Second—The rate of tax begins at 3 percent of the first $4,200 of annual earnings. It increases every five years until it reaches 6 percent in 1957 and thereafter. This tax is paid at the time of filing the annual income-tax return. The minister must include fees and allowances for ministerial functions in addition to the regular compensation in figuring his annual income. Parsonage allowance must be figured as income.

Third—The minister can never withdraw after he has elected to be covered. He must continue. The Government will collect the tax as long as he lives, or until he retires.

Fourth—A minister is insured as early as April 1956 (if he elects coverage beginning with January 1955 and has made $400 or more in income in both 1955 and 1956.

Fifth—The church has nothing to do with the social security of ministers. Ministers are under self-employed classification. The churches do not enter into the plan or pay any of the tax for ministers.

In view of these facts, we advise that all churches continue sending their 3 percent to the Board of Ministerial Relief. Part of this goes into the "emergency fund," from which help is given to Brethren ministers in the time of emergency needs. The remainder of the 3 percent goes into the retirement fund for retired Brethren ministers. The amount that Brethren ministers receive from this retirement fund would be a needful and welcome supplement to any social security benefits possible. Neither benefits—those received from either social security or the board's retirement—would be sufficient to care for all needs. The two together would not be any more than adequate to care for minimum needs. All Brethren churches should contribute the 3 percent regularly, regardless of whether Brethren ministers enter social security. Remember, the churches have nothing to do with the minister's social security; if he enters, he goes in as a self-employed person.

Our sincere advice to all Brethren ministers is to pay their 1 percent to the Board of Ministerial Relief. Social security has no insurance as is provided under our board. Most of your 1 percent is consumed in paying the insurance premium. You not only need this insurance, but you need the retirement benefits as well, whether you enter social security or not. You cannot qualify for the retirement benefits unless you contribute the 1 percent.

We see no reason why the program of our board should be either limited or discontinued. In fact, we believe it should continue and be enlarged. Plans for enlargement are under consideration. They will be presented at the next annual meeting of Brethren churches at Portland, Oreg.

Dr. C. H. Ashman, president.
Ord Gehman, secretary.

held on Thanksgiving morning, as well as Thanksgiving night.

"Happy Hour" was held the first week, with attendance averaging 113 boys and girls for the four days. Many boys and girls accepted Christ as Saviour here and in the Sunday-school service.

The team had the opportunity of preaching at Grandview, a new church started by Pastor Harold Painter in a community a few miles away. This is a thriving church, and attendances ran over 60 both Sundays. Services are held early here, during the Sunday-school hour at Sunnyside. Many of the Grandview people attended the Sunnyside meetings, and some of the decisions recorded were from them.

The blessing of God was evident upon this church, and these meetings, and we praise Him for every victory won.—Crusade Team Two.

Ozark, Mich.

We are enjoying our work at Ozark. We have had no open decisions to accept Jesus Christ as Saviour since we came, but there are many other blessings for which we are very thankful.

God has been supplying our material needs in amazing and new ways daily. We are reaching new contacts continually. We miss the quantity of Christian fellowship that we had in the Alto area, but it helps us to appreciate the quality of the few Christians around us. There is certainly very little Gospel in this sparsely settled area. Some that were saved in Crusade Team One's meeting this summer are growing in the Lord in a way that makes our hearts rejoice.

We are already outgrowing the schoolhouse that the group here have bought and paid for. It will mean either remodeling or moving in the spring.—Earl Funderburg, pastor, Grace Brethren Church.

Five Minutes With Your Herald Editor

"A Livin' Doll"

The name of Jehovah was so holy in Israel that one dared not so much as speak His name aloud. Holy reverence was demonstrated each time the name was used. In the Old Testament it is recorded that the seraphim cried, "Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts . . . and the posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke" (Isa. 6:3-4).

The modern attitude is considerably different. Recently, no less a "Hollywood theologian" than Movie Actress Jane Russell declared that the Lord is "a livin' doll, a right nice guy" (Newsweek magazine).

What blasphemy! Imagine, if possible, the seraphim employing such profanity in reference to the thrice holy God. When Isaiah prophesied the coming of the Lord, he declared that His name would be called "Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isa. 9:6). Nearly 30 centuries later one Jane Russell from Hollywood (which has a "reputation" of being anything but spiritual), adds to Isaiah's names for the Lord and calls Him a "livin' doll, a right nice guy." This Hollywood terminology is obnoxious to the regenerated child of God.

The Holy Spirit of God spoke through the Apostle Paul saying, "Their throat is an open sepulchre; with their tongues they have used deceit; the poison of asps is under their lips" (Rom. 3:13). It is quite evident that a mouth that would call God "a livin' doll" stems from a heart that ignores God's glory and grace.

Only 4 Percent

According to our national statistician, only 4 percent of the total giving of our brotherhood went to educational purposes during 1953-54. It should be remembered that of this 4 percent, some went to institutions which were not Brethren, which further means that we have not given the proper evalution to the work of our educational program.

Brethren, we can praise God that we have an institution like Grace Seminary and College. We dare not neglect the formal training of young men and women, for such is fundamental to home missions, foreign missions, and certainly becomes pertinent when we have empty pulpits in our established churches.

Let us pray earnestly that the offering for 1954-55 will demonstrate our interest in our Christian educational program in the Brethren Church.

New Testament for the Navaho

The American Bible Society is now printing the New Testament in the Navaho language, which is considered one of the most difficult languages in the world. Few white men have ever mastered it. When it is considered that there are nearly 75,000 Navaho Indians in Arizona and New Mexico who have never had the Bible printed in their language, one can more fully appreciate the magnitude of the work of this translation.

Religion in the News

For many years pastors have complained that it is difficult to get church news into the daily newspapers. Since the early and middle twenties editors have shown little or no interest in "church news."

Today the picture has completely changed. Five hundred fifty daily newspapers have full-time religious editors who are eager for church news. Citywide evangelistic meetings are now front-page stories. Dr. Billy Graham has been interviewed by many of the leading secular magazines which formerly manifested little interest in "religion." A local TV station in Davenport, Iowa, gave an interview on their noon news to Rev. True Hunt, the new pastor of our home-mission church in that city. Ten years ago this would never have taken place, even on radio. The Lord be praised for this opportunity to publicize the Gospel. We need to be sure that we have "news" that is worthy of space and is of general interest to the reader of the "daily."

Healing Campaigns

From the Atlantic to the Pacific, north and south, "dynamic actor-evangelists" are having huge tents raised in metropolitan areas and through psychological persuasion are swaying thousands of men and women with their un-Scriptural healing cult.

It is reported that in a meeting recently conducted in Hartford, Conn., 2,200 people out of a crowd of 4,000 responded to the first invitation.

One such nationally known "healer" has a radio network of 216 stations, and is now preparing films of Palestine and South Africa to be used in connection with his proposed television program. The fact is that down through the years "healers" come and "healers" go, and they usually go with a moral question mark placed upon their character. Employing psychical methods to beguile frustrated people to seek healing is diabolically inspired.

The Bible teaches healing, and God is able to heal in this day of grace, but all such healing must be in full accord with the teaching of the Word of God as recorded in James 5:14-15.

In the first place, in 99 44/100 percent of the cases, the professional "healer" gives a general call from the pulpit for all who are sick and who desire to be healed to come to the front to be prayed for. The Bible teaches that if any is sick, "let him call for the elders of the church." That is, the ill person is instructed to call, and not the preacher. Secondly, it is not to be a preacher, but several. Man cannot heal; it is God who does the healing. Lest man take the credit, God commanded that several unite in prayer for the one who is ill. Thirdly, the Word of God instructs that this should be done by the "elders," which is always masculine gender in the Greek. Lastly, the sick one should be anointed with oil. Oil is a symbol of the Holy Spirit. God can and does heal, but let us be sure it is Scriptural healing.

THE ANOINTED ONE TRIUMPHS

PSALM TWO

By EVA GODFREY
Grace Seminary Senior

Before us is a vivid picture of man's hatred for divine control and his ultimate rebellion. Historically, this psalm has a threefold setting. The first setting is derived from David's own experience. King David, as the Lord's anointed, had to establish his position through his victories on the battlefield. He suffered rebellion against his leadership from among his top officials and even in his own household. No doubt these conditions were recalled to memory as he penned this psalm. A second historical fulfillment, at least in part, is shown in Acts 4:25-28. The believers in the early church interpreted this prophecy of rebellion as pertaining to the crucifixion of Christ through the instrumentality of Herod and Pilate in conjunction with the Romans and Jews. The final and complete fulfillment of this psalm is yet future. The hatred and rebellion of mankind against God will be consummated during the reign of the Antichrist in the tribulation period. It is with this phase of our picture that we wish to deal.

There is little question as to the divisions in this psalm. It is commonly agreed that it is divided into four sections, each containing three verses. One has considered the parts as representing voices. The first voice to be heard is that of the nations. The next three voices are those of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, respectively. This is the threefold answer of the Godhead to the bold plan of the nations. Listen to what the voices have to say.

THE NATIONS SPEAK

The nations say, "Let us rebel." The nations are raging. They are gathered together in a tumultuous assembly. If it is hard for you to imagine such a scene, look at the newspaper and magazine headlines of today: "Fall of Hanoi," "Revolt Among Survivors," "Collective Security Is a Myth," "Arms for the Germans," "Dark Trial of Treason," "Red Finger on the Arabs," "Duel in the East." Truly this is a foretaste of the commotion and turmoil which must yet come.

The people instigate the rebellion. This is no revolt foisted upon the people by a few fanatics. It is not a case of the nations being suddenly aroused to a white heat of fury by an unprincipled but influential orator. The peoples imagine a vain thing. The word "imagine" could better be understood if given the connotation of meditation. This verb in the original is in the imperfect aspect, showing reiteration. The people have habitually mulled over this idea of defiance until it has become a part of them. They are like a pot of water beginning to boil. The bubbles of resistance begin to gather. Then they work their way slowly to the surface. They continue to develop in number and intensity until suddenly they boil up in feverish activity. The sullen muttering crowd has become a riotous gathering.

Thus, the leaders plan the rebellion. Very often princes and their people do not have a common interest, but in this case they are united in their thoughts of treason. Deliberately the kings and rulers of the earth begin their maneuvers of warfare. The armies of the nations are swiftly mustered. Meanwhile, the military strategists assemble themselves and take counsel together to devise a scheme of attack. This is a mighty undertaking, involving the nations of the world. Such a bold assault requires the cold, hard logic of the military genius. With deft precision they mold the seething multitudes into a powerful army and set it in battle array. But against what person or force is such feverish activity directed?

The objects of the rebellion are the Lord himself and His Anointed. The creature has so distantly removed himself from his Creator through his corrupt appetites and desires that he is now found in a position of direct antagonism. Since their hatred for the things of God has become so deeply ingrained in their hearts the people have the audacity to rise up in open opposition against their God. They refuse to submit themselves to the Anointed One, the Messiah, God's chosen ruler. They will not have Him to rule over them.

The motive for the rebellion is found in their moral attitude. In defiance the people cry out: "Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us." The restraining moral bands of a holy God have become too confining for them. Like a colt being broken to the harness, they chafe and snort and rage in an effort to break loose. Oh, to be free from the restraints of moral law! If they could but stifle the conscience! They will be their own God. Then they may do as they please.

THE FATHER SPEAKS

But suddenly the prospect changes from the raging tumult and the council rooms of the wicked to the very sanctuary of heaven, where the Lord God sits in majesty surrounded by the heavenly hosts. While in the midst of the calm composure of this magnificent scene we hear the voice of God the Father, who says, "Yet have I set my king upon . . . Zion." We see the reaction of the omniscient, omnipotent God as He views the wild turmoil of the nations of the earth in the act of rebellion. He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh.

The Father shall have them in derision. The princes of the earth have combined their power to overthrow the authority of the Lord—but in vain. How small their puny efforts must appear to God! Have you ever watched a colony of ants in action? One afternoon while I was walking along, I suddenly spotted a black line diagonally across the pathway. It seemed to be in motion, and yet remained in place. Upon closer examination I discovered it was an army of ants in several columns. The line was fully two inches wide and the ants followed in close formation, one after the other. They could be traced through the brush to a hole at the base of a pine tree. Into this hole they poured, only to have others emerge and form into columns paralleling the first group. There were innumerable multitudes of these ants scampering back and forth in a determined, unbroken line.

The purpose of all this activity was not clear. For the sake of illustration, let us suppose we were able to understand their intentions. The story might unfold as follows. Several of their number had been crushed into the sand as humans traveled along the path. Thus they had called out the entire colony and others adjoining. Marshaling the army into columns, they would march back and forth across the path, thus preventing any humans from traversing it. You say, how silly! Either they could be totally ignored by merely stepping over them or with a few quick steps most of them could be annihilated. The ant is too wise and practical to dream of such things. Only humans could conceive such a fairy tale. But is not the rebellion of the nations as silly and futile in God's eyes? He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh. The Lord, Adonai, the One who has absolute freedom to do as He wills without possibility of frustration—He will have the peoples in derision. Although this venture of treason is futile, God must not fail to punish such disobedience.

The Father will show them His displeasure. To the nations who rise up in revolt against the heir, the Anointed One, God speaks forth in wrath. Despising their preposterous and irrational attempts, He does not condescend to do battle with them. The Word of His mouth is sufficient to overthrow them. To bring about their destruction the Father will send this very One they have rejected. He will smite the nations with the sword of the Word. This encounter with them is pictured in Revelation 19:11-19. A further description of the outpouring of His wrath is given by the Prophet Isaiah, who says in the 63d chapter: "I will tread them in mine anger, and trample them in my fury: and their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments."

The psalmist himself elaborates on the thought by employing a literary form which is widely used through this psalm as in all Hebrew poetry, that of parallelism of ideas. Adding to the concept of the Father's wrath, he writes that He will "vex them in his sore displeasure." The term "vex" has the idea of troubling, and in a more vivid language, to strike with terror. They need to fear the wrath of the living God and it is this dread that sinks deeply into their hearts. Thus we see the people disconcerted both inwardly and outwardly as a result of the Father's anger.

Having squelched the rebels, the Father makes His declaration. "Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion." The King has already been chosen. There is no question as to who shall reign upon Mount Zion. God the Father says it is "my king" that shall rule. While the people rage, God acts, and despite their plans to prevent it, His Anointed has been set upon the throne. The verb "set" is in the perfect tense, denoting past action. Although it is prophetic, it awaits fulfillment. However, the Word of God is so certain that the act of establishing the King may be regarded as completed. As God's King, Christ has invested in himself all the dignity and authority of a sovereign prince. The sole administration of government and judgment has been entrusted to Him. Truly Zion is a holy hill. Prophetically, it is set apart as the place where the heir according to the Davidic line will be enthroned. When the Messiah does take His place, Zion will be sanctified by His very presence.

THE SON SPEAKS

Immediately following, we hear a further word from the Godhead. God the Son says, "I will declare the decree." The declaration of the Father, I have "set my king upon my holy hill of Zion," is based upon the decree, "Thou art my son: this day have I begotten thee." Such a statement resulting from the determination of divine wills is unalterable. Contrary to the counsels of earth, the counsels of divine wisdom have declared that the Son shall be King.

The Son's position is that of the only begotten Son of God. There are those who do not wish to view the psalm as pertaining to unfulfilled prophecy. Therefore, at this point, the verse is either ignored or we get some extraordinary interpretations. However, let us permit Scripture to interpret itself. Acts 13:33 tells us that this phrase, "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee," refers to the time that Jesus was raised from the dead. Then, in Hebrews 5:5, the same phrase is quoted as concerning Christ's glorification at His entrance into the high priesthood. Thus the One who is made king on the hill of Zion by the Father's sovereign choice is the One that rose from the dead and who also holds the intercessory office of the high priest. The inverted word order of the Hebrew text places the name of the Lord in an emphatic position. The Son is basing His claim to His exalted position on the established and unbreakable Word of the Lord.

It is the Son's privilege to ask of the Father this dominion. Because He is the only begotten Son, the Father desires to grant this position to the Son. Therefore, the Son need only ask to receive. It is not necessary to take this honor to himself. Nor should He make this request of anyone else. The Father says, Ask of Me. Jesus did not forget this promise when He was approached in the wilderness by Satan, who was willing to offer Him the kingdoms of the world if he might receive worship from the Son. Jesus answered that worship belonged only to the Lord. Thus He chose to make His request of the One whose word never changes. Now let us see the extent of this promised dominion.

The Son's possession includes the uttermost parts of the earth. As the Father states in verse 8: "I shall give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." That which the people have denied the Son, the Father says, is to be His inheritance.

The Son's sovereign right to this authority is made plain by the four living creatures and the 24 elders who worship Him in song. Bowing down before Him, they say: "Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof: for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation." Surely He who has given His life to redeem the world deserves such a position of rulership. The Son was obedient unto death and thus the Father will not fail to give Him the promised kingdom. Again the Book of the Revelation discloses the heavenly voices which say: "The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and his Christ: and he shall reign for ever and ever." Along with such a pledge the Father grants the power that is needed.

The Son's power is manifested in His ability to bring them under His control. The Father who says: "Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron; thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel," shall place this very power at the Son's command. Despite their imperial strength, the rebellious nations shall be overwhelmed at the coming of the King of kings. Revelation 19:15 tells us that He will smite the nations and rule them with a rod of iron. For those who renounce allegiance to the rightful sovereign He will bring forth the sceptre of His dominion, the rod of iron, and totally destroy them. As a potter's vessel they will be shattered, and like the broken potter's vessel they are not restored. If they will not submit, they will be irreparably crushed. According to the apt statement of some, they must bend or break!

THE SPIRIT SPEAKS

In answer to the people's cry of rebellion we have heard the declaration of the Father and the claim of the Son. The answer of the Godhead is now made complete as we hear the exhortation of God the Holy Spirit, who says, "Be instructed." This is directed toward the rebellious mob, as we may see by comparing verse 10 with verse 2, but we too may learn much from such sage counsel.

"Show receptiveness," advises the Spirit. This advice is directed to those who are in positions of influence. The terms "kings" and "judges" in verse 10 are similar to the terms "kings" and "rulers" in verse 2. Thus we may safely say that in general there is a reference to the same groups of people.

To the kings, the Spirit makes a suggestion that they show wisdom. In view of the assertions that have been made by both the Father and the Son, the kings should intelligently evaluate their position. The judges are to allow themselves to be instructed. If the leaders would calmly and objectively face the facts, the Spirit of God is certain that they would come to the proper conclusion. They would realize the futility of their revolt and capitulate immediately before they were destroyed. It is the duty of these men who are capable of receiving instruction to influence the multitudes in the right direction. As leaders, their responsibility is greater. Let us who are in training for positions of leadership resolve to be teachable and receptive to the leading of the Spirit. The right attitude will result in proper service.

"Serve reverently," exhorts the Spirit. It is the duty of the nations of the earth to serve the Messiah. This service must be rendered with due respect to His Lordship. Those who serve the Anointed One need not fear the wrath which must come upon the unsubmissive. To the true servant the fear of the Lord involves an abhorrence of any presumptuous act. The writer of Hebrews tells us that God is a consuming fire. Those who trust in Him may rejoice in their place of safety, but they may not run to excess in their security. A rejoicing tempered with awe is the attitude the people should maintain before their mighty God. The words of the Spirit of God have a timely message for us. We may boldly enter into the presence of our omnipotent God, but let us remember the example of our Lord Jesus Christ as He faced the tests of Satan: "It is said, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God."

"Submit or perish," the Spirit warns. If they fail to heed this final ultimatum, they must go the way of all the ungodly. "Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way." Such an admonition meant much to the first hearers of this psalm. It was expected of a great monarch's subjects to bow down and kiss the hands or feet of their king, in homage to him. At this final period also, the people are warned to give an evidence of their submission. Their ruin is certain if they refuse or reject Christ. If they slight Him the wrath of the Father will abide upon them, but in addition they must also encounter the anger of the Son. Revelation 6:16 tells us that they will cry out to the mountains and rocks saying: "Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb." The Son alone is capable of being a mediator before God in their behalf. If they then incur the wrath of the Son, who will intercede for them? They must not neglect to honor the Anointed One while there is yet time. His wrath will soon be kindled. Suddenly the opportunity for repentance shall cease, for "the great day of his wrath is come; and who shall be able to stand."

"Seek refuge," the Spirit urges. It will be too late to hide when the day of wrath has come. Were all the mountains and rocks of the whole world heaped over their trembling forms, they could not elude this great disaster. But there is a rock in which they may find refuge. There is a place where they need not dread the outburst of God's wrath. This safe retreat is in the Rock, Christ Jesus. To Him they may go up while there is yet time. Let them acquiesce to the will of God and do obeisance to their rightful sovereign. He it was who shed His blood that He might redeem them. Let them own Him as their Lord and King.

CHRIST'S GREAT WORDS TO THE CHURCH

BY R. PAUL MILLER

Moderator, National Fellowship of Brethren Churches

"Remember . . . thou art fallen, . . . repent, . . . do the first works, . . . or else . . . repent" (Rev. 2:5).

What a church those Ephesians were! Look at the list of things to their credit! Some church people seem to feel that the Lord doesn't know what goes on in the church, in the official board meetings, in the deacons' meetings, in the Sunday-school cabinet meetings, and in the WMC meetings. See His description of that Ephesian congregation: "I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil: and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars: and hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name's sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted."

What a church those Ephesians were! If we had a church like that today we would consider it the finest we had. You would think that the Lord would not find anything wrong with that church, for sure. How they worked and labored, and how they had zealously held their heresy trials; how they had thrown out the worldly crowd, and how they had hung on and had not gotten discouraged or quit. My, oh my, what a church!

But what does the Lord say? "I have somewhat against thee," Ephesus. You have fallen. What? Ephesus a fallen church! If Ephesus was a fallen church, where do a lot of churches come in today? Certainly, there are none of which we know which could afford to form a "mutual admiration society." The Lord invites them to repent, and return to their first love, their first devotion, which belongs to Him. They were urged to return to doing the thing that He wanted done above everything else, which was to bring lost men to himself. It seems that God said, "If you love Me above all else, if you put Me first, that is what you will do."

Then the Lord adds, If you do not take this admonition to heart, if you do not repent of your sad fall from my design for you, I will remove your candlestick. Now the candlestick is the divine symbol of the Holy Spirit. The Lord is saying, If you don't do the work I want you to do, which is to take the Gospel to lost men everywhere, then My promise to go with you and empower and bless you will be taken away. Right here is the cause of the powerless church! If the church grows so cold toward Christ himself, and His will, which is to make soul-winning their first work, then no matter how many other activities it engages in, it might as well close its doors.

There has never been a time when this divine exhortation is more apropos than this very hour. There has never been a time when so much of the average church's time, effort, and money was being spent on side-shows rather than the main God-given job of keeping men out of hell, than as today. That was undoubtedly the trouble with the Ephesian church. "Repent," says the Lord, "or else."

Repentance means revival. Revival is for the church, not for the world. The world is dead. You can't revive a thing that is dead, and has never lived. We do not hold revivals to save lost men. Lost men are saved when the church is revived and returns to doing what God designed, and starts winning souls. Undoubtedly, the thing that this lost world of men needs to see more than anything else is a revived church, a church that evidences the presence and power of almighty God within, a church that lives like people who belong in heaven, a church that is not building for an endless day in this world, but seeking to get men saved out of this world and ready for eternity; a church that, when it falls upon its knees to pray, God starts to work! When the world gets a glimpse of that sort of church in their midst, they will respect it, they will fear it, and they will kneel at its altars.

Why do not sinners confess their sins? It is because cold and careless Christians do not confess their proud sins. Why are sinners not afraid of hell? It is because so many church members don't seem to be afraid of it either, by the way they live. Why don't sinners fall on their knees and pray? It is because church members are not falling on their knees in prayer and confession. Just as soon as Christians get concerned about their own sins of coldness, indifference, and worldliness, the sinner will become concerned over his. Why don't sinners cease to love the world? It is because so many Christians still love the world and live for it. "Repent," cries the Lord, "or else."

Love makes the heart sensitive and tender, and willing to bear burdens and sacrifices. Love for the Lord Jesus will make the Christian sensitive and devoted to please Him above all things. Excuses will die. Obedience will rule. "If a man love me, he will keep my words," said the Master. If a man truly loves Jesus Christ, he will love those for whom He died. He can't just let them go to hell without doing something about it.

Christian, Jesus has no hands but your hands; He has no feet but your feet; He has no lips but yours. When you yield them unreservedly to Him to win lost men to Christ, that is revival. That is returning to your first love.

This is Christ's great message to the church today.

SMOKING---IS IT A

I am very much aware of the fact that I am touching upon something that has become common among the American people, both male and female, young and old, rich and poor. I realize that it is the wrong thing to talk about if I am seeking the applause of the people. But, if seeking popularity in this old sin-cursed world is my aim, I should at once leave the ministry and not mock God and intelligent people.

In treating this subject, it shall not be my purpose to try to tell the lost how they should live. The message God has for the lost is to repent and believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, trusting in Him for eternal salvation. If they don't, God has given ample warning as to the eternal consequences.

Most of the Bible is occupied with God's dealing with His own people. In the Old Testament it was with His chosen nation, Israel. In the New Testament it is with His chosen people, the church. It shall be my purpose to help believers to know the truth regarding this enslaving habit. If you are not a Christian, you are certainly invited to read these lines, but don't get angry at me for something I may say that you won't like. Remember, this is addressed not primarily to you. If you are not a child of God and you think it is all right to use tobacco, that's your business. But if you are a child of God, it is not your business. It is God's. You belong to Him. He bought you with a price (see I Cor. 6:19-20).

SIN DEFINED

In answering the question, "Is Smoking Sin?" we have six points for consideration. The first three have to do with God's definition of sin, and the last three are reasons why sin should not be practiced in the life of the believer.

What is sin? Webster defines it as follows: "Any voluntary transgression of the law of God. Sin includes not only actions, but neglect of known duty, all evil thoughts, words, purposes, and all that is contrary to the law of God." Using the Bible as the final authority, we must agree that the definition is good, but let's allow the Bible to speak for itself.

First: In I John 3:4 God says: "Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law." The law is given to show man what sin is. The law cannot save a man. It serves to condemn him. The law is recorded in the Old Testament. And since we, as Christians, are on New Testament ground, shall we employ the law? In answering this question, we shall read from the New Testament concerning the law. In I Timothy 1:8 we read: "But we know that the law is good, if a man use it lawfully; knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawless and disobedient, for the ungodly and for sinners." We must use the law lawfully, so we want to make it clear that we are not now using the law as an instrument upon believers. Neither are we using it as an instrument upon the lost as a means of obtaining salvation.

I John 3:4 declares that "sin is the transgression of the law." We are using the law to define and answer the question, "What is sin?" Romans 5:20 says: "Moreover the law entered, that the offence might abound." In Romans 7:7 we read: "What shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sin, but by the law: for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet." Let us notice two more verses from Romans 7. Verses 12 and 13 say: "Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good. Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it might appear sin, working death in me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful."

Now let us go to the law and see how exceeding sinful the use of tobacco really is. We shall go to the 20th chapter of Exodus and look at a few of the ten commandments recorded there.

Commandment No. 1 says: "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." When Jesus Christ was here on the earth, a man came to Him one day and asked, "Master, which is the great commandment in the law?" Jesus said unto him: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." Men who loyally bow before the god of tobacco cannot at the same time love the Lord God with all their heart, and soul, and mind. If we understood this fully there would be no need of going into the law further to prove the exceeding sinfulness of the sin in question. However, we shall look at another.

Commandment No. 6 says: "Thou shalt not kill." Kill? Yes; kill! Tobacco is a killer. Expectant mothers are killing their babes, and people by the thousands are killing themselves. Investigators have found and listed 19 different poisons in the burning of tobacco. And after naming all 19 of these poisons, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg says: "It appears that tobacco smoke contains not less than 19 poisons, every one of which is capable of producing deadly effects." He also said that "tobacco is a form of 'dope' as really as opium, cocaine, or any other drug. The confirmed cigarette smoker is as thoroughly enslaved as the opium smoker or the alcoholic inebriate. He is a 'dope fiend,' to use a common but rather repulsive phrase, an addict, and often requires the same restrictive measures to secure reclamation as does the confirmed alcoholic or opium addict." Dr. C. J. Mayo said: "Cancer of the lip and tongue is increasing as the habit of smoking is increasing in both sexes."

Perhaps some of you remember Gene Tunney's article in the December 1941 issue of Reader's Digest. It is entitled, "The Nicotine Knockout, or the Slow Count." I want to quote a paragraph from that article. "No one has ever denied that nicotine is poison. Taken clear, it is as quick-acting and fatal as prussic acid. A drop of it on a shaved rabbit causes immediate convulsions and death. The nicotine dissolved out of a few cigarettes and placed on the tongue of a grown man would kill him in 15 minutes. Luckily the bulk of the nicotine in tobacco is volatilized in smoke; you do not get the poison straight. But if you smoke a pack a day, you inhale 400 milli-grams of it a week. That much in a single dose would kill you as quick as a bullet."

I have another article in my files entitled, "Cancer by the Carton." In this article Dr. Alton Ochsner, former president of the American Cancer Society and director of the famous Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans, is quoted as saying: "It is frightening to speculate on the possible number of bronchiogenic cancers that might develop as the result of the tremendous number of cigarettes consumed in the two decades from 1930 to 1950." It is also stated in this same article that from 1938 to 1948, lung-cancer deaths increased 144 percent. At the present time, cancer of the mouth and respiratory tract kills 19,000 men and 5,000 women annually in the United States. That's nearly three dying every hour of every day of the year from cancers caused by what noted doctors call excessive and prolonged use of tobacco, especially cigarettes.

Last year Americans spent $4,703,000,000 for tobacco products. That is twice as much as the salaries of all public-school teachers. If you are a professing Christian, how can you justify yourself in such a habit?

Second: Now we shall turn to another Scripture that will help us to define sin. In Romans 14:22-23 we read: "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth. And he that doubteth is damned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: for whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

To make this more clear, let me ask you this question, Why is it that those who profess to be Christians seek to hide their cigarettes from godly people? Could it be that their consciences condemn them, and they feel their guilt? I am glad that some people still have active consciences that preach to them about their sins.

Third: Another Scripture that will help to define sin is the one in James 4:17, where we read: "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." So far in my lifetime I have found very few tobacco users who considered their habit to be good. Most users will admit readily that the habit is bad for various reasons. And they will agree that it would be good to quit. "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

WHY THIS SIN SHOULD NOT BE PRACTICED BY BELIEVERS

Thus far I have given three Scriptures for the purpose of defining sin and helping us to know what sin is. Now I want to employ three more Scriptures to show the results and effects in the lives of believers.

First: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are" (I Cor. 3:16-17). "What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (I Cor. 6:19-20).

These Scriptures apply wholly to Christians. Who said buildings of wood, brick, mortar, and stone are God's temples or houses? God does not dwell in temples made with hands. God's dwelling place in this age on the earth is in the bodies of His blood-bought children who make up Christ's true church. Now follow me, please. I do not know of one single born-again Christian who will walk into a church auditorium on a Sunday morning and sit in the pew and smoke his tobacco. That would be considered a horrible disgrace to what we call God's house. And yet there are those who profess faith in Christ who will defile their bodies with tobacco and thus desecrate the real temple of God the Holy Spirit. There is a solemn warning that goes with this. Let us read it again. "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are."

Here is the positive answer: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God" (Rom. 12:1-2).

Second: The use of tobacco presents a poor testimony for the Lord Jesus Christ and His saving Gospel. "But take heed lest by any means this liberty of your's become a stumbling-block to them that are weak" (I Cor. 8:9). "Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children" (Eph. 5:1). Tobacco is a worldly thing. It is a common habit among those who do not profess godliness. I have talked to lost sinners concerning their soul's salvation who have told me that they wanted first to make sure that their tobacco habit is gone when they make that decision. Reformation cannot save a soul, but often I have wished that some believers had that much conviction about the sinfulness of the habit. One of the hardest things in the ministry of a pastor is to have lost souls point their fingers at such inconsistencies in the lives of the members of his church.

Third: Here is the last Scripture I want to bring to bear upon this habit in the lives of Christians. Look at it: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. [Now notice.] And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure" (I John 3:2-3).

Christian, would your Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, be enslaved with such a habit? Would you consider it impure for the righteous Son of God to smoke or chew tobacco? He is coming one of these days, and you, as a believer, know it. You hold to that blessed doctrine of His second coming for His church. But let me ask you, Does the doctrine of His coming hold you, and purify you, even as He is pure? If you are ashamed to smoke in the presence of the preacher, or in the presence of other believers who are living for the Lord, then surely you will be ashamed in His presence at His coming.

WHAT DOES GOD REQUIRE?

PSALM 50

By ORD GEHMAN

Pastor, Bethel Brethren Church
Berne, Ind.

THE Book of Psalms is commonly referred to as the hymnbook of Israel. David, to whom most of the psalms are attributed, was interested in music, and it is small wonder that so much stress was placed on singing as far as temple worship was concerned. Hebrew itself is regarded as a musical language. Temple singing rose to its highest peak during the reigns of David and Solomon when the kingdom of Israel was at its very zenith of splendor. Antiphonal singing was very popular in the temple worship.

Psalm 50 is one of the second group of psalms, comprising Psalm 42 to 72. This group apparently had to do greatly with the expressed desire of the Hebrews for a right relationship with God. Part of the psalms in this section are regarded as psalms of the Exile. God has a controversy with His people because of their spiritual laxity and unconcern.

This psalm before us has three main sections. Section I, verses 1-6, has to do with God's judgment of His people; Section II, verses 7-15, presents God's case against His people; and Section III, verses 16-23, shows God's estimate of hypocrites and formalists who say one thing and do another. The tenor of this psalm reminds us of the words of the Prophet Samuel as recorded in I Samuel 15: 22: "And Samuel said, Hath the Lord as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the Lord? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams."

In the first section of this psalm we see God coming in judgment. He is referred to as "The mighty God." So much of the Old Testament refers to God as the God of might and power. People needed to be impressed with the fact that God was a great God and that He did not merely overlook sin, even in His so-called chosen people. When we think of God, we cannot but think of His holiness (Isa. 6:1-6). His holiness and His might are closely interrelated. So God is not going to keep silence about the problem of sin. So determined is He to deal with this situation that He calls heaven and earth to witness this judgment against His people. Heaven and earth are not to be judged—they are to witness His controversy with His people. We notice that God here deals with His saints—those who have sealed His covenant by sacrifice as He required. It is clearly indicated here that God is not desirous of rejecting the external things of worship, but He is interested in fixing in the minds and hearts of His people the futility of the external without the inward reality of spiritual desire for the eternal God.

The second section of this psalm could well be summed up in the principle set forth in the words of Christ when He said: "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithes of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone" (Matt. 23: 23). Here in this psalm before us, as in the time of Christ's earthly ministry, we see the great corruption of religion; namely, the reliance upon the external worship and the neglect of the emotions of thankfulness and trust. Isaiah saw the same factor at work among God's people when God had him record: "Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people [Israel] draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men" (Isa.

29:13). Again, in Isaiah 1:2-3, we read: "Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth: for the Lord hath spoken, I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider."

In this psalm God informs His own people that He does not need what they could offer Him. Even if He were hungry, He would not let them know. After all, what they sacrifice to Him belonged to Him in the first place. God was not interested in the flesh of bulls and the blood of goats as such, but He was interested in having His people come before Him in worship with a continual flow of thanksgiving and praise from their hearts unto Him. Their recognition of their need of Him in their day of trouble brought forth His promise that "I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me" (vs. 15b). Paul's experience with his "thorn in the flesh" caused him to say: "And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (II Cor. 12:9).

The third section of this psalm (vss. 16-22) deals sternly with those who have nothing whatever to do with the Lord. There are those who worship God as a convenience, for earthly and material reasons, but God says: "Thou hatest instruction, and castest my words behind thee" (vs. 17). God's patience and mercy are expressed in verse 21a when He says: "These things hast thou done, and I kept silence." God's patient tolerance is meant to lead men to repentance, but oftentimes men become hardened and abuse God's mercy. They presume that God's unwillingness to smite in judgment means that God will not punish sin. Men forget that "the Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is longsuffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Pet. 3:9). Paul reminds us in Romans 1: 20-32 that God gave men over to

WHAT DID THE SCAPEGOAT DO?

SCAPEGOAT

By John Rea

GRACE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Winona Lake, Indiana

WE HAVE all used the term "scapegoat" to refer to an innocent person bearing the blame for someone else. Do you realize that this term originated in the Bible? Probably you already knew that it appears in connection with the ritual of the Day of Atonement in Leviticus 16. But did you realize how much error has arisen concerning the purpose of the original scapegoat?

The substitutionary death of the Lord Jesus Christ is the most important fact in history. If any portion of Scripture concerning the death of our Saviour is falsely explained, an arrow has been shot into the very vitals of the Christian faith. It is essential, therefore, that the Christian understand the various sacrifices made during the Day of Atonement in which the death of Christ is so fully typified.

Before Christ came to make the final and perfect sacrifice for sin, God instituted through Moses a temporary method of sacrifice whereby sin might be covered. Animals were offered as substitutes for the guilty people of the nation of Israel. The blood of these innocent beasts, signifying their life poured out in the stead of the guilty humans, was accepted by God as the basis upon which His justice was satisfied so that He might show mercy in granting forgiveness of sins.

Of all the ceremonies in the Mosaic calendar, that of the Day of Atonement stands out in clear relief as the one of prime spiritual importance. Leviticus 16 furnishes the background for the high-priestly ministry of Christ as set forth in the Epistle to the Hebrews.

The Ritual of Atonement

The ritual of the annual Day of Atonement was unique. On this day alone of all days in the year the high priest was permitted to enter the holy of holies in the tabernacle. On this day all sin was covered through the sacrifices offered by the high priest himself, from the sins of Aaron and his family and the ceremonial defilement of the temple, down to the iniquities of the weakest child of the congregation.

For the high priest the Day of Atonement was crushing and exhausting. Upon him personally lay the entire responsibility of presenting the case of Israel before the Lord. At all other times he was assisted by other priests. On this day he alone had to perform all of the arduous services, including the regular daily and Sabbath sacrifices. Altogether he personally killed and offered 15 to 17 animals that day. How clearly this foretells the lonely work of our great High Priest on our behalf!

In the special ritual of the Day of Atonement Aaron, dressed only in the holy linen garments, first selected a young bullock for a sin offering and a ram for a burnt offering for himself and the priestly house. Then he took the two he-goats furnished by the congregation of Israel. These were graceful, clean animals, highly valued by the Jews. They both had to be exactly alike—without blemish, kids of the first year, bought at the same time—for they together formed one sin offering. After setting the goats before the Lord, Aaron cast lots upon them.

Next, he killed the bullock, his own sin offering. Taking a censer and sweet incense, for the first time he entered within the veil to sprinkle the blood of the bullock upon the mercy seat. Then he came out, sacrificed the goat designated for the Lord, and took its blood into the holy of holies to make atonement for all the sins of the people. After atoning for the holy place, the entire tabernacle, and the brazen altar, Aaron presented the live goat. Laying both his hands upon its head, he confessed upon the goat all the guilt of Israel. He sent it into the wilderness, the goat being led away by an appointed man waiting outside. At last the high priest could retire into the holy place, put off his linen garments of humiliation, bathe himself, put on his gorgeous apparel, and come forth in victory before the people.

Some other sacrifices followed, but the ceremony centered about the offering of the two goats. The one goat designated by lot for the Lord and killed by Aaron was definitely a sin offering for the people. It is necessary, however, to investigate a problem connected with the so-called scapegoat.

What Is Azazel?

In the King James Version in Leviticus 16 the word "scapegoat" appears four times—in verses 8, 10 (twice), and 26. We all recognize that no translation into English is ever inspired by the Holy Spirit. With regard to this word we have an instance of a poor rendition by the translators in 1611. Revisers in 1901 merely transliterated the original Hebrew by the phrase "for Azazel."

Thus verses 8-10 in the American Standard Version read as follows: "And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats; one lot for Jehovah, and the other lot for Azazel. And Aaron shall present the goat upon which the lot fell for Jehovah, and offer him for a sin-offering. But the goat, on which the lot fell for Azazel, shall be set alive before Jehovah, to make atonement for him, to send him away for Azazel into the wilderness.

Who or what is Azazel? At least four distinct answers have been given. One interpretation is that Azazel is the name of the place to which the live goat was sent. A second is that Azazel is the name of the second goat. A third widely held view is that Azazel is the name of a demon or of Satan himself. The fourth interpretation, which seems to be the correct one, is that Azazel is an abstract noun meaning "complete removal." The ASV marginal reading offers "removal" as a translation of the word "Azazel."

Is It Satan?

A detailed study of the passage shows certain obvious objections to the first two views. The third interpretation does seem fantastic to the orthodox Bible student. Nevertheless, some reputable scholars, such as Keil, Lange, and A. H. Strong, have maintained that Azazel is the name of a personal being who is here contrasted with Jehovah. Usually such men believe that it is Satan, the author of sin, to whom the live goat is carrying back the forgiven sins of God's chosen people. The aim of this ceremony, they say, is to defy Satan, to announce to the Accuser that the foundation of his power over Israel is taken away.

Satan, however, is never mentioned elsewhere in the Pentateuch. Such an allusion to the Devil in this ceremony would be entirely too vague to have any meaning for the Israelites. Leviticus 17:7 expressly forbids any further sacrifice to demons, one of the idolatrous practices learned by the Israelites in Egypt. Furthermore, the New Testament offers absolutely no such teaching concerning Satan which could in any way be construed as a fulfillment of the typology of the two goats in Leviticus 16.

Heresy!

A glaring heresy is based on this way of construing the ritual of the Day of Atonement. The Seventh Day Adventists teach that Azazel is a name for Satan. But they also very plainly say that the Devil, not Christ, is symbolized by the second goat, and that the Devil will someday bear all the sins of the truly penitent. In her book, "The Great Controversy Between Christ and Satan," Mrs. Ellen G. White, the leader and prophetess of the SDA movement, wrote that Satan will bear the guilt of all the sins which he has caused God's people to commit. How horrifying her doctrine—based only on a wrong interpretation of Leviticus 16—is to true believers who hold to the all-sufficient sacrifice of Christ our Saviour at Calvary! It is all-important, then, to understand the truth about the purpose of the live goat in that chapter.

The True Meaning of Azazel

Since the Hebrew word for Azazel occurs only in this chapter, no help on the meaning of this word can be obtained from any other portion of Scripture. Linguistic scholars have noted a similar word in Arabic, a verb which means "to remove." The most logical explanation of the Hebrew word is that it is an abstract noun derived from an intensive form of the verb "to remove." Thus the word means entire or complete removal. In the context it refers to the entire removal of the sin and guilt of the people from the tabernacle into the desert on the back of the second goat.

Verses 20-22 show that after the completion of the covering of the sins ceremonially by the blood of the slain goat, Aaron confessed over the live goat all the iniquities of the children of Israel, and all their transgressions, even all their sins. He put this awful load upon the goat and sent it away into the desolate wilderness. The first goat had wrought full atonement for the people; the part the second goat had to do was simply bear out of sight all their sins as matters about which the justice of God had been satisfied. What took place with the live goat was merely intended to make evident the effect of the great work of atonement. The fate of the scapegoat with their sins was utterly unknown to the children of Israel. Thus this goat exhibited a most striking image of the everlasting oblivion into which the sins of God's people are cast after they have been covered with the blood of an acceptable sacrifice. The ceremony illustrates the grand truth of full atonement; the unique feature of the second goat teaches the complete removal of sins. The reason for making use of two goats is to be found solely in the physical impossibility of combining in one single animal all the features that had to be displayed in the sin offering.

The Old Testament frequently brings out the fact that forgiven sins are removed and forgotten by God. "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us" (Ps. 103:12). "I am he that blotteth out thy transgressions for mine own sake; and I will not remember thy sins" (Isa. 43:25; cf. 38:17; Jer. 31:34; 50:20; Micah 7:19). The doctrine of Christ as the Sinbearer is foreseen in that great evangelical chapter of the Old Testament, Isaiah 53. "Surely he hath borne our griefs. . . . He poured out his soul unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors; yet he bore the sin of many" (vss. 4, 12). The verb "to bear" is the same as in Leviticus 16:22, and means to lift up, to bear away.

The Antitype

At last in the New Testament is met the One who came to give His life a ransom for many, to whom all the sacrificial types pointed. The Lord Jesus Christ is the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world (John 1:29). He is the great High Priest of the Book of Hebrews, the counterpart of Leviticus, who was manifested once to put away sin by the sacrifice of himself (Heb. 9:26). The truth of sins being dealt with in full and judicially removed and destroyed by Christ should lead the Christian to personal holiness in living, as well as give him assurance and blessed rest in the Lord's perfect work of atonement.

WHAT DOES GOD REQUIRE?

reprobate minds to do all manner of evil because they would not let Him have His way in their lives and thinking.

All this sums up God's position in the matter of unrighteousness and sin by the next to the last verse of this psalm. Note it carefully: "Now consider this, ye that forget God, lest I tear you in pieces and there be none to deliver" (vs. 22). The closing verse is a majestic expression of the sovereign grace of our eternal God: "Whoso offereth praise glorifieth me: and to him that ordereth his conversation [manner of life in the N. T.] aright will I show the salvation of God" (vs. 23).

Beloved, we live in the 20th century. But the same God could say to us: "Do not rely on the mere externals of worship, or a watered-down version of the Gospel. My heart still longs for thanksgiving and praise from hearts that are filled to overflowing as a result of the abiding presence of the Lord Jesus Christ."

GERMANY CALLS

By HAROLD HENDERSON
U. S. Air Force

What has happened to the land which once took to its heart Martin Luther and his new doctrines, the land which fostered spiritual revolution when it was but an infant crying out for the unveiling of the Truth? What has happened to the land in which the Brethren Church was born? Is Germany today the scene of widespread revival; are its many churches filled with Spirit-empowered messengers expounding the Word in the manner of Luther, John Calvin, and other early Reformation leaders?

The once proud land of Germany is dead in her trespasses and sins. Even her churches, which at one time were the center of Protestant theology, are now deeply infested with the seeds of modernism and formalism. Her people are religious; they attend church by the thousands, both young and old, only to turn away from each service still hungering and thirsting for something to satisfy their souls.

Each morning one can see hundreds of old ladies dressed in black, their faces drawn taut by worry and care, hurrying to the church to pray to various favorite saints, only to return again with the anxiety of their souls still with them and their hearts a little harder and colder than before. In many places the situation is so pathetic that even the Protestant churches are retreating to Romanism. Some German Lutheran Church leaders have stated that there is much sentiment among them to lead their people back into the outstretched arms of the Pope.

Of course there are a few who know the truth, for here and there one finds an organization such as Youth for Christ, or a lone missionary, and in a few cases a German church, where there is orthodox preaching and teaching. It has been my privilege to meet several of these saints of God, but they are few and far between, and their combined efforts can reach only a very small number of the countless who are dying here in Germany with no hope for eternity.

I think my heart is burdened most for the German young people. This new generation in Germany knew not the strife and conflict of World War II. They are being raised under the abnormal surroundings of Allied occupation, and all its complexities of life. There are a few of these young people who know Christ personally, but the greater number are roaming the streets of every big city in Germany, from Berlin to Frankfort, defiling their young bodies with the vilest of sins known to man. In essence, these new German youth are a combination of the "Hitler Youth," willing to follow any command of leader, and of the typical American hoodlum off the streets of New York or Chicago.

The picture for Germany is a grave one; we have no promise that Germany will be open to the Gospel for many more years. They stand almost unprotected beside the ever-increasing circle of the Iron Curtain and atheistic communism. It will probably be only a few years before we are gone from Europe and these next few years may be our last chance to tell these people of the saving grace of Jesus Christ and to build up German Christians in the faith in order that they will be willing to testify for Him when we are gone.

You have a part in the winning of Germany for Christ. You can pray for her people and for us who are already here in the armed services who are giving out the Word of Life. Please remember us and the spiritual need of these people.

CHRIST'S COMING---

AND ITS RELATIONSHIP TO ISRAEL

By BRUCE L. BUTTON

Los Angeles, Calif.

The second coming of Christ is usually understood to include the periods known as the rapture of the church, the tribulation, and the return of the Lord Jesus to earth to reign as a mighty king during the Millennium. The church should understand the relationship of Israel to this period. In the past the church has appropriated for herself most of the promises concerning the end time, which promises were specifically made to Israel. In other words, the church has taken the promised blessings of the Old Testament for herself. She has, of course, left the curses of the Old Testament for the Jewish people.

The Bible I am using gives proof of this fact. Isaiah, chapter 59, is captioned, "The Sins of the Jews." Isaiah, chapter 60, is captioned, "The Glory of the Church." These captions were inserted by churchmen of old. This should not have been done. Both of these chapters speak of Israel and things in relation to Israel. To appropriate either chapter for the church is a misrepresentation.

The Word of God teaches many things concerning Israel's relationship to the second coming of the Messiah. To me the most important teachings are—

The Restoration of Israel

In our day we are witnessing the restoration of Israel to their own land (Isa. 14:1-3; Jer. 16:14-15). True, it is not yet a complete restoration—but it is a beginning. For almost 2,000 years Israel has been out of the land. Up to this present time she had no hope of gaining the land. Now once more Israel is going into the land to possess it. As yet the Jewish people do not realize how they are gaining this land, nor do they realize the purpose in their return. They do recognize that an unusual movement is taking place within their people, and it is seldom that you can find a Jew that is not impressed and stirred by that knowledge.

Israel Seeking After God

We who love the Messiah Jesus know the zeal of the Lord is causing this successful return. We understand the purpose of that return. This knowledge should deeply impress us. The zeal of that same Lord should be evident in our desire to witness for him.

The Christian observer is also conscious that Jewish people are beginning to return to, and seek after, God and those things pertaining to Him (Hos. 3:5). In our day we have seen the Jewish people become more and more open to the testimony of the Christian believer. They will accept tracts, New Testaments, and other literature with far greater ease than in the centuries past. And this spiritual stirring is leading to the salvation of many Jewish souls.

We who love the Messiah Jesus should rejoice that we're able to see this movement begin. And this knowledge should send us back to a deeper study of the Word of God that we might be able to rightly divide the Word of truth (II Tim. 2:15) when we give our Jewish friends the reason for the hope that is in us (I Pet. 3:15).

Israel Humiliated by Rejection

True, what we are seeing is but the beginning of a movement of Jewish people toward acceptance of Jesus as Messiah; there will come a time when the whole nation will stand in humiliation before their rejected Messiah (Zech. 12:10). At that time, as a nation, Israel shall be converted, shall be reborn, shall accept Jesus as their Messiah and mighty King. And how deep will be the mourning of this people when they realize the magnitude of their lost opportunities. They will look on that pierced One and lament not only of their handling of Him at Calvary, but they will also lament for the work of love they could have done for Him had they but placed their lives in His blessed hands.

When we who love the Messiah Jesus see Him at the rapture—shall we mourn? Will we be conscious of personal failure also. We need not be. But we must see "what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God" (Rom. 12:2) for our lives at this present time.

Israel to Become Missionaries

Even though the nation of Israel will mourn in humiliation before the Lord, nevertheless they shall also later rejoice, for they will play the role of great missionaries for their Messiah (Zech. 8:13-23). They will speak the words of life. And "ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you" (Zech. 8:23).

In the light of this, we who love the Messiah Jesus should rejoice and do everything in our power to give the Gospel to the Jew of our day. Brethren, "for as ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their [Israel's] unbelief: even so have these also now not believed, that through your mercy they [Israel] also may obtain mercy" (Rom. 11:30-31).

A COMPLETE BIBLE COMMENTARY. By Matthew Henry, Thomas Scott, and others. Moody Press. Cloth, 1,024 pp. $6.95 (postage, 20c).

The one-volume commentary on the entire Bible is an explanatory, devotional, and practical treatise on every chapter of the Bible. Each section is filled with illustrative material for ministers, teachers, and students.

THE PROPHECIES OF DANIEL. By Louis T. Talbot. Van Kampen Press. Cloth, 234 pp. $2.50 (postage, 12c).

This book deals with the Commencement, the Character, the Course, and the Consummation of "The Times of the Gentiles." The author points out that in the Book of Daniel God has outlined the course of gentile world power from its beginning to its end. The more the pages of Holy Writ are studied, the more clearly is seen that the prophecy read of has or is becoming history.

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE PAULINE EPISTLES. By D. Edmond Hiebert. Moody Press, 1954. Cloth, 383 pp. $4.50 (postage, 12c).

After providing a historical background, the author deals with the critical problems of the Pauline epistles. Following a detailed outline, the book is a source of rich resource into the depths of Paul's teaching. It is not the presentation of some new theory, but a new exploration of these epistles.

GOD AND ISRAELI. By L. Sale-Harrison. Van Kampen Press, 1954. Cloth, 151 pp. $2 (postage, 8c).

Zionism was born in 1896. Years passed, and at the close of World War I, the English Zionist Federation demanded of the Peace Conference three main considerations. With World War II new problems arose for Israel which literally drove them back to Palestine. Dr. Sale-Harrison discusses the return of Israel to her homeland in detail, pointing out the present political and educational program of the Israeli government.

A DOCTOR'S GREAT COMMISSION. By Thomas Lambie. Van Kampen Press, 1954. Cloth, 288 pp. $3.50 (postage 12c).

This is a reprint of "A Doctor Without a Country," with additional material. This book is a thrilling narrative of Dr. Thomas Lambie, medical doctor, who brought the Gospel to the Anglo-Sudan and eventually Abyssinia. The final chapters concern his building and directing the Berachah Tuberculosis Sanitorium in Bethlehem, Hashemite of the Jordan. This is an excellent volume to challenge young people with the needs of the foreign-mission field.

SPIRITUAL HOME TRAINING FOR THE CHILD. By Larry Lorenson. Moody Press, 1954. Cloth, 144 pp. $2.25 (postage 12c).

This book will provide a source of valuable material for Christian parents to guide them in training their children from infancy through the junior age. It contains practical information about salvation, Christian living, memorization, and giving. The Bible stories, activities, and songs for each age have been carefully selected.

MISSIONS AT THE CROSSROADS. By T. Stanley Soltau. Van Kampen Press, 1954. Cloth, 183 pp. $2.50 (postage 12c).

After 25 years' experience in Korea as a spiritual leader on this mission field, Dr. Soltau offers the suggestion that the only solution to foreign-missionary work is the indigenous church. His arguments show that the indigenous church is the only answer to conditions of war, nationalism, and other problems. The indigenous church is a solution for the unfinished task of the Christian church.

BEST SERMON PICTURES. Compiled by James Gilchrist Lawson. Moody Press. 1954. Cloth, 532 pp. $5.95 (postage 16c).

The book contains 2,935 anecdotes and illustrations appropriate for illustrative material. The book is compiled for ministers, evangelists, Sunday-school teachers, and Christian workers.

THE PERSON AND WORK OF THE HOLY SPIRIT. By Rene Pache. Moody Press, 1954. Cloth, 223 pp. $2.50 (postage 12c).

Inasmuch as the Holy Spirit is the only One who can take the words of Christ and reveal them to us, therefore, we must more fully recognize the person and work of the Holy Spirit in history and at the present time. The author shows the place the Holy Spirit must have in the life of the Christian worker, and that failure will result in any life that ignores the work of the Holy Spirit.

TWELVE SERMONS ON THE PASSION AND DEATH OF CHRIST. By Charles Haddon Spurgeon. Zondervan Publishing House, 1954. Cloth, 152 pp. $2.50 (postage 8c).

C. H. Spurgeon is still known as the "Prince of Preachers" a half century after his death. This book is a compilation of 12 sermons on the subject of the passion and death of Jesus Christ.

ARCHEOLOGY AND THE OLD TESTAMENT. By Merrill F. Unger. Zondervan Publishing House, 1954. Cloth, 339 pp. $4.95 (postage, 16c).

Dr. Unger is professor of Old Testament at Dallas Seminary, and in this book he presents the evidence of recent archeological discoveries which fascinate the student of the Old Testament. The book is well illustrated by nearly 100 pictures of characters, places, and objects of interest. Detailed maps show the Holy Land of Old Testament times. Some of the outstanding chapters deal with Abraham and his age, the period of the Judges, the reign of David, the empire of Solomon, the last years of Judah, and Judah under Persia.

THE LIFE OF OUR LORD UPON THE EARTH. By Samuel J. Andrews. Zondervan Publishing House, 1954. Cloth, 651 pp. $5.95 (postage 16c).

Dr. Herbert Lockyer declared: "No book has ever been written to supersede Andrews' monumental work." The book is a chronological recounting of Christ's earthly life. This work is unique in that every incident in the life of Christ is given an exact date verified by secular history. The scholarly work provides the most comprehensive evidence on the geographical and historical data as related to the life of the Lord Jesus.

NIGHT OF WEEPING. By Horatius Bonar. Moody Press. Cloth, 128 pp. $2 (postage 8c).

The message of this book was written by one of the saintly men of history to those with broken hearts. In reply to the question, "Why?" the author answers the questions of this agelong cry as to the part God has in our problems. Presenting Christ as the supreme answer, souls are encouraged and challenged by this wonderful book.

COMMENTARY ON THE EPISTLE TO THE ROMANS. By Martin Luther. Zondervan Publishing House, 1954. Cloth, 207 pp. $2.95 (postage 12c).

Prior to the time when Luther nailed his famous 95 theses to the door of the castle church at Wittenburg, Luther began lecturing at the University of Wittenburg on Paul's Epistle to the Romans. It was the glorious truth of Romans that gave Luther the peace of mind and heart which he had sought in vain to find in the doctrine, relics, and monasteries of the medieval church. In this book, the most noted leader of the Reformation presents the key to the doctrine of justification by faith. The material is practical and will prove beneficial to all who read.

Portis, Kans.

One hundred and ten persons attended the New Year's Eve banquet conducted in the First Brethren Church. Pastor and Mrs. Dayton Cundiff, from Beaver City, Nebr., were with us. Most of those present were high-school and college age, except for the drivers of the cars which brought the young people from the churches of the district. Two persons confessed Christ as Saviour and 25 rededicated their lives to Christ. The presence of the Holy Spirit was very evident.—Raymond Kettell, pastor.

In Memoriam

MRS. LUTIE KOONTZ, mother of H. W. Koontz, pastor of the Winona Lake (Ind.) Brethren Church, went to be with the Lord on Dec. 13. Funeral services were held at Waynesboro, Pa., on Dec. 15.

JOHN H. FORNWALT, 76, departed from this life suddenly at his home on Jan. 10. Memorial service was conducted at the First Brethren Church, Altoona, Pa.—Donald Rossman, Pastor, North Buffalo Brethren Church, Kittanning, Pa.

Help Brethren Foreign Missions Preach Jesus Christ, The Light of Life in a Dark World

This Foreign-Mission Business

Preaching and teaching the Gospel is the greatest business in all the world. Dividends are payable to the preacher and to the hearer. Our foreign-mission program offers unlimited opportunity for such dividends.

There Are Challenging Prospects

The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church has set its hands to the greatest program of evangelization and expansion in its history. "Its hands," yes, but we are reminded that you who read and respond in this great business are our foreign-mission hands. In our SIX fields—Africa, Argentina, Brazil, France, Hawaii, and Mexico—we now have 89 missionaries, almost 1,000 native and national workers, some 20,000 members of our Brethren churches in foreign lands, and great hosts of people who regularly are hearing the message of the Word of God.

In these SIX fields where some 20,000 people give evidence of being born-again believers there are between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 people within our reach, but unreached. Why unreached? Certainly it is not the fault of those worthy missionaries who are giving their lives in these dark lands. There is only one reason they are unreached—we have too few missionaries and too little equipment and supplies. Just to fill the acute emergency needs in our fields between 12 and 20 additional missionaries should sail for foreign fields during 1955. We do not have sufficient available volunteers whom our board might feel led to appoint to this great work. Our greatest need is for missionary pastors. We will be needing teachers, doctors, nurses—but just now our greatest need in all fields is for missionary pastors.

Success Is Our Problem

We have mentioned this several times recently and have possibly been misunderstood. I am not boasting; I am stating a cold fact. Our appeal is not made on the basis that we are failing in any of our six fields. We are not pleading for more missionaries and more dollars to support them in order to bolster up a crumbling missionary program. Success is actually our problem. One success calls for another. Souls saved call for schools where those saved souls can be taught. One village or city hearing the Gospel makes it incumbent upon us that another may hear. The "open doors" in our fields—and the doors are wide open for the preaching of the Gospel in all of our fields—are like vacuums pulling us in and on. We dare not stop. We must have your help in the matter of giving the greatest offering ever given to foreign missions or it is certain that we will have sinned against these wide-open doors of opportunity.

During the week we received a letter from one of our missionaries. He spoke with respect to his own field—a field which we will not mention, but I wonder whether he may be expressing a great deal of truth relating to all fields. I quote from his letters, as follows: "Don't be misled that revival has come to ——. That is just material for magazines and missionary conferences. Brother, it is tough here, and getting tougher! I'm sick and tired of the emotional and sentimental appeal in missions. Let's face the facts as they are! People aren't hungering and thirsting after the Gospel. Millions aren't waiting to hear the good news. On the contrary, they don't want to hear and they want us to go home and leave them alone. There are a few chosen ones we are trying to reach and we have to hunt to find them. Praise the Lord that He knoweth them that are His!"

It's Expensive Business

Yes; foreign missions is expensive business. The missionaries receive a very, very modest allowance, but everything that the missionary has and every tool he uses costs terribly. Thousands upon thousands of miles of travel, homes, residences, medical bills, education of children, buildings, automobiles—all of these cost much. Any one item costs at least twice as much as one would pay for the same item in the local retail store. But someone may say: "Do the missionaries need so many things? The early missionaries didn't have them." Well, let's take automobiles as an example. Are they needed? Permit me to say that a missionary may be caring for a territory 200 miles long and 100 miles wide. Do you need your automobile here at home? I want to bear my testimony that every missionary family needs to have an automobile at their disposal much more greatly than the vast majority of us need them here at home.

Our missionaries have presented themselves. They have cut away from every tie in the homeland. They will have no basis of support for themselves and their families if we fail them. Tools, the kind of tools they need—whether Bibles, printing presses, or automobiles—are necessary if the missionary is to have his services multiplied many times over. God has never failed! He never will! Our missionary-minded Brethren people have never yet failed this great missionary family. I trust we will never fail them.

But, It's Economical Business

According to printed reports from last year, we have only a very few less members of Brethren churches in foreign lands than here in the United States. A total of 1,700 were baptized and received into our foreign churches last year and 1,400 here at home. FOUR to SIX times as many people heard the Gospel in foreign lands through our missionaries there as heard through our agencies in the United States. Yet last year we spent only about $224,000 in our entire foreign-missionary program, while our Brethren churches in the homeland, not counting gifts to missionary, educational, or benevolent purposes, spent about $1,400,000.

I hasten to assure you that I believe the money spent

Let's Give Generously, BUT WISELY

(Note—This article is used by permission of the Alliance Weekly.)

The amount of money wasted in religious work each year can, of course, never be accurately computed, but it must run into millions of dollars in the United States alone.

One of the liabilities of our free Protestant system is the absence of effective checks to prevent irresponsible persons from launching into any religious venture they see fit and appealing to the Christian public to pay their bills. The result of this kind of freedom is that racketeering has long ago invaded the field of religion and countless numbers of self-anointed prophets are living high at the expense of the saints.

I do not here have in mind the huge amounts of money spent to propagate the many false cults that are flourishing like lush weeds in our rich American soil. I confine my considerations to that area of religious activity which passes for New Testament Christianity. The facts indicate that all is not well even there.

A number of factors have combined in recent years to encourage irregularities in the field of religious work and to make it possible for disreputable persons to grow fat at the expense of the generous Christian public. First and most important is the extraordinary financial prosperity which the nation now enjoys. Almost everyone these days has plenty of money to donate to religious and charitable purposes, and it is not human nature to permit such a rich bonanza to lie untouched when it is so easy to latch onto large chunks of it by launching some religious enterprise and calling upon good people to support it.

Another factor is the amazing speed of transportation and communication which modern science has made available to all. The printing press, our rapid mail service, the radio, the movie, and the now-popular religious drama have made it possible to reach the Christian public with mass appeals for money with complete assurance that those appeals will bring in handsome amounts of the coveted green stuff. Many of these appeals are accompanied by bold claims of unusual faith. One gets the impression that these valiant warriors are ready to step into any arena and do battle with the enemies of the Lord with nothing to protect them but the shining shield of faith. The blunt fact is that most of these bold adventures are based upon nothing more spiritual than a shrewd knowledge of the proved generosity of God's people.

It is to the everlasting credit of God's children that they can be moved to sacrificial giving by a touching story or the sight of human suffering. It is only necessary to fly around the world and return with pictures of human misery, and God's dear sheep will promptly go down on their hunkers and permit themselves to be sheared down to the skin by persons morally unworthy to clean out the sheep pen. The tenderhearted saints think with their feelings and pour out consecrated wealth indiscriminately on projects wholly unworthy of their support. Most Christians are hesitant to question the honesty of anyone who says complimentary things about the Lord and perspires when he preaches. To such they give vast amounts of money and never ask for nor expect an accounting. This speaks well for their hearts but does not say too much in favor of their spiritual discernment.

There are three fields especially in which disreputable persons work today to extract money from the Christian public. They are Jewish work, evangelism, and foreign missions.

All of these are legitimate, even sacred activities, and in all of them good and self-sacrificing men are quietly doing the work of the Lord, piling up spiritual treasures against the day when God shall search the motives of all men. These three fields of Christian endeavor deserve the constant prayers and the generous support of praying saints everywhere. Leaders in these fields, when they are honest and legitimate, will not object to examination. They will rather insist upon rendering an accounting to the generous friends who make possible the work they are doing. Their books will be audited and their reports published. They will live modestly and tell the public frankly how much they require to support themselves and their families. The whole atmosphere surrounding their finances will be sweet, clear, and transparent. Such and only such are worthy of support. All other claimants should be summarily rejected.

Knowing how sensitive we Americans are about our right to decide when and where we shall give and whom we shall support, I do not expect my readers to take this admonition lying down. I am prepared to be told that I am interfering in matters that do not concern me. My answer is that I personally know that there are scores of godly pastors who privately deplore the exploitation of God's people by disreputable persons, but who are too timid to say so publicly. Fools rush in where angels fear to tread, and if these angels will not speak up to protect the saints, then someone less fearful (if less angelic) must do so.

Furthermore, we must all make an accounting to God for our disposal of the wealth we enjoy. Giving to further dishonest projects is wasting God's money, and in the great day we will tell God why we did it. It will pay us to use a lot of prayerful caution before we make our gifts. Let us not give less, but let us give more wisely. We'll be glad we did some day.—A. W. Tozer.

FACTS ABOUT FRANCE

France has well over 40,000,000 people who are in need of the message of Christ. There are 37,989 cities, towns, and communities said to be without any real gospel testimony. There are about 7,000,000 practicing Catholics, with most French people Catholic in thinking and training. There are only about 700,000 nominal Protestants, with only a few thousand who seem to understand the gospel message.

Miss Dorothy Robinson

Mexico Gains a Worker

In June of 1954 Miss Dorothy Robinson joined our missionary family and is serving with the Haag family in the San Ysidro-Tijuana area. She accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as her personal Saviour in early childhood and from then on, by one means or another, the Lord seemed to place before her the spiritual need of Spanish-speaking peoples.

When Miss Robinson was about 10 years old, the family moved from Long Beach to La Verne, Calif., and La Verne has been "home" to her ever since. She is a member of the First Brethren Church of La Verne, where she taught in the Sunday school and aided in DVBS work.

Miss Robinson attended Pomona College and La Verne College, receiving her B. A. degree from the latter. Following college graduation she took a one-year course in the Riverside Library School. For a few years one activity succeeded another, but all pointed to missionary service for Him. During these years she learned to read and speak the Spanish language, mostly through self-study. Working in the Mexican church in La Verne and later in Tijuana, Mexico, gave her practice in Spanish, as well as opportunities to witness for Christ.

In May of 1953 Miss Robinson received her Master of Religious Education degree from Grace Theological Seminary. Her master's thesis, for which she did considerable research, was on the subject of "The Indigenous Church." Again, moving only as the Lord led, she returned to Grace Seminary in the fall of 1953 for a year of graduate study. It was following the close of this school year that she became a part of our work in Mexico. During the summer months of 1954 she went with the Haags on an evangelistic trip down the Baja California peninsula. She is now teaching in our Mexican Bible Institute and expresses her Christian purpose as follows:

"My desire is that the Mexican people should have a chance to know Christ as Saviour and Lord of their lives. I not only want to bring individuals to know Him, but I believe they should be gathered together into local bodies of the church of Jesus Christ which, as a living organism, should be fed until able to feed itself; it should be encouraged to govern itself, support itself, and propagate itself. Through the power of God, and the instrumentality of the Mexican people, I do not see why the message of redeeming grace should not be spread throughout all of Mexico and beyond."

SOME GOOD NEWS FROM ICORACI, BRAZIL

The young fellow who was to go to school with Raimundo, but didn't because he had applied for enlistment in the navy, has decided against filling out the final enlistment papers and will probably be leaving shortly to enter the second term of Bible school with Raimundo. There is another young man who also desires to go. We definitely prayed that God would speak to young men in our church and lead them into full-time service. Immediately these two presented themselves without any pressure from us. Truly our God answers prayer.

We are beginning our day school immediately. We certainly hadn't planned to, but circumstances have made it a necessity. Some of our members came to me recently and asked if there wasn't something we could do about their children. The priest appears in the public school every week and our believers are having a hard time because they refuse to sit in on his teaching. Therefore, we are starting a school just for the people of our church. It will be held in the Agulha chapel because that is closer to the majority of children and will be a minimum of expense. We have a Christian teacher and about 25 children enrolled.—John W. Zielasko.

OPERATION DODGE

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY — PART I

Hi, folks! Did you see my picture in the Herald? Don't I look spiffy? And my boss says I drive better than I look.

That was sure some send-off for a trip to Africa—that celebration in the Cherry Valley Brethren Church. It was a thrill to be there that last Sunday of the contest and to feel that moment of suspense while everybody was wondering whether I would make it all the way to the coast of Africa.

At least I imagine it must have been a thrill when I read about it in the Herald of August 7, 1954. But I was not really there. I was never near the Cherry Valley Brethren Church. I was never west of Detroit. But how about that life-size photo, you ask, right by the front door, with the sign "Cherry Valley Brethren Church" in the background?

Sh! Sh! Don't you tell a soul. I will let you in on a deep dark secret. That was a twin sister of mine. And she was not even an identical twin at that. She was a lady. And me? I am very husky and masculine.

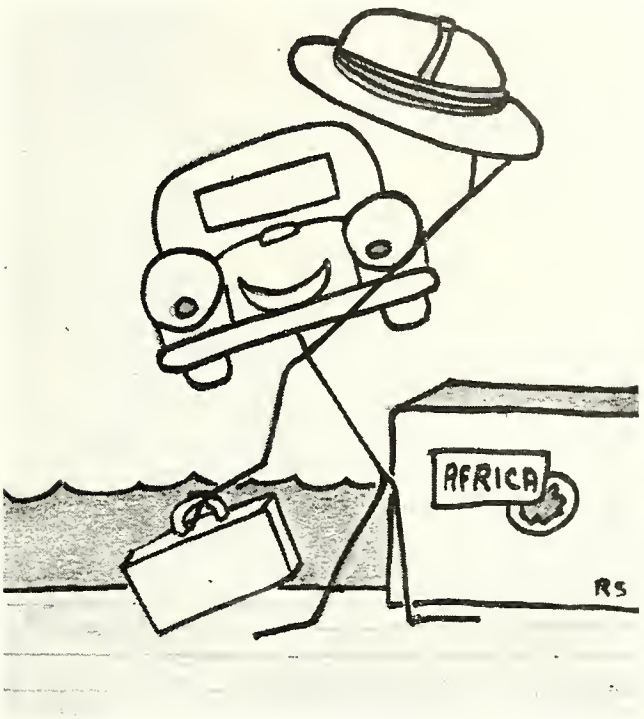
She has only a three-speed transmission like a luxury touring car. I have a heavy-duty four-speed, just like a big truck. She has light-weight 15-inch wheels, while I have 16-inch with 7:50 eight-ply tires all around. My speedometer runs 60 percent faster than hers, for it is in kilometers. She has namby-pamby weak springs made for riding on paved highways, while mine are made to carry a ton and a quarter over the bumps and holes of African roads without even bending down flat.

So, you see, you were all the victims of a hoax.

And I don't know any more about that celebration at Cherry Valley than you do. But it really did give me a thrill to read about it and see my picture there by proxy. Now I know something of what sacrifice went into buying me, and I am going to do my dead level best to do an honest kilometer for every kilometer of African road, be it rutty, muddy, or sandy.

As I have told you several times, I thought that Cherry Valley windup was really thrilling, until I actually started on my way to Africa. Then everything in the past seemed tame by comparison.

I'll tell you about the trip some other time. In the meantime, just one remark about my name—it is quite a coincidence they dubbed me OPERATION DODGE, for I am really turning out to be a medical Dodge. My boss is a missionary doctor, and it is my job to carry him around the country under all sorts of exciting circumstances.



So you are beginning to see that my California Sis can be proud of her African relationship.

Yours bumpily,

OPERATION DODGE.

for and by our Brethren churches in the United States is money well spent. That this is true is evidenced by the great blessing of the Lord in our whole program of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. I make these comparisons only to be able to say—FOREIGN MISSIONS IS ACTUALLY VERY ECONOMICAL BUSINESS. I feel every Brethren ought to have this information, since you probably have often heard the statement rather harshly made, "Foreign missions cost too much."

Use the Next FOUR Months

February, March, April, and May are thought of as foreign-mission months throughout the Brethren Church. Let us determine that during these FOUR months our foreign-missionary program will have its needs supplied. Week by week is the easy way to give large offerings. But whether you give week by week, or in one large gift at the time of your own choosing, let us covenant together to send out new missionaries this year, to meet all the needs of our missionaries, and to supply the necessary tools and equipment so that our missionaries may do the best job possible.

To Help in Witnessing to 100,000

By DR. ORVILLE D. JOBSON

The Brethren Church has been acquainted with the name of the city of Bangui ever since our pioneer missionaries came to Bangui in 1918. Bangui is the capital of the territory to which these pioneers, led of God, came to evangelize. Pioneer Gribble saw Bangui for the first time early in 1921 when he visited the governor to obtain permission to establish our first mission station at Bassai. At that time there was no established Protestant testimony in the city. Through the years Bangui has been kept before our Fellowship because it appears on the addresses of all our mission stations in Oubangui-Chari. Beginning with the Jobsons and Miss Myers, all of our early missionaries arrived in Bangui before beginning the long 250-mile trek into the interior. For many years all of the missionaries' outfits and mission freight were cleared through the customs at Bangui.

A Great City

Today all of our missionaries arrive in Bangui by plane from Paris and leave for furlough from Bangui. Next to the towns of Oubangui-Chari where our mission stations are located, the most familiar place in our territory is the capital city of Bangui. Here we come to do our local buying and care for our banking business. Here we contact the general administrative offices of the government. And here we bring our missionaries and Africans who need medical care which we cannot provide at our medical center.

Bangui is now a great city of approximately 100,000 Africans and 2,000 Europeans. The heart of the city is dotted with imposing government and municipal buildings. There are the city hall, the post office, the chamber of commerce, the treasury, and the college—all recently built and providing spacious accommodations for these services. There are several banks and one, recently erected, is the last word in modern architecture. Commercial houses vie with each other in building larger and more modern plants. The important streets and avenues are now paved with black top and, being a strategic air center, Bangui boasts of a modern airfield sufficiently large to accommodate Constellations.

Why a Brethren Testimony

The building fling and modern extension has provided employment to thousands of Africans, resulting in a steady stream of bush natives flowing into the "Utopia" of central Africa. Villages have sprung up everywhere. Being tribal conscious these people have created villages inhabited by those of the same tribe. Thus we have the "Karre" village, the "Gbaya" village, and others. These groups are recognized by the administration and chiefs are appointed from their own groups.

Our sister mission consisting of independent American Baptists, orthodox and fundamental, also entered Oubangui-Chari in 1921 and located stations inland to the north and east. Early in the thirties this group of missionaries established a station five miles from Bangui and began evangelization of the villages. In those days the population of Bangui was estimated at 35,000.

During the years following World War II, the flow of Africans into Bangui rocketed the population to the present figure of 100,000. Thousands of these people have come from the sections of Oubangui-Chari where our Brethren mission stations are located. Hundreds of them are either members or attended prebaptismal classes. Many of them found a spiritual home with our sister mission's church located in suburban Bangui. Others, however, found it difficult to attend because of lack of communication. Busses are a recent introduction to the city.

This state of things led members of our churches, accustomed to our distinctive practices and ordinances, to ask that a Brethren work might be started in Bangui. Such solicitation made an effective appeal and for the third time in two decades we began to consider the possibility of establishing a mission in Bangui. We made it a matter of prayer for some months and this time the Lord led us with no uncertain direction to take speedy action. Field Council, in the annual meeting in December 1953, recommended that we open a station in Bangui proper in 1954. This recommendation was approved by the Foreign Board and steps were taken to secure lots and provide the necessary buildings.

The Work Begins

Two lots, situated in a growing section of the city and very near a large African development, were chosen and we proceeded to secure them for the mission. The Lord's leading at that stage was very marked and later developments have proved beyond any doubt that His hand was with us. The lots join each other and both are on corners. The main street is named Languedoc, after the Protestant province of southern France, and the two side streets are named Flanders and Missions. The continuation of Languedoc Street has been named Avenue de France, along which it is planned to provide lots where Africans can build better homes. The development will provide for 50,000 people. Hundreds of our people will avail themselves of the provisions the government is making for better homes in this section because of its nearness to the mission and church.

There were many problems and much red tape involved before the lots asked for early in the year could be secured and occupied. During the delay our faith was tested and some of us hesitated about going forward. However, in July the missionary pastors and executive committee confirmed our convictions that we should proceed with the original plans. The lots were finally secured in August and in the latter part of September the Balzers pulled their trailer on to the lots and began operations.

Only those who have experienced the details involved in meeting the minute requirements for modern building operations in a growing city can appreciate how exacting such proceedings can be. These were made doubly difficult for us since we had to learn the French way as we went along, but at every turn of the way our faithful Lord raised up men to help and advise. The plans drawn by the Balzers were prepared for blueprinting by Bro. Charles Taber. The contribution of these brethren together with that of the government technical service saved us a minimum of $150 on the plans alone.

As we began purchasing building materials, once again the Lord worked for us. Large discounts were granted by interested individuals and companies, especially by the furnisher of cement blocks used in the construction of the walls. Also, the first five tons of cement were secured for the lowest price we have ever paid for cement in Bangui. These are only examples of the tokens of the Lord to encourage us in the work being undertaken for His glory.

There are three buildings so far under construction—one missionary residence, the missionary guest house for those coming to Bangui, and the general building that will house the garage, office, storeroom, and bookstore. Two of these buildings are now nearing completion.

Further Needs

Mrs. Jobson has reported on the first services in the temporary quarters elsewhere in Bangui (see Herald dated January 1, 1955). Since that report was written we have had the organization of the church, with 128 charter members, and our first communion service.

Our great need now is for permanent meeting quarters. We should have a building large enough to accommodate at least 1,000 people, as the present attendance is already close to that figure. We are planning a building of the tabernacle type. The membership is now being taught tithing in the hope that many of the men who are employed will embrace this opportunity of blessing and thus make possible the needed building. The battle is the Lord's and we are looking to Him. Pray with us for the realization of this needed tabernacle.

From left to right—Building the temporary meeting place; attendance reached 300 the first Sunday, October 31, 1954; an addition was needed for the third Sunday—800 present. (These pictures should have accompanied the article by Mrs. Jobson last month, but did not reach us in time.

DISTRICT MISSIONARY RALLIES

For several years our pastors and churches have been asking for some type of foreign-missionary rallies. At different times such have been arranged in some localities. But now, after many months of planning, we are ready to begin our first series of missionary rallies which, when completed, will have extended into all of our 11 districts. These rallies begin in southern California on February 6, and the scheduled dates for the different rallies are as follows:

February 6-20	Southern California
February 21-27	Northern California
February 28-March 6	Northwest
March 13-20	Southeast
March 21-27	Atlantic
March 28-April 10	East
April 11-17	Southern Ohio
April 18-24	Indiana
April 25-May 1	Northern Ohio
May 2-8	Michigan
May 9-15	Iowa
May 16-22	Midwest

The plan is to spend one week in every district and an additional week in those districts where there are 20 or more Brethren churches. After many contacts, these dates announced seem best for the largest number of churches. We are asking the ministerial groups in the various districts to arrange the detail of the program, and trust we may have the cooperation of all of our Brethren churches unless there is some prior preventing engagement.

We shall try to supply a minimum of FOUR foreign-missionary speakers in every district, and more speakers when possible. We will do our best to have the largest possible number of fields represented, but must bear in mind that some fields do not have missionaries on furlough at this season.

"Why, I'm Back in Africa!"

By MISS MARY CRIPE, Bekoro

The plane left the runway at the Bourget airport in France and we went up, up, up through the clouds as the last lap of the journey to Africa was begun. As I sat and looked out the window, even though this wasn't my first trip to Africa, it seemed that I couldn't remember what the country looked like or what the people were like. This disturbed me a little, so I waited anxiously for the first glimpse of Bangui as we came down.

Then we were out in the hot air and the missionaries who came to meet us were crowding around, embracing us, laughing, talking, and shedding a few tears all at the same time. We are like one big family out here, and what one person does is important to the rest, and so, as we told who died, who was born, who were engaged, who married, I knew I was back.

Later, after we had eaten our noon meal and the sun was blazing down in all its fury, we all by common consent took our noon siesta. As I lay there, halfway between sleep and consciousness, I thought, "I've been wanting to do this for a long time." And my last thoughts as I drifted off were, "Why, I'm back in Africa!"

There are many villages on the road from Bangui to Bozoum and each one brought sights with which I was familiar. There were the little children who still thought of the automobile as a novelty and came running out to wave at us as we went by—the women with their baskets of food or waterpots on their heads, chattering like a bunch of magpies as they scampered out of the road—the men sitting contentedly in their chaises longues while the women bent over a fire stirring handfuls of manioc flour into a pot of boiling water—yes; these sights were all familiar to me and made me know that I had arrived in Africa.

Bumping along over the rough African dirt roads exercises a few muscles not ordinarily used, and the dirt as it sifts in through the windows soon makes everything a lovely red. Now and then we came to a spot in the road that was rougher than usual and, even slowing down as much as possible, we were almost bounced to the ceiling. Suddenly, as we rounded a curve in the road, we came upon a bunch of natives waving, pointing down the road, and shouting something about a truck. A few yards farther we came upon the overturned truck. Broken glass and confusion were very much in evidence and along the side of the road lay a young boy who had received a broken leg when the truck turned over. As Dot Beaver and I tried to fix an improvised splint for the broken leg and made room for him in the back of the pickup to take him to Bozoum, the great need of the people struck me anew and made me realize that I was back in Africa amidst a needy people.

A good sense of smell is supposed to be an asset, but there are times in Africa when it has its disadvantages. We had been riding for several hours when we passed a waterhole where the women were soaking their manioc. Right then I wouldn't have cared if my nose had been plugged up. Also, as you pass villages where the remains of a cow, antelope, or elephant—which have been dead for a while—are in evidence, you know for sure that you're back in Africa. Your nose tells you that.

But I think that the greatest sense of being back in Africa came when I finally arrived at the Bekoro station. Although it was at night, people came streaming from all directions to shake hands, put their hands over their mouths, and tell you that the food must be really good in your village because of all the weight you had gained. Then, as the native Christians lifted their voices in thanksgiving to God for keeping us on the road, for bringing us back to them, and for making us one tribe in the Lord Jesus, a great happiness welled up within me. Yes; I was back in Africa, and I knew that I didn't want to be anywhere else, because I was where the Lord wanted me, and where He had called me to serve Him.

NEED IN ARGENTINA

Argentina, physically speaking, extends from the Torrid Zone almost to the Antarctic Circle. Temperatures vary accordingly, with a large part being temperate and pleasant. Spiritually speaking, the temperature range is just as great, with so very large a part of the people living in the frigid and indifferent zone. There are 18,000,000 people in all of Argentina, with about one-fourth of them living in the greater Buenos Aires area. We have just TWO missionary families in that area. There are many other gospel testimonies in the Buenos Aires area, but we could place all of our 89 missionaries from all fields in this one metropolitan area and still not occupy all the spiritually needy places.

LIBERTY TO PREACH IN OUR FIELDS

China is said to be almost completely closed to the enterprise of Christian missions. In all SIX of our mission fields there is liberty to preach the Gospel, and in all save one we would say, "The door is wide open." What a challenge to our Brethren people to give and go and pray!

"Service is good when He asks it,
Labor is right in its place,
But there is one thing better,
Looking up into His face."

AKRON, OHIO. The First Brethren Church had an 11.9 percent increase in the morning worship, 14.2 percent in the evening service, and a 7.9 percent increase in Sunday school during 1954 over 1953. On Dec. 19, 340 persons were present for the morning service. There have been seven first-time decisions on three recent Sundays.

PORTLAND, OREG. Vernon Harris, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church, was guest speaker at the Multnomah Chapel on Jan. 9, and at the Seaside Youth for Christ Jan. 15.

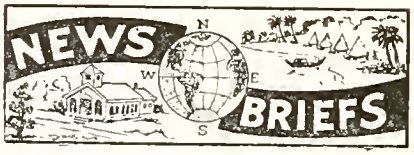
SPECIAL. According to C. S. Zimmerman, national statistician, the district statistical reports should have been mailed to the district statisticians Feb. 1. Church secretaries are requested to check on this.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Attending the Grace Bible Conference Jan. 17-20, sponsored by Grace Seminary Alumni Association, were ministers from Indiana, Ohio, Maryland, Iowa, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Michigan, Washington, D. C., and even from Africa. Dr. C. W. Mayes delivered the first series of the annual Bauman Memorial Lectures.

DAYTON, OHIO. Rev. and Mrs. George W. Kinzie celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Feb. 19. Brother Kinzie has retired from the ministry after many years of active service.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. Mr. and Mrs. George Kashishian, members of the First Brethren Church, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 10.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. Seven Brethren churches of the Altoona area united here in a rousing "Singspiration" on Dec. 3.



ALTOONA, PA. The Altoona Youth for Christ meeting was held at the First Brethren Church Jan. 15.

ROANOKE, VA. The largest Southeast District youth rally in recent years was held Jan. 7-8 at the Washington Heights Brethren Church, 147 being present.

RITTMAN, OHIO. The average attendance at the First Brethren Church for 1954 was 141 for the morning worship and 94 for the evening service. The church is considering the completion of their new Sunday-school unit. Charles Ashman, Jr., is pastor.

AKRON, OHIO. The Northern Ohio District WMC rally was held at the First Brethren Church on Jan. 24. Mrs. Freda Kliever was the guest speaker.

WOOSTER, OHIO. The First Brethren Church has voted to continue "Your Morning Devotions," a daily radio ministry which has been on the air for many years. Brethren in this area of Ohio are urged to tune in this program each morning over WWST. Kenneth Ashman is pastor.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. The Atlantic District men's meeting was held at the Third Brethren Church on Jan. 29. Rev. Andrew Telford was the guest speaker.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA. The Atlantic Fellowship of Brethren Churches will convene here May 10-14.

TEMPLE CITY, CALIF. A pastoral reception was held in honor of Rev. and Mrs. John Aeby on Jan. 17 at the Temple City Brethren Church.

WHITTIER, CALIF. Dr. L. W. Duff-Forbes, director of the Jewish Evangelical Witness, was the guest speaker at the Community Brethren Church on Jan. 30. Ward Miller, pastor, was attending the board meeting of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church at Winona Lake, Ind.

FREMONT, OHIO. The Grace Brethren Church Sunday school showed an average gain in attendance of 20.75 percent during 1954 over 1953. Gordon Bracker is pastor.

DAVENPORT, IOWA. The Grace Brethren Church is meeting for regular services in the Lend-A-Hand Building, located at Main and River Streets. There are three services on Sundays, at 10 and 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. True Hunt is pastor.

SEATTLE, WASH. Plans for the new building are nearing completion and construction will be started as soon as possible for the View Ridge Brethren Church. Thomas Hammers is pastor.

FREMONT, OHIO. A new Sunday-school attendance record was set at the Grace Brethren Church on Jan. 9, when 301 were present. Gordon Bracker is pastor. On Jan. 30 Granville Tucker, pastor of the Negro work in this city, was licensed to the Christian ministry.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. (E/P). For the first time in 18 years, Minnesota probation and parole officers have included religion as a subject for discussion at one of their meetings. This was done at a probation and parole institute at the University of Minnesota. According to an editorial in the Minneapolis Star, this "represents a significant and subtle change in the thinking of many engaged in probation and parole work. A few years ago religion would have been dismissed as non-objective, unscientific, emotional, and almost wholly valueless as a technique for working on problems of delinquency." The editorial continued: "But times have changed. There is a growing realization that the warmth and understanding of religion can reach many problems that a cold, detached, 'scientific' manner leaves untouched."

BEER-SHEBA, ISRAEL (E/P). This ancient Biblical town is witnessing the erection of a new seven-story flour mill. The huge concrete structure occupies a 15-acre plot and will have a 40-ton capacity. It will grind a good portion of the flour used in Israel.

SPECIAL NOTICE. The Herald editor received bulletins on Jan. 18, 1955, that were dated Oct. 17 to Jan. 9, all in one package. This happens frequently. It is rather difficult to get "news" from bulletins that are two and three months old. If the "news" is not printed, although it is six weeks old, someone is offended. On the other hand, if we print it, and it is two months old, it appears that we are late with the news. Please send in your announced meetings three weeks in advance of the actual date, and we will assist you in your advertising. It is better to publish a meeting before rather than after it is over. For a two-cent postal card you can get a lot of service. Please discern between local and national news. Readers in California are not particularly interested in who sang a solo at a meeting in South Carolina, but they are interested in "news" that affects them or the brotherhood as a whole. You can help us by forwarding news releases well in advance. Thank you.

Let's Go to National Conference!

PORTLAND, OREGON AUGUST 10-17

Go west, Brethren, go west!

Here is an opportunity for many of you to make two dreams come true: first, to attend a Brethren National Fellowship, and second, to come to the great Northwest. Now is the time to prove whether you are just a dreamer or a doer.

Here are some facts which I hope will help you to decide to come.

Location

The conference will be held at the Jennings Lodge Assembly Grounds, which is owned and operated by the Evangelical United Brethren Church. It is beautifully located on the bank of the Willamette River, just 10 miles south of the center of Portland on U. S. 99E. It covers 18 acres and has majestic fir trees, lovely lawns, and undeveloped areas. On these grounds are located the beautiful Gothic-arched Friesen Chapel, seating 250; Luckel Auditorium, seating 2,000; Koehler Educational Building, with four classrooms; the Keller Hall, with picturesque dining room; Hallauer Hall, and other dormitories, cottages, and other facilities.

Recreation

Provision is made for such activities as tennis, shuffleboard, swimming, boating, softball, volleyball, skating and horseshoes.

There are many points of interest to see in the city of Portland. Then everyone should get up to Mount Hood and Timberline Lodge, Multnomah Falls, and drive on at least part of the scenic Columbia River Highway. Portland is just about 80 miles from the rugged and inspiring shores of the Pacific Ocean.

It is hoped that many will be able to allow themselves sufficient additional vacation time to enjoy the mountains, lakes, streams, and excellent camping facilities in both Oregon and Washington.

Lodging

1. On the grounds. The better facilities on the grounds have just about all been taken by registrations, which includes the private rooms and cabins. However, for the hardier souls there is an abundance of open dormitory space and tents. The open dorms have a number of beds in large rooms and can be used by the single men or women. In these the single bed is $1.25 per night and the double bed is $1.50.

The 16-x-16 tent built up on a frame platform is $15 and will care for a family of six. Without the platform the same size tent is $10 per week. The 12-x-14 tent for two people is $6 per week.

2. Off the grounds. The very finest accommodations are available off the grounds. Let it be clearly understood that there will be room for everyone who can come.

In West Lynn, Oreg., three miles from the grounds, a very fine 80-room hotel with river view has opened its doors for us at good special daily rates. They are: single rooms, $1.50; double-bed rooms, $2.50; twin-bed rooms, $3; single-bed rooms with bath, $3 and $4; double-bed rooms with bath, $5 to $7. Cots are available for children with their parents. Other hotels are also nearby.

Within a distance of from one to five miles from the grounds, there are 30 motels with from 5 to 20 units in each. They are in just about every size and price range. I found that from half to two-thirds of them have cooking facilities. Two couples can go together in many of them. They are fine for families. Cabins with two double beds and cooking facilities run from $20 to $65 per week, with $30 to $40 being the average. Other sizes are priced proportionately.

Meals

The assembly grounds has a very good dining hall which is capable of feeding 500 people per hour. The prices for meals there will be: breakfast, 65c; lunch, 80c; dinner, $1.

Trailers

There are some fine trailer parks nearby with complete facilities. Trailers can be parked on the grounds, but there are no facilities for their use. However, they can be parked alongside a friend's cabin for electricity and water.

Registration

For further information on lodging or for registration, just write to Jennings Lodge Assembly Grounds, 18113 SE. Morse St., Portland 22, Oreg. No fee is required for pre-registrations. Reservations must be made to save the rooms at the West Lynn Hotel. They also can be made if desired to assure you of the kind of motel you want nearest the grounds.

Transportation

For those desiring to go by commercial airlines, the rates are as follows: First-class round trip from Chicago to Portland is $239.91 (meals included), Tourist round trip, $175.80 (without meals). Family rate on Monday, Tuesday, or Wednesday is half-fare with one first-class ticket. Contact your local airlines.

For those desiring to go by train, we suggest that the following schedule be studied. By leaving on Monday and going on the family plan, prices would be as follows:

	Pullman	Coach
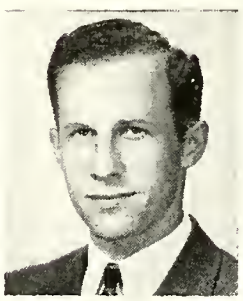
Head of family.....	$126.50	$90.20
Wife accompanying..	82.61	59.02
Children 12-22	82.61	59.02
Children 5-12.....	41.31	29.54
Children under 5....	free
Berth one way lower	23.10
Berth one way upper	17.60

If the railroad company can be guaranteed 48 tickets by coach, or 20 tickets by Pullman, they will reserve an entire car; however, such reservations must be in by MARCH 1. The main requisite on the round-trip ticket is that you go straight to your destination, making all side trips on the return trip, taking as long as six months.



All reservations should be mailed at once to the Brethren Missionary Herald, Box 544, Winona Lake, Ind. If sufficient applications are received, arrangements will be made for the reservation of a car, otherwise announcement will be printed about April 1 indicating if sufficient are interested in the trip. To date 10 have indicated interest in train transportation.

The Northwest has rolled out the carpet for Brethren people everywhere. We hope all of you will come out and walk on it.

THE KINGDOM

By VERNON HARRIS

PASTOR, GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH
PORTLAND, OREG.

ALL YOU HAVE TO DO is to talk to some Jehovah's Witness people to have your interest aroused in the subject of the kingdom. Recently I stood on my front porch for nearly an hour, exposing myself to a cold, talking to two of their ladies. I was also bombarded with calls from others in the church on whom they had called, wanting answers to certain questions. My file and books on the cults got thoroughly passed around. At least some good came out of it—a renewed interest in things future.

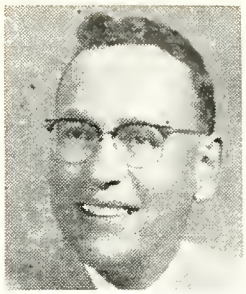
Like nearly every other Bible subject, there are many and varied views on the matter. A popular understanding of the kingdom is that it is the next world, or heaven, where men go at death. The Roman Catholic Church holds that it is the visible organized church. The orthodox Jews are looking for the political and social regime which God's Messiah will establish at His coming. Jehovah's Witness teaching informs us that the stage has already been set for the kingdom because of the return of Christ during World War I.

In the realm of Christendom we find that some spiritualize it, making it nothing more than the rule of God in the hearts of men. Others claim that it is a social and economic reformation that the church will be able to set up on this earth by the efforts of men.

However, all of these emerge miserably inadequate as we examine the tremendous amount of Scripture bearing upon the subject. Two aspects of the kingdom of God become immediately evident. The first is that God the Father always has been and always will be ruler over His dominion, which includes all the created universe (Ps. 10:16; I Chron. 29:11). This is the eternal kingdom. All men, nations, and governments are under His rule. He is the one "who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will" (Eph. 1:11).

The second major distinction on the subject is the literal kingdom prophesied and promised for this earth over which God the Son will rule. This is the earthly kingdom, and is commonly spoken of as the millennium, the "kingdom of heaven," and the kingdom-age. The prophets foretold this kingdom as the time when the earth "shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord." Jesus had this in mind when He told us to pray "thy kingdom come." These are not two separate kingdoms, but the latter is part of the former.

The roots and background for the earthly kingdom are found in God's direct governing of His people through such men as Moses, Joshua, the Judges, Samuel, and the first three kings of the Jews. However, the people refused the word and will of God, and Ezekiel graphically describes the departure of the "Shekinah glory" in chapters 8-11.



Next we hear John the Baptist announcing, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand" (Matt. 3:2). Christ came as the promised King prepared to offer the promised kingdom. Once again they rejected God's offer, crucified the King, and forfeited the kingdom. Now it will not be realized until Jesus Christ comes in power and great glory to completely fulfill the words of the prophets and the dreams of men.

This will be a literal and complete kingdom. Christ will be the king, the inhabitants of the earth will be its subjects, and this world will be its dominion. This kingdom was the theme of all the Old Testament prophets, so much of the information about it is given in the Old Testament. The New Testament only unfolds and interprets their utterances.

Isaiah and Jeremiah make it clear the ruler will be a "shoot out of the stock of Jesse" and "a righteous branch of David." Jeremiah 33:15-22 reveals that this Branch will revive and continue David's kingdom. This is the God-man Christ Jesus. He will be an absolute monarch. For the first time in the world's history it will have a perfect king and a perfect government. President Eisenhower recently said: "The masses of the people are not stupid; only governments are stupid." History is a sad record of foolish governing, with greed and lust for power causing its troubles. There will be no politics in Christ's rule. The opposition party leader, Satan, will be in the "bottomless pit" trying to get free from his chains. All of the Devil's wicked, sinful cohorts in the heavens and on earth will have been judged and eliminated at Christ's return, and cannot enter the millennial kingdom. Thus righteousness and peace will be the fruit of Christ's rule. Every phase of the lives of men—spiritual, ethical, social, economic, physical, political, and ecclesiastical—will be transformed under His omnipotent leadership.

This "golden age" of the world will last for 1,000 years. At the end of this period all those born during the millennium who have rejected the Gospel and are unsaved will join forces with Satan when he is loosed and will compass "the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city," and fire will come down from heaven and devour them (Rev. 20:9). The "lake of fire and brimstone" will be waiting to receive Satan and the wicked dead of all the ages who have appeared before the Great White Throne to be judged, proving once and for all that the "wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). Then the earthly kingdom will merge into the eternal kingdom and Christ will continue to reign at the Father's right hand.

A MYSTERY (I COR. 15:51-53)

By J. WARD TRESSLER

Pastor, Grace Brethren Church
Altoona, Pa.

The imminent return of Christ to take unto himself believers, both living and dead, is one of the fundamental doctrines of the Holy Scriptures. It is to be found in many of our old hymns; it is set before us as the great hope of the church; it is the incentive to Biblical Christianity (orthodoxy); and is the motive for the missionary and evangelistic activity down through the years. If the value of a doctrine were to be judged by the frequency of its mention (more than 300 times in the New Testament, or once in every 25 verses), then the second coming of our Lord would be the most important doctrine in the Word of God.

I Corinthians 15 is concerned with the resurrection of Christ as a proof of our own bodily resurrection. The climax of this chapter is the argument for the resurrection of the dead and the final conclusion of that argument is the coming of our blessed Lord!

"Behold, I shew you a mystery; We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed." The word "mystery" is commonly used in our own day to refer to that which is beyond comprehension or cannot be easily understood. The late Dr. Harry Ironside has said: "A mystery is a secret not known to the generality of the people, but made known to the initiated, and all God's beloved people are looked upon by Him as the initiated ones. The only lodge I have ever joined is 'The Grand Army of the Redeemed.' I was initiated into that by being born again, and then the Holy Spirit conducted me from chair to chair and revealed the mysteries as you have them here in the Word of God."

Scripturally, the word means that which is concealed or hidden but is made known in due time. The resurrection of the dead and the translation of the believer was concealed and hidden in the Old Testament Scriptures until the revelation of Christ. Obscure types and shadows, or prophecies, were merely stepping-stones to the clear revealed truths made known to the believers during the Church Age (since the Day of Pentecost). The doctrine to which the word "mystery" relates may be in itself clear and simple, but it is hidden in mystery until it is made plain.

This word "mystery," used by the Apostle Paul upon the direction of the Holy Spirit, refers to at least three basic facts now made clear to the New Testament saints.

1. The resurrection of the believer will take place when He returns at the time of the rapture: "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming" (I Cor. 15: 22-23). These verses are the proof-text that the body of the believer is to be raised in glory. "It is sown in corruption; it is raised in incorruption . . . it is raised in glory" (I Cor. 15:42-43). As in the case of Christ, the same body that was placed in the garden tomb was brought forth from the dead, so the Scriptures infer not only that the saints shall have bodies, but that these bodies will be an outgrowth or transformation of the very bodies that slept in the dust (Dan. 12:2; I Cor. 15:53-54). As to how God will unite the resurrected body is not mentioned in His Word. However, happy are ye if ye believe these things.

2. The bodies of living believers will be glorified and will be made like the body of our blessed Lord. "For our conversation [citizenship] is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself" (Phil. 3:20-21). More than once we have heard it said, "There is nothing more certain than death or taxes." The burden of taxes may be continually with us, but the Word of God assures us that not all Christians will die. One group of saints will be living when the Lord returns in the rapture, and they will be clothed upon with the glory of immortality without the experience of death. This is vividly illustrated in the translation of Enoch (Gen. 5:24; Heb. 11:5) and of Elijah (II Kings 2:11-18).

3. Finally, the concluding joy that is uncovered here in the Word is a complete Biblical answer to the un-Scriptural theory of what is sometimes called a partial rapture. We are told here that all Christians —all Christians shall be changed, and this will be done in the twinkling of an eye—not part of them, but all of them. Further Biblical proof is found in I Corinthians 3: 16-17 and Ephesians 2:20, which tell us that the church is a temple. Is it possible that any part of the building in which the Spirit dwells be left behind? II Corinthians 11:2 and Ephesians 5:24, 32 indicate that the church is the bride of Christ. Is it possible that some of the bride be not taken in the rapture? Furthermore, if the church is Christ's body —and we believe it is—surely He will not leave a part of His body behind.

Dr. Thiessen tells us: "That all the living believers will be taken at the rapture is no more improbable than that all who have fallen asleep in Christ will be raised at that time." In enumerating the order of the resurrection, Paul tells us: "Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom of God, even the Father" (I Cor. 15:23-24). Notice that "they that are Christ's" are all grouped together as one unit and are all raised at the same time—thus there is no division to be found among them.

The joy of the mystery made plain is that it assures us there will be the blessed reunion in glory of the risen and the glorified followers of Christ (read I Thess. 4:13-18).

THE WORK OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

In the Life of the Believer

THE MOMENT a person passes from spiritual death to spiritual life through saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, a number of wonderful things take place in his life. Often he is not even aware of these, because they occur entirely in the realm of spiritual reality, and are known to us only as we examine the dynamics of salvation as revealed in God's written revelation, the Holy Scriptures.

The Bible clearly teaches that every Christian, no matter how weak or carnal, young or ignorant, has been regenerated by the Holy Spirit, baptized by the Holy Spirit, indwelt by the Holy Spirit, and sealed by the Holy Spirit, as an instantaneous, unmerited, sovereign, irrevokable, gracious act of God, the moment he accepted Christ as his personal Saviour from sin. Perhaps among early Christians there were none quite so weak and carnal (worldly) as those who lived in the notoriously wicked city of Corinth, and yet to these Christians God, speaking through the Apostle Paul, applied the name "saints," and revealed some of the deepest truths concerning the indwelling of the Holy Spirit (I Cor. 6:19) and also His gifts to the church (I Cor. 12).

The Holy Spirit and Salvation

If we are to have any clear concept of what happens to a person when he becomes a Christian, we must understand the meaning of certain terms that describe this momentous event. To be regenerated means to be "born again" (John 3:3-8; I Pet. 1:23), to be spiritually "resurrected" (Rom. 6:13; Eph. 2:5), to be "created" anew (Eph. 2:10; II Cor. 5:17), and thus to have eternal life (John 5:24; I John 5:11-13). To be baptized by the Holy Spirit means to be united and organically joined to the mystical body of Christ, being forevermore perfectly identified with Christ in His death, burial, resurrection, and glory (Rom. 6:3-4; Col. 2:10-12, 19). To be indwelt by the Holy Spirit means that my body has become the actual dwelling place of the Holy Spirit, making me, in a wonderful way, His temple (I Cor. 3:16; 6:19). To be sealed by the Holy Spirit means to be set apart by God as His own possession (Eph. 1:3; 4:30; I Cor. 1:22), and involves the idea of security, safety, ownership, and authority.

In his very valuable volume, "The Holy Spirit: A Comprehensive Study of the Person and Work of the Holy Spirit," Dr. John F. Walvoord, president of Dallas Theological Seminary, analyzes the work of the Holy Spirit in salvation in the fourfold aspect presented above. None of these acts of God in behalf of the believer can be felt or experienced in themselves, but the experience of joy and inward peace follows as the new-born Christian begins to realize that "old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17).

A rather faint illustration of this might be the cancer patient who awakens from a general anesthesia to discover that the source of his troubles, the cancer, is gone, but he had no experience whatever of the surgeon's operation that brought about this new condition in his body. Having faith in the surgeon's skill and wisdom, he came willingly to him, and submitted his body to the operation. But the surgeon did the work, and that without the conscious help or ingenuity of the patient. Salvation is a supernatural act of God which accompanies our faith in the saving work of Jesus Christ upon the cross, and is not a process by which we somehow change our ways and thus become acceptable to Him.

The Holy Spirit and Christian Living

Turning our attention now from the work of the Holy Spirit in the salvation of the believer, we must now consider briefly the work of the Holy Spirit in the life of the believer. Two definite types of experience for the believer in his relationship to the Holy Spirit are presented clearly in the Bible. One concerns spiritual gifts, and the other is the filling of the Holy Spirit. But whereas every believer at the moment of salvation is regenerated, baptized, indwelt, and sealed by the Holy Spirit, the same is not true for spiritual gifts and Spirit-filling. Spiritual gifts, according to I Corinthians 12-14, Romans 12:3-8, and Ephesians 4:4-16, are given by God to every believer, but they differ in nature and extent. While one Christian may have the gift of teaching, others may have the gifts of ministering, administration, evangelism, faith, giving, or exhortation, and that in different degrees as the sovereign and gracious Saviour may please. The purpose of such gifts is fully described in Ephesians 4:12-15.

One of the questions that is often raised concerning spiritual gifts is whether or not the special gifts of the apostolic age (A. D. 30-90), such as prophecy, miracles, healing, and tongues, are still to be sought and expected among Christians today. The Book of Acts and the Epistles to the Corinthians show us clearly that such special gifts were granted by God to early Christians, but it is also clear that these gifts served a special purpose in that age which is no longer needful. Before the New Testament was completed (c. A. D. 90), prophets were needed to proclaim God's authoritative Word to the people, and miracles were needed to substantiate the message of true apostles and prophets as opposed to false ones. But the same passage of I Corinthians that describes those unusual gifts also contains the prediction that they would cease (I Cor. 13:8-10). The fact that no genuine case of such miraculous gifts has been witnessed since the first century confirms the conclusion that

Are You Really Happy?

By FLOYD BOCK
Layman of Osceola, Ind.

Are you really happy? You can be if you know for sure, every minute of every day, that you are going to heaven. The Bible teaches in John 14:3 that heaven is a real place. The Bible teaches that the only way to God is through Jesus Christ, God's Son (I Tim. 2:5). The Bible teaches that eternal life is a gift given to us through Jesus Christ (Rom. 6:23). The Bible teaches that we cannot earn salvation by the things we do, but that we are saved by grace plus nothing, which is simply God's favor which we do not deserve. We are not saved by trying to keep the Ten Commandments, because living under them is a curse, according to Galatians 3:10-13.

Only once in the Bible is the question asked, "What must I do to be saved?" The answer is plain. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:30-31). The Bible assures us that God loved us so much that He permitted Jesus to die on the cross in our place, so that we could live eternally, if we believed on Him. Jesus teaches in John 3:3-6 that we must be born again spiritually if we desire to go to heaven. We are born in our earthly families by physical birth, and Jesus declared that we must be born into God's spiritual family. When we receive Christ as our personal Saviour we become the sons of God according to John 1:11-13. The spiritual birth is not a slow process of development, as many believe, but rather it is an instantaneous act.

The new birth is like the physical birth in almost every respect. Just as one cannot remove himself from the earthly family, so we are "born for keeps" into the family of God.

Many people put their trust in things other than the person of Christ Jesus, and the fact is, they have never been born again. Many church members have been baptized who have never repented of their sins, and as a result do not know what it means to be saved.

When we are born again by the Holy Spirit of God, we are sealed until the day of redemption (Eph. 1:12-14). God is surely not an "Indian giver." When He gives eternal life, it simply means that it is ours for eternity (John 10:28-29). What a blessed truth to know that we are held in Christ's hand from beneath and the Father's hand is over us, Held by such hands, we can truly know that we are saved. Thank God we don't have to hold ourselves in God's family (I John 5:13). If you know these truths as your very own, you can be happy in Christ. Are you really happy?

they were temporary and for a special purpose only.

Perhaps the most vital concern of the Christian today should be the matter of the filling of the Holy Spirit. He cannot control the number or type of spiritual gifts he may possess, but he can and must obey the command of the Scriptures to be filled with the Holy Spirit (Eph. 5:18). This means simply that the believer should allow no sin of thought or practice to hinder the full control of God's Holy Spirit in his life. As the Bible puts it, we must neither "quench" the Spirit (I Thess. 5:19), nor "grieve" the Spirit (Eph. 4:30), but rather "walk by the Spirit" (Gal. 5:16). While being fully aware of the fact that in this life we are never sinless (I John 1:8, 10), we must also remember that willful continuation in sinful ways makes it impossible for God and the Holy Spirit to use us for the greater blessing of ourselves and others. Furthermore, such sins will be dealt with at the judgment seat of Christ (I Cor. 3:12-15; Rom. 14:10).

Your Baby and GOD'S TOO

by MRS. ALTHEA MILLER

"LO, CHILDREN ARE AN HERITAGE OF THE LORD:" Psalm 127:3a

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Pray that during our four months, February, March, April, and May, we will present an abundant and sufficient foreign-mission offering.

2. Pray for our foreign-mission rallies, beginning in southern California on February 4, and continuing thereafter in all 11 of our districts (see schedule on page —).

3. Pray for the two Brethren day schools being opened, the one at Macapa and the other at Icoraci, Brazil, and pray for the Christian Brazilian teachers.

4. Pray for the regular schedule of services now begun in our newly acquired meeting place in Lyon, France. Pray for many decisions for Christ.

5. Pray for the early completion of our building projects at Bangui, Africa, and for the 1,000 or more now attending, that a suitable permanent meeting place may be arranged.

6. Pray for Bro. Walter Haag and some Mexican Bible Institute students as they spend February in Baja California in an evangelistic tour, and for Bro. Roy Howard as he spends the same month in the same type of work on the Sonora Coast in Mexico.

7. Pray for Brother and Sister Tresise as they return to Hawaii, and that upon their return suitable employment may be had. They returned to the States because of the illness and death of Bro. Tresise's mother.

8. Pray for our Argentine pastors as they carry the heavy pastoral responsibilities in our congregations there, and for our missionaries as they seek to assist in stabilizing groups of believers, some in the larger cities.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Praise God for providing finances to complete the Jenners Brethren Church, and pray that the building will be finished soon.

2. Pray for a number of visitors attending the Cedar Rapids church, that they might be led to Christ and then to join in the work.

3. Pray for wisdom in the matter of relocating the Cheyenne, Wyo., church, and also for the sale of the present location.

4. Pray for the consummation of the purchase of the property in Elyria, Ohio, and for plans to build a new church.

5. Pray for the Home Mission Workshop to be held in Chico, Calif., on Feb. 22, 23, 24.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Praise the Lord for the offering of more than $6,000 which was given during December through the monthly plan, and pray that the Lord will lay participation in this plan upon the hearts of more Brethren people.

2. Praise the Lord for the new students who have entered school the second semester, and pray that they may become adjusted to the work of the school.

3. Pray for the seniors in both seminary and college that they may complete their work successfully and that they may be guided as to their future plans.

4. Pray for the health of Dr. McClain that he may be able to complete his ministry of writing.

5. Pray for Christian high-school students all over America, that the Lord may direct many of them to Grace College.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE—

1. Pray for Crusade Team One in the meeting in Fillmore, Calif., Feb. 6-20.

2. Pray for Crusade Team Two in the meeting in Roanoke, Va., Feb. 1-13.

3. Pray for a generous offering for the Crusade on Evangelism Sunday, Feb. 27, that we may launch out on the full program into which the Lord is leading the Board of Evangelism.

4. Praise the Lord for the backing of the National Fellowship of Brethren Laymen.

5. Praise the Lord for a good number of decisions already in 1955 meetings.

WMC (by California District)—

1. Pray that our people will get the vision of the fields ready for harvest.

2. Pray for the largest foreign-missionary offering we have ever had.

3. Pray for our Sisterhood patronesses and girls.

SMM (by Northern Ohio District)—

1. Continue to pray for our national, district, and local officers that they might be a real blessing to SMM.

2. Pray for each SMM girl that she might be a real testimony for her Lord, and that through her other girls may find Christ.

3. Pray for Gail Jones and our national project—the Bassai dispensary and microscope which is badly needed.

4. Pray for the Northern Ohio District rally in April. This will be the time for election of officers. The speaker will be Freda Kliever, who is on furlough from Africa.

BYF—

1. Thank the Lord for the generous response to the BYF home-mission project, supplying teachers for DVBS in mission points.

2. Thank the Lord for the renewed interest being manifest among our districts in respect to youth endeavors.

3. Thank the Lord for the large number of Brethren young people in preparation for full-time service, at colleges, Bible schools, universities, and seminaries.

4. Praise the Lord for the large number of fine Brethren young people who faithfully serve in the home churches.

5. Pray that our young people shall be more separated from the world, more consecrated to the Lord.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

1. Pray for the leading of the Lord as the many details are encountered in the preparation of the plans for the new denominational office building, to be built by the Brethren Missionary Herald.

2. Pray for the editor as he travels among the churches on the Pacific coast Feb. 20-Mar. 13.

WATCHFULNESS

By HAZEL LANDRUM

Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit ye like men, be strong" (I Cor. 16:13).

In Matthew we read the parable of the ten virgins. All of them were watching for the bridegroom. Five were ready and waiting with their lamps filled and trimmed, while the other five were sleeping and neglectful. If we are to he effective Christians, we must be wide awake and watchful in all things. In this article we will consider three aspects of watchfulness—watchfulness in step, supplication, and service. Watchfulness is something that we practice every day in practically all our activity. As we drive a car there must be alertness all the time to avoid trouble. We watch the clock to keep our schedule so that we will always be on time. We watch our little ones to keep them out of danger.

Watchfulness in Step

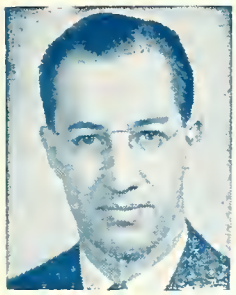
In Ephesians 5:15 Paul says, "Watch your step," in these words: "See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools [unwise] but as wise." If we are to walk accurately or exactly as the word signifies, it will take much watchfulness. Circumspect walking requires true wisdom. Any other kind would be foolish on our part. If we are to walk in the right way, we must frequently consult our guide and the directions we have in the Bible, God's Word. We are not to walk as fools, who may walk in many directions and who do not understand what they are to do, or the preciousness of their souls. They through their own neglect and need of care fall into sin and destroy themselves. So let us walk as wise persons taught of God and endued with wisdom from above.

Watchfulness in Supplication

"Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints" (Eph. 6:18). "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving" (Col. 4:2).

Our best defense against spiritual enemies is prayer. We are to ask God's help and assistance when needed—praying always. "Pray without ceasing" (II Thess. 5:17). Not as though we are to do nothing else but pray, for there are other services that must be done. We can pray at all times for others and ourselves, having an attitude of prayer always, remembering to pray for the lost that they might be saved, and for missionaries that they may be given wisdom and souls. None are in so good condition but that they need our prayers and ought to have them. As we pray, our praise and thanksgiving should be spontaneous for God's grace and goodness to us. Careful watching will keep our hearts always ready for prayer, be it praise, guidance, or thanksgiving. When God says, "Seek my face," this we can do and should want to do faithfully. No matter what may happen in our outward circumstances we can still pray. "Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak" (Mark 14:38). Let us watch that we fail not in all aspects of our prayer life. Guard your time spent with the Lord as a precious jewel.

Watchfulness in Service



History tells us that during the Revolutionary War the minute-men took their guns along to the fields, so they would be ready to serve their country on a minute's notice. Although working, they were watching. Even though we are working, we can be watching and ready for service. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service" (Rom. 12:1). Our part is to present ourselves to the Lord, and He will show us where we are to serve. No matter how large or small a service is, it is to be done faithfully. God has a place for each of us and no one can fill another's place. He has given each person different talents. Some people have more talents than others, but He expects each person to use his talent or talents to the best of his ability. Christ very effectively pictured this in the parable where He taught that from those who are given much, much is required. From those who are given a smaller amount, less is expected. The thing that counts most with the Lord is being faithful and doing our best. All of our service must be for God's glory. How wonderful it is that we serve a true and living God. "For they themselves shew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God" (1 Thess. 1:9). Wherever we go we should be looking for opportunities to serve the Lord. We can serve Him in many ways; we don"t have to go to Africa or some far-off island of the sea. We can wake up each morning with the realization that here, wher-

Who's Who for February

REV. KENNETH ASHMAN

For the third and final month we are studying Grace Seminary. This month we look at it from the standpoint of a trustee of the school.

Our writer is Rev. Kenneth Ashman, son of Dr. Charles Ashman and husband of our own beloved national WMC president. He was born on April 25, 1913, at Pleasant Hill, Ohio, the son of Charles and Flora Ashman. His father is now pastor of the Fremont Avenue Brethren Church, South Pasadena, Calif.; his mother is in glory.

Brother Ashman received his early education in Johnstown, Pa., while his father was a pastor there. He graduated from Ashland College and was a member of the first graduating class of Grace Seminary when it was located at Akron, Ohio.

Brother Ashman has held several Brethren pastorates at Mundy's Corner, Pa.; Meyersdale and Summit Mills, Pa.; and at Wooster, Ohio. In addition to being in his tenth year at Wooster and carrying on a daily radio program, he holds several important national offices in the Brethren Church; namely, president, Youth Council; secretary, Foreign Missionary Society; board member, Grace College and Seminary; moderator of the Northern Ohio District.

Brother Ashman met his wife, our Harriet, in college. They were married in 1939 and have two daughters.

With such a background, Brother Ashman can speak authoritatively to us on the subject of Grace College and Seminary.

REV. DONALD OGDEN

Our Bible study for February comes to us from Rev. Donald Ogden, professor of music at Grace College and Seminary.

Prof. Ogden was born Sept. 20, 1926, in Whittier, Calif., the second son of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Ogden. His father is now pastor of the First Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa., and also president of the board of trustees of Grace College and Seminary. His mother, Frances, is a former national WMC president.

Prof. Ogden received his early education in California and took his college work at Bob Jones University in Tennessee. After graduating from Bob Jones in 1948 with an A. B. degree in sacred music he spent two additional years there teaching on a graduate fellowship while earning his M. A. degree. Upon receiving it he entered Grace Seminary to take his theological studies and at the same time became an instructor in music, a position he held throughout his entire seminary course.

Upon graduation from seminary in 1954 he became the first full-time instructor in the music department of the college and is actively engaged in building a creditable music department and integrating it into the expanding college program.

In addition to his responsibilities in the college, Prof. Ogden is assistant to Dr. Herman Koontz, pastor of the Winona Lake Brethren Church, serving as music and youth director. He is married to a college sweetheart, Wanita Reeves, and they have two children, Kathleen and Ronald.

ever we are, is a field of service, and we can look for work to do.

A NEW START

I will start anew this morning with a higher, fairer creed;
I will cease to stand complaining of my ruthless neighbor's greed;
I will cease to sit repining while my duty's call is clear;
I will waste no moment whining, and my heart shall know no fear.
I will look sometimes about me for the things that merit praise;
I will search for hidden beauties that elude the grumbler's gaze.
I will try to find contentment in the paths that I must tread;
I will cease to have resentment when another moves ahead.
I will not be swayed by envy when my rival's strength is shown;
I will not deny his merit, but I'll strive to prove my own;
I will try to see the beauty spread before me, rain or shine;
I will cease to preach your duty, and be more concerned with mine.

WMC MISSIONARIES FOR 1955

One of the WMC projects in recent years which has been enthusiastically adopted by all of our councils and which promises to grow and expand from year to year is the Birthday Offering, which is being used to pay the salary allowance of our own WMC missionary or missionaries on Brethren mission fields. It was decided at National Conference in 1953 that the missionaries supported by our WMC Birthday Offering would be chosen at each National Conference for the ensuing year.

Our first WMC missionary, chosen at conference in 1953 for the year 1954, was Mrs. Loree Sickel, pioneer missionary to Argentina and widow of the Argentine field superintendent, Dr. Clarence Sickel. We are certain that any investment, financially or in prayer, which we have made in this missionary has borne and will continue to bear fruit for eternity.

At the National Conference in 1954, when the time came for choosing our missionary for 1955, we found that the response had been so enthusiastic that we had enough money to adopt TWO missionaries. Since we invested in Argentina last year and had chosen Brazil for our regular foreign-missions project this year, we turned to Africa to choose our WMC missionaries of the year 1955. In consultation with the foreign-mission office, we chose the two ladies with the longest term of service who were not partially or wholly supported by some other group. We present them to you in this issue. As you give your birthday offering to keep them and others on the field do not forget that an even greater need is our daily upholding of them in prayer. Make them a daily part of your prayer list and remember them also in united prayer on the 15th of each month. Read carefully Miss Emmert's article in this issue.

MISS ESTELLA MYERS

Miss Estella Myers is the only living member of the original Brethren party who sailed for Africa on January 8, 1918, during World War I. She has pioneered in central Africa long and well.

Estella is a native of the State of Iowa and a member of the Brethren church at North English, Iowa. She was brought up in the Brethren Church, her father being an elder of the church.

When Estella volunteered for the Africa mission field to pioneer with the Gribbles, she was already a graduate nurse, having taken her nurses training in Des Moines, Iowa. Her medical training gave her many open doors in the early and difficult days in darkest Africa. A fuller account of those early events may be gotten from Dr. Gribble's "Undaunted Hope."

Estella is a consecrated, self-sacrificing missionary, and in spite of having spent 37 years in service, with only four furloughs to the United States and one to South Africa, she can still "work circles" around many of her younger colleagues. Your editor knows whereof she speaks, having lived and worked with Estella for a number of years at Bassai.

Estella is a tireless missionary whether her activity consists of treating sick Africans, nursing a fellow missionary back to health, preaching the Gospel, itinerating from village to village, teaching men, women, boys, and girls to read the Word of God, translating the Word into the language of the people, or championing the cause of some downtrodden Christian woman or girl.

Probably Miss Myers' greatest triumph has been the translation of the New Testament into the Karre language at Bassai. Many years of heartache, study, and hard work were necessary before that printed Testament reached the hands of the Karre Christians. Only those who worked with her realize how tremendous was that task. When it had been completed, she said to me: "Now I feel I can say as did Simeon when he saw the

Mrs. Wilhelmina Kennedy ("Minnie" to her friends) is the other WMC missionary for 1955.

Minnie is also a veteran in missionary service, having just completed 30 years. She and her husband, Lester, members of the First Brethren Church of Philadelphia, Pa., first sailed for Africa via Belgium on January 17, 1925, as bride and groom of a few months.

That first term of service was a very full one. They not only served at Bassai but later in their term at the newly founded station at Bellevue in the Gbea tribe. It was also during that first four-year term that both of their sons, Lester, Jr., and Paul, were born.

During the Kennedys' first furlough they felt definitely led to leave their children in the homeland and not take them back to the pioneer hardships in Africa. They were fortunate in that Minnie has a sister, Miss Louise Schwab, who felt it was the Lord's will for her to devote her life to making a home for the children. However, even under such a good arrangement what heartbreak those young parents must have endured as they left their children, mere babes, for the Lord's sake.

In this first great test Minnie proved herself to be true "missionary material." But she was to be tested still more, for within a few months after returning to Africa, Mr. Kennedy became seriously ill and, after weeks of intense suffering, went to be with the Lord. He was laid to rest on Bassai hill, not far from Mr. Gribble, who had already gone home.

What was this young widow to do? Return to her children or carry on where her husband had given his all? Now the reason for leaving the children at home became plain. How could she have gotten through those trying months if she had had them with her? As she wrestled with her problem she decided to stay on the field. Her children were in loving hands and she had been called to Africa. And so, for 23 years Minnie has continued to serve in Africa.

Minnie also is very capable and versatile. Though not a graduate nurse, she had some training and has been an effective medical worker through the years. She is also an excellent teacher, an accomplished linguist, and an enthusiastic translator of the Scriptures. She has served on several of our stations. Bassai, Yaloke, Bellevue, and Bekoro have all been home to her and have all been blessed by her ministry. She speaks all these languages fluently.

For the past nine years she has been living at the Bekoro station among the Kabba tribe. Like Estella Myers, she also has a great burden to give the Word of God to the people in their own tongue. When she went to Bekoro she found a wide-open door, as no one else had begun translations in Kabba. That, then, has become her greatest task and she has already given the people part of the New Testament in Kabba.

Minnie has lived to see her older son, Lester, return to the land of his birth, for he and his family are now serving the Lord on the same field to which his parents have given their all.

THE FIFTEENTH

By MARY EMMERT, National Prayer Chairman

Even the unconverted around our mission stations in Africa know what le quinze means. They may not know much French, but they know that le quinze means the 15th of the month, when the Christians gather to pray. They are impressed because these meetings continue on and off throughout the whole day and are well attended.

What has the 15th of the month come to mean to you? Have you entered into the fellowship of this entire brotherhood prayer meeting? Have you felt the kinship there is in uniting as a whole church to pray for our missions on that day? Let us make the day one of serious intercession really dedicated to the work of the Lord. May there not be one church left anywhere in our fellowship that fails to enter wholeheartedly into this day of prayer when we unitedly look to the Lord to bless our work at home and on the mission fields. We need a greater vision of what God can do through united intercession.

You may say that you pray for the missionaries each Wednesday or Thursday evening at the weekly prayer meeting. Yes; but there are so many local needs to be remembered that you probably end your prayer by saying, "God bless all our missionaries," and let it rest at that. Do you really think that qualifies as genuine intercession?

Rather, let us get out our missionary prayer calendars, our Prayer Pointers in the Herald, and the home-mission requests that are mailed to our pastors, and let us really pray through them.

Someone objected to these latter by saying that our own needs were much the same and just as great as those of the home-mission churches. Just how selfish and nearsighted can we get? It is true that we have the same problems to some extent, but there is definitely a blessing in praying one for another, and this is one of God's ways of permitting us to help in the work of building new churches.

Perhaps someone else says: "But I can accomplish more at home in private intercession." But do you? Those that are most faithful in this respect usually are the most eager for the group prayer meetings also. The prayer band is to encourage faithfulness in private intercession, and the 15th of the month special prayer day is to bring these intercessors into the open where they can labor together in behalf of those whom they have helped to send to the harvest fields. "And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works: not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching" (Heb. 10:24-25). If we need any further proof that there is value in meeting together for prayer, we have only to consider how the disciples banded together in the upper room and at the home of John Mark's mother. Certainly both private and public prayer are necessary for a well-balanced prayer life.

Some good suggestions have been received from various prayer chairmen, which I trust will be of practical value to you.

In several of our city churches, to help solve the problems of transportation and baby-sitting, they hold cottage prayer meeting simultaneously in different sections of the city on the 15th.

In another church, where most of the ladies work, each one has taken a different hour of the day on the 15th for prayer, so that there is continuous prayer from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Then they meet in a group on the Wednesday evening before the 15th, as a prayer band, using the special requests in the Herald and elsewhere.

Where there is a large group of intercessors, some have found it a good plan to divide the group into three or four parts and send them to different rooms so that all have an opportunity to pray.

One church I know meets for an all-day meeting of the WMC every month. The forenoon is spent in prayer, a sack lunch is enjoyed at noon, and the regular meeting is held in the afternoon. Another one does likewise, only the all-day meeting is always on the 15th, and part of the day is spent in rolling bandages to help in the SMM project.

The Prayer Pointers and other long lists of requests baby Jesus, 'Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace.' The work I lived for is finally completed."

But that was eight years ago! The Karre New Testament, over which she had labored so long, was not to be her last work. Having given the Karre the Word in their own language and having taught them to read it, her pioneer spirit drove her on to other tribes, and before long she had gone to help establish another station at Nzoro There she has been once again engaged in giving to the Panna people the Word of God in their own language. Together with her nephew, Donald Miller, and his family, she continues to serve the Lord faithfully and lovingly. In Estella Myers our WMC has a missionary who has few equals anywhere for devotion and service.

could be cut into sections to be distributed and prayed for aloud. Then the slips could be taken home by those holding them and remembered in prayer throughout the month. Some people follow similar methods in their own devotions. They divide the list of missionaries into seven groups and pray for one group each day, mentioning each individual missionary and their needs.

Different phases of our work may be specially remembered on different days also, such as foreign missionaries, native Christians, home missions, seminary, Herald, youth and Sunday-school work, and local church. Those wishing a more personal touch with missionaries may ask the foreign-mission office to put their names on the mailing list for the general letters sent out by the missionaries through that office. These letters should be passed around to those who are interested, however, instead of being discarded after one hasty reading.

The Lord can use each of His children in full-time intercession. No one of us can complain that we do not have at least one talent. But let us beware lest we have wrapped it in a napkin and buried it like the man in the parable.

It is my sincere hope that every one of our churches in the homeland and on the mission fields may meet around the mercy seat on the 15th of the month for real thorough intercession for the missionary work which the Lord has entrusted into our hands to do. God grant also that we may each be faithful in our prayer closets in the work of intercession. "Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (I Cor. 4:2).

THE WMC SCHOOL BUILDING IN NAVAHOLAND

Two years ago we ladies of the WMC took a two-year home-mission project. During these two years we set ourselves a goal of $5,000 for the building of a schoolbuilding for the "neglected Navahos" on our Brethren mission station. Our two quarters allotted to this offering have passed and you are probably just as anxious as your editor was to know whether or not we had gone "over the top." We are proud of the following figures.

The home-mission office reports that our total offering for the school last year amounted to $2,726.51, and a recent letter from Mrs. McCall, our financial secretary, reports that this year's offering to date amounts to $2,883.40. If my figures are correct, that means our "$5,000 goal" has already reached $5,609.91. Praise the Lord! The office reports also that the building will cost nearer $6,000 than $5,000 when completed, but the Lord is helping us meet that additional expense. If any councils have not yet sent in their home-mission offering, please do so at once.

We are happy to share with you the following letters from the Navaho station:

"Dear Mrs. Ashman and ladies of the WMC:

"Greetings in the Lord's name from the Navaho mission. I am sending some enlargements of the school building. It is 75 feet long and 25 feet wide with a "T" forming wing at the middle of the back of the building which extends out 22 feet and is 25 feet wide also. The building will house the following spaced rooms: two classrooms, each 25 feet square; a vestibule 10 by 25 feet, which has the main entrance and admits entrance to any room in the building. Two small rooms occupy part of this vestibule space, one a toilet room for the teachers, the other a closet for the storage of school materials. The remainder of the building is one large room, 25 by 35 feet. This room is to be the recreation-meeting hall. It will be used for the wintertime recreation of the children, and also will become the meeting hall for our chapel and church services, school parties, etc. I have a recent letter from the schools of Las Cruces, N. Mex., and they have on hand enough old school desks to equip our classrooms, which we can have free as soon as we can get to the south of the state with our truck and pick them up.

"The progress is slow on these projects, but we are living and working in a situation that doesn't permit things to progress at "city" speed. One of the "miracles" to us is to see the completed building sitting there, having been erected in 10 days from the foundation. [Note: The Brethren Construction Company went out and erected the shell of the building.—Ed.] We will not plan to use the schoolrooms until next school year, since we are not equipped nor staffed to take any additional students now. The gas line is up to the building now so that it can be used the rest of the winter for snowbound recreation as the need arises.

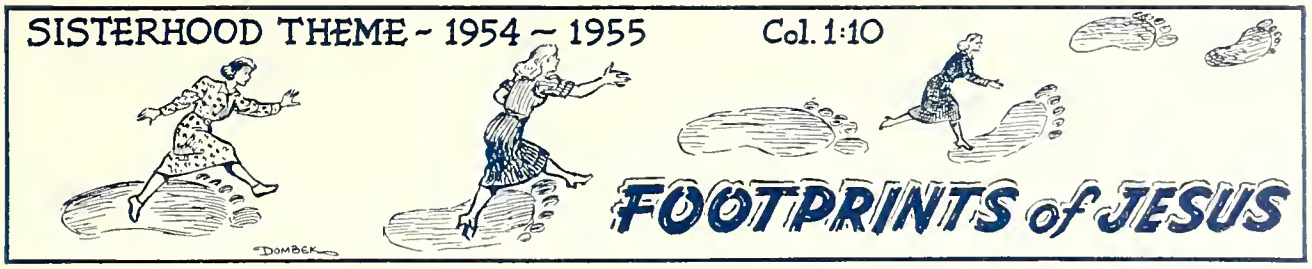
"We wish again, as a group here at the misison, to express our joy and thanks for the new building that you women of the WMC all over the nation have made possible. Somehow the Navaho mission is very much a WMC project: three of the staff of four are WMCers; the new schoolbuilding is totally a WMC gift; and much of the other equipment such as quilts, clothing, medicines, dishes, and teaching materials are gifts from groups and individuals of the WMC across the country. We wish that many of you might sometime in the future have the opportunity to stop and see your gifts in action and use. We will have further reports of the progress and use of the building which you ladies have made possible here in Navaholand.

"In His name,

"(Signed) Evan Adams

"(For the staff, Joan Adams, Mary Baer, Angie Garber)"

"Dear WMC ladies:



"We would like to thank each of you for your part in giving the Navaho people an abundant Christmas. The children were given large sacks of gifts before they went home for their vacation and then the hogans were visited and gifts distributed there.

"We especially appreciated the generous checks and gifts of money you sent. There are so many needed things we can get to make life happier for our children.

"The mission workers greatly appreciated your expressions of love to them. We were all well supplied with practical gifts. Thank you every one and may our Lord reward you for your sacrifices which make it possible to carry on this needy work.

"In Him,

"Angie Garber."

BILLBOARDS

(COL. 3:17)

By Ava Schnittjer

Scene I. The kitchen at Jane's house. Mary knocks at the door.

JANE (washing dishes and humming a chorus): Come on in. I'm in the kitchen, Mary.

MARY (coming in): Hi, Jane. Oh—dishes. Are you about through? I hoped we'd have time to stop at the drugstore.

JANE: I won't be much longer. Just as soon as I finish these pans. Mm—something sticks to this one.

MARY: Couldn't you leave it? Maybe your mother would finish them. I hate to do dishes, don't you? It makes your hands look like a wrinkled prune.

JANE: That's the way I felt about it, too, until I heard the secret.

MARY: Secret? What secret is that?

JANE (looking round): Sh—I'll tell you if you'll promise to prove it before you tell anyone else.

MARY: I don't get it.

JANE: Well, you wouldn't want to tell a lie. So I don't want you to tell it to anyone until you prove it's true—like gossip, you know. Promise?

MARY: O. K. But hurry and tell me. I'm dying of curiosity.

Jane whispers to Mary.

MARY (with some doubt): You aren't just putting on? Do you mean, Jane, that you really like to do those dishes?

JANE: Honest. I wouldn't think of letting anyone finish this hard pan for me.

MARY: That amazes me. I've put on an apron and tried to look nice in the kitchen—to impress someone—but to really like to do dishes——

JANE: Remember your promise now, Mary. There, I'm finished. And here come the rest of the gang. Let's go.

Scene II. Mary is at her desk in her room working algebra. She's humming under her breath as she works. Her mother calls.

MOTHER: Mary, Louise is here to see you.

MARY: Tell her to come up please, Mother.

LOUISE: Hi, Mary.

MARY: Hi, Louise. Just getting through work?

LOUISE: Yes. What a job! (Looking at Mary's book) Oh—algebra. (dramatically) "How do I loathe thee? Let me count the ways!"

MARY: Louise, I think I might write a book, "Algebra Can Be Fun, or, You, Too, Can Enjoy Algebra."

LOUISE: Not me. We're mortal enemies. Come on, Mary. Let's go have a coke.

MARY: I'd really like to finish this algebra lesson first. This one problem has me puzzled. If X plus 3 is equal to——

LOUISE: You sound as if you're really interested in that.

MARY: To tell you the truth, I am.

LOUISE: What gives? I thought you didn't like any of your subjects except music.

MARY: That was before I learned the secret.

LOUISE: I can't imagine any secret making me like to work algebra or wait on tables.

MARY: It worked for Jane, and it worked for me.

LOUISE: Well, what is it? Don't keep me in suspense.

MARY: You have to promise something first.

LOUISE: O. K. I won't tell anybody.

MARY (smiling): That's not exactly what you have to promise. Promise to prove it yourself before you tell it.

LOUISE (impatiently): O. K. I promise. Now, what is it?

Mary whispers to her, and Louise's expression changes as she listens.

LOUISE: Did that really make you feel different about algebra?

MARY: Yes; about algebra, about dusting the rounds of the chairs, about doing the ironing, about studying my Sunday-school lesson. It really changed everything.

LOUISE: I believe you. You really seem different—like when the sun comes out from under a cloud. But I don't know if I could——

MARY: You promised, Louise. Here's some paper. Let's both finish our algebra and then we'll go down

PROGRAM GUIDE FOR MARCH

THEME SONG—Sing "Footprints of Jesus" and repeat the year's verse, Colossians 1:10.

TALENT—Have a special number by one or more of the girls in your local group if possible.

LIFE'S ROADMAP—Read the Scripture, I Corinthians 10:12-13, 23-31.

PRAYER CIRCLE—"Prayer Changes Things." Believe it?

HELP FOR OUR CHRISTIAN WALK—Seniors study "Billboards," and middlers study the article by Mrs. Dixon, "After His Image—Compassion."

CHORUS TIME—"Praise ye the Lord: for it is good to sing praises unto our God; for it is pleasant; and praise is comely" (Ps. 147:1). Sing favorites of the girls pertaining to walk.

LEARNING THE PAST—Brethren Church History VII. If you miss one go back and review. This is a very helpful study. Close by singing one stanza of "Footprints of Jesus" and saying the SMM benediction.

to the kitchen and get a coke. Jane and Ellen are coming over about 8. (They start working.)

Scene III. Mary, Louise, Jane, and Ellen are sitting around the kitchen table with cold drinks. The girls' heads are bowed and we hear just the end of a prayer.

JANE: . . . we ask in Jesus' name with thanksgiving. Amen.

LOUISE (as they start to sip their drinks): Guess what, girls. My algebra is all finished for tomorrow.

ELLEN: I can't believe it. What happened?

LOUISE: It's a secret of Mary's and Jane's. But I just have to know more about it. What started it?

JANE: Well, to begin with, I read about the Pharisees. The Pharisees had the Scriptures written on their foreheads and on the borders of their clothes. These were were, that they were very strict and kept the law.
signs—billboards—showing what kind of people they

MARY: And yet, the Lord Jesus called them hypocrites.

JANE: So I wondered what billboards I had to show I was a Christian. I go to Sunday school and church and prayer meeting and Sisterhood.

MARY: In one way that seems like a lot, but still it wasn't nearly so much as the Pharisees did in keeping all the law.

ELLEN: So you wondered what other billboards you could put up?

JANE: Yes; and the answer came in Colossians 3:17: "Whatsoever ye do in word or in deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him."

LOUISE: "Whatsoever ye do in word or in deed" includes just about everything, doesn't it?

MARY: That's just what we found out. It's one thing to sing hymns, go to church, and pray "in Jesus' name," but it's another thing to do everything in obedience to Him and depending on His help.

JANE: To put "in Christ's name" over our lips in everything we say, is about the best guard we could have to keep our lips from evil.

MARY: And when you give thanks to God, through Christ, for an algebra problem, somehow Christ helps you to solve it, and you're so thankful that you're challenged to go on to another. It works in a circle: the more thankful you are, the more He blesses you; and the more He blesses you, the more thankful you are.

JANE: And when we're truly thankful for all the mercies of God—when I take time to thank Him for salvation, it makes me want to talk to other girls about it. And I found too that they listen because they know it's something real.

ELLEN: I believe that. Jane looks as if someone had turned a light on inside her, doesn't she?

LOUISE: They both do. Now I'm a little slow, but I'm catching on. You don't mean you say "in Jesus' name" every time you do something, do you?

ELLEN (interrupting): She just means to do everything in a Christian spirit, and to be conscious all the time of Christ's presence and to have the conviction of His approval.

LOUISE: I really do see. My Mom and Daddy fell in love and were married. He gave her his name and promised to take care of her; she gave up her name and took his, and since then everything she does is as Mrs. Martin.

ELLEN: She is Mrs. Martin. "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." That's why all I do should be in His name.

MARY: In the New Testament the disciples cast out devils in His name, and healed people in His name. When we do everything—word or deed—in His name, He gives a new purpose to our lives. Tasks that were monotonous gain a kind of nobility.

JANE: And you simply can't say unkind things about other girls and say you're doing it in Jesus' name.

LOUISE (rising) Nine o'clock. I have to go home.

MARY: So soon?

LOUISE: Mother's orders. (Going to door) And if I'm going to be one of the "whatsoever" girls, I'll start by obeying my parents.

JANE: We all should go.

LOUISE (coming back toward the group): And the second thing I'll do is give thanks for the evening and for the things I've learned. Somehow I think I'm going to be a happier Christian from now on. Good night everybody.

MARY: Good night, Louise. Good night, Jane and Ellen.

GIRLS: Good night, Mary. Thank you for a nice evening.

Mary comes back in humming and smiling, pauses by the table where they were sitting, sits down, and after a moment bows her head in silent prayer From outside someone reads softly Colossians 3:17.

I. BIRTHDAY PROJECT—Do you like to receive birthday gifts? I'm sure all of you do. April is the birthday month of Sisterhood. Our SMM will be 42 years old in April. Our birthday project each year is to give an offering for the higher education of missionaries' children. You can receive a real blessing from taking part in this project. Try to do something different this year. Don't forget! This offering must be in to the national treasurer by May 10.

2. ANOTHER BIRTHDAY? Yes; Miss Gail Jones' birthday is March 31. She is our missionary at Bassai, where the Sisterhood is building a new dispensary. I'm sure she would enjoy hearing from your group. Her address is as follows: Mission a Bassai, Bozoum via Bangui, Oubangui-Chari, French Equatorial Africa.

3. SPRING CABINET MEETING—Had your cabinet meeting yet this spring? This is the time to begin checking to see if you will be an honor group this year.

4. GOALS—How are you coming along in your Bible reading and your memory verses? Better get busy—time is flying!

HISTORY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH—VI

By Rev. Gerald Polman

Last month we had a look at the offshoot from the Brethren Church known as the "Ephrata Movement." This month we shall trace the history of the Tunkers or Brethren to the famous division of 1882. It is important for you as SMM girls to know of this so that you might understand two other denominational groups who are closely related to our own church.

Though most of the Brethren were not particularly aggressive or well educated, they made a steady increase in numbers. As people migrated west and south, the church also spread into these areas. Many made great sacrifices for the extension of their church and her beliefs.

We can well be proud that though the Brethren were small in numbers compared to some Protestant groups, they made several important contributions to their country. The first Bible printed in America was printed in German by Christopher Sauer, a Brethren printer in Philadelphia, Pa. The first Sunday school in America was held in a Brethren church by the same Christopher Sauer. He gathered the young people together on Sunday afternoons for Bible study.

As you remember, the Brethren had originally come to America to escape religious persecution and the formalism of the established church. However, as the years passed, some of this crept back into the church, and it seemed to be losing its democratic spirit.

The churches came to be ruled more and more by a small group of men known as the "Standing Committee" of the Annual Meeting. Any group of Brethren which did not obey its commands were liable to be put out of the denomination.

There seemed to be no disagreement over doctrine among the Brethren, but there was a great deal of disagreement over such things as whether the churches should have Sunday schools, prayer meetings, and revival meetings. Some felt the church should not have colleges or institutions of higher learning and that ministers of the church should not have special education or be paid for their ministry. There was also disagreement about the dress of the members.

By the year 1882 these disagreements had come to the breaking point. Several prominent leaders had been expelled from the denomination. Those who were put out or withdrew from the denomination were known as "Progressives." This is the group known as simply "Brethren" today, and, of course, is our own beloved denomination.

There are two other bodies of Dunkards resulting from the division of 1882. The one is the radically conservative group known as the "Old German Baptist" or "Old Orders." They hold to the plain dress of the early Dunkards. The other group of Dunkards is "The Church of the Brethren." They were known as the "Conservatives."

These three groups of Dunkards still practice the same ordinances of baptism by trine immersion, feetwashing, love feast, and the communion of the bread and cup. But in church government they are widely different.

AFTER HIS IMAGE—COMPASSION

By Mrs. James Dixon

We have been studying, from month to month, how we may "walk worthy of the Lord" and how to "please Him in everything." We have learned that we must "increase in the knowledge of God" if we are to know His will for our lives.

When a person becomes a Christian he receives from God a new nature. This means that a Christian has been created anew in the image of God. This transformation will be complete when we see Jesus Christ "face to face." "We shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is "(I John 3:2b).

While we are awaiting that day, we become more like Him as we come to know Him better. Let us strive to be like Him in every way. He was sinless. Let us put sin out of our lives. However, being like Him isn't simply putting off sin; it is also putting on His nature. We are being recreated in His image. (Read Colossian 3:10.)

The reason God saved us was that we might be "conformed to His image." The lesson we have to learn this month is that we should be conformed to His "heart of compassion." (Note: "Heart of compassion" is a better translation of "bowels of mercies," Col. 3:12.)

"Compassion" means to "suffer with"; that is, to share the suffering with the one who is suffering. But thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious, long-suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth" (Ps. 86:15).

The Son of God became the Son of man that He might share all the burdens and heartaches of mankind. Jesus saw a leper and "moved with compassion he healed him" (Mark 1:41). He wept with those who mourned at the grave of Lazarus. He raised the dead.

We have an High Priest who is "touched with the feeling of our infirmities"; that is, He understands completely what we are suffering. He hears our prayers and answers them because He understands.

To be like Him we must lay aside our selfish, self-interested lives and be concerned with the needs of others. There must be no room for snobbishness, jealousy, cliques, but rather a concern for the feelings of others.

Let us "rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep" (Rom. 12:15).

Let us make it the goal of our lives to heal the broken-hearted, comfort those who are sick, visit the lonely, care for those who are weak. If we do this we will "walk worthy of the Lord."

(To the leader: You might sing "I Would Be Like Jesus.")

Questions for the leader to think through:

1.What everyday experiences can you think of in which we need a heart of compassion?

2. What does Christ's compassion toward you mean in your own spiritual life?

3. Does it affect your prayer life to know that God is a God of compassion? How?

ALL ABOARD! A-L-L A-B-O-A-R-D! FOR

A TRIP TO SISTERHOODS

First Stop—Albany, Oreg., Middler SMM—

These girls meet on the third Sunday of each month for their devotional meeting and designate the first Monday of the month to worknights. One of the highlights of the year is their project for the Northwest District trophy which is to be given this spring. They have adopted a very lovely little Navaho girl and have been sending her gifts, etc., on special days of the year. In order to encourage the girls to come to the work meetings, an all-night slumber party was planned. Bandages were rolled, and a good time was enjoyed by all. They also brought some gifts for Celenia Keetso, their Navaho girl, to send her for Christmas. The girls feel that perhaps one of the greatest joys was experienced when a lady who goes to their church brought two new girls into the Sisterhood meeting. These two girls have now been saved and one is a member of the SMM. This is an aim of Sisterhood and we know that these girls will some day receive their full awards from their Lord!

Next, the Temple City, Calif., Junior SMM—

These girls are truly enjoying this year of Sisterhood. Their high attendance record so far has been 20 plus three patronesses. They have already rolled 1,000 bandages! On New Year's Eve the girls all enjoyed a slumber party, following a candlelight service which they presented in the church. Praise the Lord for such an active group of girls!

We Hurry to the Junior Sisterhood in Waterloo, Iowa—

Here's another active group! They have 10 new girls who have neary earned their pennants, and have had a definite part in the district project and the general fund offering of the national work. They're going to tell us about their December meeting: "Our projects in skit form and presentation were presented to our mothers at this meeting. The skit, "The Last Bandage," was presented in full dress—the nurse, three African women with black faces, gloves, and stockings, wearing 'odd dresses.' We also had a horse—it was really funny, but the message of the play was clearly brought out. Following the play we had a time of singing carols and reading the Christmas story. Each girl brought some supplies which we sent to Miss Evelyn Fuqua in Kentucky. The mothers all received aprons which the girls made, and a nice lunch was served We believe that much was accomplished for the Lord."

And a Run Over to the North English, Iowa, Sisterhood—

The girls have just enjoyed a combined New Year's Eve "watch and slumber" party. At Christmastime a letter of greeting and a small gift were sent to Nancy and Barbara Miller. Two layettes were made and sent to the Navaho Mission at Cuba, N. Mex. They presented a Halloween party to which they invited the BYF of their own church and also a neighboring one. Earlier they entered a float in the parade at the North English Centennial. The girls portrayed modern and old-time scenes. In the background was a cross with an angel pointing to the testimony. The theme was "100 years makes changes, but Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and forever." The girls say, "We hope and pray that the Lord was glorified."

A Change; We Take You to the Elkhart, Ind., Middlers—

This is a small group—in fact, there are only three girls who are active in it, but they are doing things for the Lord, too! At Christmastime they sang carols for their pastor and family and also for the people in the old folks' home. Their project is rolling bandages and reading their Bible every day. They've also brought gifts for the Brethren Navaho schoolchildren. Future plans are to give a skit in their church and to send Valentines to boys in the service.

A Stop at Limestone, Tenn., for a Brief Visit—

The Christmas and New Year's holidays found these girls very busy—they packed boxes filled with goodies and sent them to the young people away from home. As you all know, the national project is to buy a microscope and build a "hospital" in Africa, where Miss Gail Jones is working. The girls from Limestone sent her something for her birthday. At each meeting the girls answer the roll call with a Bible verse from Colossians.

An SMM in Argentina, Where the Schrocks Serve—

"The first meeting we had seven girls out. We explained the purpose and aim of the society. We also gave them the history of the society and explained that there are girls their own age in the U. S. A. who have groups just like theirs. We have the girls present the missionary study, thus helping them to be prepared better in taking part for the women's group when they get to that age. We served refreshments, having a white tablecloth on the table, green candles and green crepe-paper strips crossways on the table. Then on a plate we put cards with the covenant typewritten on it and a place for them to sign. Before taking the card we explained the seriousness of it and all that it implies.

"The girls really are enjoying these meetings and come with a great deal of enthusiasm. Each meeting has increased so that our largest group has been up to 12. We are urging them to bring their unsaved friends, too. One of the girls brought two. But one doesn't want to come again because her friends make fun of her. The girl keeps asking her to come anyway, hoping that she will overcome this fear. It does our hearts good to see these girls blossom out in the things of the Lord."

Pray for all the local Sisterhoods, that they will work hard on their goals and projects.

Pray for the national officers, for most of them are in school and have quite a lot to keep them busy.

Pray for Miss Gail Jones and our national project. We have a goal of $1,700—we can certainly reach it and go beyond!

Pray for all the home and foreign missionaries. They have many needs and problems.

SEATTLE, WASH. It has been voted not to hold a Northwest Fellowship of Brethren Churches, which was scheduled for July 4-7 at Spokane, Wash. All emphasis is to be placed on the conference of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, convening at Portland, Oreg., Aug. 10-17.

CLEVELAND, OHIO. Dr. Homer Kent was guest speaker at the First Brethren Church on Jan. 23, and was in charge of the quarterly communion service at the evening hour. Rev. and Mrs. Foster Tresise were visitors for the day, and showed pictures of their work in Honolulu.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA. The regular services of the new church here are being held in the North Lauderdale Improvement Association Bldg., 1000 N. Andrews. Rev. Raph Colburn is pastor.

CHICAGO, ILL. Winners of the annual Evangelical Press Awards Program included Power, published by Scripture Press, Chicago, for the outstanding article of the year; The Christian Leader, Mennonite Brethren Conference, Hillsboro, Kans., for the greatest improvement in appearance (The Brethren Missionary Herald received honorable mention); Christian Digest, Grand Rapids, Mich., for the best editorial program; and Youth Today, Baptist General Conference of America, Chicago, for most effective circulation program.

WHEATON, ILL. The Third Annual $1,000 Evangelistic Sermon Contest, sponsored by the Sword of the Lord, came to a close on Dec. 1, 1954. The first prize of $250 was awarded to Dr. Arthur Petrie, of Seattle, Wash., for his sermon, "The King of Terror and the King of Kings." Prizes of $50 each were awarded to Evangelist R. Paul Miller, of Berne, Ind.; Dr. John Linton, Riverside, Windsor, Canada.; Dr. Merrill Tenney, of Wheaton College; Dr. Monroe Parker, and five others. Evangelist R. Paul Miller received honorable mention for another sermon that was not distinctly evangelistic.

WINONA LAKE, IND. The Grace Seminary Choir will tour the Brethren churches of the eastern States Mar. 30-Apr. 13. The tour is under the direction of Prof. Donald Ogden.

RITTMAN, OHIO. Karl Wayne Ashman joined the forces of the Charles Ashman, Jr., home on Jan. 18, when he weighed in at a little less than 9 lbs. The first introduction was to the pastor of the First Brethren Church, his dad.

ASHLAND, OHIO. The Northern Ohio District overnight youth rally will be held at the West Tenth Street Brethren Church Feb. 25-26.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. Mr. and Mrs. John Horst, Third Brethren Church, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary the third week in January.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. By official action of the mayor and city council of Long Beach, Jan. 9 was proclaimed "Dr. Charles E. Fuller Day" in this city. This action was in honor of the 30th anniversary of the Old Fashioned Revival Hour broadcast. The ABC network carried a coast-to-coast salute to Dr. Fuller.

PORTLAND, OREG. According to the Oregonian, two out of three marriages ended up in divorce in Oregon. In Multnomah County the record showed that nine out of ten ended in divorce. Reasons given for this condition are hasty marriages, unsettled world conditions, and easy marriage laws in the neighboring State of Washington.

National Fellowship at Portland, Oregon—August 10-17, 1955

Revival-Evangelism

By Clyde K. Landrum

President, Board of Evangelism

Revival is first of all an individual matter. After that it may become a church, a community, or a national experience. However, one must keep in mind that there can be no revival in the church, community-wise, or on a national scale until revival has come to the hearts of God's people. As the saints are revived, they will have a burden for the souls of lost men and women, and will go out to win them for Christ. This is evangelism.

The ministry of the Board of Evangelism is revival-evangelism. First, the need is to see Christians revived, and, secondly, to see these same people going out to win the lost to Christ. The very fact that we have a Board of Evangelism is an indication that God has begun to work in our hearts. And the matter of the National Fellowship of Brethren Laymen sponsoring the Crusade ministry is another good sign. Surely we are on the move. BUT, we have JUST BEGUN TO MOVE! Actually, we are right now at the place where we can "launch out into the deep."

The time for every layman, and every member of the Brethren Church to act is at hand. On Evangelism Sunday, February 27, every individual and every church will have an opportunity to give that the Board of Evangelism may do the revival-evangelism work that is before us. Without the active participation of these, the Board of Evangelism is helpless. It is incumbent upon each of us to see that as individuals our hearts are right with God, and that we have the burden of evangelism.

Churches have been revived, and many souls have been won for Christ in Crusade meetings since national conference time. Meetings are being planned for the future in the revival-evangelism campaign of the Board of Evangelism. Meetings in new mission churches, to help them when help is most needed; meetings in established churches, to help them to grow and move forward for the Lord is the aim of the Brethren Evangelist Crusade. The year 1955 can be a great year of harvest! I would like to urge every layman to work and pray for a generous offering from every church in the brotherhood on Evangelism Sunday, February 27, that 1955 may be that great year of harvest that we want it to be.

This report clearly indicates that the Lord's money is already channeled in other directions. I do not feel that the men of our churches are not capable of meeting the laymen's project goals this year. If we are to reach them, however, we are going to have to start working in that direction. An offering of twelve dollars from each man now will do more for the promotion of evangelism than anything that you and I can do. If we can get over this first hurdle, I am confident that nothing can stop the advancement of evangelism in this denomination. Certainly if you have any of the Lord's money that is not working for Him, it will be well spent by the Board of Evangelism.

Send your offering through your local church to Walter Hoyt, treasurer, 409 Leland Ave., Dayton 7, Ohio.

ROANOKE NEWS

Bill Fisher reports that the Men's Gospel Fellowship, Ghent Brethren Church, Roanoke, Va., in their December meeting took an offering for a full-time layman director. A sum of $25 has been sent to our treasurer. Their group is sponsoring a weekly 15-minute radio broadcast.

COMPLETE PLANS EARLY

By Earle Cole

What is to happen February 27 in the Brethren churches? According to the best information available, on February 27 throughout our nation, the men of our churches will emphasize men's work at our local, district, and national levels. In many places laymen will speak at both services. Whether they speak or not, the four National Fellowship of Brethren Laymen's projects—$12,000 for evangelism; $1,000 for Grace Seminary student aid; $5,000 for Brethren Boys Clubs; and $500 for the general fund—will be emphasized.

Will the meetings in your local church be a success? Will your men actively take part in the services on February 27. Will you as a local man take part and support with your time and energy these services?

HOLDING OUR YOUTH!

The magazines of our nation are being filled in these days with articles by our leading citizens on the subject of "Juvenile Delinquency." As we have read these articles and faced the problem, we have been compelled to do a bit of checking on the statistics of our own denomination. The startling facts are that in the Sunday schools of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches during the last 10 years, we have lost more than 10,000 young people who were actually enrolled in our junior departments across the nation. Those 10,000 added to our present average attendance would put us well along our way to 60,000 by 1960.

WHERE HAVE WE FAILED? HOW CAN WE HOLD THESE YOUNG PEOPLE? Someone has well said that the best way in all the world to hold youth is to put a fence of praying fathers and mothers completely around them.

YOUNG PEOPLE CAN BE HELD by reaching fathers and mothers. If we would win and hold more junior high and high-school youth, we must reach the fathers and mothers of our boys and girls in the beginners, primary, and junior departments. But how can we reach more adults? How can we win these fathers and mothers?

The first answer to our question is to be found in the fact that we will have to begin to make more provision for these fathers and mothers. We need more, MANY MORE, adult classes and adult departments. I recognize that on a percentage basis we have a large group of adults in our Sunday schools, but when we begin to look at the number and compare it with the national census, there are millions of men and women in America yet untouched by the Gospel.

One of the first places in which I believe we ought to put forth definite effort to lick the problem of "juvenile delinquency" is that of WINNING ADULTS. It will not be an easy task, but it is an essential one. We will need to discover the reasons why they have not come, and perhaps in some cases this will be direct reflection upon our own indifference and carelessness. We will have to make our Sunday schools more attractive. We will have to keep monotony out of our opening Sunday-school periods, and keep the best teaching possible for our adults. We will have to enlist more adults to become visitors, inviting and urging their neighbors and friends to become a part of our Sunday schools. We will have to make them feel welcome when they come. We will have to realize that the very souls of men are at stake. The destiny of homes hangs in the balance. The progress of our church is involved.

WE CAN HOLD OUR YOUTH—if and when we will WIN THE FATHERS AND MOTHERS!

CONTEST NEWS

THINGS WERE DIFFERENT IN DECEMBER! It was not only the time of the Christmas rush, but of some real increases across the nation in our Brethren Sunday schools. We are sorry that some of our Sunday schools got so busy they forgot to send in their contest reports on time, and hence could not be given proper place in the contest. Others got so busy they forgot all about sending in a report. Many of our schools, however, were there with the report when the tabulating was being done, and hence we have some very fine reports.

December Winners

Class A—Denver, Colo., T. Inman, pastor (three-time winner of Division A).

Class B—Phoenix, Ariz., J. C. McKillen, pastor.

Class C—Norwalk, Calif., Henry Rempel, pastor.

Class D—Martinsburg, W. Va., Earle Peer, pastor.

Class E—Ashland, Ohio, Miles Taber, pastor (three-time winner of Division E).

Class F—North Long Beach, Calif., George Peek, pastor (three-time winner of Division F).

Some Sunday schools were a bit discouraged since others in their division had gone so far out ahead, but things were different this month, and we have some new names in the news. Remember the old adage, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

January reports will be due in the mail not later than midnight on Tuesday, February 1. Why not make sure that your church is represented in the accounting at the end of January? Better still, make sure that your Sunday school will be at the top of the list by getting every member busy at the job of winning others NOW! Remember, the contest continues until June, and then there is the final yearly winner. BEGIN NOW.

One other word—73 churches reported in December, and these 73 show an increase in average attendance of 1,804 persons. This is a 17-percent gain over 1953. Praise the Lord!

WITH THE SUNDAY SCHOOL DIRECTOR

January 1955 found us in a splendid Sunday school-missionary conference in the churches of Wooster, and Rittman, Ohio. With us in this conference were Rev. and Mrs. J. Kliever, missionaries from Africa, and Miss Catherine Marshall, of the child evangelism office of Summit County. The time was divided each night between the missionary emphasis and the Sunday school. Half of the conference was held in the Wooster church and the remaining half in the Rittman church.

The natural relationship of Sunday school and missions make this an enjoyable combination. These two emphases belong together. A church without a strong missionary emphasis will never progress. A missionary emphasis demands that we do something for the people who live right around the church. It was a joy to fellowship with the people of these two churches and the visiting Brethren who came in from night to night, and likewise to enjoy the spiritual bessing of our colaborers in the Lord.

MY IDEAL CHURCH

By MRS. ETHEL MOFFITT
Findlay, Ohio

THE four-year-old boy sits on the floor, briskly engaged with his electrical train. "I just know he'll grow up to be an engineer," says his doting mother. The boy with his childish mind thinks so too. But he doesn't. He becomes a dentist.

The young lady of 18 enrolls in our local college. The ideal set before her is that of becoming a schoolteacher. She doesn't realize that ambition. She changed her ideal to that of wedded life, a happy home. She becomes a wife instead.

And so our ideals change. Thus my Saviour did not entrust you or me with the laying of the foundation of His church for that very reason—because our ideals change. He knew a man-made church would be in a transitory stage all the time; hence He built it. Jesus Christ said in Matthew 16:18, "Upon this rock I will build my church." Since then the ideals, the requirements, the laws for His church have been and will continue to be the same, yea, yesterday, today, and forever. We have been warned not to add nor take away from the Scriptures. Through searching the holy Book we find the qualities our Master set forth for His church, for He is the body of it. I will not endeavor to give these qualities in their entirety. Let me say in passing that the church that follows His teachings, obeys His laws, and puts Christ as the head, is His ideal church. Because it is His, and I am His, it is also my ideal church. Thus you can readily see the breadth of my subject were I to tell all about His ideal church.

When the unbeliever, the sinner, the stranger comes to your church, what will he find that causes him to believe it to be the ideal place to worship? He'll get the basic Scriptural teachings later. But what about his first impressions? Will he look for a gilded spire and stained-glass windows? Will he judge by a robed choir?

A rural brother of the old-fashioned sort visited a great city temple. As the eloquent minister drove home some great truths, the ruralist said, "Praise the Lord." An usher touched him on the arm and whispered, "You can't praise the Lord in this church." That is not my ideal church. That is not the church that is going to impress the unbeliever. He has heard other persons and other things praised and worshiped in the outside world. He is hungering for something else. Don't disappoint him! Let your church praise no one save God the Father and Jesus Christ His Son. Make Jesus Christ attractive, or rather, let Him do the attracting and He will draw that sinner unto himself and His church. Give Jesus Christ all the glory. Glory in nothing save Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Yes; Christ wants—we need—and the wanderer is seeking—a Spirit-filled church.

E. E. Cole, Toledo, Ohio, made this remark a few years ago: "You don't need the Holy Ghost to run a rummage sale. You don't need the Holy Ghost to stage a soup supper. But if you are going to win souls for Christ, you need the Holy Ghost." So if you would lead that unbeliever to Christ, the one who has chanced to stop in for a Lord's Day service, who is a stranger to you and to God, you must have a Spirit-filled church.

Songs of the cross and stories of the cross have always caused men and women to give their attention. The unbeliever sees a cross as a part of the decoration of your church building. As he sits in your pews, he may see gold chains, bearing crosses, around the necks of individuals. He'll soon forget these outer appearances. He'll start looking for the cross on the hearts of all the professed followers. Listen! Did he find that if he happened to be in our services last Sunday?

When the sinner comes to your services and you tell him that Christ gave His life for him, he is going to look about and see what you have given and are continuing to give to Him—your heart, your life, naturally. But what else? He'll be just a babe in Christ when he joins our ranks. Wouldn't it be grand if we could impress upon him that after all we are not giving. "What?" you gasp. No; not a "giving" but a "returning" church. He gave all to you. The cattle on a thousand hills are His. You return His money, the use of your talents. Last week, let us suppose, you came to me. A five-dollar bill passed from my hand to yours. This week you came to my home and placed a five-dollar bill in my hand. Did you really give me anything? No; you just returned it. Isn't that a grand way to feel about our Master? He has given me all that I have, all that I am. I can't pay the debt I owe, but I can continue to give back to Him, as part payment, my heart, my life, my time, and my stewardship.

Again we turn to our newcomer on a Lord's Day morning. Maybe he has come from a home where there is discord, quarreling. Out in the world he has become accustomed to strife. Groups are pulling in opposite directions. He now seeks a haven of rest. When he seeks a church closest to Christ's ideals and mine, he won't want to find such conditions. No; he'd like to find something similar to that which prevailed at Pentecost —"all with one accord."

I would like to be in Bulgaria in the springtime. I would like to be in the region where bloom the roses from which much of the world's supply of attar of roses is made. The blossoms fill all the valleys and countryside with their fragrance. Hundreds of workers gather these roses while in their prime. The scent is captured and held for all the world to enjoy. The garments of these workers become permeated with perfume. Wherever they go the air is sweetened and their friends remark, "Ah, I know where you've been—in the valley of roses."

Just as the Bulgarian rose pickers lend their perfume to all with whom they come in contact, so will those who compose the ideal church give the world that distinctive fragrance which comes only from fellowship with Jesus.

ADVENTURE

AN ELEPHANT HUNT

By J. P. Kliever

Dusk is falling fast, with that surprising speed known only to those who have dwelt in the tropics. The two hunters, Monsieur Herry, our administrator, and Monsieur Petitjean, the administrator from the neighboring district, are on an errand of mercy. The errand is to drive off the large herd of elephants that has gotten off the game reserve and is starting to spoil native plantations.

A large herd is now on the move, but there is one lone elephant—a bull—who is traveling close by, independently of the herd. Lone elephants are skilled in all the arts of self-preservation, and these hunters are also skilled hunters, being veterans of quite a few hunts. They approach with all the skill of experience and with all the remembered skills according to elephant hunters' stories and instructions. They have full confidence in their large-caliber rifles.

When they have worked into the right distance and angle for the best shots, Mr. P., who is the guest, will get to do the shooting, and Mr. H. will hold his fire in case there is a charge. As Mr. P. shoots once, then twice, the elephant doesn't fall. The shots have been rightly placed, but . . . the charge is on! Mr. H. holds his fire until there can be no possibility of a miss—so that the animal will be sure to be stopped. The elephant grows larger and larger, a moving mountain of dark animal. At about five yards Mr. H. shoots, placing the bullet into the head just back of the eyes. According to experience, and according to the books, the elephant should have fallen, but this elephant doesn't play according to the rules!

There is no time to reload and fire, for the elephant keeps right on coming—it is too late for Mr. H. to escape. Mr. H. sees the animal's gleaming tusks, his flared-out ears, his raised trunk. He remembers that just recently an old elephant hunter had been decapitated by a tusk like that. He also knows that there is no way of escape under the elephant.

Mr. H. tries to dodge toward the side that the books say is the slower side of turning for the elephant, but the elephant turns with him as quickly and as agile as a smaller animal. The books also say that an elephant cannot see very well—this one doesn't lose sight of the man for an instant, because as soon as Mr. H. sees the elephant has turned with him, he does another right-angle turn, and there again he fails. He does all he can to avoid that gleaming tusk coming at him—he dives to the ground sidewise, receiving a solid slap with the trunk of the elephant and a bad kick with the leg. Mr. H. is out of the fight, face down on the ground. The usual procedure after this is for the elephant to walk over the man, leaving a paper-thin form on the ground, bones and all being crushed to splinters.

Mr. P. meanwhile has taken two more shots, also well directed into killing spots, and he shoots the third, only to hear the terrible click of an empty gun barrel receiving the trigger hammer. His last shot, however, had made the elephant reel. The elephant, having about-faced in the two right-angle turns charging Mr. H., keeps on going. Mr. P. starts after him to finish him off when he sees the form of Mr. H. on the ground! The hunt is over.

Mr. H. is unconscious for about 45 minutes, but he is carried for six kilometers to the auto road, and then after a rough trip of another 25 kilometers is brought to our mission station. After first-aid care by Miss Thurston, and prayer, he started on his way to a very quick recovery from the bruises, broken ribs, etc. According to known accounts of elephant hunts, Mr. H. will be the fourth man who has lived to tell the story, and his is the most unbelievable of them all.

He is now able to travel again, and one of his first trips was to visit us to give his testimony before the native Christians. He said: "I am not speaking to you as your administrator, but as a fellow believer in Christ. After my recent experience, I have had some time to think about things, and I feel very deeply what I am going to say to you. There was no possible way for me to save my life. I can claim no natural cleverness or one bit of credit for my escape from certain death beneath that elephant. I was a dead man; it is only by God's hand that I am alive today.

"The life that I have today is not my own, it belongs to God. I am conscious that I must live it as God wants me to and make the testimony that God would have me make."

We have been saved from a greater catastrophe than death by an elephant; we are, therefore, not our own. We are purchased with a redemption price; therefore present your bodies to God for spiritual service.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

The keynote message of Rev. Mark Malles was delivered on January 9, when he assumed the pastorate of the First Brethren Church. The sermon was taken from Ezra 7-9, in which the pastor showed that (1) Ezra was a man with a prepared heart (7:10); (2) Ezra was a man with a practical faith (8:18-23); and (3) Ezra was a man who prayed for revival and his prayer was answered (9:1-15).

On November 25, 1951, Rev. Malles became pastor of the First Brethren Church of Altoona, Pa., where he served until accepting the pastorate in Fort Wayne. Prior to this he had served as pastor of the First Brethren Church of Sterling, Ohio, for five years; as a missionary in Taos, N. Mex., for one and a half years; and as pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Flora, Ind., for four and one-half years.

Mark Malles was graduated from Grace Theological Seminary in the class of 1945. His ministry has had an impact upon our brotherhood through his writing of the Adult Quarterly in the all-Brethren Sunday-school series.—The Editor.

Dayton, Ohio

The Bethany Brethren Church of Dayton, Ohio, experienced a blessed time of revival during our January meetings with William Smith, evangelist.

Clair Brickel, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Clayton, Ohio, and Marion Hoffman, member of the North Riverdale Brethren Church, Dayton, Ohio, did a wonderful job of alternately leading the singing, with Eugene Weimer at the piano. The music prepared hearts for Bill's forceful messages.

Decisions were made, both public and private, that will be for lasting good. The prayers of the saints were also a great factor, as we all felt the mighty tug of the Spirit upon our heartstrings during the preparatory weeks.—Charles E. Gantt, pastor.

The preaching of the Word of God has once again brought forth fruit. The Lord's power was felt at Bethany Brethren, Dayton, Ohio, January 2-16.

There are many things for which we can praise God in relation to this campaign. The cooperation from the Brethren churches in the area was splendid; delegations came from Dayton First, Covington, Camden, Troy, Englewood, North Riverdale, and Clayton.

Six public decisions for rededications were made.

Rev. and Mrs. Gantt were wonderful hosts to me during the two weeks. These dear saints love the Lord and are deeply sincere. They are making many sacrifices to labor for their Lord.

I thank God for the friends made during this campaign and trust Him for many blessings to be upon this group.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

Wheaton, Ill.

We here at the Grace Brethren Church have much for which to thank the Lord. This past quarter (October-December) we held a "go to Portland" Sunday-school contest. A large map was constructed by Mr. Tom Bailey, a member of the Brethren Construction Company, showing Wheaton at one side and Portland at the other. Then cars were placed on the map and miles were gained through points given for visitors and new members. During this last quarter our average attendance was 51, while the previous quarter was 38. This gain obtained for us first place in the Indiana District Sunday School Contest.

As already reported in the Missionary Herald, our church was burned, but the Lord has a definite purpose even in this, for we know that Romans 8:28 is still in the Book.

We are looking to the Lord for even greater blessings in the days to come.—Lois Miller, news reporter.

CRUSADE TEAM TWO COMPLETES NW. TOUR; NOW IN EAST

Crusade Team Two has completed 13 weeks of evangelizing in the Pacific Northwest. We began at Seattle, Wash., with Rev. Thomas Hammers and closed at Albany, Oreg., with Rev. Glen Welborn.

It was a real pleasure to work with such a fine group of pastors. They are capable, devout, and dedicated men who love the Lord and have a real passion for the lost. They have a shepherd's heart, therefore are taking good care of their respective flocks.

Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Colburn were our efficient helpers. They did an excellent job in directing the music and conducting "Happy Hour." May the Lord richly bless Ralph and Julia in the new work at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

We are now crusading in the East —Pennsylvania, Virginia, Ohio, and Indiana. The Lord has graciously given us two young men as teammates—Bill Byers, songleader and soloist, and Jim Martin, pianist. Two excellent young men, with plenty of talent. We are anxious to do a good job. We need your prayers and support.

We are happy to be a part of the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade, which is sponsored by the laymen of our beloved fellowship. The board members are dedicated to this work. Rev. Clyde Landrum, president of the Board of Evangelism, deserves special mention for his labor of love. —Archie L. Lynn.

Rosemont Brethren Congregation Votes to Go Self-Supporting

Editorials

By L. L. Grubb

Roman Catholics Want Christian Unity

The Roman Catholic bishop of Tucson, Ariz., has recommended to all parishes of the diocese that prayers be offered during the week of January 18-25 for unification of all branches of the Christian faith under the church of Rome.

Bishop Daniel J. Geroke stated that unity should be sought with "complete firmness of doctrine, avoiding both the spirit of compromise and the spirit of contempt."

Yet there are still people, even orthodox, Bible-believing Christians, who believe that the Roman Catholic Church would practice tolerance of other religions if it were not forced to do so in America. The bishop stated the basic and general policy of the Roman Catholic Church. It is not different in any sense from the policy which sent thousands of Protestant Christians into the inquisitorial torture chambers during the Spanish Inquisition.

Those were horrible years. In the name of the Roman Catholic Church barbarians committed atrocities which have hardly been equaled in history. Cities were sacked, burned, and ruined; women and children were violated by the thousands; even unborn infants were torn from the bodies of living mothers. Whole populations were hacked to pieces by soldiers in a mad orgy of wanton cruelty. It is carefully estimated that during the 18 years of the reign of Catholic Thomas of Torquemada, the Spanish Inquisition punished at least 105,000 persons, of whom about 8,800 were burned alive. At the same time 2,000 Jews were executed in Andalusia. Already the bloody Inquisition had been under way for over 200 years and was yet to continue.

This is what "complete firmness of doctrine, avoiding . . . the spirit of compromise," could mean to every Protestant and non-Catholic in America.

The Roman Catholic Church has never changed its intentions, nor its basic purposes.

This system is out to control America both politically and religiously. The danger is more imminent than most realize. With the exception of the inherent unbelief so prevalent in America today there is no other threat as potentially dangerous to our way of life and freedom of conscience, as the Roman Catholic hierarchy. Unfortunately, many will not face this issue realistically until it may be too late.

There is one absolute antidote for the poison and heresy of Roman Catholicism. It is the preaching of the true Gospel of Jesus Christ. This spiritual dynamite of God sweeps all else aside in the human heart and wins national as well as individual battles.

A Not-Very-Encouraging Word for Smokers

You may smoke—but read this!

Your chances of dying of a heart attack increase 95 percent if you smoke a pack of cigarettes daily. You have a 156-percent better chance of dying from cancer and your life is shortened by at least five years.

Dr. C. C. Hammond, American Cancer Society director, spoke before the American Medical Association in San Francisco recently and gave these startling figures. His careful research covered 187,766 smokers and non-smokers.

Considering these facts, the loss of precious money involved in the purchase of tobacco, and the impairing of a Christian testimony by its use, it would seem that Christians would refrain from using the "weed."

Millions of Americans More—Where Will They Go? What Will We Do?

Back in the 1930's population experts were telling us that by 1950 America would be a grown-up nation and the population would probably remain static from then on. Just the opposite has been happening.

In the past four years the U. S. population has increased 9.4 million to make a present total of about 162.4 million. In 1954 the rate of growth was 2.8 million. This would be like adding a new city such as Detroit annually to the American population. This year births passed the four-million mark. On the other hand, due to medical advances and other factors, the rate of deaths continues to decline.

All of these people need to be fed and clothed and cared for physically. That means prosperity and more business expansion.

Along with the increase in population has come a great shifting of our constituency. It is toward the West and South and off the farm into the cities. The population gains of the States in the southern and western sections of our land are in some cases phenomenal.

California leads the list in the largest actual number of new residents. Nevada chalked up the highest percentage in the last four-year period when they registered a 33:1-percent gain. A few States have actually lost in number of residents in spite of the increase in population, but most have gained some. However, the deep South and West have gained the most in per-capita additions. Apparently people are looking for a sunny, dry climate. For instance, during the past four years Florida added over 25 percent to its population.

New generations and population shifts present a new challenge to the church. We must see to it that where these increased numbers of people are there is an increased evangelization. If we fail in this, a new generation of pagan unbelievers will appear to lead America even farther from the original paths of righteousness opened by her founding fathers from the Word of God.

However, not yet have we even properly evangelized the present and past generation. The church has already missed her opportunity by apostasizing and socializing a divine institution. What can we expect from a church in meeting this new challenge, which has already failed to meet the present challenge?

Discerning children of God have never faced such an opportunity in faithful witnessing and soul-winning!

Martinsburg Church Becomes Self-Supporting

THE BLESSING OF GOD UPON BRETHREN HOME-MISSION WORK IS NEVER SO CLEARLY MANIFEST THAN IN THE CONSUMMATE GROWTH OF A NEW CHURCH TO A SELF-SUPPORTING CONDITION.

BY THE GRACE OF GOD MANIFESTED IN THE FAITHFULNESS OF HIS PEOPLE, THE BRETHREN HOME-MISSION CHURCH IN MARTINSBURG, W. VA., NOW TAKES IT PLACE AMONG THE WELL-ESTABLISHED CHURCHES OF OUR FELLOWSHIP.

UNDER GOD, THE REV. M. L. MYERS AND A FAITHFUL GROUP OF BRETHREN WORKED AND SACRIFICED OVER A FIVE-YEAR PERIOD TO REAR THIS MONUMENT OF SPIRITUAL POWER AND WITNESS IN THE COMMUNITY. NOW, UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF THE REV. EARLE PEER, THE CHURCH IS GROWING IN EVERY DEPARTMENT.

THE ATLANTIC FELLOWSHIP DISTRICT MISSION BOARD AND MANY FRIENDS OF THE WORK IN THAT DISTRICT REJOICE WITH THE BRETHREN HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL IN THE PART EACH HAD TO PLAY IN THE ESTABLISHMENT AND DEVELOPMENT OF THIS TESTIMONY.

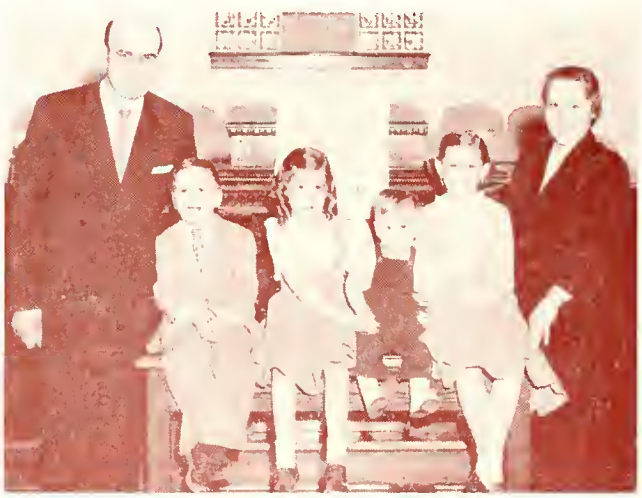
PRAYER PROGRESS PRAISE

By EARLE E. PEER
Pastor, Rosemont Brethren Church
Martinsburg, W. Va.



"Praise ye the Lord. Praise the Lord, O my soul. While I live I praise the Lord: I will sing praises unto my God while I have any being" (Psa. 146:1-2).

The words of the psalmist convey the sentiments of pastor and people of the Rosemont Brethren Church. Truly, "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad." We have much cause for praise and thanksgiving because of the "exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think," which our God has done for us in Martinsburg.

As we begin the new year of 1955 as a self-supporting church, we want to give thanks to God for what He has accomplished, and then we want to thank God for the Brethren Home Missions Council. We also wish to take this opportunity to express our gratitude and thanksgiving to our many home-mission friends across the nation. We have a Brethren church in Martinsburg, W. Va., because "you" prayed, because "you" gave generously to home missions. This is the church which you have built with your prayers and by your gifts. I believe that the pictures you will find elsewhere in this Home Mission number of the Herald will convince you that home missions "does pay dividends." At Rosemont Brethren we believe in home missions! We are praising the Lord that He has enabled our church to go self-supporting in order that the funds given to our support may now be released to help build a Brethren home-mission church in some needy community in our great nation. For what has been accomplished at Martinsburg we give God all the glory, but certainly much credit belongs to the Brethren Home Missions Council and the board of directors for their invaluable and wise counsel, and the financial assistance for the past five years without which there could have been no Brethren church in Martinsburg. Thank you, Home Missions Council! Thank you, home-mission friends across the land of America!

The Rosemont Brethren Church was conceived and born in prayer. In February of 1949 a small group of Christians from a modernistic church began to gather in homes for prayer to seek the face of God in the matter of a church where the whole Word of God could be preached, and where the Bible was honored as the inspired Word of God. Under the guidance of God's hand, two Brethren pastors were directed by the Holy Spirit to this nucleus of God's people. On April 22, 1949, under the direction of the Brethren Home Missions Council, a Brethren church was organized. God called and placed Bro. M. L. Myers as the pastor of the "baby church" in July of 1949. That Brother Myers and his good wife were the choice of God to minister the Word to the brethren at Martinsburg is very evident from the way in which God blessed in the early days of the church. There were many discouragements and problems which at the time seemed almost insurmountable, but these dear folk under the leadership of Pastor Myers were more than conquerors through our blessed Lord.

September 30, 1950, was the day of dedication for the new building, at which time Dr. Alva J. McClain was the dedication speaker. Dr. Paul Bauman spoke in behalf of the Home Missions Council. The building is the first unit of a T-shape building, which, when completed, will have the entrance of the main sanctuary facing King Street. Already our building is "bursting at the seams" and we are desperately in need of further building to adequately house our Sunday school. Pray with us that God will enable us to build our main building soon so that our church will not suffer because of overcrowded conditions.

Under the ministry of Brother Myers the church prospered spiritually and financially. The brief history of the Rosemont Brethren Church is a story of the grace of God. Many souls were saved and the saints of God were built up and established in the most holy faith. As successor to Brother Myers, I can say that he and Mrs. Myers did an excellent piece of work for God as they labored in this part of the Lord's vineyard. I am sure there are many rewards laid up in heaven for their faithful ministry in Martinsburg. There was such a spirit of love, unity, and passion for the Lord's work in the congregation that when this pastor arrived on the field last June, the people were ready to go to work for Christ.

God has abundantly blessed every effort put forth for His glory so that there have been 13 first-time confessions of Christ and 53 rededications of life to the Lord in the six months we have been in Martinsburg. Our most recent converts were Mr. and Mrs. Zepp and their granddaughters, who were formerly Roman Catholics. For all this we give praise to our God for the mighty working of His Holy Spirit in our midst. I am convinced in my own way of thinking that an important factor in the rapid growth of our church can be attributed to our

Brethren Preaching Provides Feast and Produces Fruit

By Mrs. Jesse M. Ash

"He hath shewed his people the power of his works" (Ps. 111:6).

This is the testimony of the Rosemont Brethren Church today. In this short span of six years, God has molded together a group of people who are humbly seeking to witness of His saving grace and keeping power. Truly He has richly blessed us. He has set before us a veritable feast of the Word. For us there has been no searching through a barren, scholarly lecture in an effort to glean a bit of spiritual food. How wonderful to have a feeling of well-being, to know that your life is well-ordered and that your every need is being met. Every victory through the years has been another evidence that "he is faithful who promised."

But for me, a mother, the victories and blessings have an even greater significance, because to me has come the deep joy of seeing my four children, one by one, make a personal choice of the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour. Under the searchlight of the Gospel which has shined into our lives, I want to recount what it means to be a part of this fine congregation.

The abundant feast of the Word, so fully and clearly proclaimed by our pastors, is offered so that even my seven-year-old son can partake of it. There is no thought of arranging for the children to be elsewhere during the worship service. They can and do receive food for their souls, help on their personal problems, and are challenged to live daily as followers of "The Way."

I breathe a fervent "Thank You, Lord," when my teen-age daughter chooses to attend choir rehearsal rather than go to her 4-H club party. The "seek ye first" of the Word has indeed found lodgement. Then, how humbly grateful I feel when my son, just 7, prays earnestly for a missionary whose needs have touched his heart. How encouraging to hear little ones interceding in behalf of others rather than concentrating on selfish desires.

When our family discussions turn to vocations, how I thrill to hear all the children giving serious consideration to full-time service for the Lord, and planning ways and means to this end.

I know by experience that the Rosemont Brethren Church has filled a great need in our family. The goal of every department and organization is to win souls for Christ; then to stimulate real Christian growth. The church school, youth department, summer camp all provide opportunity for the developing of friendships in the church. Our weekly calendar of events is filled with church-centered activities for which the entire family plans enthusiastically. Truly this Christian fellowship is a satisfying experience.

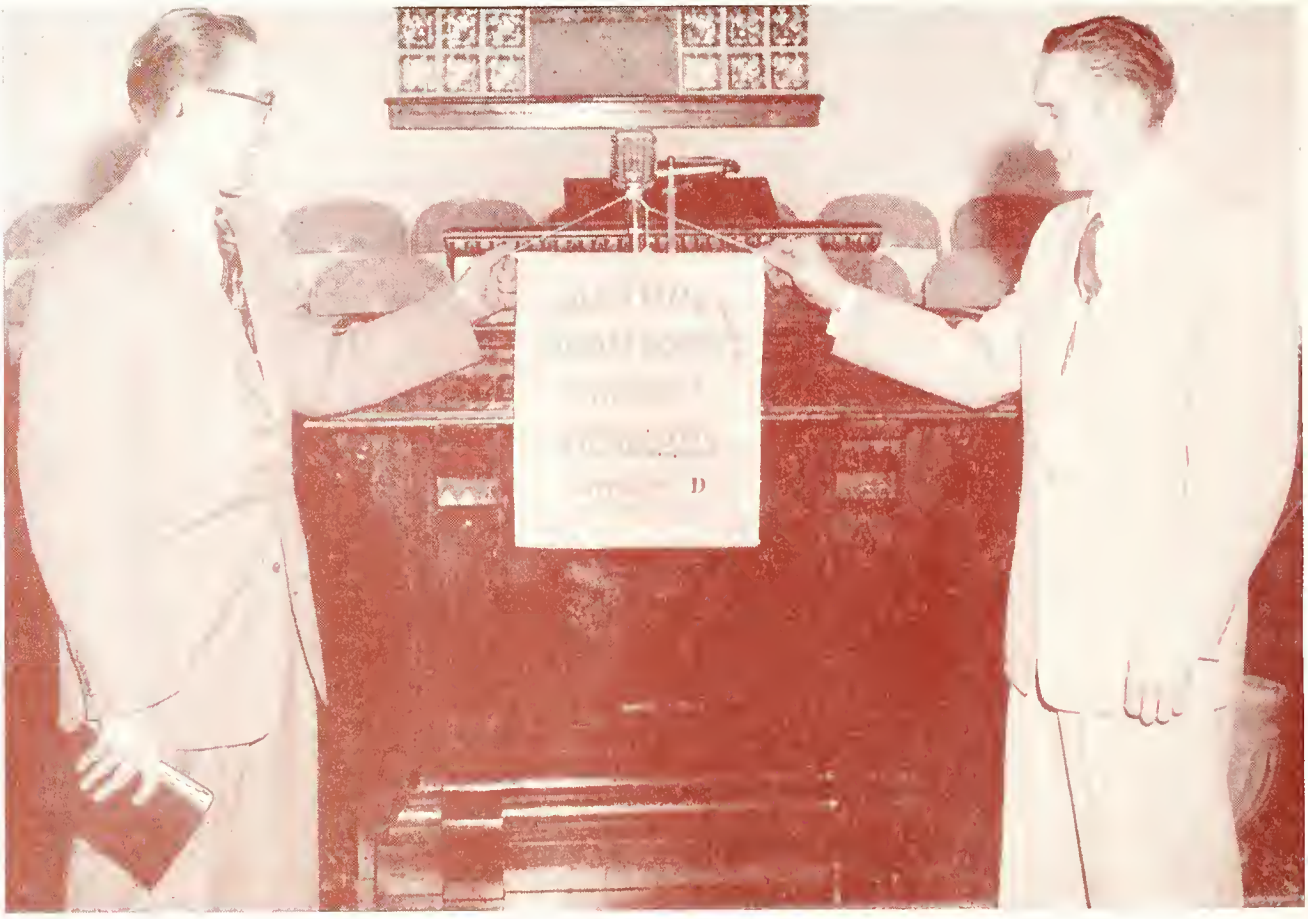
As I review the events which led up to the formation of our church, I am most thankful that we were not satisfied with "half a loaf"; that we obeyed the command to "come ye out from among them"; that we took that step of faith; and that we stood the test of trials and hardships because "the glory of this latter house shall be greater than the former, saith the Lord of hosts" (Hag. 2:9).

THE ROSEMONT BRETHREN CHURCH THRIVES ON PRAYER!

By Mr. Lester A. Kisner, Vice Moderator

During the fall of 1948 a group of Christians gathered every Saturday night for prayer and Bible study as the forces of modernism were slowly forcing out the truths of the Word of God in their churches.

In January of 1949, Dr. Donald Barnhouse held a week of meetings in Martinsburg, and at one of these meetings gave the following formula for discerning the will of God concerning modernism: (1) Each believer pray every day for one week for personal cleansing; (2) Next week pray for God to reveal His will; (3) The third week pray that either the preacher would "die" or else come out from them.



On the first Saturday-night prayer meeting after the Barnhouse meetings, there were about 18 people present. Each one agreed to pray at the same time and meet again on Wednesday night. During the Wednesday-night meeting it was pointed out how important it was that none hold any personal grievance. By the next Saturday night, the personal testimonies revealed that the Lord Jesus had undertaken for us in a marvelous way.

As we started on the second request of the formula the second week, it was evident that the answer was on its way. The Holy Spirit moved two Brethren ministers to call on a member of the Saturday-night prayer-meeting group and these two ministers met with us, starting our present congregation.

After organization by the Home Missions Council, we held two prayer meetings a week—one devoted entirely to prayer, the other for prayer and Bible study. Many trials and obstacles arose, but God overcame each one as the requests came to Him in prayer. Sometimes the answers to prayer came so quickly that we could hardly keep up with the thanksgiving.

After moving into the church in 1950, and the added activities that a growing congregation called for, it was decided to have only one night a week for prayer meeting and Bible study. It was not long until our young people and children made up more than one-half of our prayer-meeting attendance. After much thinking by an appointed committee, they suggested a junior prayer meeting for all ages under high school. This consists of four classes grouped according to age. At present, the junior prayer meeting is patterned after the adult group and is held in the church basement. It is a thrill to our hearts as we hear these boys and girls pray, and as we see their fathers and mothers—and even grandfathers—take the Lord Jesus Christ as Saviour in answer to their fervent prayers.

After the combined opening of the adult group and after the prayer requests have been made known, we are dismissed to our separate prayer rooms. There are two ladies' groups, a men's group, and a young people's group. The prayer session lasts for 30 minutes. Again our rejoicing knows no bounds when we hear persons pray who have recently accepted the Lord, or those who have been walking afar off reunite themselves with the Lord. Our prayer-meeting attendance averaged 105 last year. We are thankful for the great blessing God has bestowed upon us, and we are endeavoring to fulfill the command of the Lord to "pray without ceasing."

FROM ONE TO SIXTEEN CLASSES AND FIRST PLACE

By John Davis, Jr., Sunday School Superintendent

"As I was with Moses, so will I be with thee: I will not fail thee, nor forsake thee" (Josh. 1:5b).

Another milestone has been passed, and to God be all the glory. As the words to Joshua sustained him, we, too, of Rosemont Brethren can say the Lord is able.

It seems such a short time ago that a group of true believers met in a firehall basement for worship service. The meeting was a combined one and not much Sunday school except for the children. The visiting minister always brought along a lay member who took the children aside, which was curtained off, and tried to teach them while a sermon was being preached in the same room. The first Sunday 18 children and 44 adults were present.

In a special meeting, March 26, 1949, the first Sunday-school superintendent was selected. J. Earl Lane served in this capacity faithfully and diligently until July 1, 1952. Under his superintendency the Sunday school grew even during the hardships of moving from the small firehall basement to a warehouse room, thence to the gymnasium of the city hall. Never to my knowledge was the spirit and zeal of the people diminished. Always it was: "See you at Sunday school," or, "Ask Mary and Jim to come," when one of the group met another downtown.

There wasn't much real property to take care of, so after establishing in the "gym" at the city hall, each Saturday several men would assemble for "clean-up" details and to set up classrooms in various corners of the room and balcony. We had heat and privacy, but oh, the acoustics of the place!

The people were faithful and continued to bring friends and relatives, where many found Christ. The men's class especially grew, and Sunday was and still is a feast day when the Word is broken and made plain. The children's department, under the able leadership of Brother Lane's assistants, kept on the increase. The rolls were constantly being revised and a steady growth was realized. During these experiences much knowledge was gleaned which has been used to great advantage after moving into the new church building.

At last the day came when our prayers were realized and Sunday school was held in the new church building —another evidence of God's grace. Here we had more room and could disperse the classes throughout the basement, main auditorium, pastor's study, nursery, and baptistry rooms. Tears of joy flowed freely that day as we realized more fully how God had led each step of the way.

Bro. Wayne Byrd accepted the superintendency July

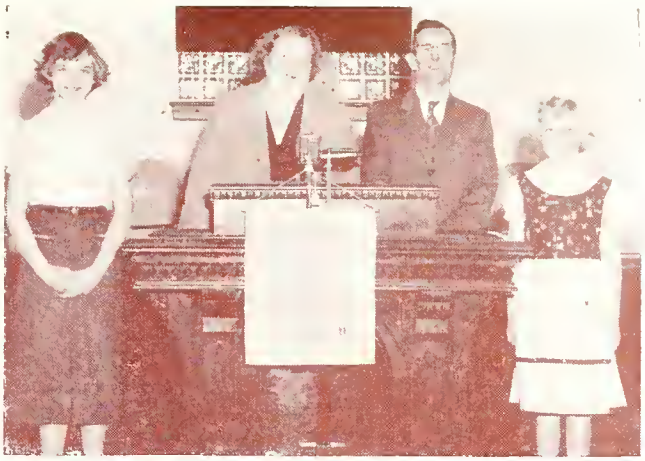
WMC PROVES A BLESSING



By Mrs. Charles Davis, President

The WMC of the Rosemont Brethren Church praises God for the abundant blessings they have witnessed and shared since the starting of the work. We are indeed grateful for the zeal and love of our sister churches at Hagerstown, Md., and Winchester, Va., for it was through them we got off to an early start. By their guidance and leadership at the very beginning, we have enjoyed working together these years in the work of our Lord.

The women of our WMC group are amazed at the fine fellowship and true service rendered for the Lord; also the blessings from the Bible and mission studies provided for us. Previously the majority of our members were in churches where the ladies' aid society held a quilting or maybe a tea party once in awhile, which certainly would be a contrast to our WMC. Our hearts remain heavy for those who are still in such organizations and missing the blessings that are ours. Our desire is to witness to them as "Women Manifesting Christ."

The national WMC has likewise been a great help to us. By corresponding with our district and national leaders we feel we know them, although we are miles apart and some we have never seen.

We of the Rosemont Brethren Church WMC suggest that all new mission churches organize a WMC at the earliest possible date and enjoy the blessings of fellowship you will find in no other group of women. We covet your prayers that ours might be what He would have it to be.

From Catholicism to Christ

By Mr. and Mrs. Paul Zepp

Do you know that you are saved? Ask yourself that question as we did. We had been members of the Catholic Church all of our lives, thinking we were saved. We were unaware of our unsaved condition until on New Year's Eve we attended a watchnight and candlelight service at the Rosemont Brethren Church. That night God showed us that Jesus is the light of the world, and that without accepting Jesus Christ and confessing Him publicly we were lost. We thank God for showing us the Light and for guiding us and our granddaughters to the Rosemont Brethren Church of Martinsburg, W. Va., where they study and where they preach only the Word of God.

Martinsburg Pastor Baptizes Six

We know the one thing that pleases our Lord is to see decisions for Him that mean business. This is true of a pastor, too, and it is little wonder you see a big smile on Brother Peer's face as he stands in the midst of six young people that he recently baptized at Martinsburg, W. Va. These young people, by following the Lord in baptism, indicate their willingness to go all the way with Him. The one thing that could make the smile a little bigger (if possible) is the fact that one of the six was his daughter.

Christmas in a Hogan---1954

By Evan Adams

During the last days of November and the first weeks of December the mission saw an increase of mail and freight parcels coming into the compound, all destined to help make the Christmas a bright spot in the lives of the Navaho people of the Counselor Trading Post area. With school closed for the week before Christmas and the week after Christmas, all time was concentrated on the sorting of these parcels full of clothing, toys, candy, and personal items. No distribution was done from the mission through a local gathering because of the problems in handling the crowds and the drunkenness prevalent at every Navaho gathering now. Each schoolchild went home on December 17 with a large bag full of toys, candy, clothing, games, and personal items. This was his own personal Christmas gift from the mission and the churches, groups, and individuals that had sent in such generous boxes.

Special boxes were made up for the families of the Christians. It was decided to take Christmas to the people instead of having the problem of an unruly crowd at the mission. Also, we could take things to those who best deserved them and to the camps that we wished to make contact with. Everything was sorted into boxes and loaded onto the mission pickup truck. Five of the Christian Navaho people accompanied the mission workers to help in the singing of Christmas carols, telling of the story, and handing out the gifts. It was a full truck and jeep that drove out of the mission one morning just before Christmas and began the bouncing ride over wagon trails, with intermittent stops at hogan sites. Because of the many who helped make this possible but who didn't have the opportunity to go along and receive the blessing of giving to the people, we shall take you to one hogan visit on the way.

We drove through a rolling hill country covered with piñon and juniper. The ground was nearly carpeted with a week-old layer of snow. Sheep bells attached to the truck jingled our approach over the twisting wagon ruts. Sheltered from the cold winter wind in a small vale, surrounded by outcroppings of weathered orange sandstone, squatted a small earthen lodge, almost indistinguishable from the earth about it. The litter of rags, tin cans, and heap of fresh ashes suggested recent occupation. A faint smoke rising from the smokehole told us that someone was home. Our first greeters were five very hungry dogs that welcomed the red truck and green jeep with howls, yelps, and snarls of contempt. Three small faces with hair in various stages of disorder peered out from under the rags that hung over the door to keep the winter from slipping its fingers through the cracks. They relayed a message to those inside, of the strange caravan that had halted on the clearing outside.

We all dismounted from the vehicles and walked toward the hogan and called a greeting to the people in their native tongue. The rags were thrown back and the slab-door tilted on its baling-wire hinges. It was necessary to duck to enter the low door. As we entered, children hid in piles of old blankets or hung their heads in shyness. A mother squatted near the oilcan stove and shared the children's embarrassment with a grin. A small crippled boy, unable to scurry to safety with his brothers and sisters, cried in fear of the strange newcomers. An old blind man sat up from his nap on a sheepskin and tried to evaluate his visitors by cocking his ear slightly.

The home was as meager as the rugged and fruitless land on which it stood. A wooden crate held the perpetual sack of flour, can of baking soda, small can of lard, a box of salt, and three chipped porcelain cups. On the old oilcan stove sat a coffee pot burned black and streaked with old boilings, like the tear-streaked face of the dirty little crippled boy. On the ground near the stove sat a saucepan with a thin stew remaining from the last bread-dipping meal. An occasional faded magazine picture tried to smile from the log walls and ceiling. Even the blankets were old and faded and covered with dust so that one had the feeling of finding people living as near the earth as possible without actually returning unto the earth from which they had come.

We circled the hogan shaking hands and exchanging greetings. The woman looked up and spoke to one of the Navaho Christians: "Some day I am going to die, it is so cold in here." The old blind man, in much better spirits, called out to know who we were and why we had come. When it was told that we had come from the mission to bring Christmas to their home, the old man replied, "I like candy too!" "Have you any shirts?" he asked, exposing his only shirt, a dirty old T-shirt. One of the Navaho Christians explained that we would first like to sing some Christians songs and tell the joy of Christmas; then we had a truck full of things to make anyone's heart glad. The mother of the children, too embarrased to answer, only grinned again and looked at the ground. The old man said, "I'm ready." During the singing of the songs in the native tongue, the speaking of the words, there was no show on the faces of the people that they heard or understood. It was as though ages of fear and superstition had cast a layer of sedimentary stone over the souls of these people. Although we were in the same hogan, we were thousands of years apart.

The people were invited out to the truck to receive a token of the birth of Christ. Clothing boxes were opened. Soon the teen-age girls were wearing fine woolen coats. Each child had his hands full of toys, crayons, crackerjacks, candy, shirts. A dog tried to help the little crippled boy lick his sucker. He would willingly have shared it, but it was so good. The mother had her arms filled with canned milk, combs, soap, washrags, candy, crackerjacks, children's clothing, some new stockings, and a new headscarf. She was still grinning shyly, hardly knowing where to cast her glance. The old man squatted on the ground chewing his candy, his lap full of shirts, underwear, socks, and a large warm overcoat. "I need soap too," he called toward the truck.

As we drove from that camp toward the next visit, one could hardly help but feel that we had been in a conflict with the ages, and hadn't moved our adversary, nor comprehended him. The story we were carrying and rejoicing in was as old—yet, unheard, uncomprehended, unheeded. It takes a long time to crack into the stone covering Navaholand.

1, 1952, until moving out of town the following year. He was a very capable and earnest leader.

Upon Brother Byrd's leaving, it fell my lot as assistant to take over this position until the June elections. Being returned to office, I can say in true humility, my God has been my stay and helper and if anything has been accomplished, it's because He is faithful. Our prayers are heard and answered, and "the people have a mind to work." Our classes number 16, with an average attendance of 176 for the past year. Our facilities are again overcrowded and we are praying that it may be the Lord's will soon to start work on the main portion of the church building.

Our school won the Sunday-school banner in Division D for December, and it is our goal to keep it until June.

radio ministry. On October 31, 1951, the church initiated a radio program, "The Gospel Truth." Since that time the Rosemont Brethren Church has been on the air with the saving Gospel of grace every Sunday without missing a single Sunday. At first, the music for the program was provided by the Home Missions Council recordings. Since national conference of last year the church has purchased a tape recorder, which has made possible the broadcasting of the Gospel Truth locally. The music for the Gospel Truth is now furnished by our church choir, under the direction of Mr. Harold Busey, with Mrs. Clyde Bryarly at the Hammond organ. Many favorable comments have been received from our radio audience since the church now produces the entire broadcast.

"Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified . . ." (II Thess. 3:1).

PERSONAL EVANGELISM

By ARCHIE LYNN

Evangelist, Crusade Team Two

The greatest business in the world is soul-winning. This is one type of business in which every Christian should be engaged. Dr. Lyman Abbott declared: "The greatest work one can do for another is to win him to Christ. This was in the mind of the Lord Jesus when He said: "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men" (Mark 1:17).

Personal Evangelism Needed

The word "evangelism" might be divided "ev-angel-ism." Putting the angel or messenger into evangelism is the supreme need of the hour. Personal contact is the method taught in the New Testament. Out of the 40 people who are recorded as having come to Christ, only six came apparently of their own accord. The remaining 34 were brought to Jesus by somebody. It is imperative that men come to the Lord Jesus Christ and get saved, and then they will be compelled to go after the unsaved by the Holy Spirit of God.

Personal Evangelism Neglected

In the field of personal evangelism there is indeed a man shortage. A sitdown strike in the vineyard of the Lord. Many people love Jesus, but not enough to make a personal effort to win others to Him. Yet, personal evangelism is the main business of the child of God. This is true, in spite of the fact that many treat it as incidental to the Christian life. Personal evangelism is paramount. In many respects the main business of the church has been neglected. The religious sideshow consumes so much of our interest that we miss the main event in the main tent.

Personal Evangelism Taught

"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10).

The chief method of winning men as taught by Jesus was personal evangelism We have the examples of Jesus and the woman at the well, and the case of Jesus and Zacchaeus.

One of the main aims of the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade is to preach Christ in such a manner that men will come to love Him, and in turn they will come to love the lost about them. It is the love of Christ that constrains the believer to go forth and witness to the saving grace of the Lord Jesus.

JOINS CRUSADE

DEAN FETTERHOFF

By Clyde Landrum

The Board of Evangelism is pleased to announce that Dean Fetterhoff, Grace Seminary senior, will be affiliated with the board after his graduation from Grace this spring. He is a graduate of Bob Jones University and is a member of the Grace Brethren Church, Flora, Ind.

Since he is definitely led of the Lord to the field of evangelism, the board feels that Dean Fetterhoff will be greatly used by the Lord in the great revival-evangelism work of the Brethren Church. He has already had much experience in this field, having held many meetings while attending Bob Jones and Grace Seminary, and in summer work.

Dean is married and has one child, Robert Dean, aged five months. Mrs. Fetterhoff was formerly Miss Billy Jean Hardy, and is from Jackson, Miss.

REASONS FOR A SPECIAL CRUSADE OFFERING FEB. 27

Crusade Tent at Taos, N. Mex.

1. To assist small mission churches in their evangelistic programs.
2. To provide needed equipment for the Crusade Teams which would facilitate their work.

SHOWERS OF BLESSINGS

BY

Irene Seigner

"There is a great deal more said in the Bible about praise than prayer; yet how few praise meetings there are."—Dwight L. Moody.

"Figures do not lie," according to some sage. And it is true that figures do not always tell the whole story; yet they certainly reveal trends or results. Figures also show what God is doing.

The Meyersdale Brethren Church, Meyersdale, Pa., was organized May 17, 1950, with a membership of 146. For more than two years our church met in the little building owned by the Evangelical United Brethren Church. We had no church home. We were indeed thankful to God and to the members of this church who so graciously shared their building with us while our church was being built. Under the guidance of Gerald Polman our church was constructed.

In February 1951 we moved to the basement of the new church, where we held regular services until the following August. The church nearing completion was dedicated August 19, 1951. The total cost of the edifice was $90,000. Since that time the debt has been more than two-thirds cleared, leaving at the present time a debt of $25,000.

"How," one might ask, "was the debt paid off so rapidly?" There is only one answer—"showers of blessings"! We know that prayer changes things; therefore we prayed. From the conception of this work in Meyersdale every problem has been taken to the Lord.

The Bible school had a very active part in the reduction of the indebtedness on the Meyersdale church. From year to year projects were selected, and the goals were met by each group. The women's Bible class completed their project by paying for the cost of all the brick in the new church. The Win-A-Couple Class purchased a new Hammond organ with chimes and a public-address system, making it possible to amplify the organ music so it can be heard throughout the neighborhood. This project was completed in 1954.

The "showers of blessings" continued falling, and our people were eager to do their part to get the most out of those blessings. Each one put his shoulder to the wheel; and 1955 is but a year in which we expect more "showers." A goal of $12,600 has been set by our church as the amount we aim to pay on the building indebtedness. This will mean that one-half of the indebtedness will be paid during 1955. When folk are under the load like this, we can expect "showers of blessings."

The membership has increased rapidly. We now have 191 members, not counting those who have left our community. Several of our families have moved to other cities, where they too are knowing the "showers of blessings" as they are helping in the establishment of several home-mission churches. The Harry Knepper family moved to York, Pa., and are active in the new home-mission church there. The Roland Maust and and Mahlon Bowser families have moved to Elyria, Ohio, and have played a great part in the home-mission church in Elyria. Two have left our midst for foreign soil—Georgina Solt is in Costa Rica and Gloria DiValentino is in Borneo, serving as missionaries. Ward Tressler, formerly of Meyersdale, is pastor of our home-mission church in Altoona, Pa. Brethren, the "showers of blessings" have fallen, and they continue to fall. At the present time we have eight young people in Christian colleges preparing for Christian service. Six of these are attending Grace College. Another is preparing for Christian service as an artist at Pittsburgh, Pa.

During the year of 1953 the total receipts were $23,576, and for 1954 they were $23,673. Our church is missionary-minded, so the "showers of blessings" continue to fall.

Many gifts have been presented to the church during the few years we have been organized. The lots on which the church stands were gifts from a child of God. The beautiful cross on the front of the church was a gift, and has blessed many souls who enter the hospital across the street from the church, or who find comfort through this symbol of victory as they view it from their hospital bed. Other gifts to the church include an electric mimeograph machine, steel cabinet bases for the kitchen, a studio grand piano, electric vacuum cleaner with attachments, and two chrome candelabra.

"Showers of blessings" indeed have fallen on the Meyersdale Brethren Church. In fact, it would be impossible to count the blessings. We are truly thankful to the Lord Jesus Christ for our former pastor, Gerald Polman, who assisted us in the early stages of our work, and for H. Leslie Moore, our present pastor, who has labored diligently through the years.

ANOTHER VIEW OF THE CHURCH

ELECTION

By ALFRED DODDS

Pastor, First Brethren Church
South Gate, Calif.

The doctrine of election is to be looked upon as only a particular application of the general doctrine of predestination or foreordination as it relates to the salvation of sinners, and since the Scriptures are concerned mainly with the redemption of sinners, this part of the doctrine is naturally thrown into a place of special prominence. Since this is the act of an infinite moral Person, it is represented as being the eternal, absolute, immutable, effective determination by His will of the objects of His saving operations. No aspect of this elective choice is more constantly emphasized than that of its absolute sovereignty.

The doctrine of election holds to the existence of an eternal, divine decree which, prior to any difference or desert in men themselves, ordains them to everlasting life. So far as this decree relates to men it designates the counsel of God concerning those who had a supremely favorable chance in Adam to earn salvation, but who lost that chance. As a result of the fall they are guilty and corrupted; their motives are entirely wrong, and they cannot work out their own salvation They have forfeited all claim upon God's mercy, and might justly have been left to suffer the penalty of their disobedience. The elect members of this race are rescued from this state of guilt and sin and are brought into a state of blessedness and holiness. The lost are simply left to their own previous state of ruin, and are condemned for their sins. They suffer no unmerited punishment, for God is dealing with them not merely as men, but as sinners.

Proof From Scripture

In Paul's letter to the Ephesians we read that "he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blemish before him in love: having foreordained us unto adoption as sons through Jesus Christ unto himself, according to the good pleasure of his will" (Eph. 1:4-5 ASV). In Romans 8:29-30 (ASV) we read of that golden chain of redemption which stretches from eternity past on through to that eternity which is yet to come: "For whom he foreknew, he also foreordained to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren: and whom he foreordained, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified."

Foreknown, foreordained, called, justified, glorified, and with always the same people included; and where one of these factors is present, all the others are in principle present with it. Paul has cast the verse in the past tense because with God the purpose is in principle executed when formed, so certain is it of fulfillment. The great theologian Dr. Ben Warfield says: "These five golden links are welded together in one unbreakable chain, so that all who are set upon in God's gracious distinguishing view are carried on by His grace, step by step, up to the great consummation of that glorification which realizes the promised conformity to the image of God's own Son. It is election, you see, that does all this; for 'whom he foreknew . . . them he also glorified.' "

The Scriptures represent election as occurring in time past, irrespective of personal merit, and altogether sovereign: "For the children being not yet born, neither having done anything good or bad, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth, it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. Even as it is written, Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated" (Rom. 9:11-12 ASV). Now if the doctrine of election were not true, what could the apostle mean by such direct statements as these?

"We are pointed illustratively to the sovereign acceptance of Isaac and rejection of Ishmael, and to the choice of Jacob and not of Esau before their birth and therefore before either had done good or bad; we are explicitly told that in the matter of salvation it is not of him that wills, or of him that runs, but of God that shows mercy, and that He has mercy on whom He wills, and whom He will He hardens; we are pointedly directed to behold in God the Potter who makes the vessels which proceed from His hand each for an end of His appointment, that He may work out His will upon them. It is safe to say that language cannot be chosen better adapted to teach predestination at its height" (Warfield).

The Scriptures make very plain the fact that there has been an election. Christ implicitly declared to His disciples: "Ye did not choose me, but I chose you, and appointed you, that ye should go and bear fruit" (John 15:16). By which He made God's choice primary and man's choice only secondary and a result of the former. Arminian theology, however, in making salvation depend upon man's choice to use or abuse proffered grace, reverses this order and makes man's choice the primary and decisive one. Nowhere in the Scriptures do we see an election which is carefully adjusted to the foreseen actions of the creature. The divine will is never made dependent upon the creature's will for its determinations.

Again the sovereignty of His choice is clearly taught when Paul declares to the Roman church that God commended His love toward us in that "while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Rom. 5:8); and that "Christ died for the ungodly" (Rom. 5:6). Here we see plainly that His love was not extended toward us because we were good, but in spite of the fact that we were bad. It is God who chooses the person and causes him to approach unto Him (Ps. 65:4). Arminianism takes this choice out of the hands of God and places it in the hands of man. Any system which substitutes a man-made election falls far below the Scripture teaching on this subject. Praise God, salvation is all of grace! (Eph. 2:8-9).

CHRIST'S COMING || GENTILE NATIONS

BY ROBERT GRIFFITH

PASTOR, GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH
LAKE ODESSA, MICH.

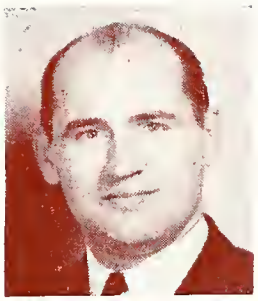
A short time before our Lord was crucified He told His disciples that He must go to His Father's house and prepare a place for His children, and that He would come again (John 14:1-3). Also, in Acts 1:11, as He ascended into heaven, the disciples were told that He would so come in lake manner as they saw Him go into heaven. We are told in many New Testament passages to be watching and waiting, for Christ will return in such an hour as ye think not. The question then arises: What effect will this have upon the gentile nations?

To fully understand this question we must first distinguish between the events of the second coming. We first must note that there are two comings. Christ will first come back for His saints, which we call the Rapture (1 Thess. 4:15-18). Then after a period of time Christ will come back in glory with His saints, which we call the Revelation (II Thess. 1:10).

Next we must understand that during the period between these comings the judgments take place, of which there are at least five. The first judgment is that of the believers' works and this takes place some time between the second coming and the marriage of the Lamb (I Cor. 3:10-15). This judgment doesn't determine whether they are saved or lost but what their rewards for service will be.

The second judgment is the judgment of living Israelites. This will take place at the time Christ establishes His kingdom (Ezek. 20:33). This judgment is to determine those from among that nation who will be counted worthy to enter the covenanted kingdom.

The fourth judgment is the judgment of the dead as found in Revelation 20:11-15. This takes place at the great white throne after the thousand years. The fifth judgment will be the judgment of angels, in which the angels that kept not their first estate (Jude 6) will be judged. The doom of both these judgments is the lake of fire.



Now let us go back to the third judgment which is the judgment of the nations, to see what relation the second coming has to the gentile nations. The basic passage for the study of this judgment is Matthew 25:31-46. At this time Christ will judge the gentile nations to determine who among the nations shall enter the kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world. There is going to be a test that the Lord will use, and that is the treatment the nations will have given to Israel. The church is not referred to here because it will have been taken to heaven to be with the Lord and will have returned to reign with Him. The brethren in this passage are Israel.

This judgment is not a general judgment of saved and lost, for there are three classes referred to here—the nation Israel, those who persecuted the Jews, and those who did not. During the tribulation the gentile peoples will be divided over the issue of Israel, and Israel will be the victim of terrible persecution such as they have never before had. The kingdom therefore belongs to Israel; the only nations that will share in their glory will be those that have treated them kindly. Over in Zechariah 2:8 we read, "He that toucheth you toucheth the apple of his eye." That is, he that toucheth Israel toucheth the apple of God's eye. Therefore, they who persecute Israel will themselves be punished by God for it.

In Matthew 25:32 we find that the Son of man will separate these nations as a shepherd divides his sheep from the goats. The sheep are those who have treated Israel in a kindly manner. This is not to be confused with the Christians of this age who enter heaven on the ground of the finished work of Christ, nor is the goat to be confused with those of this age who reject Christ as their Saviour. The goats referred to here are those nations that have treated Israel unkindly during the tribulation period.

The results of this judgment of the gentile nations is found in Matthew 25:34, 41. As for the sheep, the 34th verse tells us that they shall inherit the kingdom that is prepared for them from the foundation of the world. As for the goats, we are told in the 41st verse that the Lord will say to them: "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels." It must also be remembered that this is a judgment of the living; there is no mention here of the dead. This is not to be confused with the great white throne judgment in which the dead great and small will be judged.

TRIUMPH OVER DEATH

By RUSSELL WEBER

Pastor, Grace Brethren Church
Hagerstown, Md.

Perhaps the most revolting word to the human mind is "death." It conveys the idea of cessation of activity. Death, when considered apart from the Scriptures, seems so unreasonable, and the materialistic person takes little or no time to think about it. As we face the fact of death in ministering to those who are bereaved, we sense a wide variety of reactions. Some folk are prepared for it; others become bitter; still others want to appear indifferent; but try as we may, death is an enemy that confronts all of us. We must turn to God's Word for an answer to the problem of death—what it is, its origin, and how to triumph over it. First, then, consider—

What Death Is

Someone has recently subscribed to a magazine for the writer in which an attempt is continually made to prove that death means the "annihilation" of the body, soul, and spirit. With this hypothesis God's Word does not agree. We are given to understand that God created man a trinity—body, soul, and spirit (I Thess. 5:23). Death in the Scriptures is used in two distinct ways: It refers to (1) the separation of the soul from the body, the soul being the spiritual part of man and the body the material part. When the soul leaves the body, we say the person has died, and the body is buried. This is physical death. Death is also (2) a separation of man from God. This is spiritual death. The notion that death means "annihilation" is in no way substantiated by the Scriptures as it relates to mankind.

The Bible teaches that physical death is the portion of all men (Heb. 9:27). (Only those who will be living when the Lord Jesus Christ returns for His own will escape physical death.) Also, we are told that all men, outside of Christ, are partakers of spiritual death (Rom. 5:12). One writer says: "Death is the opposite of life; it never denotes nonexistence. As spiritual life is 'conscious existence in communion with God,' so spiritual death is 'conscious existence in separation from God.' "[1] We consider next—

The Origin of Death

The Genesis account of creation shows clearly that God created all things perfect and good (Gen. 1:31). He also created man perfect, and set him apart from the rest of His creation by breathing "into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7). Upon placing man in the Garden of Eden, God said: "For in the day that thou eatest thereof [of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil] thou shalt surely die" (Gen. 2:17). Chapter 3 of Genesis describes the fall of man, and the entrance of both spiritual and physical death into the human race. Concerning the origin of sin, Chafer says: "Both spiritual death and physical death, though so different in character and manner in which they reach Adam's posterity, originate alike in the first sin of the first man."[2] Thus we conclude that death originated in the disobedience of man to God's will. There is, however, deliverance from death, and it is possible to experience—

The Triumph Over Death

In considering victory in any given conflict, the defeat of the enemy is implied; unless the enemy is destroyed there can be no victory. In our passage (I Cor. 15:54-58), we have the conclusion of a section in which the Apostle Paul deals with the matter of the resurrection and the mystery of the allasso—the changing of the believer from mortality into immortality, and the victory over death. The key to the triumph over death is to be seen in verse 57, "But thanks be unto God which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." There is no triumph over death apart from the Lord Jesus Christ.

We note that "the sting of death is sin" (vs. 56), and "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). This fact places all men under the sentence of death. To be delivered from death, the penalty must be paid, and the one who has the power of death must be destroyed. None but the Lord Jesus Christ could accomplish this; therefore, He "his own self bare our sins in his body upon the tree, that we, having died unto sins, might live unto righteousness; by whose stripes ye were healed" (I Pet. 2:24 ASV). In like manner our Lord destroyed him who had the power of death. "Since then the children are sharers in flesh and blood, he also himself in like manner partook of the same; that through death he might bring to nought him that had the power of death, that is, the devil" (Heb. 2:14 ASV). Thus the penalty is paid and the enemy is destroyed, and to all who will receive the Lord Jesus Christ as personal Saviour there is deliverance from sin, and the glorious prospect of complete "triumph over death" when Christ comes back for His own. Then, "death is swallowed up in victory!" The victory is assured; it remains but to be fully manifested in the day of Christ. Oh glorious triumph! "Therefore . . . be ye stedfast, unmoveable . . . your labour is not in vain in the Lord."

South Pasadena, Calif.

Opening on New Year's Eve with a watchnight service, the Fremont Avenue Brethren Church held a three-weeks revival, including four Sundays, with Walter Lepp, evangelist, and Charles Bergerson, pianist. A tenor soloist was added to the team for part time. This was the first time the church had held three weeks of continuous services. Many of the faithful members come from a distance and it was a tribute to their faithfulness that they were regular.

The membership of the church is about 100. The field is one of the hardest of which we have knowledge; yet the attendance was encouraging. There were 46 public decisions, all but three of which were either members or other Christians seeking a closer walk and fuller surrender to the Lord. There were 25 children who came in a special Sunday-school decision service which are included in the total of 46.

The music, both instrumental and vocal, was of the finest. The preaching was most inspiring and instructive. The fellowship was rich and unifying. The meetings were emphatically revivalistic and stimulated the spiritual life of all in attendance.—Dr. Charles H. Ashman, pastor.

York, Pa.

For two weeks Crusade Team Two had the blessed privilege of preaching the glorious Gospel in song and sermon.

We were pleased with the growth this new group has made in so short a time. The people are united and faithful. They love their pastor and are pulling together for greater victories. The spirit of cooperation was good. The hospitality and fellowship were refreshing. We never worked with a finer pastor and people. A large number of important decisions were made, and for all these blessings we give thanks to our wonderful Lord.

This was our first experience with our colaborers in the Lord. Brethren Jim Martin as pianist and Bill Byers as song director and soloist presented their dedicated talents unto the Lord in a very humble spirit. They were a constant source of inspiration to all of us.

Rev. Gerald Polman and family are doing such an excellent job. They are held in highest esteem in the community. May the Lord continue to bless their united efforts.—Archie L. Lynn, evangelist, Crusade Team Two.

Kittanning, Pa.

The Lord showered extra blessings on us while Crusade Team Two was with us the last two weeks of January.

With snow and zero temperatures the last 10 nights the attendance fell off, but not the interest. There was much sickness also in the congregation and community.

Evangelist Lynn preached the saving grace of God in his own style. The Lord used it to the salvation of souls and the strengthening of His saints. Bill Byers, the songleader and soloist, warmed our hearts with his directing and singing. He also held the interest of the children in the Junior Crusaders meetings with his illustrations of the gospel story. Jim Martin at the piano and organ left nothing undesired with his musical talents.

During the meetings there were witnessed 159 decisions—39 volunteers for the Crusade Band of personal workers, 39 confessions of Christ as Saviour, 2 applicants for church membership by baptism, 1 full-time life recruit, and 78 renewed their faith in the Lord. We praise His glorious name for it all.—W. H. Schaffer, pastor.

THE BODY
Is for the Lord

By President Alva J. McClain

Man, created in the image and likeness of his Maker, is a highly complex being having spiritual, moral, intellectual, and physical sides to his nature. No program of education can be called completely Christian that does not give proper attention to each of these areas of activity. Only thus can the entire person, "spirit and soul and body," be able to realize completely those possibilities which are ours through and in the Lord Jesus Christ.

In the realm of education there is no question as to the things which must come first. The student's spiritual relation to God, his conformity to the perfect moral will of God, the renewal and training of the mind—these are the matters of primary concern. But the physical side of life should not be wholly neglected, a tendency which in the earlier stages of Christian education may have been given impetus because of the undue secular emphasis upon life in the body here and now as an end in itself. Christianity is concerned with the whole of life, both spiritual and physical, both temporally and eternally.

The body of the Christian believer is not, as some have wrongly taught, a rather useless appendage of the spirit, a temporary prison-house from which we shall escape at death. Although not the most important, the body is nevertheless an essential part of man without which he would forever be incomplete. That is why, in the Bible, death is always pictured as an "enemy," not a friend. That is why the true people of God, from the very beginning, have treated the human body with deep respect, even in death and burial. That is why, when the eternal God gave the perfect and supreme revelation of himself, He became incarnate in a body of flesh and blood. That is why the Christian hope of the future always involves a resurrection of the body.

The Bible teaching about the physical body of the Christian has been greatly neglected and often seriously perverted. The Word of God plainly declares that the body is "for the Lord," and "the Lord" is "for the body." Our bodies as Christians are actually the very "members of Christ"; they are "temples of the Holy Ghost." As such, our bodies have been redeemed, "bought with a price." For this reason the Bible commands us to "glorify God in your body."

For the above reasons, as set forth clearly in I Corinthians 6:13-20, the body of the Christian must be regarded as something holy in God's sight, to be cared for as something very precious, to be trained properly in order that its members may function in the greatest possible way as "instruments of righteousness" in the service of God. To neglect the body in any program of Christian education is not only a short-sighted policy; it is sin.

The Most Equisite Delight

The life story of Dr. Daniel K. Pearson is as interesting as any romance. At 91 years of age he had disposed of all his great fortune, and passed the "sunset of his life in one of the sanitariums which he himself founded." For many years he was a generous giver in many worthy directions. In the early days of his life he was a poor boy. He worked his way through college, living in an attic room and cooking his own frugal meals. He was a schoolteacher, studied medicine, and afterwards was a farmer, and later engaged in the lumber business. He was blessed with a wife, of whom Dr. Pearson has said, "She wanted me to make money to give it away." Wealth increased at a marvelous rate, and with it the husband and wife began to systematically give all the money that was made to help young people who were struggling for an education. His benevolences have been invested in the endowment of 47 colleges in 24 States, 12 of them in the South. In his characteristic way he said: "I have had more fun than any other rich man alive. They are welcome to their automobiles and yachts. I have discovered that giving is the most exquisite delight in the world. I intend to die penniless." Dr. Pearson died a poor man after making gifts to various causes aggregating $6,000,000. He knew the joy of living for others, and indeed laid up his treasure in heaven.—P. R. B.

We Almost Made It!

January is a month in which many people endeavor to "recover from the effects" of Christmas and brace themselves to face the tax collector. Notwithstanding these ordeals our churches sent in offerings for Grace Seminary's General Fund which amounted to $5,802.85. This is just $197.15 short of the $6,000 which the school needs each month to care for its operating expenses. Many of our churches received their annual offering for the school on January 30. Such offerings, even though sent in promptly, will not appear until the February report published next month. Churches not having mailed these offerings to the school are requested to do so. We are praying for a record month.—P. R. B.

AS MARTIN LUTHER SAW IT

"For several years I have read the Bible through twice in every 12 months. It is a great and powerful tree, each word of which is a mighty branch; each of these branches have I well shaken, so desirous was I to know what each one bore and what they would give me. And the shaking of them has never disappointed me. Would that this one Book were in every language, in every land; before the eyes and in the ears and hearts of all men! Scripture without any comment is the sun whence all teachers receive their light."—Selected.

DIGGING AGAIN AT DOTHAN

(PART I)

By John Rea

Associate Professor of Bible Archaeology

(Note: The writer was on Dr. Free's staff as an area supervisor and surveyor during the first season at Dothan in 1953.)

Again last spring Dr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Free and their two young children returned to the Kingdom of Jordan to excavate at Dothan. Dr. Free is professor of archaeology at Wheaton College in Illinois and has had considerable experience in the Near East as well. With them to form the 1954 staff went Mr. George Kelsey, who had been on the 1953 expedition, and his wife and little son, Billy; Mr. Edward Griffiths and Mr. Paul Liefeld, all students at Wheaton, and Rev. Robert Boyd, of Oyster Point, Va.

In 1953 we had dug into the slope of a hitherto untouched site. We had determined that the tell of Dothan (an Arabic word meaning a mound built up by layers of ruined cities) was more or less continuously inhabited from about 3000 B. C. until after 900 B. C. New discoveries awaited the 1954 expedition as they moved 70 miles north to Dothan in Samaria by truck on April 1. Dr. Free hired about thirty local Arabs to dig. After several rainy days, the last of the spring rains, they began on April 6.

The Dump Area

In 1953 the dirt from the excavation had been carried to a small area at the top of the steep slope of the tell. As digging would continue, it would be necessary to expand this dump. It was important to be sure that no city gate or other important structure would be covered later on by the growing dump. Thus for the first two weeks they dug on the slope, parallel to the 1953 excavations. In addition to confirming the chronology of the early Dothan assigned by Dr. Free in 1953, this preliminary work brought to light some small juglets directly under a house wall in the Iron I Age (1200-900 B. C.). Altogether there were six juglets, each one about three inches high, and some fragmentary bones with them.

On Top

On April 19 Dr. Free directed the men to begin to dig on the top of the tell, where the surface is more nearly level. This area of excavation was enlarged several times until by the end of the season it measured 77 by 80 feet. It extended from the top edge of the slope toward the center of the tell.

In the large photograph of the excavated ruins (cover page) can be seen the remaining lower courses of buildings of the Iron I Age. Mrs. Free is supervising the Arab workmen who are digging with hoes or carrying the dirt in rubber baskets (made of old auto tires) to the dump. This level may still have been inhabited when Elisha the prophet was living at Dothan about 840 B. C. (II Kings 6:13).

A Greek Coin

The first day of excavating on top of the tell yielded a well-preserved coin bearing in Greek letters the name, "Antiochus the King." This king could have been any one of the several Seleucid rulers of Syria bearing that name between 300 and 100 B. C. He may well have been Antiochus IV ("Epiphanes"), who fulfilled the prophecy about the "little horn" in Daniel 8:9-14 by desecrating the Temple in Jerusalem about 170 B. C. Subsequent diggings uncovered five Rhodian jar handles (from broken wine jars from the Island of Rhodes south of Asia Minor), each stamped with a Greek inscription, and Hellenistic lamps and lamp sherds. All of these finds indicated the existence of a colony of the Hellenistic (Grecian culture) period.

An Assyrian Bowl

Another discovery significant for dating the next lower (and therefore earlier) level was very puzzling. It was a well-made, highly burnished bowl of thin hard pottery, seven inches in diameter. Its shape was similar to Middle Bronze Age bowls (1800-1500 B. C.); yet it was only 16 inches below the surface and in a stratum dated by other evidence a thousand years or so later. When the eminent French archaeologist from Jerusalem, Pere de Vaux, visited Dothan a few days later, he recognized it as an Assyrian type of bowl which he had found in excavating Tell Far'ah, a site about 15 miles southeast of Dothan. This same type was also found at Samaria, the capital city of the Northern Kingdom, 10 miles south of Dothan. At Samaria the bowls dated to the era of its capture by the Assyrians in 722 B. C. Bowls called "palace-ware" recently discovered at Calah (Gen. 10:12) near Nineveh from the time of Sargon II (722-705 B. C.) are exact parallels to the Dothan Assyrian bowl.

"BODILY EXERCISE IS PROFITABLE"

By Paul R. Bauman, Vice President

The Apostle Paul was evidently a lover of sports. Often in his different epistles he refers to athletic events of one kind or another. Writing to young Timothy in a more general way, he once said: "Bodily exercise is profitable for a little; but godliness is profitable for all things" (I Tim. 4:8 ASV). At first glance one might take it that the Bible is here belittling the necessity for physical exercise, and on this basis someone suggests that an athletic program should have no place in a Christian college. However, a careful study of the passage reveals quite the opposite. The text upholds the necessity for physical exercise, and it also sets such in proper contrast to the more important spiritual exercise necessary for the more vital part of our nature and life as Christians.

Weymouth has well brought out the rich meaning of this passage in his "New Testament in Modern Speech" as follows: "Train yourself in godliness. Exercise for the body is not useless, but godliness is useful in every respect, possessing, as it does, the promise of life now and of the life which is soon coming." The contrast lies not in the uselessness of physical exercise as opposed to the great value of spiritual discipline. It lies rather in the proper emphasis which should be placed upon each. Both, says the apostle, are necessary in this life, but godliness has a double value in that it offers "promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come" (vs. 8 ASV).

Just one year ago at Grace we were given a painful reminder of the necessity for a larger physical education program in the school's life. One of our finest students in the college division was looking forward in a few months to graduation and entrance into the seminary. But, shortly after the beginning of the second semester, he was obliged to drop out of school for the remainder of the year because of a nervous condition. After a careful medical checkup the doctors reported that his difficulty was due largely to the fact that he was getting too little physical exercise. I am glad to report that this young man is back in school again this year and that as a result of his experience, not only his own church, but the laymen of one entire district have launched a move to provide Grace Seminary and College with some of the athletic equipment the school needs. What they have done will be discussed in another article next month.

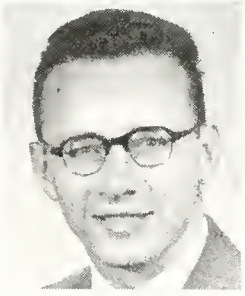
The Alumni Association of the school has also realized the urgency of this need, for at a recent meeting during the alumni conference at Winona Lake, they unanimously passed a motion setting the goals for their 1955 project fund. According to their minutes, $750 is to be used for physical education equipment." Their desires in this regard were even more far-reaching, for the minutes continue to say: "That the Alumni Association recommend to the Executive Committee of the Seminary Board of Trustees that they consider enlarging the physical facilities of the school to include an all-purpose building with a gymnasium."

In view of the aforementioned need for an expanded physical education program, Grace has undertaken this year its first serious athletic competition with outside institutions. The whole undertaking has proved for several reasons to be a real blessing to the entire school. In the first place, the athletic program has provided some with a greater opportunity for needed physical exercise. It has also provided additional opportunities for wholesome recreation and normal social life which all young men and women need. The games are always well-attended by both students and faculty.



Yes; Grace Seminary and College is pledged to maintain the correct balance of emphasis as outlined in the passage. Let me quote it this time as it has been rendered by Williams in his "Translation in the Language of the People": "Physical training, indeed, is of some service, but godliness is of service for everything, for it contains a promise for the present life as well as the future." Students at Grace will always be told that "exercise unto godliness" is absolutely first and of prime importance. Exercise for the body will be stressed insofar as it is necessary to keep men and women fit for the real task that lies before them.

NEWS FLASHES OF STUDENT ACTIVITY

By NORMAN ROHRER

FROM TEXAS, GOOD STEERING

While studying at Dallas Theological Seminary last year, Ray Gingrich (Wheaton College '52) decided that his training should include a ministry to the body as well as to the soul and altered his life's plan. He will enter medical school after seminary for five years of concentrated study. This semester he has entered Grace (1) because he is of the Brethren denomination, and (2) because he plans to use his talents in medical missions of the Brethren Church.

Raymond Gingrich, Jr.

"I'm almost half through," says genial Ray, "but I'm only 23 years old, so I've got plenty of time. Anyhow, who wants you cutting on them until you're 30?"

Gingrich brings not only his enviable academic record, but also his outstanding wrestling know-how to the mats of the musclemen.

STREAMLINED REGISTRATION

Sunset of January 17 saw most students signed on the dotted line for the spring semester, thanks to a one-day registration push by the faculty. Everyone took part in assigned offices, and students obediently filled in their cards.

One bottleneck, however, was the bursar's line, which trailed out into the hall. Fists full of money waited patiently to pay. Some were empty fists, however, and negotiated for deferred payment. Others were filled at the last moment.

Late in the day Eva Godfrey strode up to Dr. Boyer's desk and plunked down a check. She would have come earlier, but you know how the providential mail tests one's faith sometimes. That's like Eva, a regular George Mueller at every turn with a wholesome livelihood to reward her patience and faith.

SNOWBALL SICKNESS

Collegiate Sophomore Russ Yoder yelled that he would have nothing to do with the year's first snowball battle, and started running along the dorm doors at McKee Courts to his room.

Suddenly one of them opened, and Russ crashed into it, fell to his knees, jumped up, fainted, and fell backward and cracked his headbone.

"I had a wonderful time in the hospital," says the lad from Meyersdale. "Four days of eating and sleeping, and not much pain. Besides, insurance covered everything!"

LEFTOVERS

Eager testimonies in a leftover chapel service after final exams told of some real victories among the student body. Bill Male reported a fruitful revival in his church which resulted in warm hearts and a converted middle-aged family. Chuck Noffsinger confided that he had "found" John 15:11 while studying for an exam in that Gospel, and applied it with great success. The Practical Work Department testified of their shocked delight at receiving a $20 bill Christmas gift from appreciative hearers at the Alfran Nursing Home.

GO EAST, YOUNG MEN

"This intramural basketball's okay," the Grace dribblers told themselves last spring, but the best ones weren't satisfied, and began to pray and plan for something bigger.

In the fall they chose versatile Dick Messner as coach, were labeled the "Ambassadors" by the student body, elected some cheerleaders, and began winning outside games against other Indiana and Ohio schools and independent teams.

The season's climax came on February 7 when Coach Messner, George Triandiflou, Ken Kreidler, Bill Snell, Bert Darr, Don Hocking, John Rathbun, Carlton Fuller, and Scorekeeper John Watts suitcased their reds and whites (with Greek books), climbed into three cars, and headed East for games against Christian schools. Faculty Representative Dr. James L. Boyer, with his wife, led the way. After refreshing board at Messner's Ashland, Ohio, home and a hotel snooze, the team sped to the Philadelphia Bible Institute and beat the Keystoners, 86-83.

After the privilege of testimonies and Christian greetings in chapel, they drove north to Shelton College, N. Y., and pocketed another victory, 77-46, with more meetings in the school, and a service of song, testimony, and message in the Hawthorne, N. J., Gospel Church.

On to Providence, R. I., for a game, they beat Barrington Bible College, 76-57, and finished the busy week with a 59-45 loss to Nyack Bible Institute. Not a bad record!

Good weather and good will met the team at every stop. In Johnstown, Pa., they finished their trip with a service in the First Brethren Church.

THE FIRST MESSIANIC PROPHECY

By John C. Whitcomb, Jr.
Associate Professor in Old Testament

One of the sure marks of the God-breathed nature of Scripture is the way in which prophetic seed-thoughts are planted in its most ancient books, and are progressively unfolded in the centuries and millenniums that follow. The original prophecy may seem brief and even mysterious, but its final fulfillment, in all of its manifold aspects and ramifications, reflects back upon that original prophecy, and reveals those aspects which may never have been understood until they were fulfilled. Even as an acorn may seem utterly simple and insignificant to the casual observer, but every distinctive aspect of the great oak lies hidden within it, inviting the careful study of those who are thrilled at its final outcome.

The Pattern of All Prophecy

The very first prophecy of the Bible concerning the coming Redeemer of the world is no exception to this rule. In fact, it sets the pattern for all Bible prophecies. As we study Genesis 3:15, then, we learn not only that God knows all about the future, and that He planned from the beginning to send our Saviour into the world to defeat our archenemy Satan, but we also learn something of God's marvelous method of revealing such truths to ancient men for their hope and encouragement without at the same time confusing them with details they could never have understood.

The Prophecy Itself

For the sake of clarity, let us set forth a literal translation of the prophecy from the original Hebrew text, and arrange it in its three main parts: (1) "And enmity will I place between thee and the woman; (2) and between thy seed and her seed; (3) he shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel." Who are the persons involved in this prophecy? A glance at the preceding verses of the chapter reveals that the speaker is none other than the Lord God; the one spoken to is the serpent, or rather, Satan behind the serpent, and the woman is Eve, "the mother of all living." One other person appears in the prophecy, of whom we shall speak shortly.

Satan and Eve

We must immediately dismiss as absurd the interpretation that this verse is just a continuation of the preceding verse and is therefore nothing more than a pronouncement of hatred and fear between human beings and serpents! How would this fit in with the tremendous solemnity of the occasion? How would the outcome hold forth any hope to this guilty pair? No; the serpent as such is no longer in view in this verse, but rather "that old serpent" behind the animal, "called the devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world" (Rev. 12:9). The main point of part 1 in the prophecy is this: God must put enmity between Satan and Eve, because her natural inclination as a sinner is to love sin and darkness. So God must teach her to hate the true enemy of her soul—not snakes, but Satan, the first murderer and the father of lies, as Christ described him (John 8:44). Thus, God breaks the false friendship between Satan and Eve and turns it into an enmity. This is the first token of God's grace to Eve.

Seed of Eve—Seed of Satan

Turning now to the second idea of the prophecy, we discover a new realm of thought. It is no longer Eve, but "her seed" which is seen to carry on the conflict, and the enemy is not only Satan now, but particularly Satan's "seed." What can these two seeds refer to? Franz Delitzsch gives us the answer: "The seed of the woman cannot be the entire human race, for Satan is a foe who can only be met with spiritual weapons, and none can defeat him apart from the possession of spiritual weapons. So the idea of 'the seed' is modified by the nature of the foe." The seed of the woman, then, must be the chosen race of true believers, culminating in Christ who is the head of that race. And the seed of Satan must therefore be unbelievers. Speaking to unbelievers of His day, our Lord said, "Ye are of your father the devil" (John 8:44; compare Matt. 23:33 and I John 3:8). When Cain slew Abel, he showed thereby that he "was of that wicked one" (I John 3:12), and was thus the first seed of Satan. When Eve gave birth to another son, she "called his name Seth: For God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew" (Gen. 4:25). So Abel was the first seed of the woman, and Seth the second.

Christ and Satan

The third part of the prophecy is the climax. Notice carefully that the seed of the woman suddenly narrows down from a chosen line, from a race of true believers to a single Person! "He shall bruise thy head." This is startling, and wonderfully significant! Looking back from the vantage point of fulfilled prophecy, we see clearly that this representative of the chosen race (Gal. 3:16), who delivered the deathblow to Satan's head, is none other than our Lord Jesus Christ, who died on the cross "that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil" (Heb. 2:14). But in crushing the head of "that old serpent" at the cross, our Lord suffered the bruising of His own heel—the awful agony of bodily suffering that accompanied the crucifixion. This was Satan's supreme blow at God's Son—but it was not enough: Christ arose triumphant

FACULTY ON WHEELS

When our missionaries return from the foreign fields they follow the Biblical precedent of going to the churches that they might "declare all things that God has done with them," and they "cause great joy unto all the brethren" (see Acts 14:27; 15:3-4). Such has been the experience of 12 members of the Grace Seminary and College faculty during the months of December and January, the time set apart for the school's annual appeal to the churches. During this brief period it was possible for this group to visit all but five of the Brethren churches from the State of Iowa eastward. They ranged all the way from Dallas Center, Iowa, in the West, to Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D. C., in the East, and Roanoke, Va., in the South.

Every visit was made on a Sunday, and as many as 25 churches were visited in a week. The trips for the most part were made in two faculty cars in order to keep expenses at a minimum. The men usually returned home exhausted from the ordeal of a long trip, but blessed by the experience of ministering to many. Judging from the enthusiastic testimonies of both pastors and faculty, the visits brought a threefold profit. The churches were blessed by the ministry and a more personal acquaintance with the school. Some were visited for the first time by a representative from Grace. The members of the faculty profited by receiving a wider acquaintance with the church which they represent in their teaching ministry. The school will undoubtedly profit by increased offerings which always result from a closer personal tie with the church. The men at Grace desire a greater ministry among our churches and are anxious to help at such times as their duties at the school will permit.

A PASTOR WRITES

Rev. Russell Weber sends us this interesting news from the church at Hagerstown, Md.:

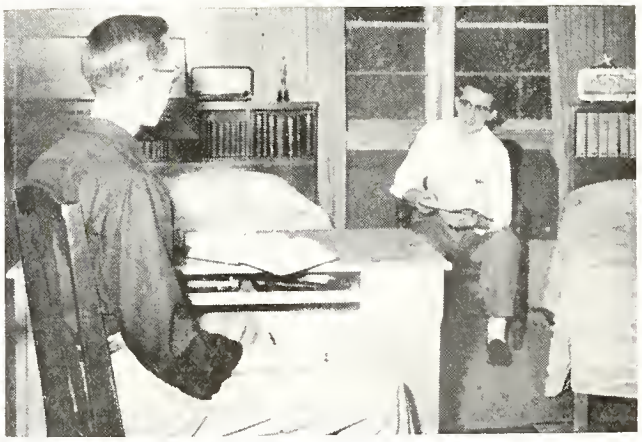
"I am happy to say that thus far the idea of placing the monthly seminary envelopes in the regular envelope packet is really paying off here. Our monthly offerings have more than doubled. We are praying that it will continue."

LETTER FROM AFRICA

Miss Mary Cripe, who visited the campus several months ago during her furlough, writes:

"I am thankful for the many blessings which I received while home on furlough. It was a real blessing to see how the student body has grown. I'm sure that the Lord will bless each of you who minister to these young people that they may be well prepared for the work to which the Lord will call them.

"I am enclosing a small contribution and wish it could be more. It will help in a small way to care for some of the things that are needed.



"I am now stationed at Bible Institute and will be teaching the women here next year. I will have two hours with them and two hours twice a week with them in hygiene."

CEDARVILLE TEAM AT GRACE

Recently the Grace Seminary and College basketball squad met and defeated a strong team from Cedarville College, a new Baptist school located at Cedarville (near Dayton), Ohio. One of the Grace alumni, John Stoll, is registrar at this new school. The team uses a bus which was purchased for the school at a bargain price by a man interested in the school's ministry. The bus is used not only to transport men to games, but gospel teams and other student groups to various churches in which they appear.

After the game, the two teams returned to the Grace campus for a period of refreshments and fellowship. At the chapel service on the following morning the Cedarville team presented a program of music and testimony.

Both Darwin (left) and Emlyn (right) Jones are juniors in the seminary. They are roommates, and both are from Johnstown, Pa. But—they are brothers only in the Lord.

I Have Been Greatly Blessed

By Darwin Jones

Having spent four years in a non-Christian school, the University of Pittsburgh, I found Grace Theological Seminary to be a breath of heaven here on earth. When an individual makes a sudden change he will experience a radically different sense of emotion. That is exactly the description of leaving the outside world and entering a school which is devoted to training men and women for Christian service. One cannot miss the true testimony found on the lips of the majority of students here at Grace. Sitting under the teaching of Bible scholars and men of God such as Drs. Alva McClain, Herman Hoyt, and others, the student can sense the presence of the Spirit of God in each class. Chapel services are an oasis in a busy day. Every activity is surrounded with an attitude of prayer and devotion centered in Him.

I have known the Lord Jesus Christ as my personal Saviour since I was nine years old. Every day He grows still sweeter than He was the day before. Having been raised in a Christian home by godly grandparents and a saintly mother, I never fully appreciated the heart-rending fact that men and women, steeped in sin, are passing into hell every time the second-hand circles the watch. The chief purpose of Grace Seminary and the aim of my life is to know Christ and make Him known as the only Saviour and Lord of life.

I praise the Lord for Grace Seminary and for leading me to it. Philippians 1:6 tells us: "Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." I believe that the work which Christ has called me to do can best be prepared for at Grace Theological Seminary. After three months of concentrated study, pleasant work, and wholesome relaxation, I have been greatly blessed by the spiritual atmosphere and the confidence that God's will is being realized in my life. Truly I can say: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (II Tim. 1:12).

The Turning Point in My Life

By Emlyn H. Jones

It was a beautiful October evening back in 1949 when I walked into the First Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa. I was perplexed and very unhappy because of a great catastrophe that had happened to me a few days before this particular Sunday.

Rev. Archie A. Lynn was preaching that night. He was the former pastor of this church and I had spent several years of my youth under his ministry. As he was earnestly proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ, I could feel the Holy Spirit tugging at my heart. Before I knew it, he was giving an invitation for those in the congregation to accept Christ as their own personal Saviour. I was determined, as I stood there, not to go forward. I dug my fingernails into the pew in front of me and hung tenaciously onto it. All of a sudden my partner, who was standing next to me, patted me on my shoulder and said, "Let's go!" That was all I needed. We both stepped out into the middle aisle and walked to the front, where Brother Lynn was anxiously waiting.

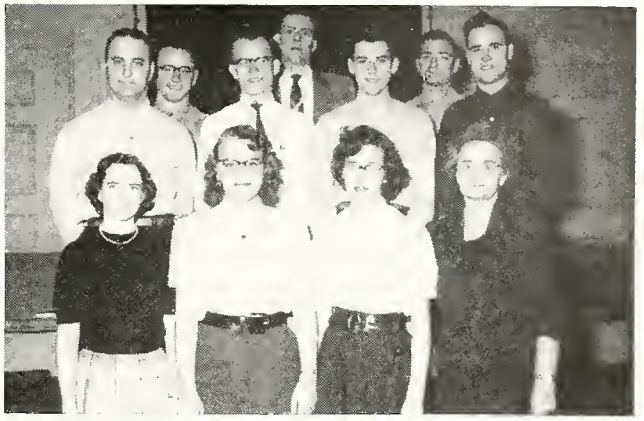
I shall never forget that evening. It was the turning point of my life. Oh, what a joy I have experienced! The precious blood of Jesus Christ cleansed me from my sins, and God justified me in His sight.

That night I received the most definite call to the Christian ministry I have ever had. Strange as it may seem, I felt God's call in my early teens, even though I was living in dreadful sin and serving Satan every day. I didn't particularly want to be a minister, so I fought the call every time it came. But, praise God, one night He overcame me with His matchless love, and all fighting ceased. Christ came into my heart in a most wonderful and precious way.

Now I am attending Grace Theological Seminary. This is the third school I have attended since high school, and I feel it is the best one. One can feel the presence of the Holy Spirit as he approaches the school. The professors are the most godly men I have ever encountered in a classroom, each one dedicated to the task before him. All the students are wonderful Christians, dedicated to God's will for their lives.

Grace Theological Seminary has found a permanent place in my heart. I have been here only since September, and already I love it dearly. I cherish each moment I spend here, either in prayer, or study, or group discussions. My spiritual life has been greatly enriched and I have been growing in the grace and the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

I earnestly request your prayers, your support, and your giving in behalf of this wonderful institution which is dedicated to the sole purpose of training young men and women for the Lord's service.



Second Semester Opens at Grace

By Dr. Homer A. Kent, Registrar

Registration day at Grace Seminary and College was January 17, at which time most of the students registered for the spring semester. Total registrations for both seminary and college amounted to 246. The total for the comparable semester a year ago was 212, thus it is evident that the school is continuing its growth from year to year. The recent registration is slightly below that of the first semester, which was 251. However, such a decrease is normal for the middle of the year.

The latest registration shows 137 students in the seminary and 109 in the college. There are 9 new students in the seminary and 8 in the college. Of the total 17 new students, 5 came from Pennsylvania, 5 from Indiana, 3 from Michigan, and 2 each from Ohio and California. Among all of the students in the school there are 18 denominational groups represented, with the Brethren showing a substantial lead over all the others. In the student body there are 194 men and 52 women, all but 11 of the women being enrolled in the college.

The new semester has started off auspiciously under the peculiar blessing of the Day of Prayer, which was held the Friday before the convening of the first classes on Monday, January 24. The Day of Prayer resulted in much heartsearching and in high resolves for spiritual attainment during the semester. The fragrance of that occasion still lingers. Then on Tuesday, the 25th, the convocation message was brought by Rev. Kenneth B. Ashman, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Wooster, Ohio. The message was a benediction.

from the grave! But Satan? "He shall bruise thy head." That was fatal. The cross injured Christ, but it destroyed Satan forever! He is a doomed creature (Rev. 20:2, 10).

The Effect of the Prophecy

Yes; the clear light of fulfillment wonderfully illumines that ancient prophecy for any who will ponder it today with the eye of faith. But what did it mean to Adam and Eve? Whatever else it meant to them, it meant at least this: (1) Instead of dying, the woman would live to have seed; (2) A warfare would begin between the false allies and Satan would be defeated by it; (3) Whereas it was through the woman that Satan enticed the human race into sin, so it would be through the woman that Satan would be destroyed. Perhaps the prophecy meant much more than this to them, but we do know that they believed God's prophecy, and acted upon it in faith. Thus it was that Adam immediately "called his wife's name Eve; because she was the mother of all living," and in response to this act of faith, "did the Lord God make coats of skins, and clothed them" (Gen. 3:21). The first prophecy was clear enough for Adam and Eve to believe and act upon. In effect, they trusted the coming Redeemer, and the clothing of animal skins signified the covering of their sins and the imputed righteousness of Christ.

The first Bible prophecy is thus a pattern for all that follow. It is simple in its form, and yet contains all the possibilities of its wonderful fulfillment. It is sufficient in its content to catch the imagination and kindle the faith of its first hearers, thus fulfilling an immediate, as well as an ultimate, purpose. And finally, it is directed toward a Person—the only Person toward whom all Bible prophecy moves as a mighty river. For, after all, it was as true in the Garden of Eden as it is today that faith in Christ as the Deliverer is God's only plan for the salvation of sinners.

SEATTLE, WASH. Through the courtesy of Orville Helgeson, manager of radio station KGDN, additional broadcast time was granted the View Ridge Brethren Church the first week of February. There were four 15-minute programs in addition to the regular broadcast. Thomas Hammers is pastor.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA. The Atlantic District Conference will convene at the Rosemont Brethren Church May 10-14. Earle Peer will be host pastor.

JOHNSTOWN, PA. Prof. J. Lloyd Jones, choir director at the First Brethren Church for 32 years, celebrated his 78th birthday on Feb. 14 Dr. W. A. Ogden is pastor. Jack Churchill will deliver the message at the sunrise service on Apr. 10.

SPECIAL. Missionary conferences have been held in many churches on the Pacific coast with J. P. Kliever, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Sheldon, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Churchill, Mrs. Loree Sickel, Miss Johanna Nielsen, Miss Dorothy Robinson, and Keith Altig as missionary speakers.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. On Feb. 13 Archer Baum, pastor of the First Brethren Church, and Grant McDonald, ordained Brethren minister and pastor of the Ramona Community Church, exchanged pulpits.

SPECIAL. May 1-8 is National Family Week and Sept. 25-Oct. 2 is National Sunday School Week. Plan now for these special dates sponsored by the National Sunday School Association.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Family week will be observed May 1-8 at the First Brethren Church. Sponsored by the Junior WMC, the program includes a father-son banquet, a mother-daughter banquet, family altar program, family worship night, and hospitality night. James Dixon is pastor.

FREMONT, OHIO. The Grace Brethren Church was dedicated on May 15, 1949, with an indebtedness of $60,000. This has been reduced to $32,000, and the church expects to have this paid in five years. Gordon Bracker is pastor.

CHICAGO, ILL. National Sunday School Day will be observed April 19 at the Sherman Hotel, sponsored by the National Sunday School Association.

FINDLAY, OHIO. The Findlay Brethren Church is averaging a 50-percent increase in Sunday-school attendance over that of a year ago. Forest Lance is pastor.

ELYRIA, OHIO. Lots have been purchased by the Grace Brethren for their new building program which they purpose to start soon. Galen Lingenfelter is pastor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO. If you have any relatives or friends living in or near Columbus, their names should be forwarded to Dr. Bernard Schneider, 534 Forest Ave., Mansfield, Ohio.

LAKE ODESSA, MICH. Mrs. Jake Kliever, missionary on furlough, was guest speaker at the WMC fellowship conducted at the Grace Brethren Church Feb. 15. Robert Griffith is pastor.

FORT WAYNE, IND. A reception was held in honor of Pastor and Mrs. Mark Malles at the First Brethren Church on Feb. 18.

DENVER, COLO. The congregation of the Grace Brethren Church "jumped the gun" and a "sneak preview" was experienced when on Feb. 6 the morning service was conducted in the unfinished sanctuary. The first baptismal service was conducted. A new attendance record was established with 117 in Sunday school and 101 in the morning worship. Thomas Inman is pastor.

ALEXANDRIA, VA. There were 130 dinners served on Feb. 4 at the Atlantic District youth rally held at the Commonwealth Avenue Brethren Church. Dean Walter, pastor of the Vicksburg Brethren Church, was the guest speaker. Robert Cover, ordained Brethren minister and a member of the Alexandria church, preached at the morning service on Jan. 30. He is enlisted in the United States Army.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. The Leamersville Brethren Church has voted to give monthly financial support to Foster Tresise and family, self-supporting missionaries at Honolulu, Hawaii. Robert Crees is pastor.

ELKHART, IND. Galen Brent arrived in the home of Pastor and Mrs. Lowell Hoyt on Jan. 23, weighing 8 lbs., 3 oz. Lowell Hoyt is pastor of the Grace Brethren Church.

SEATTLE, WASH. The new zone number of Thomas Hammers, pastor of the View Ridge Brethren Church, is Seattle 15, Wash. Please change Annual. Plans for the new church building are awaiting final approval.

GLENDALE, CALIF. The new address of the clerk of the First Brethren Church is Charles Londagin, 10812 Roscoe Blvd., Sun Valley, Calif. Please change Annual.

"For God Is My Defense"

PSALM 59

By
DENNIS I. HOLLIDAY
Pastor, First Brethren Church
Compton, Calif.

MANY of God's choice servants go through days of great sorrow, trouble, and testing; yet God gives His children a song. Such was the experience of David, the one whom the Lord said was "a man after mine own heart." There was a time when King Saul sought to take the life of David. We read this in I Samuel 19:10: "Saul sought to smite David even to the wall with the javelin; but he slipped away out of Saul's presence, and he smote the javelin into the wall: and David fled, and escaped that night. Saul also sent messengers unto David's house, to watch him, and to slay him in the morning." At the beginning of Psalm 59 we find these words: "Michtam [a prayer] of David; when Saul sent, and they watched the house to kill him." This psalm of comfort was written in a day of trouble by the "sweet psalmist of Israel" under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit (cf. II Sam. 23:1-2).

PRAYER OF DELIVERANCE

To whom did David pray? "O my God," "O Lord," "O Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel." In verse 3 we have the word "LORD" in all capital letters in the Authorized Version, which indicates that the original Hebrew word here is the name "Jehovah." Sometimes the name "Jehovah" in the Old Testament is used to refer to Jesus Christ preincarnate. Isaiah 40:3 is a prophetic Scripture that speaks of the first advent of Jesus Christ. "The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the LORD [Jehovah], make straight in the desert a highway for our God" (cf. Matt. 3:3). The word "Jehovah," translated "LORD" in the Isaiah passage, refers to Jesus Christ, and is the same word used in Psalm 59:3. So it appears David prayed to the preincarnate Christ. For what did he pray? Deliver, defend, save me from King Saul. Jesus said to His disciples: "Pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you" (Matt. 5:44). This we should do, but the Christian also has the privilege of praying for deliverance from his enemies.

David was persecuted by Saul even though he had done him no wrong. "Lo, they lie in wait for my soul . . . not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O Lord" (vs. 3). Note these words of David addressed to Saul: ". . . see that there is neither evil nor transgression in mine hand, and I have not sinned against thee; yet thou huntest my soul to take it" (I Sam. 24:11). Many Christians are hated today because of their good works. Their righteous conduct is a testimony to the sinner, and he is pricked to the heart. The result is, he will either persecute the Christian or he will cry out, "What must I do to be saved?" Jesus said: "If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but because ye are not of this world, but I have chosen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you. . . . If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you" (John 15:19-20; cf. 16:33).

CONFIDENT HOPE

Here we have David's description of Saul and his men. In character they were like a dog. They howl; they roam here and there as a stray dog looking for food. Torrents of false accusations poured from their mouths. They were intent upon murder.

But there is a day coming when the Lord will demonstrate His power and authority. They will be punished. Because of Saul's strength and authority, David's watchful expectation is from the Lord. "God shall let me see my desires upon my enemies."

PRAYER FOR GOD'S HONOR

His prayer was that their evil plans should be brought to naught. Their sin is that of pride in the heart and lying lips. David prayed not that the Lord would "slay them," but that he would "scatter them," "and let them know that God ruleth in Jacob unto the ends of the earth." David's prayer was to the end that God should have all the honor and glory in this deliverance. The Lord Jesus said: "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son." All of our praying ought to be to the end "that the Father may be glorified" in His answering our prayers.

CONTENTMENT AND REJOICING

David's prayer is ended, but there is complete contentment about the whole matter. Saul and his men still seek his life, but David now lets the matter rest with God. He can say: "Let them go around about the city; let them wander up and down."

Even in the day of trouble there is rejoicing and singing. He says: "I will sing of thy power; yea, I will sing aloud of thy mercy . . . in the day of my trouble." Our Lord said: "When men shall revile you, and persecute you . . . for my sake . . . rejoice and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven" (Matt. 5:11-12).

So let us not pray that there be no times of testing, but let us pray that He will make us victorious in every test. Let us not pray for no mountains to climb, but rather let us pray for sufficient strength to climb whatever mountains there are to climb.

THREE KINDS OF DEATH

BY RAYMOND H. KETTELL
PASTOR, FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH
PORTIS, KANSAS

In the Garden of Eden God commanded: "Of every tree of the garden thou mayest freely eat: but of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shall not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die." They ate the forbidden fruit and death came into the world. Death is the penalty of sin. There are three aspects of this death.

I. Spiritual Death—Which Is Separation From God.

The Word of God is very clear that the whole world is guilty before God. "The scripture hath concluded all under sin" (Gal. 3:22); and that "all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). We are not only guilty because we were born in the likeness of Adam after he sinned, but we have practiced sin and by our deeds have come short of the standard set up by God. "We are all an unclean thing, and all our righteousnesses are as filthy rags" (Isa. 64:6). We are dead in trespasses and sins (Eph. 2:1 and 5). It is true that God is love, but He is also just and righteous. The wages of sin is death (Rom. 6:23). Sin must be paid for. Spiritual death is ours unless we take God's way of escape. To be without Christ as our personal Saviour means that we have no hope for our future.

In I Peter 2:10 we read: "Which in time past were not a people, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy." Regardless of how fine and intelligent folk may seem to be, unless they have been born again, they are separated from God. If they do not obey the Gospel of Christ, and reject the Son of God, they are by nature the children of wrath (Eph. 2:3). In Ephesians 2:12 we find very plain words: "Ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in this world." They are spiritually dead. They are separated from God.

If we do not have Christ, we do not have God. "No man cometh unto the Father, but by me." What a terrible plight! Dead in trespasses and sins, having no hope, and without God. It is only in Christ that there is a way of escape. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his" (Rom. 8:9).

II. Physical Death.

When we speak of physical death, we are thinking of a condition of the separation between the body and the soul. James 2:26 says, "The body without the spirit is dead." This is only for a duration of time.

In Genesis 35 we are told of the death of Rachel: "Her soul was in departing . . . and Jacob set a pillar upon her grave." Her body was buried and corruption took place. Just so has physical death come to all generations. It is inevitable to each of us unless as believers we are caught up at the rapture.

The cause of physical death is sin. "The wages of sin is death." In Romans 5:12 we read: "By one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned." So God declared death for the sinner as the wages of sin.

After a Bible-believing preacher becomes established in a community and is known as such, there are many people who come to funerals to find the answer to the question, "If a man die, will he live again?" They want to know what the truth is about death and what follows. What an opportunity to open the Word of God with a message of grace and show that death of the body is only for a while, and that there is victory over death through the Lord Jesus Christ.

III. Eternal Death.

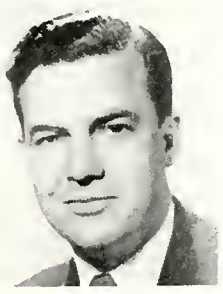
This means that there is to be a great, unspeakable judgment to all those who know not Christ as their personal Lord and Saviour. It is the final and permanent state of death.

Eternal death is not cessation of life or a state of unconsciousness. Much has been written and taught denying eternal punishment, declaring that God is love and therefore is too good and kind to punish anyone forever. Many articles have been written on man being restored as hellfires purify him and that a reformation will take place under the forgiving eye of God. However, annihilation and a second chance after death will not stand up under the searchlight of the Word of God.

The Lord Jesus Christ solemnly warned against being cast into hell [gehenna] "into the fire that never shall be quenched. . . . where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched (Mark 9:43-47). This is eternal death. It is eternal in that it has no ending. It is forever and forever.

There is a place to which the soul goes after it leaves the body which is spoken of as "sheol" in the Hebrew and as "hades" in the Greek of the New Testament. This is not the experience of eternal death or the place "gehenna" of which Christ warned.



Since the resurrection and ascension of Christ, in this present church age, the soul of the believer does not go to hades, the place where the unsaved dead await the resurrection, but the believer goes to be with Christ, "absent from the body, present with the Lord" (II Cor. 5:8). In Philippians 1:23 Paul speaks of "having a desire to depart and be with Christ which is far better."

Gehenna was prepared for the Devil and his angels. One day they shall be sent to that awful place together with all those whose names are not found in the book of life (Rev. 20:13-15).

GOD'S ANSWER TO SIN

ARE THE WICKED DEAD IN HELL?

BY LEWIS C. HOHENSTEIN
PASTOR, FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH
WHITTIER, CALIF.

It is so easy for us to say one thing and to be understood as saying another when dealing with the subject of "After Death." So in the very beginning I want to define my terms. The translators of our Bible have greatly confused the issue by an inconsistent use of terms.

The Old Testament word for the intermediate place of abode for the dead is "sheol" and the New Testament word is "hades." The best way to show what these terms mean is to point out what they do not mean.

Sheol-hades never means the grave, which is the place on earth where the body of the deceased is deposited. Though these terms are thus used by the translators, a study of the 32 such usages will quickly convince the student that the intent of the divine author was to designate the place of the conscious abode of the departed.

The first such usage in the King James Version will point out to us this fact. Jacob, upon learning from his sons that Joseph had supposedly been killed by wild beasts and consumed, said: "For I will go down into the grave [sheol] unto my son mourning." He could not have meant a place of burial, for his son Joseph was thought by him to have been eaten of wild beasts.

Sheol-hades never means tartarus. This word is used but once in the Bible (II Pet. 2:4) and is translated "hell." Tartarus is the place where God has incarcerated "the angels when they sinned."

Sheol-hades is never "the abyss" (abussos, Gr.). This word is translated "the bottomless pit" and "the deep" and it refers to the place where the Devil and his demons will be kept during the millennial reign of Christ here on earth.

These terms never mean "hell." Hell is "tophet" in the Hebrew and "gehenna" in the Greek. It means perpetual burning, and always is used to denote the final consequence of sin. After the final judgment of unbelievers at the great white throne all those in rebellion against God will be eternally banished to hell.

Sheol-hades always speaks of the intermediate abode of men, which is the place occupied by the souls of men between the time of death and the deliverance to judgment in the case of unbelievers, and between death and the deliverance at the resurrection of Christ of the believer. Before Christ's death and His leading "captivity captive," sheol-hades was the abode of both the righteous and the wicked dead. They were separated evidently by a "great gulf fixed." Now the righteous dead are with the Lord. Uniting the teaching of Ephesians 4:7-10 with Matthew 27:50-53 it becomes evident that the righteous were taken to be with the Lord at the time of the resurrection and are now with Him. In I Corinthians 5:3 Paul teaches that to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord. It is New Testament fact that when a child of God dies, he is "loosed away upward" to be with Christ and to await that grand day of the rapture when he shall be clothed upon with his glorified body.

Sheol-hades is not purgatory. The Roman view that the intermediate state is remedial is nowhere taught in God's Holy Word. This is a good scheme to hold the masses in the bonds of fear and to fill the coffers of Rome, but when a man passes into the next life, his destiny is fixed.

Sheol-hades is not a period of unconscious "soul sleep." If the cultists could, they would force us to believe that there is no conscious existence between the time of death and resurrection. The late Dr. Bullinger has gone one step further in trying to rationalize what death is. He taught that the soul was the result of the union of body and spirit, and when they were separated in death the soul ceased to exist. Full treatment of the above beliefs has been handled by competent Bible scholars.

The unbelieving dead are now in sheol-hades in conscious existence.

In Luke 16 Jesus related to the Pharisees and His followers the story of a rich man and Lazarus, who died and entered into sheol-hades. The rich man, in the place of the unbeliever, gives many evidences of being fully conscious.

There is vision or the ability to see (Luke 16:23), ". . . he lift up his eyes." There is communication (vs. 24), ". . . he cried and said." There is feeling (vss. 24-25), "I am tormented" The unbelieving dead remember (vs. 25), "But Abraham said, Son remember" After the unbelieving die there seems to be a spiritual concern for others (vs. 26), ". . . send him to my father's house." The unbelieving dead are able to reason (vs. 28), ". . . lest they come unto this place."

The unbelieving dead are now in sheol-hades in controlled existence.

In the 26th verse of the 16th chapter of Luke, Abraham, speaking to the rich man, said: ". . . between us and you there is a great gulf fixed . . . neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence." In I Peter 3:19 sheol-hades is spoken of by Peter as being a prison. The occult

Unlimited Power Available

Most of us, in looking back over our Christian lives, realize that our greatest spiritual need is for more spiritual power. Christian people seem to be hungry for the kind of power that was so evident in days gone by. Indeed, some are wondering if they are serving the same God that Torrey, Moody, and Spurgeon served. Therefore, the startling question of Isaiah 40:28 seems especially appropriate to this spiritually starved age, for it launches a marvelous four-point outline for spiritual power.

The first fact which Isaiah brings to our remembrance is that the God we serve is an inexhaustible supply of spiritual power. He fainteth not; neither is He weary. Consequently any power must ultimately come from Him.

Our source of spiritual power is indeed the omnipotent Creator of Genesis 1. Certainly then no thinking individual would deny the availability of power for this present era.

The only question that might arise would be the willingness of God to allow us to draw from His great resource of power. This question is promptly answered by the promise, "He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength" (Isa. 40:29). Notice the promise is not to the strong or to those who esteem themselves strong, but it is to the faint. One who is faint pictures an individual who has all but spent his own strength in activity and will surely go under unless revived and renewed by a source outside of himself. What a picture of the present-day Christian struggling against the world, the flesh, and the Devil in his own power! It is no wonder he is faint and all but defeated, but praise God, reinforcements are available and promised.

One need not be ashamed to call for aid in this spiritual battle, for the writer goes on to tell us: "Even the youths shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall." Yes; even at the epitome of development, human strength is not adequate to cope with the adversaries which a Christian in God's service is called upon to face. If, then, the best in human strength utterly fails in battle without God-given power, how much more readily we, if not continually renewed and reinforced from on high.

We clearly see now that the source is adequate, the promise sure, and the need urgent. What now remains for us to know is the condition for receiving the much-needed power. We find the condition at the beginning of the next verse. The promise is made to those who will "wait upon the Lord." The term, "wait upon the Lord," seems to depict a persistent holding on to God for the promise rather than glib request for it. It is interesting to note that the same was true on the Day of Pentecost. The instruction then, as now, was to wait for the promised power. One might question the wisdom of God in requiring this condition of waiting, but it would seem to reveal that God is desirous that we should have an intense desire for spiritual power. The fact that one is willing to wait for something will usually reveal an earnest desire for it. Correspondingly, many are willing to ask for power, but only those really desirous of real spiritual power are willing to wait upon the Lord for it, and to those earnest few the promise is ever sure. Yea; "they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint" (Isa. 40: 31). With this God-given power we can do what no human strength could ever do.

Let us each say with the earnestness of the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well, "Lord, give me this power." It is available in unlimited supply; it is promised beyond question, the only stipulation being: Do we want it bad enough to wait upon the Lord for it?

idea of communications between the dead and those alive at present has no Biblical support at all but is refuted completely by a careful study of the Word.

The unsaved dead are held in an orderly prison awaiting that great day of the Lord when all will appear before Him in judgment.

> The unbelieving dead are now in sheol-hades in an incomplete state.

This subject is difficult for us finite beings to comprehend. We know very little of reality apart from the physical. But there seems to be a limited incomplete existence of those in sheol-hades. Probably their state is comparable to that of the demons who appear to be dispossessed of their bodies.

If this is hard to grasp, remember that the physical is not the basis of literal reality; God is—yet He is pure Spirit.

> The unbelieving dead are now in sheol-hades in conscious continual torment and pain.

It is not within the scope of this discussion to consider the nature of this torment and pain. But Scripture throughout its entirety speaks of the unrighteous dead as being in a state of misery. In the passage in Luke 16. three times the fact of torment is stated.

Those dying outside of Christ go not to hell but to a prepared prison where in a controlled conscious and painful existence in an incomplete state they await an irrevocable and unalterable destiny. This place is called in Scripture "sheol-hades" and when the King of kings shall have ascended the great white throne to judge all who have rejected His love and grace, then sheol-hades will be emptied into hell, "the lake of fire" (Rev. 20:13-15).

Maybe you are saying, "Why should I concern myself over the state of those who are dead?" True, you can never change their state, but while you have taken time to read this article, a thousand souls around this world have been ushered into this awful and fearful place to await eternal judgment. That unsaved loved one, your neighbor, your friends at work, the man you touch on the street, and the uncounted millions throughout the world are facing this fate without Christ or hope in the world. May God stir our hearts to snatch them "as brands from the burning."

WHEN WILL HE COME?

Perhaps at very early dawn, when just a tiny touch of gray
Begins to light the eastern sky and drive the dark of night away—
My Lord will come!

Or it may be the breakfast hour, with all my fam'ly gathered there
Before we start the day; and heads and hearts are bowed in thankful prayer—
That He will come!

Or it could be some working morn. As busy wife and mother, I Am scrubbing floors—preparing food. When suddenly I hear the cry—
The Lord has come!

It just might be at sunset time—when God is painting western sky
With sunset colors—red and gold—that as I watch—from there on high
Our Lord will come!

Perhaps, perhaps at blackest night when all my world is dark and still—
That through the velvet, starlit blue my Lord will come! What joy! What thrill!
If thus He comes!

I cannot know the day, the hour, that He will come—and I will go.
But oh! He bade me watch and wait, for come He will! Oh yes! I know
One day He'll come!

—Geneva Showerman.

In Memoriam

Names appear in this column only when sent in by pastor.

Allison C. Markel, 69, went to be with the Lord Feb. 3. Brother Markel was a staunch friend and member of the Grace Brethren Church of Juniata, Altoona, Pa.—J. Ward Tressler, pastor.

Phil Downs, charter member and district mission board representative of the Johnson City (Tenn.) Brethren Church, departed to be with the Lord December 18. Memorial service was held December 20.—Dean Risser, pastor.

Mrs. Lucy B. Walls, 76, was promoted to be with the Lord on January 26. She was a faithful member of the Leamersville Brethren Church for many years.—Robert Crees, pastor.

HAVE ONE—YOU'LL LIKE IT!

Yes; we liked it very much. And we received many blessings! We started the new year with a special Bible school-missionary conference. The conference started on Monday and ran through Wednesday. There were two speakers each evening. Harold Etling presented informative inspiration pertaining to the Sunday school. Brother and Sister Jake Kliever thrilled the folks with up-to-the-minute missionary news and challenge. The speakers were limited in time and graciously cooperated fully. Each service was packed double with blessing for all.

On Tuesday, forenoon and afternoon, Miss Catherine Marshall, of the Akron area Child Evangelism Fellowship, presented instructional classes for teachers of children. Theory and practical demonstration were included. Much good was done and many new avenues of approach in teaching were presented. These sessions were greatly appreciated.

All in all, our Bible school-missionary conference was a great blessing and help to our people. Have one—you'll like it!—Kenneth Ashman, pastor, First Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio.

Items You'll Want to Know . . .

The members of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church met in Winona Lake, Ind., during the week of January 24 through 28 to consider the accomplishments, challenges, and needs of our six fields of missionary endeavor. In order that you may praise the Lord with us and pray with us, we present the following summary. Projects for all fields were approved and will be listed in the Herald at our earliest opportunity. If you desire information regarding any of the items mentioned, or concerning any foreign-mission matter, please feel free to write us at any time—Brethren Foreign Mission Office, Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind.

General

The SOCIAL SECURITY plan is very favorably considered for all missionaries and office employees and complete information is being secured as rapidly as available.

For several years we have been studying the matter of PENSION AND RETIREMENT in relation to our missionary personnel. A general survey was completed this year and the matter is now in the hands of a committee—Brethren Charles Mayes, Ward Miller, and Glenn O'Neal—for further study and recommendation.

MISSIONARY CANDIDATES — Some were interviewed and others, not able to be present in person, were considered upon the basis of correspondence. The Lord has given us some excellent potential missionaries, but for the most part they are just in the beginning years of their preparation. This, of course, means that the time of their going to the field is several years away. Our missionary personnel needs are urgent and immediate in three or four of our fields if we are to meet the challenges while the doors of opportunity are open.

The little pamphlet entitled HOW MISSIONARIES ARE SELECTED has just come from the press. Copies will be made available to each pastor, and to any others who may have need.

HOCKING APPOINTMENT — Upon the authority granted to the Board of Trustees by the Society at the annual meeting on August 27, 1954, the Board made the appointment of Brother and Sister Donald Hocking as missionaries to serve in French Equatorial Africa. According to present plans, they are expected to leave for language study in France before the end of 1955.

The 1955 ANNUAL MEETINGS of our Board and Society will be held in connection with the conference of our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches to be held in Portland, Oreg. The Board sessions are due to begin on the evening of August 5, and the Society corporation meeting is scheduled for August 13.

Africa

One of the main considerations of the midyear Board meeting is always with respect to the work in Africa since the Africa Field Council meeting usually convenes in December of each year. This year was no exception and we received the minutes of the Field Council meeting, which concluded on January 5, 1955, in time for our Board sessions.

CONCERNING MISSIONARY PERSONNEL—One of the privileges of each Board meeting is the opportunity for interviews with the missionaries on furlough. It was a joy to meet with Brother and Sister J. P. Kliever and to authorize their return to the field at the proper time, subject to satisfactory physical examinations. The Board approved the furlough recommendations of the Field Council as follows: in June of this year—Miss Ruth Kent, Miss Marie Mishler, and Brother and Sister Harold Dunning and family; in August of this year—Brother and Sister Robert Hill and family, Brother and Sister Donald Miller and family, and Brother and Sister William Samarin and family.

PRINTING NEEDS are acute in order to meet the pleas and demands for printed material. We do have some printing equipment which we have had for years and it needs to be replaced. In fact, the Board has approved its replacement at a cost of between $3,000 and $5,000 delivered to the field. Offset equipment is being considered.

They are learning to read!

The Board also authorized the printing of a READER SERIES, consisting of three primers, 10,000 of each to be printed at a cost of between $1,500 and $2,000. These primers are for the purpose of teaching the native to read in his own language, and they have proved to be very valuable. The primers will be purchased by the natives; thus the amount expended by the Board will be repaid in due course of time.

A NEW MEDICAL CENTER is to be established at BOGUILA. This location is in the northern part of our field where there is quite a concentrated population. The first buildings authorized, including the residence and clinic, will cost approximately $7,850. This does not include the equipment of the clinic or other needs. Pray with us that sufficient funds will be received in our coming Easter offering to take this step.

Approval was given for an ADDITIONAL APART-

THE BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD VOLUME 17, NUMBER 10

Entered as second-class matter April 16, 1943, at the post office at Winona Lake, Ind., under the act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly by the Brethren Missionary Herald Co., Winona Lake, Ind. Subscription price, $2.00 a year; 100-percent churches, $1.50; foreign, $3.00. Board of Directors: Robert Crees, president; Herman A. Hoyt, vice president; William Schaffer, secretary; Ord Gehman, treasurer; Bryson Fetters, member-at-large to Executive Committee; Walter Lepp, S. W. Link, Mark Malles, Robert E. A. Miller, True Hunt, Lyle W. Marvin, Arnold R. Kriegbaum, ex officio.

. . . Concerning Our Six Fields

MENT IN BANGUI, at a cost of $3,000, to care for another missionary family. This will bring the total cost of building in Bangui to $18,000, but we are confident that this expenditure is justified in view of the excellent response in this new location. The average attendance at services is about 1,000 at the present time—services began on October 31, 1954.

OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM in Africa will be fully explained in an early issue of the Herald and terms will be defined. The FRENCH SCHOOL, which is the school for the purpose of teaching monitors or teachers, is moving from the Bassai station to the Yaloke station. Approval has been given for the opening of ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS at Yaloke, Batangafo, and in the Bellevue district at an approximate cost of from $640 to $850 each.

There is a great need for SEVEN REST HOUSES throughout our field. These are not places for vacation, as the name might imply, but they are one- or two-room residences in areas where there are no missionary residences and are places where missionaries may live for a short period of time while teaching and visiting the natives in the area. These will cost $350 each and are being offered as projects.

There are OTHER BUILDING NEEDS. If we continue to send missionaries to the field, we must have places for them to live. Present buildings need reroofing and repair. We will need three or four more missionary residences in the year immediately ahead. These building needs can only be met if our coming Easter offering shows an increase.

AN INTERSTATION COMMUNICATION SYSTEM has been approved. This can prove to be one of our greatest blessings in Africa. It will enable contact between stations at any time, once a day or several times per week; missionaries will be able to have conferences by wireless. Such a system should save many miles of travel and make for better planning and working together. As far as we know now the cost will approximate $100 per unit and we will need 12 or 13 units for our field at the present time. These units may have to be built in the United States. We would greatly appreciate suggestions and advice. We are trusting that the units for this system may be provided as projects.

TWO NEW TRUCKS are needed just as soon as possible. These can be sent only if the coming Easter offering is sufficient. Perhaps a church or an individual may desire to supply one or both of these trucks. If interested, please write our office.

THE BIBLE INSTITUTE COURSE is being increased to cover a three-year period. Our native workers have been well trained, but this plan will make for even better training and for more stalwart workers. One of the native workers from the Bellevue district, a graduate of the Bible Institute, has been called to assist the staff for the coming year. His salary will be paid by the African churches.

A FIVE-YEAR PROGRAM has just been approved in Africa which seems to be one of the greatest forward steps in our foreign-mission program in a generation. By this plan a fully self-governing native church will be ready to take over within a period of five years. This does not lessen the need for missionaries—in fact, we desperately need four more missionary-pastor families and need them RIGHT NOW if this plan is to be realized and work effectively.

The name of our native churches in Africa is LES EGLISES EVANGELIQUE DES FRERES—The Evangelical Brethren Church.

Argentina

Most of the planning in relation to our field in Argentina for some years ahead was cared for at the last annual Board meeting in August 1954 and at the mid-year meeting a year ago. The plans made are being followed and are working out successfully.

CONCERNING MISSIONARY PERSONNEL — The Board approved the recommendation of the Field Council for the furlough of Brother and Sister James Marshall and family this coming May. The Board authorized the return of Brother and Sister Jack Churchill and family and Mrs. Loree Sickel at the proper time, pending satisfactory physical examinations.

TWO NEW CHURCH BUILDINGS were erected during the year by Argentine believers—one at Rio Tercero and one at Corral de Bustos.

We need to purchase TWO OR THREE MORE LOTS for the erection of similar chapels or church buildings by the Argentine believers. These will be cared for as funds permit and as the right locations are found. As you may recall, our agreement with the national believers is that we will purchase and supply the lot providing the believers will erect the chapel or church building.

The missionaries are continuing to survey the NEW

A game of volley ball—one of the enjoyments at young people's camp.

AND LARGE CITY AREAS, looking toward expansion. Reports indicate excellent tent and revival meetings, good Bible conferences, and enthusiastic youth camps. The work is not easy in this field, but we are greatly encouraged.

AN ADDITIONAL MISSIONARY FAMILY is needed in Argentina. Pray that the Lord will lead.

For this present year the BIBLE INSTITUTE will be held in Rio Cuarto. The men students will live on the mission property and the women students will live in the homes of believers in Rio Cuarto. It will be possible for the students to secure part-time work in the area.

Brazil

The plans for future months in Brazil which were approved at the annual meeting of our Board are rapidly being carried out. The items which follow will be more or less in the nature of a report.

The Board authorized the FURLOUGH of Brother and Sister John Zielasko and family during this present year, the details as to time and so on to be worked out between the General Secretary and Brother Zielasko.

CHRISTIAN DAY SCHOOLS are now operating in both of our areas of activity in Brazil. A new building was erected in Macapa for this purpose and two Christian Brazilian teachers were secured. It was not the original plan to begin the school in Icoraci until after the Zielasko family had returned from furlough in the States. However, in view of the request of the believers in order that their children may have Christian teaching, a school has been started in the chapel at Agulha. This is an outpost from Icoraci and is in the area where most of the children live.

A Brazilian home in the Macapa area.

NATIONAL WORKERS are greatly needed. We are praising the Lord for Raimundo, one of the young men from Icoraci, who is now away at Bible school preparing to become a national pastor. Two other young men are in prospect—pray that they may be able to enter Bible school soon.

The NEW MISSIONARY RESIDENCE in Icoraci is nearing completion. This is where the Burk family will live. We are extremely grateful to the National WMC for taking this as one of their projects for this year.

At the annual meeting the Board authorized an ADDITIONAL ROOM for the residence at Macapa and a NEW OUTBOARD MOTOR AND BOAT for Macapa. These are now in regular use and are very much appreciated by those on the field.

The Board approved the purchase of a LOT IN ICORACI, at an approximate cost of $700, for the erection of a church building. There is a house on the lot which can be used as a meeting place until the Brazilian believers are ready to build.

OUR GREATEST NEED in Brazil at the present time is another experienced missionary family. The Lord is able and we are looking to Him to supply all our missionary needs.

France

At the annual meeting last August the Board authorized the General Secretary to visit our work in France. That visit proved to be of great value; we are confident that the Lord has great things ahead for us in that most difficult field. Many activities were reported to the Board at the recent meeting, resulting in their authorization and approval.

A PLACE OF MEETING has been purchased in a very excellent location with plenty of room for church and Sunday-school services. At the back of the building there is a small three-room apartment where our national French evangelist will live. Considerable repair was needed to get the property in readiness for the first services which were to have been held on February 27. We expect to have pictures of this meeting place very soon.

The employment of a NATIONAL FRENCH EVANGELIST has been authorized. We hope to be able to present very soon the name and picture of the fine French family being invited to serve in this capacity. The Fogles need assistance and we believe that the securing of a well-trained, consecrated Christian family will greatly increase the effectiveness and outreach of the Fogles.

Approval has been given for a PORTABLE TABERNACLE. This type of temporary meeting place will fit the needs much better than a tent. It can be easily dismantled, moved, and set up again. Also, since it can be heated, it will be serviceable for most of the year. The cost will be about $1,000, which is slightly more than the cost of a tent. A gift of $500 is on hand from Bethany campers to apply toward this tabernacle, but an additional amount of $500 is needed. Would you like to help? We are trusting it will be possible to have this portable tabernacle ready by early summer; it will be built in France.

A SHORT FURLOUGH for the Fogle family was authorized, beginning about July 1. During their absence in the States, Brother and Sister George Cone, Jr., and the national evangelist will carry on the work.

Hawaii

It was a joy to have Brother and Sister Foster Tresise meet with our Board during their recent emergency trip to the mainland. We are now much better acquainted with the work in Hawaii and its needs.

The attendance at Grace Chapel ranges between 40 and 60 and results are very encouraging. This work is self-supporting as far as the church unit is concerned and Brother and Sister Tresise do not receive allowance from our Society. It was mutually agreed to continue on this basis, but the Board is making an automobile expense allowance of $25 per month to the Tresises. This will enable them to do more visitation and reach more with the Gospel.

Mexico

From time to time during the year, most of the Mexico missionaries met together with the committee representing the Board—Brethren Mayes, Miller, and O'Neal. Plans of activity were worked out by this group and reports were presented at the recent Board meeting.

BIBLE INSTITUTE CLASSES are in session in the San Ysidro-Tijuana area, with Brother Walter Haag and Miss Dorothy Robinson as teachers.

The Howards are conducting BIBLE CLASSES for children and adults in the Calexico-Mexicali area. They were instrumental in doing a great deal of relief work recently because of the flood in that area.

On their return to California from the Board sessions at Winona Lake, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Mayes went by way of Laredo, Tex., for a VISIT WITH THE EDMISTON FAMILY. They were most favorably impressed by the activity of the Edmistons in the Laredo-Nuevo Laredo area. Brother Edmiston is expecting to have a baptismal service very soon and is looking toward the opening of a Mexican Brethren church.

ACTIVITY DURING FEBRUARY—Brother Haag and the young men from the Bible Institute went on an evangelizing tour down the Baja California peninsula—this was vacation month. Brother Howard, accompanied by Dr. Alberto Morales, went on a similar trip down the Sonora coast of Mexico. Miss Dorothy Robinson has spent several weeks as one of the speakers in the missionary rallies on the west coast.

Brethren Edmiston and Howard each will spend about five weeks speaking in missionary rallies in the East and Midwest during the next several months.

PROTESTANTS IN SPAIN

In Spain the number of Spanish Protestants who profess to belong to a Protestant congregation is about 30,000. There are approximately 300 Protestant congregations, of which only about one-third meet regularly for worship with the permission of the authorities. Religious meetings and services can be held only inside a building. A Protestant funeral is often prohibited as a "public demonstration."—EFMA Missionary News Service.

WHEN YOU PRAY—

Beware in your prayer, above everything, of limiting God, not only by unbelief, but by fancying that you know what He can do. Expect unexpected things, above all that we ask or think. Each time you intercede, be quiet first and worship God in His glory. Think of what He can do, of how He delights to hear Christ, of your place in Christ; and expect great things.—Andrew Murray, from "Streams in the Desert."

BRAZIL---Land of the Amazon

(Editor's Note—This is the first in a series of historical sketches on each of our six mission fields. One of these will appear in each succeeding Foreign Mission Number of the Herald until the series has been completed. They are not appearing in chronological order, but as space permits. These historical highlights will give us all a better understanding of the fields in which our missionaries labor for Him.)

"If my wife and I should volunteer for missionary work in Brazil, would you send us?" This was the question asked by Rev. J. Keith Altig following a presentation of Brazil as one of the possible new mission fields for Brethren activity. The General Secretary's answer was, "Try us and see." Well, the results are very evident. After much prayer and further investigation, the Altigs were approved for missionary service in Brazil and they sailed for that land in February 1949, thus pioneering our Brethren testimony in Brazil.

At an earlier time, under the direction of and at the suggestion of the Board of Trustees of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church, the late Dr. Clarence L. Sickel made a tour of investigation in Brazil, looking toward the opening of a Brethren testimony there. After conferences with many friendly missionary agencies in the area, Dr. Sickel recommended that we open a work in Brazil and that the work should be near the mouth of the Amazon River—either in the Belem area or in the Territory of Amapa.

Upon their arrival in Belem, Brazil, the Altigs spent the first year in language study. Then Brother Altig made a number of tours of investigation, going hundreds of miles into the interior around the general Amazon area, but working from Belem as the center. His conclusions were almost identical with those of Dr. Sickel, so the first unit of work was established at Icoraci on the banks of the Para River. This river is a part of the great Amazon system.

Icoraci is about 12 miles from Belem. The city of Belem has a population of between 250,000 and 300,000 people. The little city of Icoraci, including the territory immediately associated with it, has a population of from 15,000 to 20,000 people; it is a little city that has opened its heart to the Gospel. From the very first, our missionary endeavors in Brazil have been very fruitful, with large numbers of people willing to hear, and many of them have accepted the gospel message.

Our second missionary family, Rev. and Mrs. Edward D. Miller and daughter, Carol Ann, arrived in Brazil on March 6, 1950. After having the necessary language training, they were ready to establish the second center of activity. This second center was established in the Territory of Amapa, across the Amazon River from Icoraci. The capital of this territory is Macapa and is the center of our testimony in that area. Macapa was quite small in the days when Brother Altig first visited it. However, at the time when our Brethren testimony was established there, it had grown to a city of between 15,000 and 20,000 people. The discovery and development of large manganese mines made the change; this has given us one of our greatest opportunities for evangelization and the preaching of the Gospel. Macapa is rapidly becoming a modern city and we are praising the Lord for our work in this area and the privilege of growing with the city.

It needs to be understood that these two centers of activity, although just across the river from each other, are quite far distant, for the Amazon River at this location is approximately 200 miles wide. The differences between the characteristics of the people, climate, and so on in the two areas are greater in some respects than between two distinct countries, although in both areas there is a very friendly reception to the gospel message.

At Icoraci there are two missionary families—Rev. and Mrs. John Zielasko and two children, who arrived there in October 1952; Rev. and Mrs. Bill Burk and two children, who arrived there in August 1954.

Christian day schools seem to be one of the immediate avenues for the presentation of the Gospel and the establishment of our testimonies in these areas. The Brazilian schools are inadequate to care for all of the children that are available; therefore, the government looks with very great favor on the private schools—missionary schools classify as private schools. Christian day schools are now in operation at Icoraci and Macapa.

It is our desire to add two or three other centers to the two present centers of activity—there are many opportunities for such. Reinforcement families are necessary before we can expand in any way beyond our present two-station limit. We do have, in relation to our present stations, a number of outpost preaching chapels, and through these the work is rapidly expanding. The Brazilian believers are being taught to assume responsibility for their own work and, with a surprising response,

PROGRESS and PROSPECTS

IN THE FRENCH SCHOOL

By Charles R. Taber, Yaloke, Africa

I am sitting in the pickup on the road about 20 miles from Bozoum and 45 from Bassai, home and destination. Odd place to write an article, you say? But what better can I do as I wait for a three-foot flash flood to drain away? The road ahead and a bridge have disappeared for a distance of about 200 yards under the rushing blanket of an overflowing stream. Everything was normal here yesterday when I went by, but the night brought a cloudburst and this is the result.

But I am not writing to tell you about floods. I am just seizing the opportunity to write all the things that have piled up this year. My real subject is the French-school program, its progress, and its prospects.

Progress

First, what about progress? From January to September we have had in our teacher-training school five young men. For a year they have been my constant occupation. "But," I can hear someone say, "isn't it a waste of manpower to give the whole time of a missionary to five young men?" Although at first glance this may seem to be so, I prefer to look at it from another angle.

These boys, with their previous education and their present desire to serve the Lord, are the cream of our youth. They have been called to be among the teachers who will open the intellectual eyes of a generation of African children, the future members and leaders of the African church. And in these vital keys to the future, this year has brought definite development, both spiritual and intellectual. I see in them a future multiplication of my present feeble efforts. In the light of their progress and of the future saving of missionary time and funds, this year has been one of great fruit. I have been thrilled and humbled to see the grace and power of our God in this work.

Prospects

But what of the road ahead? This year has been one of much heartsearching, meditation, consultation, and, above all, of prayer concerning the prospects of African Christian day schools. Out of this preparation of our thinking has come the central concept that this mission, under God's leading, is here to found on African soil a virile, self-propagating, self-supporting, self-governing church. It is a matter of record in church history and particularly in missionary history that a church of this kind is a virtual impossibility without a minimum level of general alertness among both leaders and members. There is no other agency able and willing to give our youth this education under Christian auspices. Hence, the need for an educational program.

Next Monday will be another first! The first class of 30 little boys, ranging in age from 7 to 10, will be introduced to the complexities of general education. In this class our student-teachers will do their practice teaching in preparation for the examination that will permit them to teach. And then—the limit isn't the sky, but the limitless grace and power of God! Our work will not he complete in Africa until the African church is ready to stand on its own feet, with an alert, trained leadership and a wide-awake membership.

The French School at Bassai.

Any educational program costs money. In these opening days you have been most generous in extending a helping hand to your African brethren. But, realizing that we should not expect you to pay all the bills for an effective program, not to mention robbing the Africans of the grace of giving, we look forward to the day, perhaps in the very near future, when all educational work will be fully supported by the African churches. Pray that African Christians will catch a vision of the potential worth of an educational program to the qualitative and quantitative growth of their churches. Pray above all that we, weak human instruments, may not hinder the positive contribution that education can make, but rather may seize every opportunity of advancing the cause of winning lost souls and building churches.

(Editor's Note—Lest someone may wonder whether Brother Taber ever reached home, he reports: "The sequel to the flood was quite an adventure. After waiting all night in the pickup for the water to subside, I left early in the morning to continue the trip, only to be brought up short by a bridge that had completely given way during the night. So I limped back to Yaloke with a loose fan and leaking oil. I made another attempt three days later, and finally swam across the river at the broken bridge, leaving the truck with one of my boys. Brother Jobson came and picked me up, so I finally arrived at Bassai, but Saturday night instead of Wednesday noon.")

ANOTHER FINANCIAL REPORT!

On the following pages we present our first annual report on a calendar-year basis. Some may feel that it is a waste of space to use six pages in a foreign-mission issue of the Herald for a financial report. Especially might those feel that way who are not members of our corporation and who have made no gifts of record to foreign missions. The stockholder in a bank is interested in the annual report of that bank; he will probably read every one of the cold, feelingless numbers.

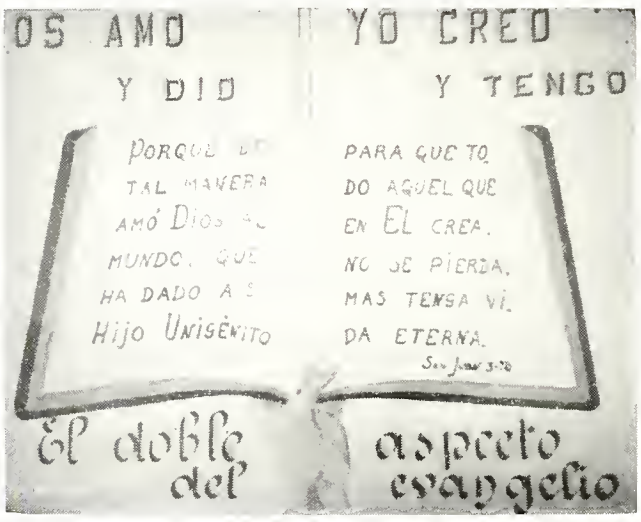
You are members of God's great corporation dedicated to getting the Gospel out to lost souls in foreign lands. You ought to be interested—we want you to be. Please ask us questions if there are any parts of this report which you do not understand.

Upon the requests of many donors, and in harmony with the policies of our other denominational interests, we do not publish the names of individual donors. Official receipts are sent to all donors as soon as possible after their gifts reach our office.

Total gifts for 1954, as you will notice, amounted to $212,552.97—almost a quarter of a million dollars. We praise God and we are thanking you for your gifts. Even so, these fine gifts were 3 percent below our giving for 1953; yet during the year 10 new missionaries were sent to the fields.

In order to care for expenditures recently authorized by our Board in new construction and equipment we will need $43,000 during 1955 in addition to our regular operational costs. We will need $272,000 during this current year to care for all our needs, not including the sending of any additional missionaries. That is an increase of $60,000 or 28 percent over what we gave in 1954. This will mean that an increase is needed of $3 per member for every member of the Brethren Church—an increase of from $10.50 per member as given last year to an amount of $13.50 needed from each member in 1955. Is this possible? We believe it is!

Where will your church stand in the giving program? We have begun a plan which we desire to follow year after year, indicating special mention of those churches giving $3,000 or more per year. Quite a number approached the $3,000 mark last year; possibly they will exceed it this year. We soon expect to see a list of churches exceeding the $10,000 mark in yearly giving to foreign missions.



Installment Giving—

The general custom for most of us today is installment buying. Why shouldn't we do installment giving? During the four months of February, March, April, and May we Brethren people will present our gifts to foreign missions to care for our work for an entire 12 months. Our needs for the next 12 months will be at least $23,000 per month—that has been the average of our expenditures during the last five months.

It will be easy for all of God's people in our Brethren churches, working together, to meet these needs. It will be easier if we would all do installment giving—week by week, and that's Biblical, too. "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him . . ." (I Cor. 16:2).

We'll all be pleasantly surprised at how much we can give during this four-month period if we make sacrificial gifts to foreign missions every week.

"INTO ALL THE WORLD

All who pass the home of the Solon Hoyt family in Don Bosco, Argentina, may read the Gospel as set forth in the sign which is in front of the house. The interpretation of the Spanish is indicated as follows:

Upper left—He loved and gave!
Upper right—I believe and have!
Middle—John 3:16 in Spanish.
Bottom—The double aspect of the Gospel.

they are accepting this responsibility. One young man is now enrolled in a Bible school some distance from Icoraci preparing for the work of the Christian ministry. Quite a number of others are faithfully attending the classes which are being taught by our missionaries themselves.

Many of the plans now being put into effect in our mission in Brazil are the result of prayer and consultation with the missionaries when the General Secretary visited the Brazilian field in January 1954.

THE CHURCH IN GERMANY

According to statistics published in Hanover, Germany, the current membership of the evangelical church in Germany is 41,162,000, served by 15,363 pastors. The evangelical church in Germany is composed of 13 Lutheran, 12 United, and 2 Reformed churches, organized on a regional basis. The membership of the Evangelical Union Church, exceeding 14 million, is 90 percent Lutheran and 10 percent Reformed.—EFMA Missionary News Service.

"Twenty families of tithers could support a church and a missionary!"—Dr. Robert Rudolph.

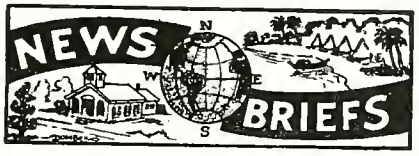
CORDOBA, ARGENTINA. Dr. C. F. Yoder passed away on Monday, Feb. 7.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. The new address of Rev. Howard Vulgamore is 1948 W. 81st St., Los Angeles 47, Calif. Please change Annual.

BUENA VISTA, VA. Edward Lewis, pastor of the First Brethren Church, will lead the song service at the Baptist church during the week of April 11. The morning services were broadcast over station WREL during the month of February.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (RNS). The Bible Society Record, periodical of the American Bible Society, entered its 100th year of publication with the January 1955 issue. The issue, Vol. 100, No. 1, went to some 325,000 readers all over the world.

WOOSTER, OHIO. The ladies chorus of the Second Baptist Church recently presented a sacred concert as part of the evening service at the First Brethren Church. The offering for the evening was presented to that congregation (colored) for their current building fund. The Brethren Youth Fellowship entertained the young people of the Northern Ohio Brethren Youth Rally at a social time after the public service on Feb. 25. Rev. and Mrs. Percy Crawford, with the King's College Quartet, were the leaders for the rally. Kenneth Ashman is pastor.



WINCHESTER, VA. The First Brethren Church is holding a Jewish Bible conference from March 6-9 with Dr. C. E. Phillips, president of the Hebrew Christian Fellowship, of Philadelphia, Pa., as the speaker. Paul E. Dick is pastor.

INGLEWOOD, CALIF. The young people of the First Brethren Church are planning a retreat at Acorn Lodge March 25-27. Glenn O'Neal is pastor.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. Three Protestant pastors have introduced a new restaurant that features a Christian atmosphere. Although no attempt is made to evangelize the diners, a large picture of Christ hangs over the main service counter, plaques, with Biblical quotations are displayed about the walls, tracts are on the tables, and the juke box plays only religious recordings. Staff members are always ready to discuss religion with any patron who wishes to do so. Community reaction has been favorable.

WHITTIER, CALIF. The Community Brethren Church plans to extend their present Christian day-school system to seven grades next fall. Ward Miller is pastor.

DALLAS, CENTER, IOWA. The new address of Rev. Arthur D. Cashman is Box 64, Dallas Center, Iowa. Please change Annual.

WINONA LAKE, IND. The Home Missions Council workshop will be held in the First Brethren Church of Fort Wayne, Ind., March 15-17 instead of Winona Lake as previously planned. Mark Malles is the pastor.

SEATTLE, WASH. The following letter will speak for itself: "Dear Mr. Hammers: My name is Mike Terry. I am eight years old. I go to the First Brethren Church in Sunnyside. Mr. Painter said you needed some money to help build a church. I have a hundred dollars in the bank that I am saving for college. I would like to lend it to you for 10 years. I gave my heart to Jesus and when I grow up I want to be a missionary or a preacher."

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. Dr. Billy Graham has written the Missionary Herald asking our people to pray for the all-Scotland crusade he will open March 21. "We believe that if hundreds of thousands of people all over the world will join in prayer, it could be the beginning of a genuine spiritual awakening," he writes.

MEYERSDALE, PA. The Brethren church enjoyed the largest attendance at their prayer meeting in the history of this church on Feb. 9. H. Leslie Moore is pastor.

SPECIAL. In next quarter's lessons the Books of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, and the Song of Solomon will be studied. Related material may be obtained at the Brethren Missionary Herald bookstore, such as "The Annotated Bible" (Vol. IV) (Gaebelein), $3; "Notes on Proverbs" (Ironside), $3.25; "Commentaries on the Old Testament—Proverbs" (Vols. 1 and 2) (Keil and Delitzsch), $7; and "Song of Solomon" (Ironside), $1.75.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Nancy Rosetta K. Garber, 94, went to be with the Lord on Dec. 1, 1954. She was a faithful member of the Brethren church in Leon, Iowa, for many years until she went to live with her daughter, Mrs. Wilma Myers, when she faithfully attended the Pleasant Grove Brethren Church in North English, Iowa.—*Clarence H. Five Minutes With Your Herald Editor

A WORLD PARLIAMENT

The bleak ghostly shadow of the atomic age hovers over the entire world. Unregenerate man is convinced that another world war would result in the extinction of the human race, and that if mankind is to be preserved, a world parliament must be formed. It is apparent that man will never learn, for so soon he has forgotten the failures of the World Court, the League of Nations, and he is apparently blind to the apparent failure of the United Nations. Man is determined to bring in a millennial age.

As a result of years of secret scientific study in nuclear and thermonuclear energy, man now faces a Frankenstein monster which seeks to break the nuclear chain and wipe civilization from the earth. This is an atomic age.

With the atomic age has come new philosophical ideologies on the subject of war, government, and international relations. World statesmen now argue the need for a world parliament which would be responsible for a world bank, establish a world army and navy, abolish all tariffs, encourage free world trade, instigate limited nationalism, and in cooperation with the religious leaders, establish a world church. The latter would be in perfect agreement with the proposed program of the National Council of Churches.

This entire program is the result of the atomic age which has supposedly caused man to realize that another "shooting" war is passé, because if war ever breaks it would consummate in the dropping of A- and H-bombs, or the absolute destruction of the human race.

The supposed basis of a world parliament is fear. Man fears war because it would mean race suicide. Men must come to that place where they fear God, for the fear of God is the beginning of wisdom. A perfect love for God is the only solution to the problem of fear, for perfect love casteth out all fear.

A world parliament is not the answer to the problems of our world. The only answer to every problem of man is to be found through a living faith in God's only begotten Son, Jesus Christ. When the world government is established, God's Son will establish it, and of that kingdom there shall be no end.

WHAT IS A CHRISTIAN?

In a leading denominational magazine the question was asked, "What do you mean by being a Christian?" The answer that followed was: "There are two sides to the answer. One is the ideal: what we are to be as Christians, as Christ men. The other is the decision, the devotion, the following after Christ. The plain fact is that we are Christians in the making. This was our Lord's word to men, 'Follow me and I will make you' They were to be disciples, learners. Paul puts it finely for the Philippians (ch. 3). Christ has made me his own, he says: 'I press on to make it my own.' 'Not that I have already obtained this or am already perfect . . . but one thing I do, forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal.' Here are two decisive matters: the decision by which a man becomes a Christian; the onward movement by which he becomes ever more truly Christian."

This quotation speaks for itself. Such teaching is that of a blind leader leading the blind. To say that "we are Christians in the making" is to confound salvation with love and obedience, which is the fruit of salvation. An individual becomes a child of God when through faith in the death, burial, and resurrection of Jesus Christ he accepts Christ as personal Saviour. Lest one claim that faith is a work, it should be pointed out that faith is not the procuring cause of salvation, but rather faith is the instrumental cause. The procuring cause is God's Son, Jesus Christ, whom faith accepts. This completed, an individual is as much a Christian as he will ever be. To "press on" does not in any manner make one "more truly Christian."

As a baby is born in the natural world, so an individual is "born again" in the spiritual realm. Any struggling of the new-born babe will not make him more alive, and neither will "straining forward" in the spiritual realm make one any more Christian. We must be careful to discern between that which makes one a Christian, which is faith in the gospel message, and that which is the fruit of salvation, good works.

THE TENT COMES DOWN

Rev. Oral Roberts, a Pentecostal Holiness healing evangelist, set up a tent in Phoenix, Ariz., for a 10-day meeting, claiming that he had the power to heal as was done by the disciples of Christ. A number of ministers in the city of Phoenix placed an ad in the daily newspaper and signed their names stating that they would pay $1,000 if absolute evidence could be provided of "miraculous divine healing." Mr. Roberts declared publicly that "We can claim the reward any time. We've won it again and again" (Newsweek). The 10-day meeting was suddenly shortened, the reward went unclaimed, and Roberts left town. See page 67 (Jan. 29, 1955) of the Missionary Herald for editorial comment.

EXPANDED MINISTRY

The aim and purpose of the Brethren Missionary Herald is to serve our Lord and the Brethren Church. God has been good, and through the years continual progress has been made for His glory. Another step has now been taken, and the expansion program has resulted in the purchase of offset press equipment which will make it possible for more attractive literature to be produced at little additional cost, if any.

The hosts of hell go to no end to produce attractive, alluring literature that will damn the souls of men for eternity. We aim to do all within our power to frustrate Satan's scheme through publishing the Good News of God's grace as attractively as possible.

THE VIRGIN BIRTH

BY

GLEN WELBORN

PASTOR, GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH
ALBANY, OREGON

On May 22 in Wembley Stadium in London, Billy Graham preached to 120,000 people. This great crowd stood in the rain. Why? To listen to what Billy calls "a simple, straightforward message of the Gospel."

The great fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith merit the same simple and straightforward treatment. The virgin birth of Jesus Christ is one of those doctrines.

A FACT

The first thing the Bible teaches about the virgin birth is that it is a fact. God's Word says Jesus was born of a virgin. That should settle the question once and forever for everyone. Regardless of what the so-called "higher critics" say, the Bible still stands. Jesus said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." Psalm 119:89 says, "For ever, O Lord, thy word is settled in heaven." It is settled in heaven and it should be settled in earth that Jesus was born of a virgin, because God's Word says so. Now let us read it.

More than 700 years before Christ was born in Bethlehem, God foretold this great event through His prophet, Isaiah. "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel" (Isa. 7:14). Emmanuel was to be born of a virgin. This simply means that Jesus was to be born of a young woman who had never been touched by any man. Impossible, you say? With man, yes; but not with God. "For with God nothing shall be impossible" (Luke 1:37).

In the time that God determined, He sent forth His angel Gabriel "unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary." God's messenger made an astounding announcement to her. "Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS."

Mary was not married. She was a virgin. Therefore, she naturally asks, "How shall this be, seeing I know not a man?" Whereupon God's messenger explained that "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee: therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." Notice carefully. He "shall be called the Son of God," not the son of Joseph.

In the two genealogies of Jesus, God is careful to guard this fact. "And Jesus himself began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was supposed) the son of Joseph" (Luke 3:23). Men who did not know, supposed Jesus to be the son of Joseph. But that was only supposition, and not fact. In Matthew, chapter 1, the genealogy reads, "Abraham begat Isaac; and Isaac begat Jacob;" and so on through 40 generations to Jacob, who "begat Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ." Again notice. The Bible does not say that Joseph begat Jesus as it does in all the others named in the genealogy. Joseph did not beget Jesus. He had nothing to do with the birth of Jesus.

In order that no one be left in doubt about the virgin birth of Christ, God gives us added information in the last eight verses of Matthew 1. In these verses God convinced Joseph that Mary was still a virgin even though he found her with child. Joseph was assured that this was God's doings, "For that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost" (Matt. 1:20). More than that, God convinced Joseph that her child would be a son—"and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins. Now all this was done, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken of the Lord by the prophet, saying, Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." By these eight verses (Matt. 1:18-25), God not only convinced Joseph of these things, but He also has convinced the entire world that these things are so. Those who refuse to believe are guilty of calling God a liar!

WHY THE VIRGIN BIRTH?

Another thing God's Word teaches about the virgin birth is that God had at least two very important reasons for it. One has to do with the nation of Israel, and the other has to do with the entire world.

Concerning Israel, God had promised that nation that He would raise up a king to sit upon the throne of David who would rule in righteousness forever. This king could not be of the seed of Joseph because of the curse God put upon his line prior to Judah's captivity in Babylon. Read it in Jeremiah 22:28-30. This man "Coniah" is the same man called "Jechonias" in Christ's genealogy in Matthew 1:12. However, this king must be of the seed of David to have legal right to the throne of David. Mary is a descendant of David through his son Nathan. Joseph is a descendant of David through his son Solomon. He became Mary's husband. The joining of these two in marriage put Jesus in line to become the only living heir to the throne. Jesus is the only one who can meet the legal requirements of the nation of Israel. He is the only one who meets the overall requirements of God. All of this was made possible through the virgin birth.

Even though we look forward with joy to the time of Israel's kingdom blessings with their king upon the throne, it would seem to us that there is a more important reason for the virgin birth of Christ, if that is possible. If it is more important, it is because it has to do with the entire world. The world was condemned because of sin. The world needed a Saviour. According to God, there is

THE PRAYING CHRIST

BY RALPH S. BURNS
PASTOR, FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH
CLAY CITY, IND.

"And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples" (Luke 11:1).

It is noteworthy that we owe our knowledge of the prayers of Jesus principally to the Evangelist Luke. There is, of course, the record of the hour of His supplication in Gethsemane by Matthew and Mark, and then the great chapter in John's Gospel that records His priestly prayer. But in addition to these instances Matthew furnishes but one, Mark but two references to the subject. All the others are found in Luke, the great book which points out to us His true manhood and in doing so emphasizes that precious indication of His humanity—His habitual prayerfulness.

Thinking of this, we see how precious the prayers of Jesus are—bringing Him very near to us in His true manhood. We read many times of His true participation in physical needs and human emotion, but even more precious than these is the great evidence of His prayers, that He too lived a life of dependence, or communion, and of submission.

Another point to think upon is that the highest, holiest life needs specific acts and times of prayers. We may well take the lesson which Christ's prayers teach us, for we all need it—no life is so high, so holy, so full of habitual communion with God that it can afford to do without the hour of prayer, the secret place, the uttered Word.

Thus Christ's own prayers do, in a very real sense, "teach us to pray."

The praying Christ teaches us to pray as a rest after service.

The Evangelist Mark gives to us a wonderful picture in the first chapter to express this very thought. Christ's first Sabbath Day of ministry in Capernaum was crowded with work. He teaches in the synagogue; immediately after His teaching He heals a man with an unclean spirit; then at once He passes to Simon's house and, upon hearing of the sickness of Peter's mother-in-law, goes about to heal her. As soon as she is healed, the woman is serving them. Then when evening came, he is besieged by a crowd full of sorrow and sickness, and all about the door they lie, waiting for Jesus to help them. His heart is touched, and He sets about to heal the prostrate forms, continuing into the deep of the night. What a day it has been of hard toil!

And what was His refreshment? An hour or two of slumber, and then, "in the morning, rising up a great while before day, he went out, and departed into a solitary place, and there prayed" (Mark 1:35).

In the same way we find Him seeking the same repose after another period of much exertion and strain on body and mind. He had taken himself and His disciples away from the busy times which Mark describes: "There were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat." So seeking a quiet place, He takes them across the lake for a quiet rest. But there was to be no rest for the Lord, for as they neared the other side a crowd met them and pleaded for the Lord to teach them. He throws away the purpose of rest and all day long "taught them many things." He realizes their hunger and produces, by a miracle, enough food for the feeding of five thousand. He sends them away satisfied spiritually and physically. He also sends His disciples away. "And when he had sent them away, he departed into a mountain to pray" (Mark 6:46).

This was Christ's refreshment after toil. Let us imitate Him who turned from joys of contemplation to the joys of service but never forgot to have communion with His Father.

The praying Christ teaches us to pray as a preparation for important steps.

The Gospel of Luke tells us that on the eve of the great epoch of choosing the 12 disciples, "He went out into the mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God" (Luke 6:12). Then, "when it was day," He calls to Him His disciples and chooses the 12. A similar instance occurs at a later period before another great epoch in His course—the great confession made by Peter. Concerning it, too, we read in Luke 9:18 that it was preceded by prayer.

Thus Christ teaches us how we may be helped in the things we do for Him if we will only take the time to pray before we plan, and take the counsel of God before we act. Bring your plans, your purposes to God's throne. Test them by pray-

JEALOUSY

BY BILL SMITH

Jealousy is the green-eyed monster that has wrecked so many lives. It creeps in unexpectedly and slays us before we know it. God says: "For jealousy is the rage of a man: therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance" (Prov. 6:34).

Jealousy can keep you in the valley of gloomy defeat. Jealousy and selfishness seem to go hand in hand. Many heroes of history were brave and stoical, but the moral and spiritual beauty of unselfishness is little seen in them. A man may be naturally brave, industrious, or generous, but not naturally unselfish. This springs from another source. It is of the new, the divine nature—the life imparted in receiving Christ by faith.

Ambition, pride, eagerness for riches frequently induce men to be ruthless toward those who stand in the way of their cherished attainments. Such people often pass unreproved, or are even applauded by the world, and their selfishness passes unnoticed. Purity, truth, and courage may be extolled apart from Christ, but true unselfishness is the mark of those who sincerely follow Christ.

How to Recognize Jealousy

1. If you continually tear another person down.
2. If you minimize another's accomplishments.
3. If you ignore another's achievements.

How to Overcome Jealousy

The Bible says: "Consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works" (Heb. 10:24).

"Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 2:3-5).

"Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind one toward another" (Rom. 12:15-16).

1. Watch for signs of jealousy such as criticism of others. Fit your ways with the plans of others, instead of working for your own pleasure or forcing your own way.
2. Examine yourself and face the fact that you have a problem with jealousy. Suppress your own feelings, hide your own inconvenience, withhold complaint, leave out the tale of your trouble or ache when others are in trial.
3. Pray regularly that your friends will be successful and give credit to others. Perform a service for others which may take you out of your usual routine, and do it cheerfully.
4. Send telegrams and write letters to people who receive awards and recognition.
5. Pray your way out of jealousy. The Lord will help you!

A CHRISTIAN APPROACH TO PHILOSOPHY. By Warren C. Young. Van Kampen Press, 1954. Cloth, 256 pp. $4 (postage 12c).

To help combat the increase of materialism and atheistic philosophical views, particularly among college students, Dr. Young gives a clear, concise view of modern philosophical concepts in the light of the Bible.

THE WORLD TO COME. By Isaac Watts. Moody Press, 1954. Cloth, 448 pp. $4 (postage 16c).

This is a book of sermons by a man who played an important part in the awakening of England for the revival under the Wesleys and Whitefield. As the title indicates, this is a treatise on what the Bible teaches about heaven, the resurrection, and the fate of the unsaved. It contains valuable material which would be of real comfort to those who suffer. This book is of the Wycliff Series of Christian Classics.

GOD AT YOUR DOOR. By C. Gordon Bayless. Fleming Revell Company, 1954. Cloth, 158 pp. $2 (postage 8c).

The book contains 15 revival sermons as preached by a master evangelist. The author aims his sermons at three groups, the unsaved, the saved, and those who are proclaiming the Gospel.

THE LIVING CHRIST AND DYING HEATHENISM. By Joh. Warneck. Baker Book House, 1954. Cloth, 312 pp. $3.95 (postage 12c).

This book affords a scholarly study of animistic heathenism and the impact of the Gospel upon primitive religion. The author provides an insight into the heathen mind and the animistic society. The victorious forces of the Gospel are graphically described.

THE GREATEST GIFT. By Mary Miller. Fleming Revell Company, 1954. Cloth, 127 pp. $2.50 (postage 12c).

This is a book for children depicting the life of Jesus in story form and illustrated by 56 full color illustrations. Supplementing each picture is a story relating to the earthly life of Jesus.

only one thing that will atone for sin. "For it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul" (Lev. 17:11). "Without shedding of blood is no remission" (Heb. 9:22).

What blood will suffice? "What can wash away my sin? Nothing but the blood of Jesus," wrote the songwriter. "For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared for me." When who came into the world? Christ! Who prepared a body for whom? God the Father through the eternal Spirit prepared a body of flesh and blood for the eternal Son. The method God used to prepare this body for His Son was through the virgin birth. It was God the Holy Spirit who prepared that body through the virgin, Mary. Christ could not live in a body that was conceived in sin. Had Joseph been His father, He would have been conceived in sin as was David who said: "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me" (Ps. 51:5). And had this been true, Christ could not have made atonement for sin, and the world would be without a Saviour.

ing about them. Do nothing large or new, small or old before you've asked, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

The praying Christ teaches us to pray as the preparation for sorrow.

Here all the three Gospels tell us the same story. Jesus, though wanting companionship in that awful hour, would take no man with Him there. He said, "Tarry ye here, while I go and pray yonder." But as we stand off we catch the voice of pleading rising through the stillness of night. The very spirit of all prayer is in these broken words.

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Pray for the district missionary rallies now in progress and for all missionaries participating; these will continue on through the month of May.

2. Pray for the public meetings which have begun in our new location in Lyon, France. Pray especially for another missionary family for France.

3. Pray for at least four more missionary pastors for Africa. Pray for the native believers in Africa, that they may assume more and more responsibility and leadership in relation to the native church.

4. Pray for the Christian day schools now in operation in Icoraci and Macapa, Brazil; pray for the teachers and for the missionaries who supervise; pray also for another missionary family for Brazil.

5. Pray for the needed materials to put the finishing touches on the Argentine chapels at Rio Tercero and Corral de Bustos. Pray for the new locations to be chosen and the chapels to be built at Rio Cuarto, Don Bosco, and Jose Marmol.

6. Pray for the missionaries working at the three locations of our Mexico work—at Nuevo Laredo, Mexicali, and Tijuana. Pray especially for Mexican leaders.

7. Pray for the believers in Honolulu as they expand their work, and for suitable employment for Brother and Sister Tresise, who are self-supporting missionaries.

8. Pray for an increase in foreign-mission giving this year — an increase of $3 per member for every member of the Brethren Church. This will total the amount so urgently needed if we are, even in a limited way, to meet our foreign-mission needs for this year.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

1. Pray that the Lord might direct the board of trustees as they consider the many matters related to the new denominational office building, and Missionary Herald Building.

2. Pray that wisdom might be given with regard to the expansion program of the publishing house, that the crowded conditions will not hinder the work.

3. Pray that the Lord will guide as to the selection of an additional staff member who is adequately prepared in the field of offset printing.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Pray for a number of people attending the Grace Brethren Church of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, who are not members, that they might know the will of God in severing their relationship with apostate churches.

2. Praise God for the evidence of spiritual growth in several new converts at Yakima, Wash. Pray that God will stir every member to become soul-winners for Him.

3. Pray for growth in the development of the Second Grace Brethren Church, Mansfield, Ohio, and that a goal of 100 might be reached by Easter Sunday.

4. Pray for growth in the lives of those who made decisions during the Crusade Team No. 2 meeting at York, Pa. Also pray for contacts made in the visitation program by the team.

5. Pray that God might definitely reveal His will in the matter of the Gospel Truth radio program at Albany, Oreg., as the contract expires this month.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Praise God for the spirit of revival that swept Grace Seminary and College campus during the January day of prayer.

2. Praise the Lord for the way the school's financial needs have been supplied during the past several months.

3. Praise God for the growing interest in the school as seen by the members of the faculty who recently visited our eastern churches.

4. Pray for the hundreds of high-school seniors who, during the next few months, will be making decisions which will affect the whole course of their lives.

5. Pray that the board of directors and faculty may be given wisdom as the school faces a necessary program of expansion.

6. Pray that the Lord will lead many more of our people to participate regularly in the school's monthly finance plan.

EVANGELIST CRUSADE—

1. Praise the Lord for bringing into the Crusade ministry Grace Seminary Senior Dean Fetterhoff.

2. Pray that the financial need for this revival-evangelism ministry will be met.

3. Praise the Lord for many decisions which have been made in the various meetings.

WMC (Supplied by East District)—

1. Praise God for the missionaries who represent us in Africa, South America, France, Hawaii, and for other open doors in foreign-missionary work.

2. Praise Him for the "open doors" in our own district.

3. Ask God to give us a burden for the lost souls in our own communities.

SISTERHOOD—

1. Pray that more girls may see the need in their own lives to memorize the Scripture suggested.

2. Pray that many bandages may be rolled by the girls to aid our missionaries.

3. Pray that more of our girls may give their lives in full-time service for our Lord.

YOUTH FELLOWSHIP—

1. Pray that our young people may get a vision of the challenge of missionary work.

2. Pray that their Sunday-evening program material may train them for active Christian service.

3. Pray that our youth may be kept from the current evils of the day, and given a testimony of the Lord's power to save and to keep.

OUR DAILY WALK IN WISDOM ON THE MISSION FIELD

By Mrs. Freda Kliever

"I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called" (Eph. 4:1).

Much has been said and written about the daily walk of the believer. No doubt most of you have read some of the many books which have been written on this subject, but it will not hurt to again consider just a few thoughts on the matter of our daily walk in our work of giving forth the Word in a world that knows not wisdom.

In order to walk in wisdom, we must first know what wisdom is. Webster's dictionary says that wisdom is the ability to judge soundly and deal sagaciously with facts, especially as they relate to life and conduct.

This definition fits in very well with the subject at hand, but it is not sufficient to meet our needs on the mission field. God's Word plainly tells us that in ourselves we can do nothing (John 15:5). In ourselves we do not have the ability to make sound judgments and to deal sagaciously; that is, to be fair in judging men, motives, and means.

Webster's definition may fall short of what we need, but God's Word gives us a definition of wisdom that is sufficient for our daily walk, be it on the mission field, in the homeland, or in our travels.

In I Corinthians 1:24 we see that Christ is the power of God and the wisdom of God, and in verse 30 of the same chapter we read: "But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption." If we are dead and our lives are hid with Christ in God (Col. 3:3), and if we know that Jesus Christ indwells us by faith (II Cor. 13:5), then we have the key to a daily walk in wisdom.

To walk wisely, a missionary needs daily to examine his own life and conduct, and to be constantly judging his motives and intents as he works with his fellow missionaries and with the people to whom he has been sent; but more than this, he must also be able to judge carefully and deal with facts as they relate to his fellow workers' attitudes toward him and toward the work which is their mutual responsibility.

Missionaries need to be constantly on guard that their conduct toward each other and toward the people with whom they work does not contradict what they preach and teach. It is not always easy to say with the Apostle Paul: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ" (I Cor. 11:1). We could do so if we would but follow the admonitions found in I Thessalonians 3.

"Redeeming the time" (Eph. 5:16).

Just because we cannot see time or handle it, we let it slip by unused or we waste it by doing useless things. How easy it is to settle down and create a little world of our own in which we feel our time is our own, forgetting that it is one of the commodities that God has placed at our disposal to use wisely. We should budget our time just as carefully as we do our money in order that we can see where and how it is spent.

If we use our time wisely, we will set apart a time for personal reading and study of the Word, meditation, and prayer. There will also be a time for family devotions, and a time when all the missionaries on the station meet for prayer each day. On the mission field, as in the homeland, all work and no play makes us dull, so we need to set apart a time for rest and relaxation. The time used in study, prayer, meditation, and recreation helps to fit us for the tasks that are ours each day.

"It is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful" (I Cor. 4:2).

Many of the things that we have on the mission field in the way of materials and equipment to carry on the work are provided for us by the gifts of God's people. These things are placed in our care, and it is our duty to use them carefully and maintain them wisely, so as to get the most service from them.

"Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth." (Col. 3:2).

How we do need to exercise wisdom in regard to the things that we have on the mission field. All too often our things become a stumbling block to us, as well as to the natives round about us. When this is the case, we

Who's Who for March

REV. ROY SNYDER

Rev. Roy Snyder, author of the Bible study for the month, was born June 15, 1922, the son of Rev. and Mrs. Sheldon W. Snyder, of Altoona, Pa. His father is pastor of the Yellow Creek Brethren Church.

Roy accepted the Lord at the age of 12, and five years later gave himself to the Lord for Christian service. After graduating from high school in 1940, he took some college work, but his studies were interrupted when he entered the armed service. He spent almost three years in military service, two of which were overseas. He was discharged in the spring of 1946 and entered Grace Seminary that fall.

At Grace Seminary Roy met Miss Ruth Croker, a member of the First Brethren Church of Philadelphia, Pa. Ruth and Roy were married during the summer of 1947, continued their studies together at Grace, and graduated together in May 1949.

During their preparation days at Grace they were approved as missionaries for French Equatorial Africa. On September 24, 1949, they sailed for France, where they spent a year in language study before going on to Africa.

Brother and Sister Snyder spent their first term of service in the Bouca-Batangafo field. They were sorely tested by repeated illness throughout their term. They returned on furlough late in 1953 and have now returned to Africa for their second term of service, working again in the Bouca-Batangafo field.

MRS. JACK CHURCHILL

Miriam Sickel Churchill was born in Huinca Renanco, Argentina, on February 2, 1923, the second daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Sickel, Brethren missionaries to that land.

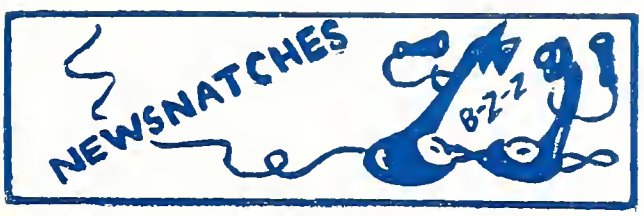
Miriam received most of her grammar-school education in Argentina, as well as a secretarial course. At an early age she came to know the Lord and to realize the great need of the people among whom her parents had been called to serve.

When it was necessary for her to return to the United States for further study, she completed her high-school work at La Verne, Calif., and then went to Westmont College, graduating in 1944.

At Westmont she met Jack Churchill, who became her husband on January 1, 1945. In the fall of 1946 Miriam and Jack went to Winona Lake, where he enrolled in the seminary to prepare for the Argentine field. They spent three years at the seminary, during which time their first son, Kenneth Paul, was born.

After graduating from seminary the Churchills turned their eyes toward Argentina, the land of Miriam's birth and childhood. They began their service together there in November 1949. Their second son and first daughter were born during their term of service.

The Churchills, together with Miriam's mother, Mrs. Loree Sickel, are now in California on furlough, and are preparing for the time when they can return to their work in Argentina.



have no business sitting for hours looking at the "Wish Book," finding more things with which to clutter up our existence. It is so easy to surround oneself with the nice unnecessary things that soon take up a lot of time that should be spent in the work to which we are sent.

"What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (I Cor. 6:19-20).

There are many reasons why a missionary needs to regard the care of his body as a first-line duty. God has chosen to carry on His work through the medium of a body presented to Him as a living sacrifice. Having presented our bodies to God, we can no longer do with them as we please, but we must keep them fit for His service by whatever means and care we can exercise.

As missionaries we have no right to place ourselves in places of known danger, or exposure, unless it is with the purpose of bringing the message of salvation to someone who would not be able to hear otherwise.

The church has placed in us a big investment. By her gifts our outfits were furnished and the means for our support and travel were provided. She has placed her confidence in us; therefore it is our responsibility to use wisdom in all that we do, and in the use of all that is put at our disposal to do the work she has sent us to do, and in the care of those bodies in which we are to glorify God.

The senior council at Winona Lake, Ind., lost their very efficient president in January when Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Cashman moved to the pastorate at Dallas Center, Iowa. The program chairman passed out little programs at our January meeting on the front of which was a "down-at-the-mouth" lady (us) and on the other side a smiling lady (Dallas Center). Our loss is their gain and we are praying the Lord's richest blessing upon their work in Dallas Center. Mrs. Robert Ashman, former national recording secretary, is our new local president.

The Aleppo, Pa., council has been busy sending clothing to the Navahos, furnishing stainless-steel tableware for their fellowship building, making aprons for the Kamp Keystone kitchen, etc.

The councils at the Philadelphia, Pa., First and Third churches held a fellowship evening together at the

OUR PROJECT

We are now halfway through our WMC year. Our home-mission project has been completed in a way that exceeded our fondest hopes. The quarter devoted to the Christian Education Offering has drawn to a close. We are trusting that every council has felt the deep responsibility for this vital offering and that when all reports are in we will have reached our $3,000 goal.

And now we turn to our third major offering—foreign missions. We have as a project this year the building of a residence in Brazil. This residence will become the home of our newest missionary couple, Imogene and Bill Burk. This month's cover, as well as the following article by Miss Ruth Reddick, should stir each one of us to go "over the top" once again in our missionary giving.

WMC GIFTS

HELP BUILD A MISSIONARY RESIDENCE

By Ruth E. Reddick

"Icoraci is the most comfortable place on earth." This was the comment of Bro. Bill Burk after he and his family had been in Brazil for several months. The Burks—Bill, Imogene, Linda, and Arthur—arrived in Icoraci, Brazil, on August 17, 1954, to begin their first term of missionary service; they have been enthusiastic residents ever since. The front cover of this Herald pictures scenes from the areas in Brazil where our missionaries are located.

Before I get too engrossed in giving you a report of the advantages of living in Icoraci, it would be well to get to the main purpose of this article—to express a great big "thank you" to the National WMC for helping to make possible this home for the Burks. The 1955 Foreign Mission Goal on the part of the National WMC is $2,500, to be used toward the erection of this missionary residence in Brazil, the total cost of which will be $5,000.

As is usual, before Bill and Imogene could settle down to the business of learning the Portuguese language in order to give out the Gospel in that land, they had to find a place to live. They located a place where they could live temporarily until the new missionary residence is completed, but day by day they are watching with eager eyes the progress in the erection of this building and planning for the day, perhaps by the end of April, when it will be "theirs" in that they will be the first missionaries to occupy it. (Just as soon as a picture can be secured of this new residence it will be used in one of the Heralds.)

The Bill Burk family.

All women are interested in new houses and house plans—some more, some less—and I believe the members and friends of the WMC who are having a part in erecting this house will be interested in its location, the layout, and some minor details.

The Location

This new missionary residence will be located on the piece of property which has been owned by The Foreign Missionary Society for some time. Facing the street is the building which is a church and a residence. It is quite a large building and remodeling enabled it to be used adequately for the two purposes. The front part forms the present meeting place for the believers in Icoraci and the other part is the residence of the John Zielasko family.

The new house is located at the back of the property and will overlook the Para River, a part of the great Amazon system. A quotation from one of Bill's letters will give you an idea of the beauty of the location—"Now that the land is cleared, everyone thrills at the location of the house. The sun sets directly across the river before our house, with the beauty being visible from the porch."

Icoraci is growing; nice homes are being built by people from Belem; the value of the property is increasing. Our location overlooking the river seems to be ideal. In fact, the entire piece of property is in an ideal location in relation to working in the area and reaching the most people with the Gospel.

The House

The missionaries, planning together and pooling their ideas, have done their best to plan as economically as possible in relation to both expense and space, but have also kept in mind that the house should be comfortable, adequate, and one that will meet the needs of the family occupying it. The house faces west and the two rooms across the front will be the living room and the study. A semi-hallway will go right down the middle of the house, with the study, bathroom, and two bedrooms on one side and the living room, a bedroom, storeroom, dining room, and kitchen on the other side.

There will be a porch or veranda two meters wide (about six feet) around the whole house with the same roof overhanging. There are big gables with vents for free passage of air. The floor will be 60 centimeters (about 21 3/5 inches) above the ground, which will permit free air movement and the necessary cleaning. Tile bricks are being used for the walls and the best wood for the floors. The house will have a red tile roof. The contractor has built many nice homes in the Icoraci area and owns several brick and tile factories.

The Burks continually express praise to the Lord for sending them to minister to the spiritually needy people in Brazil. They are making excellent progress in acquiring the Portuguese language. Keep praying for them and for all of our work in Brazil.

LETTERS FROM OUR WMC MISSIONARIES

Bekoro, French Equatorial Africa.

Dear Gladys:

Your good letter reached me the 29th, but I'm afraid my answer may not reach you by the 25th of this month. More likely the 25th of next month. This time of the year is bad for our already poor mail system out here.

This year has been an exceptionally heavy rainfall year. That means mudholes, gullies, and washed-out bridges, which make traveling impossible. Our mail was delayed last week because of washed-out bridges. We are never certain as to when the mail will arrive, even though it may not be due to rain or bad roads; oftentimes the trucks go bad and then they have to wait until they get word back to the office. There are no garages along the way. If you have a breakdown, you wait until someone comes along to see if you can get help somewhere. We are at least 150 miles from the nearest airmail post office. But I'll get it off in the next outgoing mail and hope and trust that it may make good connections.

The news in your letter was really news to me. I had no word of it nor even thought of such a great honor to be bestowed on unworthy me. Words fail to tell how deep is my appreciation of this great kindness and expression of love of our WMC. We praise the Lord continually for the great work He has and is accomplishing through our WMC, and we will continue to pray more fervently for His continued blessings upon each member and their part in the work.

The more I ponder over and think of this most unexpected honor, it creates a greater desire and responsibility to yield myself more entirely to the work or will of the Lord. It is also going to be a great tonic "when burdens press and cares distress and the way grows weary and long."

The Word tells us to rejoice in the Lord alway, and we do, more or less, but He also uses others to help us in encouraging and strengthening our hearts and hands. How we do praise the Lord for the many who so faithfully remember us before the throne of grace continually.

Yesterday was our day to meet with our group of women here. We had a very good meeting and the women seem to be enjoying it very much. We have two meetings a month when possible. One thing we are stressing is personal work. Every time we meet we compare notes on how much personal work each one has done. Yesterday they reported some six or more that had accepted the Lord when they spoke to them. Others have spoken to different ones, but they still refuse to accept the Lord. One of the great hindrances is drinking. They think they can't live without their beer. The remarkable thing about this beer-drinking idea is that we have never made it a special subject or have stressed it at all. We try to keep before them the fact that they are to put their faith in the Lord, and He will take care of the rest. But like many all over the world, they just don't want to.

But we press on, continuing to give forth the Word in season and out of season—and pray that the Lord may give the increase. Our Bible school here at Bekoro will end next week. We have had 46 students with their wives and children. It has been a great work and oftentimes we do get weary in but not of the work.

When school is out and the roads are better, we'll be able to visit the villages and help the students in their work there. We have a lot of extra meetings and work planned in between now and our conference. So we won't have to worry about time dragging along.

This is the month for our quarterly financial report, so must get it finished and on its way too. Thanking you all again.

Yours in Him,

M. W. Kennedy.

Nzoro, French Equatorial Africa.

Dear Sister Lindower:

I appreciated your letter so much. It is kind of you women to choose me as one of your missionaries this year. I am more of an antique in the mission than anything else, as I cannot work as fast as I used to. It keeps me busy all day long to do what I want to do. Our first class with the women is 5:30 a. m. They want to go to their gardens early and are too tired to have class in the late afternoon, so we have them at daybreak. We like it also, as we go to bed early and get up early here. Lois Miller and I teach the women, although another class of leper women is taught by a leper.

Soon after class I go to the dispensary for several hours. I often have an hour or two before dinner to type translation or revise what has been translated. I am working in Romans now. Sometimes I spend a great deal of time trying to find the exact word, as was my experience yesterday searching for the words "vengeance" and "jealousy." Translating is very interesting work and I like it. But it takes lots of time.

My afternoons are spent with the translating work also. Sometimes we are interrupted by some patient or an accident, snakebites, burns, etc. Near us is a Frenchman putting in a new bridge with many workmen, and they send all their patients to us, day or night. When I hear their car coming at night, I know another patient has arrived. I have a very good native helper at the hospital. I thank the Lord for him.

At 5 p. m. I have another class. The men have their classes then at the chapel. But those learning to write come to me on my veranda.

We have a leper village near us; about 138 lepers are treated every day. The village is growing. Most of them have accepted the Gospel since coming, and their families also.

The Christians are cutting stones to build a new church this dry season. The carpenters are to saw the wood. I sent for a bell for them. They made some bricks but will make some more after the rains are over. The stones are for the foundation. The roof will be of grass. The women will gather that in about a month, when it is dry.

A month ago I started a WMC for the women here. We have about 20. I hope to have more. They are very timid at first, but I can get them to talk by asking questions after the lesson is taught. I am teaching "The Life of Christ." We have only met twice.

Our station Bible school just closed for this year, but most of the women are staying on instead of going back to their villages. This is because their cotton is not yet picked. Thus our classes for women continue.

On Sundays we have about 400 people, but it is increasing. We thank the Lord for what He has done in this part of the field. And we are expecting more from Him. We know your prayers and ours will be answered. The children's church that Lois Miller has on Sunday numbers about 100 to 140. I believe it also will grow now since the people are moving back to the village. Many slept out near the gardens. The cotton fields are about laid by.

We pray for you women and know you love the Lord and His work. As the natives would express it, "You will have a large granary in heaven." That means you will be rich. May God continue to keep, bless, and use you all in His work.

Sincerely,

Estella Myers.

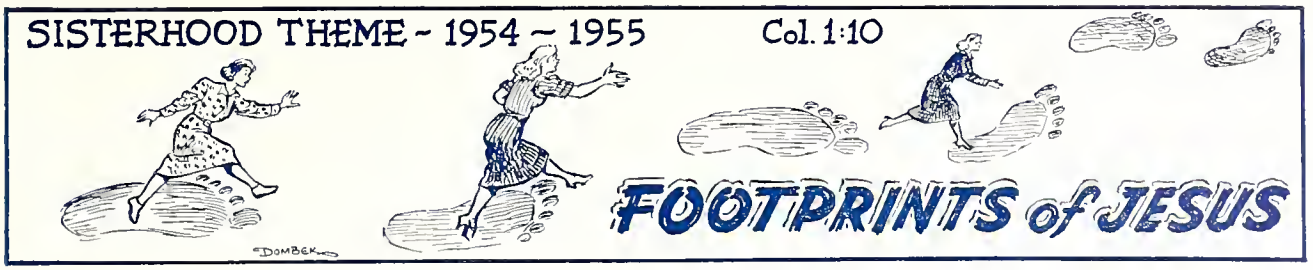
WELCOME TO OUR NEW COUNCILS

We take time and opportunity this month to welcome into our WMC family several new councils. We are so happy to see the work of WMC growing through increased membership in established councils and through the forming of new councils.



Your editor has checked with the national secretary in an attempt to get an accurate and complete list of the new councils that have been organized since National Conference. We realize that there is possibility of some mistakes, so we are asking that if there are any newly organized councils not included in the following list, the secretary send word to us immediately. We honor in this Herald the following councils:

Juniata Junior, Altoona, Pa.
Ozark, Mich.
Washington Heights Senior, Roanoke, Va.
Second Brethren, Mansfield, Ohio.
Wheaton, Ill.
Listie, Pa. (Junior).
Salem, Va.
Covington, Ohio.
Laboratory, Pa.
West Covina, Calif.

We welcome each of you ladies into our WMC fellowship. We know that God has singularly used the women of the Brethren Church in the strengthening of the local churches, the expansion of missionary enterprises at home and abroad, and the carrying of the Gospel to the far corners of the earth. Each new council, each new member means just that much more we can accomplish for our Lord. May you each one feel that you truly belong because we extend to you not only a deep welcome but also our pledge of prayer support from day to day. May we as Christian women be truly "meet for the Master's use."

TUT! TUT! NO SIDESHOWS

(COLOSSIANS 3:5)

By AVA SCHNITTJER

(Scripture: Colossians 3:12-17).

MARY: Did you ever start on a journey anywhere that there weren't bypaths along the way that tempted you to leave the main road and follow to see where they lead?

JANE: I guess we've all had that experience. And sometimes on a trip the little bypaths are pleasant and harmless, though they do delay reaching the goal.

ELLEN: But in our walk with Christ, though we may see bypaths, things that might look desirable and that might tempt us from our path, they are not for us, and we should shun them completely and stay in the Way.

LOUISE: My mother is always saying a Christian shouldn't do this and shouldn't do that. I'd like to find out why you shouldn't, and what you shouldn't, and how you're going to keep from it, and what will happen if you don't.

1. ANNIVERSARY MONTH—Yes; we're celebrating our 42d anniversary in Sisterhood this month. Don't forget our Birthday Project—the Higher Education of Missionaries' Children. Our goal for this project is $500. I'm confident that with the Lord's help we can go over this goal. What about you? Be sure and send this offering into the national treasurer by May 10.

2. BANDAGES FOR AFRICA—Are you doing your part to reach the lost ones in Africa for Christ by rolling your bandages? This is a wonderful opportunity to manifest your love to the heathen in Africa for what Jesus has done for you. Each girl is responsible for rolling 10 bandages, but after you realize what a blessing this can be to you as well as others, I'm sure this will be a small number to roll.

3. ARE YOU FLUNKING? In school if we aren't faithful in our studies, we flunk. This is even more true in our Christian life in the study and memorization of God's Word. This means that we should especially be faithful in our quiet time each day—yes; and in the memorization of Colossians, too. How far are you? Our desire is that each girl will be promoted in Christian growth and no one will flunk or be retarded in God's education for her.

ALICE: As someone has said, "That's a big order." Where shall we start?

MARY: I think we should answer her questions in order. First she asked why, as a Christian, she should or shouldn't do certain things.

ELLEN: I think the first verse of this chapter gives an answer to that. "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God" (Col. 3:1). Ephesians 2:6 shows, too, the position Christ has given us: "And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." If we believe we really have such a position, we shouldn't act as if we didn't have it, as if we belong only to the earth.

JANE: If we are "crucified with Christ" and "Christ liveth in [us]," then we can't do things that Christ himself wouldn't do. When we do, it's just like nailing Him to the cross all over again.

LOUISE: And we know that when we received Christ, we did deny ourselves and "Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God" (Col. 3:3).

MARY: It appears that we have plenty of reasons for avoiding sideshows. Now, the next question was what we should avoid.

JANE: And that is included in our key verse for this lesson, which names some very terrible sins. I found out something that this verse doesn't mean, too. It says, "Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth." Some think that means to undergo great privation as certain religious leaders do in heathen countries. What it really means is to slay sin in your life. If Christ is really living in you, then anything is sin which robs you of His fellowship and blessing. Paul names the sins here which the Colossians were guilty of. And they are sins that still occur when people indulge in the desires of the flesh. He does name first a terrible sin. Then the ones which follow are the wrong desires in the heart, wicked imaginings, and wicked thoughts are always the beginnings of wicked deeds.

LOUISE: Do you mean that even to think of something evil is wrong?

ALICE: How can you help it if a thought that isn't good comes into your mind?

ELLEN: Perhaps you can't help it if thoughts come into your mind, but they don't need to stay there.

LOUISE: And how do you keep evil thoughts out?

MARY: To put evil thoughts out requires putting something in their place. "Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth" (Col. 3:2).

JANE: If we want anything at all more than Christ, then that thing becomes a sort of god and, as our verse says, we are really practicing idolatry.

ALICE: And the result of these sins—of doing what God's Word forbids—is that the "wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience" (vs. 6).

ELLEN: This part of the Book of Colossians makes me think of a story I heard about an eagle that was flying around looking for food. Spying a little rabbit floating downstream on a piece of ice toward Niagara Falls, the eagle dived smoothly down and pounced upon him. There he crouched on the ice, gorging himself on the little animal. The roar of the falls grew louder as the ice floe neared the brink, but the greedy eagle, interested only in his own flesh, stood there, his great claws sinking down into the ice, eating a little longer and a little longer, thinking he would fly up as he reached the falls. At last the piece of ice reached the very edge of the falls and as it started to slide over, the roar was deafening; the eagle spread his wings to fly away. But in sitting too long indulging his appetite, his feet had frozen to the ice. He couldn't pull out. His feet were "set" on things on earth, and in a moment he was dashed to destruction on the rocks below.

MARY: How awful! And sin is even more dangerous. Christ's profession and His life were in perfect agreement, and that is the standard He has for us: purity of heart and deed.

LOUISE: I believe I'll understand a little better the next time my Mom says, "No, Louise." I'd like to hear again the things we should do according to the Scripture we read at the beginning, Colossians 3:12-17.

PROGRAM GUIDE FOR APRIL

BIRTHDAY MONTH

THEME SONG—"Footprints of Jesus." Have a girl lead in an opening word of prayer.

CHORUS TIME—Sing unto the Lord. Learn new songs; especially sing those dealing with walking with the Lord.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ROADMAP—For a time of fellowship with the Lord, look into His Word, for it is here where we receive our orders for our daily walk.

DEVOTIONAL TIME—Seniors study "Tut! Tut! No Sideshows." Middlers study "Like Him."

TESTIMONY TIME—"Let the redeemed of the Lord say so." Have the girls tell what the Lord means to them and how Sisterhood has been a blessing to them in their Christian life.

LEARNING THE PAST—Have someone review "The History of the Brethren Church." If you haven't been keeping up on them, give a review of the past issues.

BENEDICTION—Sing the last stanza of "Footprints of Jesus," and repeat the SMM Benediction.

SMM BUSINESS MEETING—Have reports from all the officers and committees. This will keep them all on their toes! Go over the goals and see if you are working on them. Remember, Sisterhood isn't only for the officers, but for each individual girl!

NATIONAL TREASURER'S REPORT

As of January 26, 1955, the following was in the treasury: General Fund, $354.72; Project, $74.50; General Fund, S O S call, $71.23; total January offering, $611.35.

LIKE HIM

By MRS. JAMES DIXON

In our Bible studies we have learned that we cannot "walk worthy of the Lord," nor please Him, if sin is present in our lives.

The Father said of the Son, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." We must be like the Lord Jesus Christ if we would be pleasing to God.

To be a Christian means that one has received the Lord Jesus Christ, and he is being renewed in the image of God.

Last month we studied the compassion of Christ and were challenged to a life of compassion and selfless devotion to those in need.

This month we will study the kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, and longsuffering of Christ and allow His nature to work itself out in our lives.

We know the kindness of God. He did not deal with us after our sins. While we were yet enemies of Christ, He died for us. He does not deal with us harshly, but gently and kindly.

Kindness is the opposite of malice. "Malice" is an evil desire to injure another. Kindness is a desire to do good for others. Let us be kind as He is kind.

Let us also learn "humbleness of mind" from our Saviour (Phil. 2:3-8). Though Christ existed throughout eternity as God, He laid aside His glory and made himself of no reputation, finally to be crucified between two thieves on Calvary. The unsaved person spends all his energy exalting himself, endeavoring to be popular and important. Let us not seek our own, but the glory of Christ. Never forget that pride is of the Devil, not of Christ.

We can learn meekness from Him also. When He was falsely accused and reviled, He answered not a word. We must learn it is not necessary to defend ourselves but to take wrong, and not answer again, that we might be like Him.

Longsuffering is patience. Think how patient God is with us. He did not blot out Adam when he sinned. Think of all the wickedness in the world, and yet He was not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. What if God's patience had run out before you were saved? Where would you be? Thank God for His longsuffering with us.

"It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not. They are new every morning: great is thy faithfulness (Lam. 3:22-23).

Let us pray every morning that we might be like our Lord in compassion, kindness, humbleness, meekness, and longsuffering. Let us confess every failure to Him and renew our prayer "to be like Him."

"Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me,
All His wonderful passion and purity,
Oh, Thou Spirit divine, all my nature refine,
Till the beauty of Jesus be found in me."

1. Think of everyday situations where you could show kindness.
2. Is it natural to be humble?
3. Is being "bashful" being humble?
4. Is it necessary to "run yourself down" to be humble? Did Jesus ever "run himself down"?
5. Have you ever been hurt when you were falsely accused?
6. Do we sometimes need to be longsuffering with our parents? with our brothers and sisters?

HISTORY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH—VIII

By REV. GERALD POLMAN

How did our denomination, the Brethren Church, become a separate group? The difficulties in the church began about 30 years before the actual split took place. Some of these differences were mentioned last month. The division came about when the Annual Meeting, which was the national conference, passed rules and regulations which controlled men and churches. These rules and regulations were wholly of men and certainly not of God.

This caused much dissatisfaction, especially as it had to do with the kind of clothing the members could wear. The result was that in 1882, through the expulsion of some and the secession of others, there came into existence a progressive minority that wished to return to the original spiritual and evangelical position of the Brethren. This minority group called for its first convention by passing the following resolution in a meeting held at Schoolhouse No. 7, Jackson Township, Elkhart County, Indiana, June 1, 1882:

"Resolved, That we recommend a convention of all those favorable to restoring the church to its primitive purity, at which time it shall be decided what course shall be pursued for the time;

"We, your committee, therefore have appointed said convention to be held at Ashland, Ohio, June 29, 1882.

"It was further decided that our motto shall be, 'The Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible,' and all who are in harmony with this sentiment are cordially invited to be present."

At this convention held in the college building at Ashland, Ohio, a "Declaration of Principles" was passed (Holsinger's "History of the Tunkers and the Brethren Church," pp. 530-535). Here is a brief quotation taken from this declaration:

"We hold that in religion the gospel of Christ, and the gospel alone, is a sufficient rule of faith and practice; that he who adds to the gospel, takes from it, or in any way binds upon men anything different from the gospel is an indel to the Author of Christianity and a usurper of gospel rights

"We therefore reaffirm the primitive doctrines of the church, and disavow allegiance to all such derogatory and subversive ecclesiastical mandates, and declare our intention to administer the government of the church as in the days of the apostles and our faithful brotherhood

"We thus renounce mandatory legislation, creeds, and everything that may be construed to holding anything as essential to salvation, except the gospel of Christ (Rom. 1:16), and thus declare ourselves as being the only true conservators and perpetuators of the brotherhood and its original doctrines and principles, and are, therefore, the original and true church

"The members in all our churches who accept the gospel of Christ as the only law in religion, shall be entitled to representation in our conferences, whenever held."

Then the following year (1883) those who held to this "Declaration of Principles" met in a national conference at Dayton, Ohio, on the morning of June 6, and formally organized the Brethren Church, adopting as its only creed, "The Bible, the whole Bible, and nothing but the Bible." The whole movement was a rousing protest against the ecclesiastical domination of the Annual Meeting and a reaffirmation of the absolute sovereignty of each local congregation.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Pray for the newly organized Sisterhoods all over the land, and pray that an SMM will be started in each of our churches.

Pray for Myra Joy Conner, national president, who has recently been ill. Pray that she might have strength to carry on her school work and the responsibilities of Sisterhood.

Pray for the SMM's in foreign lands, for they are our sisters in Christ and also need our prayers.

Pray for the young people in colleges preparing for the service of the Lord. Also pray that the Lord will definitely lead the graduating students of high schools into Christian colleges.

VISITING SISTERHOODS

The Johnson City, Tenn., senior SMM gave a mother- and daughter banquet in October. There were 33 present, and all enjoyed a good time.

From Clay City, Ind., SMM comes a different idea. Instead of having only the Sisterhood girls bring a toy to give to children who would not have a Christmas, the girls decided to ask all the church members to bring a toy. This increased the amount of toys greatly.

The senior group in Rittman, Ohio, has been doing some interesting things. "Secret Sisters" have added to the yearly program, in which the girls are remembered by their secret sister on birthdays, holidays, etc. All took part in a Sunday-evening opening service, at which all goals were given, awards were shown, and the theme song was sung. The preacher then gave an interesting message on "Footprints of Jesus." This group was host to a district youth rally recently.

Again we would like to encourage you local groups to send a news item to the general secretary. Make it an interesting one, something a bit different. You may have sent in an item in the past which was not printed in the Herald SMM pages. The reason for that is that we choose only those items of greatest interest for publication. Let's get busy and have different meetings that you can write about.

regular November meeting, with the Philadelphia Third ladies entertaining.

The Harrah, Wash., council has been busy for the Lord. One of their projects was the canning of 115 quarts of tomatoes for the Front Street Mission of Yakima.

The ladies of Martinsburg, W. Va., brought cheer to the children of the Navaho Mission by sending an electric mixer, 30 wool-lined quilts, and nine dressed dolls to the school.

The Jr. WMC of Rittman, Ohio, sent 30 Little Golden Books to the Navaho Mission recently.

The women of the Taos, N. Mex., WMC have been busy making quilts, aprons, and baby clothes. One of their fall social events was a Halloween party with the Sisterhood girls.

The following news item from the Jr. WMC of Washington, D. C., is reported in full as a possible suggestion to other councils: "In May we sponsored a 'Family Week' at the church. We did this to help meet our national objective of 'a family altar in every home.' On Sunday we sat together in families. The pastor's sermon was on the 'Christian Family.' The Jr. WMC purchased booklets on 'Family Bible Reading' and tracts on family worship. We gave these to every family in the church. Our Sunday-evening Coffee Hour discussion was on 'Family Altar Problems and Questions.' In the evening service the film 'The Bible on the Table' was shown; also several skits of typical family-altar situations were put on by families of our congregation.

"Tuesday night was 'Visitation Night.' Each family was urged to invite into their homes another family of the church whom they had never entertained. Wednesday night was 'Family Night at Prayer Meeting.' Friday night we joined the Sr. WMC for our Mother-Daughter Banquet. This was served by the men's fellowship. Our theme for the banquet was our mission in Taos, N. Mex. Our ladies prepared a most delicious Spanish dinner from recipes graciously sent to us by Beth Horney. Brother Horney also sent us many lovely decorations for our tables. They sent us some pinto and horse nuts which we served in miniature straw sombreros. Our speaker was a lady with a remarkable doll collection. She brought many Latin-American dolls and spoke briefly on the customs of the countries from which each doll came. We had a very interesting program prepared by the Sr. WMC which included colored slides of the work in New Mexico.

"We believe 'Family Week' was very profitable and many new family altars were established. We plan to sponsor a similar week every year."

These two very worthwhile activities were gleaned from a report from North English, Iowa. The ladies draw names of missionaries and are responsible for sending birthday greetings to them. One highlight of their Mother's Day program was having each woman present tell something interesting about her own mother.

Let's get busy on the National Project for the dispensary and microscope for Africa. Time is marching on! There are only a few more months left. Let's go over our goal of $1,800.

ROANOKE, VA. The Clearbrook Brethren Church, William E. Howard pastor, has voted to remodel the interior of the church auditorium. Dr. Bernard Schneider, of the Grace Brethren Church, Mansfield, Ohio, is holding revival meetings through March 18. Both Mr. and Mrs. Howard were saved under the ministry of Dr. Schneider while he pastored the First Brethren Church at Washington, D. C.

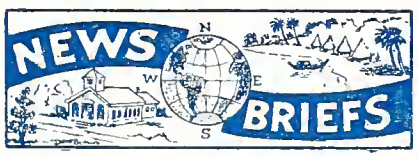
KITTANNING, PA. Prayer is requested for the continued recovery of Donald W. Rossman, pastor of the North Buffalo Brethren Church. He has been suffering from virus pneumonia.

PORTLAND, OREG. Rev. Vernon Harris was the master of ceremonies at the Wheaton alumni Washington banquet Friday, Feb. 18, at Western Baptist Seminary.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Rev. and Mrs. James Dixon opened the parsonage to the young adults at a "Coffee Hour Pounding" party on Monday, Feb. 21, which was unique in that each one was requested to bring a "pound" of something for the refreshments.

PARKERSBURG, W. VA. Members of the Grace Brethren Church, Lester Smitley pastor, have purchased lots for a church building. The Brethren Construction Company will begin building as soon as they are finished with the Wheaton, Ill., church. This project is jointly under the direction of the Brethren Home Missions Council and the East District Mission Board.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. The members of the Brethren church recently surprised their pastor, Robert Crees, with two tires and tubes and money for a briefcase. Mrs. Crees was given a surprise birthday party and presented with many lovely gifts as well.



JOHNSTOWN, PA. At the business meeting Feb. 16 a recommendation was adopted to employ an assistant to the pastor. A committee was appointed to recommend a suitable choice as a candidate for this office. Dr. W. A. Ogden is pastor.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. William Male, a senior at Grace Seminary, has accepted the unanimous call to be the pastor of the First Brethren Church.

BEAUMONT, CALIF. The Riverside County Christian Endeavor Convention was held at the Cherry Valley Brethren Church, of which Gene Farrell is the pastor, Feb. 25-27.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. The Bible Institute of Los Angeles, which has been housed at the Church of the Open Door since its founding in 1908, plans to move to a new 50-acre campus site near La Mirada, Calif., in the near future.

TEMPLE CITY, CALIF. On Feb. 28 the Temple City Brethren Church completed one year of ministry in their new building. John Aeby is pastor.

BELLFLOWER, CALIF. Nine churches: Paramount, South Gate, Compton, North Long Beach, Seal Beach, Stearns Street, Norwalk, Artesia, participated in the teacher-training course held at the First Brethren Church under the instruction of the National Sunday school director, Harold Etling the week of Feb. 21. Much blessing was reported. Curtis Mitchell is the pastor.

PORTLAND, OREG. Two special sessions of the Northwest Fellowship of Brethren Churches will be held here during the week of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. The exact dates will be announced later.

PARAMOUNT, CALIF. The new high-school building of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, is at the "plaster-stucco" stage. This dual-purpose building is used by the Brethren High School and also by the Paramount Brethren Church, of which John Mayes is pastor. The building has an auditorium seating 570, and a cafeteria that can care for 150. There are 6 classrooms, each with a capacity of 45. The First Brethren Church of Long Beach now has a total of 243 children enrolled in the grade school and 267 in the high school. The annual operating budget of these schools is $100,000, and the property is valued at one-quarter of a million dollars. Dr. C. W. Mayes is pastor.

CHEYENNE, WYO. The Grace Brethren Church has purchased new lots at the corner of Forest and Walnut Drives. The property borders U. S. 30 opposite radio station KFBC-TV. The present property is to be sold and the new building started this summer. The average attendance during 1953 was 26, and the average attendance during January 1955 was 57, with record attendance on Feb. 6 of 81. Russell Williams is pastor. Nine teachers of the Bible school were awarded teacher's certificates by the National Sunday School Board.

CHICO, CALIF. Dr. John B. Graber, pastor of the Immanuel Mennonite Church, Downey, Calif., and instructor of English Bible at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, was special speaker at the home-mission workshop conducted here Feb. 15-17 under the leadership of Dr. L. L. Grubb. Other speakers were Dr. Charles Mayes, John Aeby, Harold Etling, Lester Pifer, and Arnold Kriegbaum. Philip J. Simmons was host pastor.

SPECIAL. Order your vacation Bible school material immediately through the Brethren Missionary Herald. You are urged to order early.

PORTLAND, OREG. The Northwest District young people's camp will be held in conjunction with Camp Bethany, held simultaneously with our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches convening here Aug. 10-17.

TEMPLE CITY, CALIF. The new address of John M. Aeby is 5729 N. Cloverly Ave. and the phone is Atlantic 6-9473. Please change Annual.

TAOS, N. MEX. The Department of Public Welfare of the State of New Mexico has released through the Taos newspaper El Crepusculo the information that 10,000 people of Taos County are dependent upon state welfare. Missionary Sam Horney states that the clothing sent in by the WMC is meeting a real need. Such clothing should be sent by parcel post to Brethren Spanish-American Mission, care of Sam Horney, Taos, N. Mex.

Calling All Laymen

"To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven" (Eccl. 3:1).

"And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed" (Rom. 13:11).

We find that God has much to say concerning time in His Word. Surely we will agree that time is of utmost importance to man in his service for the Lord.

The Apostle Paul speaks of the Christian buying up the opportunities for the Lord which certainly refers to using our time wisely. We feel that God has been most wonderful to our Brethren laymen in giving us so many opportunities to serve Him in so many different fields. We believe that laymen throughout the Brotherhood are receiving the vision and responding to the call of service.

In 1954 the records show that it was the greatest year of activity among our Brethren laymen. However, it seems that our fire or enthusiasm has almost suddenly subsided. Men, Brethren laymen, maybe you can answer why?

Great things were planned at the 1954 conference. We see that our year is half spent and we have hardly scratched the surface. Our 1955 national conference is only six months away—so if we plan to make this year equally great for God, we must do as the Apostle Paul said, "Awake out of sleep."

One of the most important steps taken at the 1954 conference to help reach our greatly increased national projects was this: every layman in every Brethren church to give ten cents (or more!) per month for each member of his family. Special envelopes have been printed and distributed throughout the churches for this method of getting in the offerings. Each layman should have an envelope for each month in which to place his offering for the national projects, 1955.

The Regularity Need in Our Giving

By Our Secretary, Don A. Spangler, from Wheaton, Ill.

". . . behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest" (John 4:35).

"And he gave some [to be], apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers" (Eph. 4:11).

One of the goals the laymen set at conference last year was to win souls for Christ. There are several methods that could be discussed for doing this, but there is one that we have been lax in. We accepted as one of our projects the support of one of the teams sent out by the Evangelistic Crusade, which is $12,000. The year is two-thirds gone and we have only made a start.

The verse at the top says some are given to be evangelists. Romans 10: 14-15 says: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent?"

At conference the laymen discussed giving 10c per member of the family per month. That would amount to 50c a month for a family with three children. This is a very small amount and one could easily give more, but this amount would cover our needs. It is not that we don't have it; God has blessed us out of His abundance, and will give us even greater blessings as we put them to use for Him. I feel our problem is one of habit, and getting into the habit of channeling some of our giving through our local laymen's fellowships into the national fellowship so we can fulfill our projects.

At this writing it is too early to know the response given to Laymen's Sunday. But having a huge offering once a year is like having a deluge of rain once a year and none the rest of the time. It is the continual consistent giving of smaller amounts all year long that counts the most. Just like in the days before Noah, the ground was watered by the mists.

Brethren laymen also unanimously decided to faithfully support the Brethren Evangelistic Crusades under the Board of Evangelism. If they ever needed our support, it is now! God surely had His purpose in calling these teams into the Brethren field. So we must urge every Brethren layman to pray and give that these teams may continue in this wonderful work of winning souls to Jesus Christ.

What have you and the laymen of your church done? It is not too late to do it. Send all Brethren laymen offerings to Walter Hoyt, treasurer, 409 Leland Ave., Dayton 7, Ohio. Thank you!

In His service,
Mason Cooper, president,
National Brethren Laymen.

A NEW MEN'S GROUP

Our treasurer, Walter Hoyt, and Bro. Herbert Edwards, both of Dayton, Ohio, helped organize the men at Bethany Church. Emory Bailey, 968 Cleverly, Dayton 7, Ohio, is president; James Combs, vice president; Joe Swallow, secretary; and Charles Bowers, treasurer.

THE MAIL BAG IS EMPTY

From the mail your editor receives, he can only conclude that the local and district matters take up so much time that only a handful have time to write about all the activity. Can we hear from some of you out west?

INTO THE REGIONS BEYOND!

These are the months set aside in the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches for gathering together the funds that will be used to keep our present missionary staff in the foreign field, and also provide for sending additional missionaries to do even a greater work in the places God has given us to work.

Every Sunday school ought to have a share in the great foreign-mission offering. Every Sunday-school class ought to stress this matter of the foreign-mission offering in the class. Offering goals ought to be established for each Brethren Sunday-school class. Every member of every school from the nursery department through to the home department ought to count it a real privilege to give in this year 1955 the greatest offering we have ever given. Remember, we too have a share in the great "One for One" program. The Foreign Missionary Society can only send missionaries to the field as we give of our material gifts to support them there.

But even as I write I am convinced more than ever before that the great home- and foreign-mission programs of our church need not only our gifts, but they need our prayers and testimony. Such phrases from the Bible as "all the world," "every creature," "everyone that thirsteth," and many similar phrases remind me that God is concerned not only with the heathen in Africa, China, South America, and the islands of the sea, but God is concerned with the heathen of New York, Los Angeles, and every hamlet, village, and city of this great nation.

When I hear missionaries speak on the subject, "Into the Regions Beyond," I am compelled to ask the question, "Where does the beyond begin?" It is "all the world." As we begin to take seriously the matter of "reaching all we can" through our Brethren Sunday schools, we will begin to do an even greater work in the "beyonds" of the foreign-mission program.

Let us be very practical about it in this foreign-mission season. Let us give to the utmost of our ability. But remember while we give, that if we would each one win one, there would be twice as many to help us give twice as much as we are now able to do. If we would each one win one, there would be twice as many to whom our Lord could speak about the matter of "going with the Gospel."

Brethren, we need more money to support our great missionary program, and it will be available if and when we take seriously what God has commanded us when He said, "Go ye" into all the world. We need more missionaries, and they will be available when we take seriously our part of the program of winning men to Christ. God is interested in men everywhere. The regions beyond include the great mission field of your city. We cannot win men to Christ, nor can we teach them about Christ until we go out to touch our cities for Christ. Our God is interested in the quality of Christians, but He is also interested in the quantity. Growth within the Brethren Church and Sunday schools is a must. Enlargement should occupy an important place in our program if we are to be well pleasing to our Lord.

WITH YOUR SUNDAY-SCHOOL DIRECTOR

These last few weeks have been busy ones in Sunday-school work across the nation. We have had the privilege of ministering to the students of the junior class of the seminary in four hours of classroom work dealing with the Sunday schools. We have met with the Sunday-school staff of our schools in Goshen, Ind.; South Bend, Ind.; Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mansfield, Ohio (Second); and Osceola, Ind., in planning conferences and workshops. Now we are engaged in workshops in our churches of southern California. A full report will have to await another issue of the Herald, but again we invite and urge you to pray with us and for us as together we attempt to reach our goal of 60,000 by 1960.

Christ's Great Words to the Church

By REV. R. PAUL MILLER

Moderator, National Fellowship of Brethren Churches

There are two passages of Scripture that give me a sinking feeling in my heart every time I read them. The first is found in Revelation 22: 12: "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." The other passage is found in Romans 13:12: "The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armour of light."

"Behold, I come quickly." "As the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be" (Matt. 24:27). No matter how long delayed, when He comes, it will be "as the lightning." Better a thousand times to be silent in your grave than to be caught living carelessly at His coming. When our Lord comes, He will judge every man "according as his work shall be." Reward for work—not as we describe it, not as the family estimates it, but as Christ values it. Payday, brother! Payday, preacher!

Estimate Will Change

Until that hour many things will have looked pretty good through our eyes. But then, how quickly and radically our estimate of things will change. Then we may realize that some sermons should never have been preached; some board meetings should never have been held; some letters should never have been written; some indulgences in self-pity that have led to wasted days and years and coddling of the flesh won't seem so justified; some so-called good deeds won't look so good when He values them.

That hour shall come as "lightning." No last-minute preparations for anybody. No warnings. No hints. But "in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." Since the night is "far spent," it is time to put off the unfruitful works of darkness, and put on the armor of light. How great a part of these lives of ours as servants of God are "unfruitful" in His sight! It is time that sort of thing be "cast away" and our lives really lived in the light of the "lightning" of His imminent return.

No Time to Waste

This is prophecy's hour. Many messages that I used to preach on prophecy I cannot preach any more. They are not prophecy now. They are fact. The idea of planning for a long tomorrow on this earth falls with strange sound on Bible-believing ears. The waiting days are about over. The time to serve the living and the true God and to wait for His Son from heaven has come and nearly gone. The sun of time is setting. Man has reached the sunset of his time on the earth. The church has had her hour for foreign missions and largely lost it. For centuries God gave the church the chance to reach China and Korea for Christ and she merely played with it. The church was busy amusing and coddling herself with luxuries. She refused to send her sons out to preach the Gospel, and then she had to send thousands of them out to Korea to die.

Now America is faced with a China dominated by God-hating, Christ-hating communism that has driven out every true missionary of the Gospel and slammed the door tight-shut. God kept those doors open to us for centuries. The Chinese were eager listeners. That day is over. The same dread threat faces Christian forces in Africa. As communism swept through China in a few years, it appears as though the same may occur in Africa. Opportunity is slipping from us in missions. Mission doors are closing. No one knows it better than our missionaries themselves.

An Hour of Crisis

This is no time to indulge ourselves in flesh or fortune. It is an hour of disaster for hundreds of millions with atomic obliteration hanging over their heads. "Business as usual" for Christians will surely lead to judgment. What a sad sight to see church members piling up wealth that will be turned over to Antichrist, when it should have helped to save lost men. This is a time to pray as men on a crumbling precipice, as men on a sinking ship. It is said of Nero, that while Rome was on fire, he sat on the roof of his palace fiddling away like an idiot. But how many church members and church organizations are playing with trifles while the world is on fire now! Today, our statesmen are alarmed, the press is alarmed, military men are alarmed, but the majority of the churches are asleep.

Start a Revival

Don't wait for others to start a revival. Start one yourself. If Elijah had waited for the 7,000 to get behind him, there would have been no salvation in Israel. If Martin Luther had waited for a lot of sympathizers among the priests of Rome, there would have been no Reformation. If John Wesley had waited for men of his day to support him, the great revival of the 18th century would never have been born. Every great movement of history to God's glory is the history of one man, and God! Brother, why don't you resolve to be that man? Don't fear criticism or sneers. It is the man on fire for God that gets all the cold water poured on him!

In the midst of this collapsing world, God is sending revival. It is a pity that so often God has to step outside the church and use men like Luther, Wesley, Moody, and others in order to reach lost men. God pity the preacher (or congregation) who is so cold, cowardly, or self-satisfied as to be content to just go on "holding services" instead of raising the battle cry and seeking the lost for the last harvest!

What shall we do; stand aside and criticize those who are in the arena covered with sweat and blood and tears, fighting to the last to save one more? Shall we whimper, "What is the use, the world is too far gone"? Or shall we rise up to the vision, claim the power of God, and strike out like John the Baptist, Paul the Apostle, or Peter, and give all?

ADVENTURE

A STRANGE COUNTRY

By Ruth Samarin

Toto lay in the dark hut on her mat. Everyone around her was breathing the loud breath of sleep, but her eyes would not close. She turned on the mat to find a better position for her sore arm.

For a week the lump on her arm had swollen until now it was very large and hot with much fire. Her father had offered to call the village witch doctor and pay him two fat hens to heal her arm. Toto knew her father was being kind, but she told him it would do no good.

Toto was just a little girl, but she knew that witch doctors asked much money and were able to do nothing. Toto was a Christian, and she knew the witch doctor hated Jesus. She did not want to call him, and her father did not insist. He would like to keep his chickens; besides, Toto didn't look like she was going to die.

When morning came, Toto went slowly down the path to the mission school. Her head throbbed like many drums, but still she did not want to miss class. The lady missionary came from the house on the hill and walked along the path with Toto.

"Toto," she said, "my husband and I have been worrying about your arm. Tomorrow we must go north to another mission station. We will stay there four days. There is a nurse there. If your father will give his permission, we will take you to the nurse. She will give you medicine for your arm. But you are too sick for class today. Go home and see what your father says."

When Toto heard the words of the missionary, she almost forgot the drums in her head. She turned and ran down the path to her own house. In her heart she prayed: "Oh, Jesus, soften my father's liver so that I can go with the missionaries."

Toto found her father in the doorway of their house weaving new rope for his hunting net. Toto told him the words of the missionary. Then she stood very still waiting to see what he would say.

"You may go," he said with a smile. Toto was so pleased she jumped up and down 'til the pain in her arm bit at her and the drums beat in her head again. Then she quietly sat down beside her father to wait for tomorrow.

The next day she sat with the missionaries in the cab of the big red truck. She laid her swollen arm in her lap and looked out the window as they drove mile after mile.

Toto's head began to nod 'til finally she fell asleep against the nice shiny cushion of the truck. She woke with a start as the truck stopped. Out of the window she saw a village, but it was not like her village. Her village was surrounded by palm trees and giant mahogany trees. There were no trees in this village. Everywhere was grass and scrubby bushes. The missionary saw the surprised look on the little girl's face and said: "We've come a long way, but there are Christians here. You need not feel strange."

The missionary then led Toto to a big round house. "How strange," thought Toto, "my house is square." The missionary introduced Toto to the pastor's wife and explained to her that she would stay with this family until they were ready to return home. The pastor's wife smiled a friendly smile at her and said there was always room for another little daughter.

Just then a boy stuck his head out of the round house. He looked at Toto curiously and said, "My name is Foli, and who are you?" Toto told him her name and showed him her sick arm.

"You talk funny," Foli said.

"My village is very far from here," explained the little girl.

"It's time to go to the dispensary," interrupted the pastor's wife. Toto and Foli and the pastor's wife walked down the path to the house of medicine.

Toto saw a large group of people gathered near a long brick building. On the porch of this building she saw a lady in a white dress. This lady had hair as white as her dress and her face looked very kind.

The kind lady put Toto's name on a card; then she told Toto to sit on the grass with her new friends. All the people began to sing a Jesus song, and then a man began to talk to the group about the "affair of God."

"That's my father," whispered Foli.

When Foli's father had finished preaching, the kind lady began to call them to the porch. When Toto's name was called, she bravely walked up on the porch and showed the kind lady her arm. The kind lady and a black nurse cleaned out the sore and wrapped it in a clean white bandage. Then the kind lady told her that the sore was very bad and the sickness had gone to other parts of her body, so she wanted to give Toto an injection.

Toto was very pleased with this, for she had always heard that the needle medicine was very powerful.

When Toto was through at the dispensary, she walked back to the round house where she was staying. She sat by Foli's mother while she pounded grain in a wooden bowl. The flat grasslands didn't seem strange to her eyes any more. Foli's mother smiled over her shoulder at Toto, and Toto's liver was content. She was with Christians, and so she was not afraid.

HALF A FUNERAL

He bounced in the door with a bravado Mother knew was meant as a cover-up. The seven-year-old was quite late getting home from school. He stood windblown and a little nervous, with a lovely, half-blown rose clutched in a grimy fist.

"Where have you been, Paul Kent? You are very late today."

"I—— well—— I was——"

The lad shifted his weight from one foot to the other as he tried to think of a plausible reason for his tardiness. "I pla—— oh, I've been to half a funeral," he ended in brilliant triumph.

"A WHAT?" Mother exclaimed as though unable to believe her ears. With a large family a mother is likely to hear nearly any and every excuse conjured up under the sun, and this mother thought she had—until now. This took the cake.

"I've been to half a funeral. This flower is for you. I got it from the man at the funeral."

"Young man, have you been in that cemetery you pass coming home from school? You know there are rules that no children are to enter the cemetery."

"Uh huh; I know. But on my way home I stopped to see a man working at a grave near the entrance gate. I talked to him and he talked to me and gave me the rose. I didn't touch anything; honest."

"Is that the only reason you are late?"

"Yes; well, I guess so. I stayed after school a little while to help the teacher."

"Now Kent, Mother knows that is not the truth. You had to stay after school to catch up on some reading since you haven't been giving enough attention to it during the class sessions."

"H-how do you know?" a wide-eyed, flabbergasted youngster asked.

"Never mind. I just know. You didn't tell Mother the whole truth about being late, did you, Honey?"

"No ma'am. But I did talk to the man in the cemetery."

"But when you don't tell the full truth what are you doing?"

"Telling a lie, I guess."

"Does a boy who belongs to Jesus lie?"

"No, Mama; he shouldn't. But take care of that rose. I brang it to you."

"You brought it, Kent. You and I will have a little talk later. I must get supper on the table now so you children can eat before the Sisterhood girls get here."

"Are they gonna eat their supper here?"

"Yes. Nancy and Patty are already here. Did you say hello?"

Later that evening when Mother had opportunity to talk to a very precious boy about his sin of a half-truth, they had a sweet time of prayer and fellowship as the lad asked his heavenly Father to forgive. There is nothing sweeter in all this world than the experience of dealing with an erring child on the basis of "thus saith the Lord," and "are we pleasing Him in what we do and say?"

Daddy heard the story late that night when all the flock was sleeping. He and Mother had a delicious chuckle over the "half-funeral" of Kent's story. They fell to musing over the spiritual half-funerals of all too many professing believers. Little did their lad know how well his story applied to adult believers who should have attended a first-class "funeral" months and years ago for that "old man" about which the Bible speaks so plainly.

Local congregations are full of Christians who are only half dead, and those partly dead "corpses" cause endless trouble. The sin of gossip and evil, unfounded reports tears down the testimony of Christ in appalling measure. How we need to remind ourselves of I Corinthians 6:10, where we are told: "Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God."

Many a church member who has never stolen a dime in his lifetime is a first-class thief when it comes to robbing his fellow believers of character by way of gossip and false reports. Revilers there are who pray some stirring prayers; then with the same tongue proceed to speak bitterly and reproachfully of brothers in the Lord. "Out of the same mouth proceed blessings and cursings" (Jas. 3:10).

The sin of applying the sermon to others in the congregation rather than to self is a sign of the need of some full funerals. How we need to "number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom" (Ps. 90:12).

The sin of doing no work for the Lord in the local congregation; then complaining that "we never have a chance to do anything" has limited the testimony of God's servants in many places.

God give us the grace and honesty of soul to get a true picture of self enough to admit: "Lord, I've been to a half-funeral. Dear Lord, make it a full funeral so that I will reckon myself to be dead unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ my Lord" (Rom. 6:11).

Dear Father, give us some first-class funerals in thy church, and begin with me!

MEETING AT KITTANNING, PA.

Ample preparation had been made for the revival and soul-winning effort at the First Brethren Church, Kittanning, Pa. The membership was united in the task. The cooperation was inspiring. Hospitality was unexcelled anywhere. Bill Schaffer, Jr., assisted Crusade Pianist Jim Martin by playing the organ. This added greatly to the music.

The Lord was present in power. Many important decisions were made during the meetings. We give all praise to our Lord.

A wonderful church! A united people. An earnest and capable pastor. The Lord greatly blessed.

We are grateful to the Lord for His love; to Rev. William Schaffer and the Kittanning church for all the love and kindness shown to Crusade Team Two.—Archie Lynn, evangelist, Crusade Team Two.

A World in Distress

Never in all history have world conditions been more distressing than today!

Uncertainty is the prevailing problem. Men in every nation momentarily expect to arise to a new day and find the world plunged into a major conflict. With such weapons of destruction as atom and hydrogen bombs in the hands of the major nations, a few hours could easily seal the fate of almost any nation on earth. Rulers arise and are deposed. Russia is changing national boundary lines constantly by her cold-war methods. Materially and physically the world is in a sad state.

Still worse is the spiritual uncertainty of men in all nations today. Religions, of the type practiced in most sections of our world, is indeed the opiate of the people. Deadening the consciousness of sin and proposing only human solutions, it leaves the human soul in a worse plight than ever. As a result, millions are plunging into eternal spiritual darkness annually. They are without Christ and lost forever, with no further opportunity for salvation.

Jesus talked about the harvest being plenteous in His day. When applied to the modern world, this early statement would be greatly intensified. The harvest is white. In fact, it has been white and has already gone to seed and decayed in many instances because of the failure of God's children. Their vision has been limited too often to the confines of their "own back yard." Millions lost and dying in their sins seem not to greatly concern them. This is certainly a failure to read and obey the Word of God. Necessarily then the blessing of God must be limited among those who so fail in missionary vision.

Now is the time for Brethren people to prove that they have a missionary vision. The Easter season is the special time when we pray earnestly and give liberally to send missionaries to earth's dying millions. This year should see a large increase in the foreign-mission offering for the expansion of our borders abroad.

Not many denominations these days can guarantee that each missionary on the field is a true, Bible-believing, loyal witness for Christ. People who support Brethren foreign missions need not have a care or worry. They know that their dollars will preach the full Gospel of Christ.

What About the Home-Mission Offering This Year?

We can now answer this question with a reasonable degree of accuracy. Since many of our offerings come in up to the end of February, a fair count is impossible before that time.

The Brethren home-mission Thanksgiving offering is 5 percent to 8 percent less than last year. The Home Missions Council asked our churches to endeavor to increase our offering this year at least 28 percent and we based our budget on such an increase. However, with a plus-5-percent decrease overall, we are one-third under the amount to meet that budget. This means a drastic curtailment of the budget. Building appropriations must be cut. Unless expansion is made possible by additional gifts coming in throughout the balance of the year, very little will be possible.

Regardless of the reasons underlying a decrease in the home-mission offering, the tragic, far-reaching results are soon apparent. These results reach inevitably into each other department of our church endeavor. Foreign missions, the seminary, our publication interests, and all other agencies are directly affected. Failure to expand the basic group of churches means ultimate failure in expanding the outreach of the church's testimony.

In a day when the true church of Jesus Christ has available unprecedented opportunities for expansion at home and around the world, a decreased missionary offering provides a strong impetus for earnest prayer and heart-searching.

There is one certainty. The Brethren Home Missions Council can expand the Brethren testimony only so far as Brethren churches makes this possible each year by their prayers and material gifts.

A full, detailed report by churches and districts will appear in the April Home Mission number of the Herald.

Desert Blossoming as a Rose

The river Yarkon in Israel is helping to fulfill divine prophecy in making the desert of the Negev to blossom like a rose.

We are told that in a very short time a valve will be opened which will solve the irrigation problems that have beset the farmers who work the 75,000 acres of fertile but arid land in the southern area of Israel. An estimated 275,000 cubic meters of water will be carried southward each day via a giant 66-inch reinforced concrete pipe spanning 63 miles and capable of carrying half the Yarkon's waters, or 100,000,000 cubic meters a year.

Huge cranes are now busy laying the 10-ton sections of this pipe about 200 yards per day. More than 2,000 men are employed on this project, working in two shifts installing pumping stations beneath the ground which will be entirely invisible when completed.

Actually this vast and almost imaginary project will yet be dwarfed when the planned 108-inch pipeline will transfer the rushing waters of the Jordan into the Beersheba area to provide fertile farmland for the thousands of families now moving into that section.

How marvelous and significant are these movements by the Israeli government when reviewed in the light of God's Word. The very river in which Christ was baptized now provides the waters to fulfill His Word.

BY RALPH J. COLBURN

Pastor, Fort Lauderdale, Florida

Top: North Lauderdale Improvement Association Building, used for the Sunday services. Bottom: The initial meeting with the Colburns on January 9, 1955, with 29 present.

Greetings from the Venice of America, in the Sunshine State!

That's what they often call Fort Lauderdale, and there are plenty of waterways through the city, and there is lots of sunshine in the land. But what a tragedy that so few really know the sunshine of God's love, revealed in Jesus Christ! Real gospel testimonies are few in this growing city, and if we get going with our building soon, we'll be the first church of any kind in a great new section in the northwest part of town! (Two other churches, at least, are dickering for property and hoping to get established in the same general area.)

After two months of operation we feel it's time for a report to you on what the Lord has done thus far. His leading, guidance, and blessing have been so evident every step of the way!

We arrived in Fort Lauderdale on Friday evening, January 7, and had a service that night with the nucleus of folk here. They had just lined up a place to hold Sunday services, a little community building in a park, less than a mile from our church property, and on January 9, with no advertising whatever, we held our first regular Sunday services. We had 29 in Sunday school, 29 in church, and 26 in the evening church service. Our total offerings for the day were over $166!

Our first three Sundays saw growth in every service, and we hit a peak of 50 in Sunday school, 51 in church, and 35 in the evening, our third Sunday of existence. Then cold weather (yes; they have some, even in Florida!) when everyone had to bring his own heater to church, and sickness took its toll for a couple of weeks. However, on February 20 we set new records of 55 in Sunday school and morning service, and tied our record of 35 in the evening, and had a record offering of over $241! Then on February 27 we went even higher in Sunday school and church, with 57 and 61 respectively!

When we came, there were six families here interested in the church, only three of whom had Brethren background. Now we have at least 20 families who have attended and are excellent prospects for either seasonal or permanent participation in our total church program. I've done just enough canvassing in the neighborhood so far to know that the potential there is tremendous. If you are interested in statistics, our average attendance for the first eight weeks of operation is: Sunday school 45, a. m. 47, p. m. 30, prayer meeting 16, weekly offerings $175. That last figure seems nothing short of tremendous, and indicates two or three things: our regulars are all tithers or better, and our visitors from the North are generous! Virtually every Sunday we've had visitors from some of our northern churches—folks who were just passing through the area. We've had them from Waterloo and Garwin, Iowa; from Dayton, Englewood, Mansfield, and Canton, Ohio; and from Altoona and

PROPOSED CHURCH SITE

Grace Brethren Church
NW. 9th Ave. & 19th St.
Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

York, Pa. Believe me, we love to see them! Why don't you come and see us sometime?

We have yet to see our first public decision for Christ, but we have some very interested families attending, and we know that the Lord will honor His Word. Five adults were baptized at our first baptismal service a couple of weeks ago, and we expect to begin our charter membership very soon—possibly by the time you read this. We've set up a splendid constitution with high standards for membership and church officers. Our building committee is busy at work with a local architect on plans for our church. We do need that building soon! Pray with us that we may get started on the actual construction within a month or two, will you?

Concerning ourselves, we love it here and are very happy in the work. The Lord led us to a lovely home, which we're buying, just a couple of blocks from the church lots, in the midst of a fine neighborhood. We have it comfortably furnished, and are enjoying it a lot. We have our midweek services here, for we have the use of our building only on Sundays. Our peak attendance of 24 last week did not crowd our living room, so you know it is good-sized!

I don't believe anyone could have a finer nucleus of folk who really love the Lord, and have high standards and real zeal than we have with which to start a church! We have a number of experienced, willing, and capable Sunday-school teachers in the group. There is a willing workmanship, musical talent, and faithfulness to a high degree throughout this nucleus. We certainly praise God for each family!

We're certainly very grateful for what the young people at Bethany Camp did for us, in providing funds for our first chairs, and for what the boys clubs are doing, in providing for our mimeograph, typewriter, and first songbooks. Believe me, when you are starting from scratch, as we are, you need everything! We are grateful to all of you folks for your prayers, your interest, and your gifts through the Brethren Home Missions Council. Keep it up, will you? May the Lord bless you for it, and enable us together to establish a strong testimony for Him here.

Brethren Construction Company Completing Wheaton Church

The Brethren Construction Company is rapidly completing their work on the new Grace Brethren Church of Wheaton, Ill. The completion date was advanced when a fire damaged the roof portion on January 10, 1955. It was necessary to replace this portion of the building, which loss was covered by insurance, but it did delay the progress.

The new building has not been occupied yet, but will be within a few weeks. A part of the crew will remain to add a number of finishing touches, while another part of the crew moves on to the next place to get some preliminary work out of the way.

The present plans call for the next Brethren-constructed church to be located in Parkersburg, W. Va. A location has been secured in Parkersburg and plans completed for the new church there. Rev. Lester E. Smitley is the pastor of the Parkersburg church.

The five members of the Brethren Construction Company crew, shown above, have now completed three churches. They are the Washington Heights Brethren Church, Roanoke, Va.; the Grace Brethren Church, York, Pa.; and the Grace Brethren Church, Wheaton, Ill. James Knepper and his family from the York, Pa., church, are planning to join the crew in Parkersburg, and this will enable the company to shorten the construction period and build more home-mission churches.

Pointers on Soul-Winning

By LESTER E. PIFER

The ministry of soul-winning is one of vital importance to the cause of Christ. Never before have we Christians faced a more determined world, bent on following the ways of our adversary. It seems in these last hours of this period of grace that the powers of the evil one almost overwhelm us. Crime figures soar to a new high, morality plunges to a new low, interest in true spirituality wanes, and the church seems to flounder, not knowing which way to turn or what to do next.

Evangelical Christians should never forget the commission of our Lord Jesus. There is only one way to reach the lost multitude and that is with the power of Christ to convert the soul. We do well to listen to the words of Proverbs 11:30: "The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise." This is God's prescribed manner of reaching men for Christ.

Our Appointment

In the last hours of Christ's stay on this earth, this appointment was given. "And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (Matt. 28:18-20). Here our Lord gives the commission to go to all nations. In Mark it becomes more specific, "to every creature." Thus our Lord spoke to His disciples and to all of us through the ministry of the infallible Word that this was our task, the winning of precious souls, until such time as He would call us home.

Our Example

While on this earth our Lord became an extreme example in this business of soul-winning. Over and over again we are permitted to look into the life of our Lord dealing with the souls of men and women. The woman at the well, Zacchaeus up in the sycamore tree, and the winning of Andrew, Peter's brother, and many other instances are cases in point. This was His purpose in coming to earth. "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost" (Luke 19:10). Our reaction to this example and commission should be like that of Andrew, who sought out his brother and brought him to Christ (John 1:40-42).

Our Guide

In this ministry of soul-winning the believer enjoys the guiding presence of the Lord Jesus Christ. Note in the latter part of the Great Commission these words: "Lo, I am with you alway." Perhaps fear next to indifference is the greatest hindrance to a soul-winning ministry. Our Lord in giving this commission to His children gives us again the promise of His abiding presence and leadership. No one need fear the skeptic's call, the atheist's mockery, or the difficult missionary task of a foreign field. He, our Saviour and Lord, says: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Our Comforter

Before our Lord departed from this earth, another promise was given. Acts 1:8: "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Our Lord's promise was fulfilled in 10 days from that moment when the Holy Spirit descended on that memorable Day of Pentecost to make His abode on this earth. Each believer as he enters the body of Christ also enjoys the abiding presence of the Holy Spirit in his life. The Holy Spirit has many ministries to perform in the life of the believer, but one of the outstanding is: "Ye shall be witnesses unto me." Here our Lord was reiterating the supreme task left with us, our ministry of witnessing and soul-winning.

So many times the believer is conscious of the Spirit's bidding to talk to this person or to give a witness to that person. Here the Holy Spirit is accomplishing His purpose in the life of the believer. One wonders just how many times the believer with an indifferent or unyielded heart is guilty of grieving the Holy Spirit in not witnessing to the lost soul. Do you lack power? Do you lack joy in soul-winning? You may be guilty of not heeding the ministry of the Spirit of God in your life. Let your life become a witness unto Him as you carry out His commission in your life.

Our Results

Too many times the believer feels that the only real service for Christ is that found in some office in the church or Sunday school. Your writer believes that the greatest task to be done in the service of Christ is that of soul-winning. This far supersedes that of some of our imaginations. Let me give you a verse of Scripture which points to the tremendous results of this ministry. James 5:20: "Let him know, that he which converteth

ELYRIA, OHIO, SECURES SITE FOR NEW CHURCH

Pastor Galen Lingenfelter stands beside a new sign erected on the recently purchased site for the new Grace Brethren Church, Elyria, Ohio. The site is located in Spring Valley, a growing new section of the city. The sign is a facsimile of the one at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The services are now being held in a grange hall, but a building committee is busy working on plans for the new church. They are looking forward to that next big event in a new church's history—groundbreaking. The pastor has been on the field slightly more than a year, and the church has been organized less than a year.

the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins." The soul has infinite value. God gave His own Son to die for the souls of men. No one can accurately describe or know the fullness of the agony, shame, separation, and punishment that the soul will go through when it enters hell. This "death" means eternal separation in the outer darkness in a literal place called "hell." Then, too, remember that your winning of the soul to Christ will mean a life of happiness, practical righteousness, fellowship, and finally glory with our blessed Saviour in heaven. What greater work can be accomplished by our feeble hands in this life? Here is a ministry that produces the greatest and most enduring results of any work known.

Our Reward

Though this last reason is not one that the believer should use as a persuading force to a life of soul-winning, yet it is a part of God's program. In John 4:36 we read: "And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." God is a good paymaster. What He promised will come to pass. Daniel 12:3: "And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars for ever and ever." The writer of Proverbs said, "He that winneth souls is wise." Daniel reminds us that they that be wise and are soul-winners will shine in God's heaven as soul-winners forever and ever. Certainly this should be the portion of every true believer in Christ. Out of the gratitude of our hearts for salvation and its many riches, there should arise a supreme desire for the will of God and to heed the voice of our Lord in the ministry that is so close to His heart. After all, God could have written the witness in the heavens, or sent legions of angels to sing the message, or could have written it in the heart of every child born, but God has so willed that they who have received the eternal joys of salvation shall be those who are "witnesses unto me" in this tremendous task of soul-winning.

GRANVILLE A. TUCKER LICENSED AT FREMONT, OHIO

A special service at the Grace Brethren Church, Fremont, Ohio, was devoted to the licensing of Bro. Granville A. Tucker on Sunday evening, January 30, 1955. An excellent response was shown by 242 attending the service.

Since it had been largely under the ministry of Rev. Lester Pifer that Brother Tucker had been brought into such close touch with the Brethren people, Pastor Gordon W. Bracker invited Rev. Pifer to speak for the occasion. His theme for the message was "God's Call for Service."

Special music was presented by Mrs. Lester Pifer, Louise Ann Beckley, the church orchestra under the direction of James Killgrove, and the youth choir. Mr. Charles Fires presented an object lesson.

Authorization for licensure was read by Mrs. Robert Gahris, secretary of the church. Scripture for the occasion was read by the moderator, Mr. Carl Brooks. Questions and vows were put to Brother Tucker by Pastor Bracker, and the prayer of consecration was made by the following deacons: John Koke, Robert Gahris, Harold Beckley, James Soule, and Doyt Price. Clarence Ash, chairman of the deacon board, was ill. The charge was given by Rev. Pifer. The closing prayer was made by Rev. Granville A. Tucker.

The service marked another step in the leading and blessing of the Lord in establishing a real gospel testimony to the colored people of the city of Fremont. Rev. Tucker has won the love of Christian people in the Fremont church and in the community. He was examined for the gospel ministry by the local church and by the district ministerial examining board. Brethren people from coast to coast have had an interest in this home-mission work. Continue to pray that lots will soon be available for a building site. Meetings are still held in the Tucker residence.

CHICO, CALIF. (Phillip J. Simmons)—

The Lord's blessings have been so many that we hardly know where to begin or how to relate them. Within the year we have had the opportunity to broadcast our morning worship service for two months over KXOC, strongest Mutual station in 11 western states. Our men have a regular ministry in the Butte County jail. Four rest homes have been opened to our choir for two services a month in each. Our boys club has ministered to at least 90 boys, and seen a number of them make decisions for Christ. Our junior worship service is one that would be a joy to any pastor's heart. Several of our folk call regularly. We have seen some real conversions, and our membership has shown substantial growth. The Lord has given us much-needed pews, and enabled the folk to increase their gifts to the building, general, and mission funds. Our Sunday school last Sunday was just exactly twice the average attendance for the month of September, and exceeded our Rally Day attendance by 50. All but 19 of these were in the morning worship service.

May we ask that you will join us in prayer for our evangelistic endeavor under the ministry of Team No. 1 to begin March 22, and for us, as pastor and people, as we represent you in this important western outpost.

JENNERS, PA. (Victor Rogers)—

God has answered prayer in so many ways in the leading and directing of our building program. We thank the Lord for a loan to help complete the church. Much progress is being made, and we are looking forward to the completion of the building by late spring. Our men, along with the pastor, are spending long hours working toward this end. Not only is there progress in physical building, but every service of the church has shown a marked increase over the previous year. We are glad for the increased interest in all the services and look toward greater things ahead for Christ.

Our Sunday school has shown some solid growth in the last few months. The records show an average of 123 for the last quarter of 1954, compared to 105 for the previous quarter. I believe the National Sunday School Contest has done us a lot of good. Pray for wisdom in providing more classes and directing us to teachers.

FINDLAY, OHIO (Forest F. Lance)—

We are rejoicing in the victories which have been coming our way in Findlay, Ohio. We had eight decisions for the Lord, of which five were first-time. We have several new families attending our services. Some are already Christians, but others are unsaved. We began the month of March with family night on March 1, and we will finish it with a week of meetings by the Emmons Musicians of Winona Lake. Our theme is, "Marching Forward Together in March."

DAYTON, OHIO (C. S. Zimmerman)—

Praise the Lord! Our Bible school has exceeded 100 for the last three Sundays. Our home department is also growing and we are now reaching 16 people through it. A new adult class has been started and a gain has been seen in the giving of our people. Ten new members have been added to the church.

BRETHREN NAVAHO MISSION (Evan Adams)—

Joan and I went to Taos on Monday evening to make some plans for our district conference. While we were gone, the women at the mission had some excitement. A drunk couple had been in a fight and the man kicked his wife in the head. They came to Lee Trujillo's hogan for help as the woman was badly hurt and had lost much blood. The state patrolman came and arrested the man while the folk at the trading post took the lady to the hospital. Grace Trujillo took the baby from the drunk man for fear he might kill it. Yesterday Alvin Huerta, the state trooper, stopped in to see me and he said he wished the mission would get a transmitter and receiver. He said he could get permission to use the state police frequency and it could be used for emergency calls to state headquarters in Santa Fe. If you know of any possible way to get hold of an old aircraft transmitter, we could install it here to real advantage.

MINUTE-MEN!

Have you shared in the blessings of "News From the Newest"? We have had a fine response to the Fort Lauderdale appeal and already over $2,000 has been received, with letters still coming in. We feel a number of you have not returned your letter yet but will certainly want to after reading Brother Colburn's report on the work for the first two months. Of course, you have missed a blessing by not getting your letter in early, but there is still a big opportunity for many more. Read about the blessings received by some who were the first to send in their gifts.

Minburn, Iowa—Received your Minute-Man letter today and, although I have been giving regularly, it was never such a joy as giving this one for Fort Lauderdale. We spent some time in Florida and I longed for a Brethren church there. Once the need is realized, I'm sure we'll have more Brethren churches in Florida. May God bless the work and use my tiny offering in a mighty big way.—Mrs. L. W.

Waterloo, Iowa—I am so thankful God allowed me the privilege of being a Minute-Man for Him. I am sorry for being so slow in sending in my small contribution, but I was called out of town due to the death of my brother. How I wish this dollar might be one hundred, but I pray many will be ready to send in their little gifts for His work.—Mrs. P. L.

Canton, Ohio—Enclosed find one dollar for the new church at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. May many of the Brethren see this need and send their dollars right along.—Mrs. J. L. C.

La Verne, Calif.—I am very happy to help start one more new church and glad to be one of the Minute-Men. I truly send this in Jesus' name and know He will increase it. God bless Fort Lauderdale and Rev. and Mrs. Ralph Colburn.—Mrs. M. F.

ISRAEL CALLS!

A LOST SHEEP OF THE HOUSE OF ISRAEL

By Leanore Button

For five years we have been calling in certain districts, giving out literature and talking to people. For five years the same people answer the doorbells and accept the same literature with the same disinterested expressions. And each time our hearts beat a little harder as we think: Will this be the time this particular person responds to the message of the Gospel? If it weren't for God's mighty and wonderful promises, I am certain we could never continue, but He has promised that a remnant of His people, Israel, should be saved, and little by little we see signs of this little group.

Our calling is much the same day after day. There are those who listen politely, meanwhile searching their heads for a way to get rid of us quickly; those who are on the telephone; those who are too busy; those who slam doors; those who ask us inside, out of curiosity; and there are those few who tug at our heartstrings in such a way that we cannot forget them. These are the ones who seem to be seeking and yet not knowing; needing and yet not finding. These are the ones who need your prayers that God will open their hearts to a knowledge of their only hope—Jesus, the Messiah—Jesus, their rejected Redeemer.

The other day I was calling in an apartment section. I had already finished upstairs and had knocked upon a downstairs door. It was a woman who answered and at the same time the door across the hall opened. A man came into the hallway, preparing to go outside. Thinking he would be gone when I came to his door, I quickly handed him a Mediator, which he refused. The woman said: "He is a Hebrew scholar. He is a busy man. He wouldn't have time for this." I went on talking with her, remarking that one should never be too busy to consider God's Word. It happened that it was quite an extended conversation, taking a half hour, and when I had finished and turned to go, the man came back into the hallway.

"You still here?" he asked.

"I hear you are a very busy man and a Hebrew scholar," I told him, holding out the Mediator again. "Surely you aren't too busy to look over this little paper concerning the Word of God."

By this time he was inside his apartment, but he made no effort to close the door. "No," he said, "I am not too busy."

I explained we wanted people to check the claims of Jesus. "Have you ever done that?"

He smiled. "I have considered it. He was a great man, but He was not our Messiah. The New Testament was written long after His death."

I explained that the New Testament was written by Jewish men who walked, talked, and lived with Jesus and who believed Him to be the promised Messiah, the sacrifice for sin to do away with all sacrifices.

"God does not require blood today. Besides, the Messiah isn't real. You and I can bring the Messiah by doing the good and not the evil."

I asked him again if he believed the Torah (first five books of the Old Testament) to be the Word of God. He said he did. Again I repeated Leviticus 17:11, and again he said it was no longer necessary to have a blood sacrifice. He brought out his Old Testament, which was in both Hebrew and English. We looked again at the promises outlined in the Torah and what would happen to God's people if they disobeyed Him. We looked at the Law (10 commandments); at Isaiah; at Zechariah. At last he put his book on the table and walked to the window.

"They say we crucified Him," he said, not looking at me, seeming unaware of my presence. I tried to tell him that it was the fault of no one group of people but the fault of the Jews, the gentiles, the entire world, and even he and I. He didn't seem to be listening. He walked to a chair and sat down, putting his hand over his eyes.

"No," he said slowly, as though to himself, "it wouldn't have been Jesus. The blood of our people flowed from the time of His birth until now." There was a great yearning in His voice—the ancient yearning of man for a perfect fellowship with God. Almost immediately he changed. The interview was over.

I offered him a Gospel of Matthew, but he waved it away. "I wouldn't read it anyway, so why waste it?"

I put it back in my bag. "You are right," I said. "I will give it to someone who will read it." At the door I paused. "I'm sorry for you. You are a living example of what the Prophet Isaiah was talking about when he said the hearts of the Jewish people would be heavy; their eyes would be blind; their ears deaf, lest they see and hear and understand that their Messiah came, suffered, and died for them and that they can't ever work their way to heaven, but that they must come God's way. If I were selling it to you, you would want it, but it is so easy, so simple, so cheap, that people can't believe it could be theirs for the taking."

I can't forget the glimpse I had of the yearning in that man's heart. I hope you won't forget him, either, for you must pray for these people with us. Though most of you cannot go out directly to the Jewish people, you can all pray for them. That is your responsibility. May He bless you for all your love to His people, Israel.

HOW CAN I GIVE?

By Bruce L. Button

In my contacts with the churches I have had these questions put to me many times by both pastors and people: "How can we give to the Brethren Jewish Mission?" and "What methods are other churches using in their giving to the Brethren Messianic Witness?" Since the beginning of the Brethren Jewish mission work there has been no set method of giving such as in home or foreign missions. Churches and people have supported the work in spite of this fact. There was only one suggestion ever offered in regards to method—giving could be year-around. However, churches apparently are trying to find a basis for systematic giving, or why these questions? I hope to answer these questions by the means of this article and I trust it will be of help to all.

As the reader no doubt knows, the Brethren Jewish mission work does not receive any support from gifts designated "home missions." These funds are used for other phases of the Lord's work. The only funds that do reach the Brethren Jewish work are those designated "Jewish missions." In the receiving of offerings for the Jewish work various methods have been developed by different churches. In the main, these different methods can be classified under one of the following headings: (1) Once-a-year method; (2) Year-around method; (3) Offering-period method; (4) Once-a-month method. All methods have proved workable. Perhaps one of these methods might be employed in your church.

The once-a-year method is, in some measure, derived from Romans 1:16, "to the Jew first." The church using this method devotes the first Sunday in January to the receiving of an offering for the Jewish work. Both Sunday school and church participate. The messages of the day are centered around fulfilled prophecy and the Jew, with stress placed on the necessity as well as the admonition of the Bible concerning the reaching of the Jew for Christ.

The year-around method is employed in many of our churches. Under this method people are encouraged to give to the Jewish work at any time throughout the year. Some of the pastors from time to time call the attention of their people to the activity of the State of Israel and of happenings in the Holy Land. They also connect Bible prophecy with happenings of the day. Some of the pastors make use of the information contained in the monthly letter they receive from the Brethren Messianic Witness.

The offering-period method is being used by at least two churches in the brotherhood. They have designated two months out of every year as the Jewish mission offering period. At the start of the period interest is gained through the devoting of a Sunday to the problem of the Jew, prophecy, and the work of the Brethren Messianic Witness. During the balance of the offering period these pastors emphasize the Jewish mission offering and present to the people the reports of the Brethren Jewish work and also prayer requests in connection with that work.

The once-a-month method is also being used successfully in several of our churches. One church has designated the first Wednesday (prayer meeting) of each month as their Jewish mission meeting. At that time the Brethren Messianic Witness workers and the work are remembered in prayer. Special requests are made for individual Jews that are willing to receive testimony from the workers. During the meeting an offering is received for the Jewish work. Another church used this method in a little different manner. They use the first Sunday of each month as Jewish mission Sunday. At least one of the messages of the day concerns the need of bringing the Gospel to the Jew, or the Jew and fulfilled prophecy, or some other phase of the need of the Jew. A portion of the Sunday-school offering, together with specifically designated gifts and loose church offering, is given to the Jewish work.

The staff of the Brethren Messianic Witness is always ready and happy to present the Brethren Jewish work to any of the churches or their organizations. Or for those who can make use of them, the mission is also able to furnish 35-mm. color transparencies and accompanying sound tape or written script. Contact the writer of this article in care of the Brethren Messianic Witness, 469 King's Rd., Los Angeles 48, Calif., to arrange for presentation of the Jewish work before your church or church organizations.

As we attempt to minister to the Jewish people here in the Fairfax district of Los Angeles, we do ask you to hold us up in prayer that we might do His will in all things.

Riverside Brethren Plan New Church at Johnstown, Pa.

Plans are almost complete for the new Riverside Brethren Church to be built at Johnstown, Pa. This home-mission church has a unique advantage in that the pastor, Ralph C. Hall, studied to be an engineer before the Lord called him into His service. With this training, he was able to draw the plans and thereby save the church money on the initial cost. We might add that this is just another way the Lord has used to stretch your home-mission dollars to provide more testimonies for Him.

The present meeting place is a dwelling that has been converted into a church. The place is filled to capacity and then some, on many occasions. The new church will be located near the present meeting place, on a new location. The property now being used will be sold after the new building is under way. The new Riverside Brethren Church will soon get under way when the details of the plans and financing are completed.

BELLFLOWER, CALIF. The First Brethren Church, of which Curtis G. Mitchell is pastor, is conducting a Family Bible Conference, March 18-26, with Dr. Gerald B. Stanton as the speaker. Mrs. Stanton is conducting the children's services. The men's brotherhood sponsored a kick-off banquet March 18 for the occasion.

STOYSTOWN, PA. The Reading Brethren Church, John J. Burns pastor, was dedicated February 27 with Rev. W. Wayne Baker, Rev. Victor S. Rogers, Rev. Homer Lingenfelter, and Rev. H. Leslie Moore taking part. The Reading Brethren Church had its beginning in a children's Happy Hour during the ministry of Rev. Phillip Simmons at Listie, Pa., and was formally organized June 25, 1954.

SPECIAL. The following churches of the Northern Ohio District are endeavoring to prove that they are mission-minded: Elyria, Mansfield Grace, Homerville, Cuyahoga Falls, and Sterling. They have given as many dollars to district missions as they have members.

CORRECTION. After March 10 the address of Richard Grant will be 4915 Lakeside Dr. NE., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, instead of 124 34th St. NE., as recently given. Please change Annual.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX. Rev. R. I. Humberd will conduct a Bible conference March 20-22 at the Grace Brethren Church, where David Tollardo is pastor. He conducted a conference March 11-18 at Taos, N. Mex., where Sam Horney is pastor.

CINCINNATI, OHIO. The Standard Publishing Company, one of the nation's largest religious publishing houses, has been purchased by The Publishing Foundation of Cincinnati, headed by John Bolton, Sr., of Andover, Mass. The rumored price was approximately $4,000,000. According to Attorney Samuel S. Dennis, III, of the Foundation, "no changes in the management or editorial staff or policies of the company are contemplated." The Standard Publishing Company has been engaged in the publishing of religious periodicals and books since 1866.

INGLEWOOD, CALIF. A sacred concert featuring the musical compositions of Rev. A. H. Ackley, was presented at the First Brethren Church Feb. 27 at the evening service. Mr. Ackley was present to play some of his hymns and to explain their writing. Glenn O'Neal is pastor.

LIMESTONE, TENN. Arthur Harold Arrington, Jr., arrived at the parsonage of the Vernon Brethren Church on March 1, 1955, weighing 6 lbs., 14 oz.

ALTOONA, PA. Rev. Ralph S. Burns, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Clay City, Ind., has accepted the unanimous call to become pastor of the First Brethren Church. He will assume his duties the middle of April.

SEATTLE, WASH. Rev. H. E. Collingridge, of the Grace Brethren Church, held a unique baptismal service March 2. A county-jail prisoner requested baptism and Mr. Collingridge, who visits the prisoners weekly, complied with the request. No facilities for complete immersion were available, so the church officials decided to use the jail's only bathtub. A picture of the bathtub immersion appeared on the front page of the Seattle Daily Times March 2. The prisoner, who is held for manslaughter, says he wants to be a missionary when he is released from the state penitentiary.

ASHLAND, OHIO. Eddie Cashman, of Winona Lake, has accepted the call of the West Tenth Street Brethren Church to become the assistant pastor. He will begin his duties June 1, after graduation from Grace Seminary.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Harold H. Etling, director of the Brethren National Sunday School Board, has been appointed to membership on the general committee of the National Sunday School Association.

EAST LOS ANGELES, CALIF. Robert McCormick assumed the pastorate of the Community Brethren Church Feb. 27. He is a senior at Talbot Theological Seminary and is physical director and coach at the Brethren High School in Paramount.

BELL, CALIF. Harry Sturz completed his pastorate at the Bell Brethren Church on Jan. 30 to assume a full-time professorship at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. He will teach beginning Greek and English Bible.

NORWALK, CALIF. The dedication services of the Norwalk Brethren Church have been set for April 3. Rev. Henry Rempel is pastor. On March 6 Joseph Kemp, Christian magician, was guest speaker at the Sunday-school hour. The average Sunday-school attendance for January was 155 and for February, 185.

WASHINGTON, D. C. The evangelical Protestant position as based on the Word of God will be presented in a series of ads that is being made available by the National Association of Evangelicals, according to announcement by Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, NAE secretary of affairs in Washington. The ads are designed to meet a long existing need of clarifying the Protestant position due to misconceptions that have arisen from other advertisements, and will provide a clear-cut presentation of the plan of salvation according to the Scriptures.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Executive Manager Robert J. Hughes of the Christian Assembly, announces 14 conferences and conventions plus the usual six-week Winona Lake Bible Conference for the season beginning the first week in June and ending on Labor Day.

"I WILL COME AGAIN"

There is one Biblical teaching standing out more and more in these days. It is a doctrine which has caused some to stumble, and to set dates. It has caused some to make themselves foolish. But on the other hand, this doctrine of which I write is one that has brought comfort to thousands of Christians. It has been responsible for causing them to live lives of watchfulness, self-restraint, and prayer. It has been the force which has moved many to become soul-winners and to leave no stone unturned for the Saviour.

I refer to the doctrine of Christ's second coming. Of the 260 chapters in the New Testament, this unique teaching is referred to some 318 times—once in every 25 verses. Certainly God considered it to be of great importance.

Now then, why is our Lord coming back again? There are various reasons, but we shall consider just two.

To Receive His Bride

Jesus is coming again to receive His own unto himself. A key Scripture is John 14:3. Jesus said: "And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Please bear in mind our Lord was addressing born-again Christians only.

By M. LEON MYERS
Pastor, First Brethren Church
Akron, Ohio

Have you ever watched a prospective groom preparing a home for his future bride? It is one of the most loving scenes to behold. In a former pastorate in Iowa, I knew a young man who did that very thing. Every night after leaving his occupational work, he would go to the house he was preparing. He would often labor until the wee hours of the morning. Such energy! Such initiative! He spent hour upon hour painting, sanding floors, building archways. He even dug a basement and installed a furnace all by himself. I watched him one Saturday afternoon as he erected a brick chimney. Such long hours did he labor, and such little rest did he get, that I was afraid he would injure his health.

And why did he do it? Why, because he was in love with a beautiful young lady who was soon to become his bride. With every brush of paint he thought of her. Every nail he drove was a token of love. For her there was nothing too good. There was no sacrifice too great.

Christians, our lover is Jesus Christ. His love is infinitely greater than the love of any earthly groom for his bride. And He is in heaven today, planning and working, getting ready for our homecoming.

And what a home He is preparing! Our finest homes on earth are only a few months in the building. But think of it—Jesus Christ, our lover, has already been working for over 1,900 years. Words could never describe the place He is preparing. The Scriptures themselves cannot present all the glories. They simply say: "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." How greatly Jesus must love us! It is this love which will cause Him to "come again" and receive us unto himself.

To Glorify His Bride

Jesus will "come again" to give glorified bodies to His own. In Philippians, chapter 3, God says: "For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ: who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body."

Paul says that these bodies are "vile," or as it is in the original, "humiliating." We must feed them three times a day or they die. They are subject to illnesses. Illness speaks of the fact that the body is frail. It is a bit embarrassing to a strong young man to be humbled to the place where he is laid aside for a time.

These natural bodies are subject to sin. It is humiliating when one must admit he is a sinner. It injures his pride. And most people refuse to accept the fact that "there is none righteous, no not one." This is the reason so few accept Christ as only Saviour.

These bodies are subject to failures. I have heard men argue and fight and swear when it was implied that they had failed. Man will excuse himself and seek to lay the blame on anyone and everyone. Why? Because it is humiliating to be forced to admit these natural bodies are subject to failures.

Indeed, these are "bodies of humiliation," as Paul declares. But when Jesus comes, they shall be conformed to the body of His glory. His is a body not subject to sickness, fatigue, suffering, and death.

When our Lord arose from the grave, He could go from one place to another with the speed of thought. No barrier could restrain Him. Recall the story concerning Christ's appearance to His disciples. They had gathered in a room. The door was bolted fast. They were fearful lest the Jews would arrest them. Then suddenly, without opening the door, Christ appeared before them.

Such was the body of His glory. And that, by the grace of God, shall be ours also. Someday the saints will be perfect and complete in every detail, not subject to the humiliating things which now hinder. He "shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." What a precious hope!

Christian, are you waiting longingly, expectantly for the Lord's return? A special crown in heaven is promised those who love His appearing, for Paul writes: "There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

THE GLORIOUS HOPE

By RICHARD GRANT

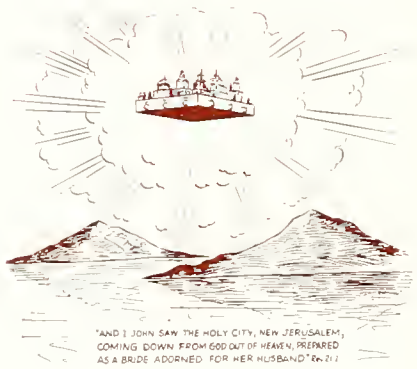
Pastor, Grace Brethren Church
Cedar Rapids, Iowa

The Christian's glorious hope lies in the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ will suddenly come to set up His thousand-year reign upon the earth, which is commonly called the Milennium. The anxious eyes of believers should ever be turned upward toward heaven looking for the "King of kings and Lord of lords" to break through the clouds in His regal splendor. The Scriptures warrant the belief that a universal blessedness of worldwide righteousness and prosperity will be realized simultaneously with Christ's literal, visible return to earth in glory. The Millennium is dependent upon His arrival. "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

There are, technically speaking, two distinct phases of the second coming of Christ. He will first come from heaven to secretly rapture His church, and then after seven years will visibly and gloriously return to establish His millennial kingdom on earth. In this article the two phases will not be treated separately, but will be viewed as one great event. The main emphasis is upon the glorious hope that Jesus is coming soon to set up His rule upon earth. There can be no kingdom until the King arrives; therefore, all eyes ought to be focused upon the skies from whence will come the great Redeemer and Prince of Peace.

The Intention of the Glorious Hope

Indeed, the believer's walk should be characterized by the uplifted gaze. The intention of the glorious hope is to set our eyes heavenward, and keep us in a state of expectancy. Paul's exultant words respecting the Thessalonians might well be applied to all believers, that they "turned unto God from idols, to serve a living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven" (I Thess. 1:9-10). It is the prominent theme of the New Testament epistles and is mentioned 318 times in the New Testament. One verse in every 30 is occupied with the expectation of His advent.



The glorious hope shines out of Paul's letters to the Thessalonians and to Timothy. Paul constantly anticipated the crown he was to receive at the Redeemer's appearing. James encouraged his followers with these thrilling words: "Be ye also patient; establish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord is at hand" (Jas. 5:8). Peter exhorted men to godliness by the motive, "Looking for and hastening unto the coming of the day of God" (II Pet. 3:12).

John's final words in the Book of the Revelation are: "Surely, I come quickly." These men, speaking by the Spirit of the living God, know there can be no reign of universal righteousness, no redemption of the body, no defeating of Satan, no deliverance of a groaning creation, and no Millennium until Christ himself comes personally in mighty, majestic power to establish it.

The Imminence of the Glorious Hope

Premillennialism is truly our glorious hope. We are not only confident that Jesus must come before the thousand-year period of unequaled peace and prosperity will be realized, but we are also confident that our hope will soon be fulfilled. Today we are one day nearer the establishment of the kingdom than we were yesterday. Each time the clock ticks we are moving toward that glorious day when we shall live and reign with Christ. What a glorious hope! To live day by day in eager anticipation of His coming.

Are you looking for His coming today? Are you praying that His appearing will be today? Are you living as if today were the the day? Are you witnessing as if today were your last opportunity to speak to that precious lost soul that God has laid on your heart? The Apostle Paul, in his day, looked for the morrow to usher in the kingdom. Paul lived expectantly. There was to his mind the immediate possibility of the Lord's coming in his lifetime. In I Thessalonians 4:17, Paul speaks of himself and others who may survive till the Lord's coming: "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

The Importance of the Glorious Hope

We ought to be looking for the blessed hope. That is, expecting it with fervent desire. We should be praying for it and seeking to hasten it. For it is the hope that shall bring the Jew his Messiah; it shall bring the groaning creation's emancipation; it shall bring nature a freedom from thorns and thistles; it shall usher in a knowledge of the true and living God to those who scoff and ridicule the humble Bible-believing Christian; and to the church, the waiting bride, it shall bring the personal presence of the heavenly Bridegroom. And, above all things, it will bring to Jesus His kingdom and His rightful, long-denied throne.

How glorious a hope is ours! What a joy to have the hope of one day receiving all knowledge, to fully understand the mysteries of science, to fathom the marvels of the blue beyond, to uncover the hidden secrets of nature, to be able to understand the inner workings of our own souls, and, above all else, to finally see Christ face to face. What a thrilling future! This future hope is all dependent upon the time that Jesus Christ shall be glorified as King of kings according to the eternal purpose of God the Father.

Our hearts should rejoice as we ponder upon the truth that today might be the day of His appearing. Prophetically speaking, there is nothing to hinder His immediate return. The next great event in God's revealed timetable is the imminent return of our Lord. For Jesus said, "Surely, I come quickly." Therefore, brethren, "look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh" (Luke 21:28).

SPIRITUALISM

Is Not Spiritual

By BEN HAMILTON

RESEARCH LIBRARIAN, GRACE SEMINARY

WINONA LAKE, IND.

Every false cult is peeved by some doctrine or teachings of the Bible. For the Word of God—true "discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart"—when rightly divided, glaringly reveals false doctrine and the followers thereof as the perverters of truth they are actually. This is quite true of spiritualism, as is seen when one considers—

Spiritualism's Attitude of the Bible

J. Arthur Hill, a once-prominent spiritualist, has said that the Bible accounts of the life of Christ are far less correct than Sir William Crookes' experiments with "Katie King," a "spirit" which Medium Cookes is alleged to make appear at his command. Hill further said: "If spiritualistic evidence is not sufficient to produce belief in an unprejudiced mind, the Biblical evidence is far less so." Why do spiritualists consider the Scriptures insufficient?

Because the Holy Spirit is the true Author of the Bible, the contents of the Word of God strike out against familiar spirits and the false doctrine that belief in such spirits is necessary to a vital faith in God. Thus spiritualists greatly dislike Bible doctrine such as that found in Leviticus 19:31. For there the Holy Spirit makes it plain, through Moses' writing, that it is a sin to regard (that is, inquire of) them that have familiar spirits or to look for wizards. For to put one's trust in such spirits would result in that person being defiled and consequently out of fellowship with God.

Nor do spiritualists enjoy the somber words of Leviticus 20:6: "And the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people." It must be mentioned in passing that the expression "to go a whoring," as used in Leviticus 20:6 does not mean literal sexual misconduct.* Rather, the teaching is very plain that those who put their confidence in spirits, as do spiritualists, are guilty of turning away from God and putting their trust in false gods!

The low attitude of spiritualism regarding the Bible is shown by that cult's effort to make spiritualists out of God's angels and Bible characters. One spiritualist says Balaam "saw spirits and was a trance speaker." Samuel was a medium, because he was able to tell Saul where his lost asses were! Angels, such as those that visited Abraham, Cornelius, and those at Jesus' sepulcher, were spirits. When Jesus talked with Moses and Elijah on the mountaintop, in the presence of Peter, John, and James, our blessed Lord was talking with spirits, say many spiritualists! Can you imagine Jesus Christ breaking the law of Moses and regarding familiar spirits, which is what He would be doing, if spiritualism's interpretation of Matthew 17:1-8 is true. In the light of what has just been said it is not surprising that—

Spiritualism Has a Low Opinion of the Holy Spirit

Spiritualism considers the Third Person of the Godhead only as a chief spirit. This is shown in a spiritualist hymn in which spirits are called "holy ministers of light" and in another part of the hymn the Holy Spirit is asked to send "Thy messengers of light," referring to spirits to be conjured up by false spiritualist mediums. The "holy spirit" of spiritualism is not the Holy Spirit sent by Christ to indwell believers to teach, guide, and comfort them. Spiritualism's "holy spirit" is one of their Spirits (they capitalize the word) which "when freed from the bondage of time and sense, freed from the struggle for bread and butter and economic circumstances . . . seek to come back and cooperate with us to make this world we live in a much better one."

Spiritualism's Opinion of Christ

Spiritualists do not know whether Christ was a man, in spite of the plainest teachings of Christ on the subject throughout the Gospels. Speaking of Christ, one noted spiritualist said:

"I do not know what he was. He came in the form of humanity, but some of his healing and other powers, as well as his teaching and life and the tremendous effect thereof, suggest that he was, at least, greater than any human being of whom we have reliable or fairly reliable accounts.

"If Buddha was an actual man, he may have been a similar being, for his effect on the world has also been immense"

Then the aforesaid spiritualist compares Christ with many oriental deities, with Emerson and many other poets, and places them on the same plane as Christ. Then come these telling words of the spiritualist: "But to me, and I suppose to most spiritualists also, knowledge of the exact nature of these great souls does not seem likely to be necessary for salvation." So spiritualism says that salvation is possible without knowing Christ, in spite of I Timothy 2:5.

Spiritualism talks a lot about spirits. But spiritualism is not spiritual: it is just a false ism.

*This refers to excessive religious infidelity on the part of those turning from the true God to give themselves, body and soul, to false deities.

THE BAPTISM OF THE HOLY SPIRIT

By DR. NORMAN UPHOUSE
GRACE SEMINARY

The subject of the baptism of the Holy Spirit has been greatly misunderstood by many people through the years. We arrive at such a conclusion when we examine the various views that are erroneous and un-Scriptural. There is also a need to review the Biblical position in order that we might better understand and appreciate the work of the Holy Spirit in relation to the salvation of the believer.

ERRONEOUS VIEWS

That the baptism of the Holy Spirit is the second blessing. This view makes the work of the Holy Spirit subsequent to conversion and salvation. It confuses the infilling of the Spirit with the baptism of the Spirit.

Another error states that the baptism of the Holy Spirit is a gift whereby one is enabled to talk in tongues. It is sought after by the believer as tangible evidence of salvation. It is supposed to represent a great achievement on the part of the seeker.

Still another error maintains that the baptism of the Holy Spirit is the work resulting in sinless perfection. This view may claim that sin is eradicated and the individual who is so blessed with the work is perfect.

Finally, there is the erroneous claim that the baptism of the Spirit is tantamount to sanctification. This view usually makes sanctification distinct from, yet parallel to, salvation. One might expect the advocate of this doctrine to testify that he is saved and sanctified. Although it is not my purpose to expose the weaknesses of these errors at this place, it is not beside the point to suggest that the Holy Spirit is not presented in the Bible as the sanctifier of the believer. We can well afford to spend time with pertinent Scriptures that plainly declare that it is the Word that sanctifies (Heb. 10:10; John 17: 17; I Thess. 5:23).

BIBLICAL VIEW

The baptism of the Holy Spirit is known as regeneration or the new birth. It is a work of God whereby a believer is ushered into a new and spiritual life with God. It occurs simultaneously with conversion rather than subsequent to it. The baptism is done but once; thereafter infillings may take place. The baptism of the Spirit remains effective and permanent.

Old Testament Background

Ezekiel 36:26 and 11:19 give us a prophecy of the work of the Holy Spirit. "I will give you a new heart and I will put a new spirit within you." Perhaps this is the reference Jesus had in mind when he asked Nicodemus: "Art thou a teacher of Israel and knowest not these things?"

A good analogy is found in Ezekiel 37, where we find the picture of revived Israel in the last days.

New Testament References

The most familiar section on the new birth is John 3. Nevertheless, there are professing Christians who do not know about it. In some instances, this condition may be accounted for by faulty teaching, and yet the Holy Spirit has honored the sincerity of the believer and accomplished the work. The individual may not be able to describe it in adequate terminology; yet he has had the real experience. There are others who are Christian in name. but who have never been born again. This company constitute a tragic group because they cannot enter the kingdom of God. Hence, one can readily see that a careful study of the subject is very important. The following outline presents principles involved in the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

1. The baptism of the Holy Spirit is essential to salvation (John 3:6).
2. It is the starting point in spiritual growth (II Pet. 1:4).
3. It is an instantaneous work (John 5:24).
4. It is a radical change (I Cor. 12:3; II Cor. 5:17).
5. It is a work outside the realm of the sense perception, but belongs to consciousness (John 3:8).
6. It makes us children of God, thereby members of the family of God (John 1:12).
7. It changes the governing disposition of life (Ps. 51:10).
8. It changes the moral relation of the soul (Eph. 2:5).

The question that comes to the honest inquirer is, How can I know that I am born again? or, What are the evidences of the baptism of the Holy Spirit? The answer is that one simply meets the spiritual conditions and then stands upon the Word of God. The Bible says that Christians are baptized by the Spirit. Children of God walk by faith and believe God. Jesus had much to say about those who looked for signs. He had no commendation for those who walked by sight, but He did commend those of great faith. It was not considered wise to be looking for external manifestations as proof for the promises of God. It was better to accept God's Word. Nevertheless, we might know the conditions and regard them as sufficient evidence. Where these conditions exist, one may be assured that he is baptized by the Holy Spirit.

Conditions leading to, and the evidences of, the baptism of the Holy Spirit:

1. One believes in Jesus as the Christ (I John 5:1).
2. He has a love for Christ (I John 5:1).
3. The Holy Spirit witnesses to him that he is a child of God (Rom. 8:16).
4. He has victory over worldliness (I John 5:4; 3:9; 5:18).
5. He practices righteousness and not sin (I John 2:29).

After the baptism of the Spirit the believer has a new nature. He may fall into sin, but he does something about it to get out of sin. The unforgiven sinner, on the other hand, commits sin and takes pleasure in it. The difference is similar to that which exists among sheep and hogs. A sheep may fall into the mudhole, but will scramble to get out. The hog will stay in the mud and like it. It is not without significance that Christians were designated as sheep and not hogs. Let us make sure we are born from above and have an aversion to sin.

GOD

By DR. W. A. OGDEN

Pastor, First Brethren Church
Johnstown, Pa.

The Bible does not attempt to prove the existence of God. It affirms His eternal being and then proceeds on that fact without argument: "In the beginning God." In the Bible God reveals himself by many different names. These names serve as a medium of communication through which the infinite God, insofar as possible, is revealed to man. Each of His names reveals something of His character not found in any other name or revelation. Thus it is that in Genesis 1:1 His name corresponds to His power in creation, and He is called "Elohim" —"the strong one," or "He who is to be feared." When God's sovereignty over His creation appears, the name "Adonai" is used. This name often appears in our English text as "my Lord," or "my Master." This is the name used in Genesis 15:2, where God's sovereignty is recognized in the address by Abram in which he says, "Lord God, what wilt thou give me . . .?"

In Hebrews 11:6 and Exodus 3:14 the eternal being of God is affirmed. In the Hebrews passage the writer is speaking of events in the lives of Abel and Enoch. These men lived about four thousand years before the epistle to the Hebrews was written. Yet, in this connection, the writer refers to God in the present tense—"God is." No one can "please God" who does not believe this fact. This is a revelation of the nature of God as to His eternal existence. This prepares us to look now at the passage from Exodus, "I AM THAT I AM." This is the name Moses was told to use to reveal to the children of Israel the nature of the true God who was about to deliver them from slavery in Egypt: "Say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you."

GOD IS UNCHANGEABLE

"Notice that 'I AM' is present tense, not past or future. God did not become, nor will He become, but ever is. With Him is an eternal present. He is ever the same, unchangeable. With Jehovah there are no tenses. Because His name lays stress upon the unchangeableness of God, it is used as God's covenant name, to designate that He is always true to His covenant promises, ever the same towards His covenant people, the same towards the children as towards the fathers" (M. J. Bosma, in "Exposition of Reformed Doctrine").

GOD IS ETERNAL

In John 8:58, Jesus declares himself to be the Eternal One. The Jews have sought to engage Him in controversy by claiming the superiority of Abraham. He answers them with His greatest claim to Deity in the words of Exodus 3:14: "Before Abraham was, I AM."

The passage in Genesis 1:1 bears testimony to the triunity of God—that God is one God eternally existing in three persons. The passage in Exodus 3:14, when read with John 8:58 and Hebrews 11:6, reveals Jesus Christ as pervading all time, and so timeless in His eternal existence. As it is true of the Father, so it is true of the Son, and of the Spirit: "He that cometh to God must believe that He is."

GOD IS HOLY

In his splendid book, "The Magnificence of Jesus," Dr. Harry Rimmer has pointed out that of all the attributes of Deity, holiness heads the list. He then defined holiness as "self-affirming purity." In defining the meaning of "attributes" Dr. Rimmer says: "The attributes of God are those distinguishing characteristics of the nature of God which are inseparable from the idea of deity, and which constitute the basis and grounds for His various manifestations to His creatures." This would mean that the attributes of God are distinct from the attributes of man. History bears testimony to the same fact. In Psalm 145:17, it is written: "The Lord is righteous in all his ways, and holy in all his works." The challenge of Jesus (John 8:46), "Which of you convinceth me of sin?" remains a challenge unanswered to this day. To prove God less than holy would be to prove Him less than God, and would bring the entire universe into collapse and ruin around our heads.

On the other hand, we can say that lack of holiness, or sin, is the first attribute of man. David, in Psalm 14:3, declares this awful fact in these words: "They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no not one." Our Saviour recognized the same, and said: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father it is your will to do." Paul, in his great polemic in the epistle to the Romans, traces the history of man as to his moral state and concludes with the words of David in the psalm just quoted above: ". . . for we before laid to the charge both of Jews and Greeks, that they are all under sin; as it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one; there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God; they have all turned aside, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not so much as one" (ASV).

God must have some attribute other than that of holiness, or man must be forever banished from His sight and from His presence.

GOD IS JUST

I shall only say on this point that the justice of God will not allow Him to permit sin in His presence, nor allow that sin shall go unpunished in His universe. He cannot allow His mercy to operate at the expense of His justice.

GOD IS MERCIFUL

When Lot fully realized the awful judgment about to fall upon Sodom, as he stood outside her doomed walls, he said: "Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou has shewed unto me in saving my life." David, in Psalm 103, is celebrating the goodness of the Lord in the redemption of his soul, and in the kindness shown to Israel in the days of Moses, and finds but one explanation for it: "The Lord is merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and plenteous in mercy." When the "weeping prophet" considered the badness of Israel and thought upon his own sins, he cried: "It is of the Lord's mercies that we are not consumed, because his compassions fail not." The entire doctrine of salvation is based upon this truth.

PEOPLE VANISH (AN ALLEGORY)

By LESLIE L. CHAMBERLAIN, Jr.
Johnstown, Pa.

It was a day in the year ——, not a very special day so far as weather is concerned. Snow in Alaska, heat in Africa, rain in Seattle, Wash., wind in Chicago. People all over the earth were going about their business the same as any other day in the year.

The stock market on Wall Street was holding steady. There was another revolution in South America. Politicians were going around telling people how they planned to reduce taxes. Another dictator had taken over in Germany, or was it France?—oh, well, one of those countries in Europe. Just so he doesn't bother us over here!

Little Sue and John down the street were married this morning and have started on their honeymoon trip to Canada.

It was about 4:30 in the afternoon when the first report came to the local newspaper office. A prominent local businessman reported that his wife had disappeared. He had gone home from work at the usual time to find his supper on the stove, burnt to a crisp. He searched everywhere, but could not locate his wife. The first time in 30 years of marriage anything like this had happened.

Deacon Jones from the big church on the corner gave the next report. He had been talking to the pastor about cutting his contribution next year if padded cushions weren't purchased for the pews. He said the preacher excused himself for a moment to go into his study for something. Poor Deacon became overwrought when he was kept waiting for 10 minutes; so he went bursting into the pastor's study in a fit of temper, only to discover the room empty. Deacon Jones just can't understand, the only door was under his surveillance and the window was a good 30 feet above the ground.

A report is coming in from Africa now. Half a village has disappeared in Kenya. Survivors don't recall seeing anything out of order, but they think possibly a huge beast devoured the missing.

Here's a report from China, where the people say a huge man with eight arms came into a city and removed several people. The people have disappeared, but the story of the monster has not been verified.

A report from Moscow tells that several peasants have escaped from a work farm. They cannot explain how they got away without severing the barbed wire or without being seen by the guards.

A prominent physicist and atomic research worker has exclaimed that the disappearance may be due to a molecular reaction from a hydrogen bomb explosion behind the Iron Curtain. He feels that the people may have been sprayed with the dust carried by the winds in the stratosphere, causing them to disintegrate. We know this is untrue. The Power that made these people vanish was greater than 10,000 hydrogen bombs.

The United States has put the blame on Russia. They say the Communists have taken these people in an effort to demoralize the world. We know this is untrue because the Force that took these people did not do it to demoralize, but rather because the world was already immoralized.

More reports are pouring in. China blames Japan, and troops are being sent to Japan to recover the missing.

Canada has joined Mexico and South America in blaming the U. S. for this turmoil. Already they are preparing at their borders for an invasion.

Germany, France, and England have allied themselves against Russia and bombers are flying to Moscow.

What confusion! No one knows where to turn! All is a turmoil!

I am so thankful I will never see this strife. For the day of which I speak is that glorious day when my Lord appears in the heavens to call His saints home to Him. What a joy when we meet our Saviour face to face!

Back on earth, when they finally (if they ever do) realize what has taken place, they will be blaming one another because they were left behind. The rich man will say, "But I gave so much." Yet, he forgets that he wouldn't receive God's Gift, Jesus Christ. The self-righteous man will say, "But I did so much." Yet, he wouldn't confess his sins and depend on Jesus' shed blood for cleansing. The man who is working out his own salvation is busier than ever. The multitudes will say, "But we didn't believe" STOP THERE, and say no more. That is where the blame belongs—THEY DIDN'T BELIEVE.

This may be your last time to believe. Do you want to be able to see the Master when He returns? Only His people will be able to see Him. Will you believe that only through Christ can you hope for salvation? Don't say, "I can't believe." Lean upon the cross and say, "I BELIEVE." (Read Matthew 24: 37: 8-9, and Acts 1:7).

Conemaugh, Pa.

Members and friends of the Singer Hill Grace Brethren Church honored their pastor, Kenneth E. Wilt, and family at a reception recently in the church.

Brother Wilt served as the supply pastor for two years before taking over the church full time several months ago. He and his family moved into this district from Altoona, Pa., last December. While living in Altoona, Brother Wilt was active in Gideon work—he served as president of the camp for three years. He was treasurer of the Altoona Bible Institute for four years, served as president of the Child Evangelism Fellowship, and filled pulpits in the Altoona area before coming to Singer Hill.

Brother Wilt was licensed to the gospel ministry in the Brethren Church on June 20, 1954, and will be ordained this coming June. He is a graduate of the Altoona High School and has been a student at the Altoona Bible Institute, where he is presently furthering his studies.

While under his guidance and supervision the past two years, a new parsonage has been built, and a new organ installed in the church, as well as many souls won to the Lord. —Mrs. John Stennett, secretary.

64,000,000 Churchless Americans

Many are saying that ours is a day of religious revival, and numerous articles have been written to tell of vast increases in church attendance. If anyone were to ask the average individual how many Americans belong to some church, he would probably say, "Almost all of them." The real facts are startling. The most reliable statistics show that 64,000,000 Americans—40.5 percent of our population—are not even claimed as church members. This figure is the more remarkable because some denominations count as members, not merely active churchgoers, but anyone who was ever baptized or affiliated with the group.

In a recent article, Jerome Nathanson, chairman of the board of leaders for the New York Society of Ethical Culture, tries to justify the attitude possessed by nearly half the country's people. He says: "Americans who do not go to church are not without faith; nor is it true that life has neither meaning nor purpose for them. . . . For some have a faith that resists conformity, that impels a man to face the problems of life and death and God and the hereafter for himself, that considers creeds or rituals an unnecessary part of true religious affirmation."

It is hardly surprising that such individuals do not wish to be bound by "theology," for theology has something to say about sin and sets standards by which it may be judged. Mr. Nathanson feels that most of America's unchurched population "try to lead a life which is honorable, productive, satisfying, right, and good—for them." But he admits that "it may or may not be right and good for someone else."

Such humanism, of course, is nothing new. Long ago the Apostle Paul wrote of men who "did not like to retain God in their knowledge" (Rom. 1:28). Refusing to recognize divine revelation, they had nothing left to guide them but their own "reprobate mind" (vs. 28). The tragic results of such a philosophy are well known to all who are willing to read either the Bible or profane history. Men fell into the awful pit of iniquity more fully described in the same chapter. With 64,000,000 people embracing the same philosophy, is it any wonder that America today faces problems in adult and juvenile crime unparalleled in our history? Should we be surprised when we are told that one out of every three homes ends in shipwreck? Should we expect anything but the frustrations which have filled our mental institutions everywhere until they are overflowing. Is America beginning to pay the price of "all the nations that forget God" (Ps. 9:17)?

9,000,000 Mental Sufferers in America

According to Mary Jane Ward, author of "The Snake Pit," "Nine million people in the United States suffer mental and emotional ills, and 55 percent of our hospital patients are mentally ill." Richard Weil, Jr., president of the National Association for Mental Health, recently made a startling disclosure. He reports that with almost 750,000 mental patients actually in hospitals, accounting for more than half of all patients in all hospitals for all diseases, mental illness took a greater toll last year than ever before in United States history. It is added that more people will enter mental institutions this year than will enter college, and that, if the present rates continue, 1 out of every 12 persons born this year will spend some time in a mental institution. Miss Ward declares that one of the reasons for the increase in mental illness is the "loss of faith in the family as a focal point." Other reasons which she mentions are less belief in religion, World War II, the Korean War, and the increased pressure of living.

Miss Ward's analysis can hardly be taken lightly, especially in view of the fact that more than 40 percent of our population claim membership in no church or other religious organization. Admittedly, we are living in days of pressure and tension unparalleled in the world's history. But are these sufficient to account for the mental difficulties of the present hour? Man seeks to "face the problems for himself," but he finds not the answer. He seeks for peace, but he finds it not. Verily, "Destruction and misery are in their ways: and the way of peace have they not known" (Rom. 3:16-17), and "there is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked" (Isa. 57:21).

Pills That Make People Happy

Men have tried various methods in the long search for a way of bringing peace to troubled minds. And now comes the latest. Today there are new, reportedly safe, drugs that can "lift your mood" if you're blue and listless, bring you down to earth if you're too excited, make you pleasant if you've been cantankerous. It is claimed that the drugs can help you weather simple emotional storms—the kind encountered in everyday living—or they can help the individual who is hospitalized by a mental disorder. Researchers say that one of these works on the brain "to restore emotionally tired or depressed patients to their usual level of interest, alertness, and productivity." The drug is declared to be especially valuable in helping healthy people to get over those inevitable trying periods of life which can involve such things as money, family, job, marriage, or loss of a loved one.

Assuming that the claims for such "happiness pills" are not exaggerated, the sad fact remains that the real

CHALLENGE OF CHRISTIAN JOURNALISM

BY AVA SCHNITTJER

Did you ever stop to think of the tremendous power of a thin film of ink, one-fourth of one-thousandth of an inch thick, spread as print over a page? It can carry good news; it can carry the message of salvation to the remote corners of the world; or it can exploit and blind the reader.

What a pity it is, then, that so many readers are almost drugged with the great mass of secular propaganda concerning war, strikes, politics, murder, scandals, finance. One hundred years ago, three-fourths of all the published writing in America was on religious subjects. Today, in a publishing enterprise which boasts a three-billion-dollar business annually, the percentage is less than one-tenth.

There is a desperate need for a school of writers and editors who are full of the Christian faith and dedicated to making it known. What an impact could be made by a thousand dedicated Christian writers who would flood the publications of the land with Christian news, features, fiction, with the aim of reaching America for Christ!

In Roman Catholic schools in one of our large cities 1,000 writers are being trained right now to go out and take positions on the newspapers of the land. It would be wonderful if we could do just that.

There is a market for every kind of Christian writing. Editors, who must make a continuous study of what people want to read, say that there is a greater demand for articles on religion now than there has been at any other time in the past 40 years. Reader's Digest carries at least one religious article a month, and many other periodicals are publishing religious articles which never did before.

Editors try to give the public what it wants to read, and to fill this current demand, some are writing on religion who don't know much about it. You probably wouldn't agree with their formula for finding peace of mind or their pattern for living victoriously.

To write about the Christian faith, three things are needed. The Christian writer needs first of all an experience with the Lord, then a growing background of knowledge and experience in his subject, and finally, something of the writing technique. Many are writing without the very first prerequisite. Naturally, then, they haven't the second. All they have is the technique.

You, we trust, have the first two requirements and can develop the third. Will you accept this missionary challenge, take time to look into your own background, explore the opportunities of writing about the Christian faith as you know it, and produce some copy? It may prove a real blessing to someone.

I praise God for the great benefits I received from Christian writers, particularly in the early days of my Christian life. The spoken word is carved in air and is soon lost. The printed word is cut in granite and will live to bless countless souls through eternity. John said, "These things have I written." What if Moses had only spoken and had not recorded the things God did? Suppose Paul had only preached and established churches, but had not written his letters to them—letters we still have to guide us in the practice of a Christian life. Luke said: "It seemed good to me also, having had perfect understanding of all things from the very first, to write unto thee in order, most excellent Theophilus, that thou mightest know the certainty of those things, wherein thou hast been instructed (Luke 1:3-4). What if these men had thought: "I'm too busy to take time to write. I've got too much to do."

Dr. Ironside enjoyed a great ministry of preaching in his church and won many to the Lord. But how much poorer we'd be had he not taken time to write down some of his experiences!

God has called you to preach, to teach, to farm, to mother a family, to build, to keep a store. Perhaps He also commands you to "write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are . . ." (Rev. 1:19).

I'll not try to lure you into writing by saying it's easy. It isn't. Writing is hard work, for most people at least. One doesn't just sit down and dash off a fine article when he has a few spare minutes. And there isn't much of praise, nor the stimulation of the excited response of an audience moved by your message. Your readers may not even remember your name. But if someone has found the Lord, or if someone has been helped to make a decision through the record of your experience, you have your reward.

If you have never written much except English themes and personal letters, you might like a few suggestions about how to go about this activity. We've assumed that you are a Christian and that you know something about your faith. Next, you need to know your reader. As you sit down to write, don't imagine that you are writing to millions of people. Think of a person you know, perhaps in your own church, who has a real need. How would you sit down and talk to her? What doctrine of the Word of God, if applied to her life, would solve her problem? Just a minute; don't give her the doctrine just yet. Perhaps her heart is too full right now for reason to appeal to her. She may say, "Yes; I understand, but" Can you think of an incident, your own or someone else's experience, where this truth you want her to see has operated—an example of the doctrines of God manifest in flesh? She is living in the realm of emotion right now, so you must meet her on the level of her emotions and then work back to her reason.

DIGGING AGAIN AT DOTHAN

(PART II)

BY JOHN REA

Associate Professor of Bible and Archaeology

In last month's article we discussed some of the discoveries at Dothan during the second season of excavation. Among these was the Hellenistic coin bearing in Greek letters the name "Antiochus the King." This coin, five Rhodian jar handles inscribed in Greek, and Hellenistic lamps indicated the existence of a Hellenistic colony at Dothan in the period 300-100 B. C.

A bowl of the identical type also found in Assyria from the time of Sargon II (722-705 B. C.) was described. The presence of this "palace-ware" bowl at Dothan suggests that Assyrian soldiers, who undoubtedly conquered Dothan during the last days of the kingdom of Israel (II Kings 17:4-5, 24), brought this object with them from their home near the Tigris River. The bowl indicates, then, that Dothan was occupied down to the time of about 700 B. C.

An Infant Jar Burial

In another part of this same Israelite level, but a little earlier (900-800 B. C.), Mr. Kelsey found the remains of an infant buried in a large storage jar which served as a coffin. On the child's ankle there was a bronze ring or anklet, and just outside the mouth of the coffin jar was a small jar for food, showing belief in a future life on the part of the contemporaries of Elisha (II Kings 6:13) nearly 3,000 years ago. This was a typical infant burial of the time, not a child sacrifice. It was found below the level of the dirt floor of a house, not in the foundation trench of a heavy stone wall, as was the case of a child skeleton found at Dothan in 1953.

Near the infant jar burial Mrs. Free uncovered the skeleton of a man who had suffered a violent death. His fists were still clenched, his head was twisted into an unnatural position, and his back was broken in two places. Dr. Free believes that this death and other evidences of violence and destruction are to be connected with the events recorded in the Old Testament historical books which tell of repeated invasions into northern Palestine in the period 900-700 B. C.

Digging down to the next floor level the excavators found broken pottery of the type common in Palestine in Iron Age I (1200-900 B. C.). Dothan is not mentioned in any of the records in Joshua or Judges. This silence on the part of the Scriptures may suggest that Dothan was not conquered by the tribes of Israel. The town may well have remained in Canaanite hands until the time of David or Solomon.

A Large Wine Bowl

The outstanding museum piece of the 1954 expedition came from the Iron Age I period, probably having belonged to Canaanite inhabitants. In Mr. Kelsey's area the handle of a large bowl was uncovered. As more and more handles appeared, it soon became evident that they had found a large multiple-handled crater, something like a punch bowl (fig. 1). When the broken pieces were glued together, it proved to have 14 handles around the outside, and to measure 16 inches in diameter. From large bowls such as this, the Canaanites, and later on the nobility at Samaria (Amos 6:6), drank wine at their feasts. The bowl was unusual because at their upper end four of the handles terminate in the stylized head and forepaws of an animal, bearing some resemblance to hyenas but perhaps meant for lions. Together with this crater had been stored another smaller crater with only eight handles, and seven other jars and bowls.

FIG. 1 George Kelsey is cleaning away the dirt from around a 14-handled bowl and other vessels from about 1200 B. C.

FIG. 2: Billy Kelsey is standing in a grain storage pit lined with plaster.

A Biblical "Barn"

Notice in figure 2 the circular structure, also from Iron Age I, inside of which was year-old Billy Kelsey. It is typical of the "barns" or garners of Scripture (Deut. 28:8; Prov. 3:10; Joel 1:17; Hag. 2:19; Matt. 3:12; 6:26; 13:30). After the grain had been threshed and winnowed it would be stored in carefully built pits lined with plaster. Perfectly dry, the underground storage pit would preserve the grain for years as well as conceal it from the attentions of robbers, enemy invaders, and even tax collectors. The one at Dothan was small, probably in the courtyard of a private house. Larger ones found at Gezer and Debir, still containing grain, were undoubtedly public granaries.

As in the previous year, much was unearthed at Dothan which confirms and enlarges our knoweldge of God's infallible Word.

HE'S GOT SHOES

With his head propped on one sofa arm and his feet on the other, big John Gallagher, middler, spied a shoe-selling ad as he thumbed a magazine.

"A job's a job," thought John, whose former prayers for rent money have been answered in spectacular ways, so he sent a letter.

Armed with slick mail-order posters, measurements, and prices, John came to school the next week and sold five pairs the first hour!

"Shoes!" says John. "You need 'em; I've got 'em!"

PLEASE PASS THE GRAMMARS

If Mike Volouski isn't at the next baseball game, you'll probably find him studying his favorite subjects—Semitic languages.

A sophomore at 19, the quiet lad from New Cumberland, Pa., already owns and studies a Hebrew grammar, has memorized the Syriac alphabet, and actually enjoys his Greek assignments from Dr. Boyer. In his spare time he reviews his Latin.

"But I prefer the Semitic languages," says Mike, "and would like someday to translate the Scriptures."

Until his five years are up, Mike will go on doodling Syriac hieroglyphics on scratch pads, notebooks, and blackboards. We'll look for your by-line, Mike, in the antiquities of the Irish!

COME TO ORDER, PLEASE

With a "One . . . two . . . three . . . ready . . . PLAY!" Eddie Smith and his 10-member pep band blared "On Wisconsin" as students swarmed into the lower auditorium for student chapel February 25. Announcements, Scripture reading by Chaplain Dean Fetterhoff, coupled with Jim Sweeton's songleading of "Redeemed," was followed by colored slides of the basketball team's trip east.

Leaping Ted Franchino and his scream solicitors perfected cheers for a game against Western Michigan that night. We should have been five points louder!

At the close of the program, Social Chairman Don Hocking offered a ten-dollar Herald bookstore gift certificate for anyone who knew the name of everyone in school. Nobody did, but everybody said, "Next time"

The basketball team ready to take to the road.

WHAT'S YOUR TYPE?

Armed with needles and empty bottles, 36 volunteer Red Cross workers sapped 109 pints of blood from students and townspeople last March 11 in the seminary's lower auditorium.

Seminary Juniors Barbara Hulse, R. N., and Grace Thompson, R. N., aided five Red Cross nurses at the tables. Mrs. Allen Wheeler helped the "palefaces," and gave the "weak and faint" whiffs of ammonia inhalant and brisk face rubs with wet towels.

Prof. Donald Ogden filled a bottle and sat up on the table. "Compared to previous donations, I don't feel so——" He got the "treatment." So did Harold Fuller, Mary Hooks, Wendell Kent, Ruth Moine, and Bill Tweeddale. Ken Russel also needed a nurse's arm to keep his chin off the floor, and Walt Blackwell had to be punched in both arms before nurses found enough blood to fill a bottle.

About Face!

By Elener Norris

Until August of last year I had no intention of attending Grace because it was too close to home. Last spring I applied at a Christian university, was accepted, and received a two-year scholarship to that school. I felt that the Lord was leading me there very definitely.

Then in July I underwent minor surgery that resulted in serious complications which necessitated another operation. Because the Lord did spare my life, I feel that He has some definite use for me. Due to slow recuperation, I wasn't able to travel the long distance to the school I planned to attend, but I felt that I should start my preparation toward whatever future the Lord has in store for me.

Now the only objection I had to Grace—its closeness to home, about 20 miles—became its greatest advantage. After prayerful consideration, I was sure that Grace College was the place for me this year. I hope I will be able someday to understand why the Lord led me to change my plans, but for now I am content to know that "all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

"SEMINARY S-P-R-E-A-D"

By RAY GINGRICH

Throughout the colleges and seminaries of the Christian world today is sweeping a dread malady called by some the "Seminary Spread," or seminarius spreadensis. This incapacitating disease is closely related to its cousins "Secretary's Spread" and "Middle-Aged Spread" and in these three forms is rapidly undermining the strength, health, and happiness of a large part of the American population. Its symptoms are shortness of breath, pains the region of the heart, difficulty in climbing steps, trouble in fitting into clothes, and difficulty in tying one's shoes. Its causes are too much good food and too little exercise. Its results are general drowsiness, lack of pep, slowed reactions, nervousness, various organic disturbances, an unhealthy mental and spiritual attitude, and many times an early death.

To Christians, this malady is important, since we are people who believe that the body, soul, and spirit make an organic unit in forming the person, as Dr. McClain clearly pointed out in the last Educational Number of the Herald. Thus a sickness or weakness of any of these three parts of the person affects the other two as well. Just as a sick spirit causes a poor mental attitude, so a sick body causes, many times, a negative spiritual and intellectual reaction. This unity of the three parts of the person plus the fact that Christians have been entrusted with the most urgent task possible, combine to force the realization upon us that we should keep all three in topnotch working order—the arduous pastorate, mission field, or everyday life is no place for either spiritual or physical weaklings.

"Preventive measures" on the wrestling mat at Grace.

As a student at Grace Seminary, therefore, I would like to express my appreciation to all the people who have shared in providing the athletic equipment for the school thus far. I'm sure that I express the general sentiment of the student body in this, since we feel keenly the necessity for a well-rounded Christian preparation, and the physical is extremely important. We cannot carry the message of Christ properly unless we are healthy in spirit, soul and body.

Thus I am happy to report that the inroads of "Seminary Spread" have been checked at Grace thus far by the generous help of friends, but the danger still remains ever present, since adequate facilities for treatment of this disease (e. g., gymnasium, etc.) are still needed. With addition of these facilities we may be able to make this dread name only a memory like that of diphtheria and smallpox.

COLLEGE CHOIR TOUR

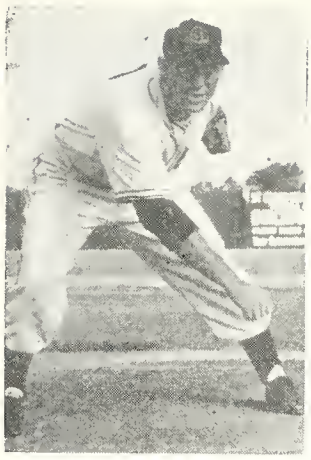
By DON OGDEN

The spring tour anticipated by the college choir has been described as a maiden voyage, and we might add that the party involved is still a very young maiden. After so many years with a predominantly male student body, there had been no attempt to form a mixed choir until last year, when the growing college at last provided us with enough young ladies to make such an organization possible. That choir enjoyed the privilege of participating in Christmas and Easter programs, as well as providing special music for the commencement exercises.

A new group of songsters took up the work of the choir this year with the intention of following the same program. Then the administration suggested the possibility of a choir tour, and the ambitious choraleers responded enthusiastically by immediately tripling their practice time in preparation for this expanded ministry for their school and for their Lord.

The 14 ladies, 8 men, and pianist who responded to this challenge have spent long hours of precious time, but have maintained their enthusiasm and have delighted the heart of their director with their willingness to make any sacrifice necessary to the success of the tour. We are anticipating 12 days of real blessing as we enter many of the churches of the East to sing the praises of our Lord and tell what His matchless grace has done for us.

The schedule for the spring tour is as follows:



Fri., Mar. 25	Lake Odessa, Mich.	8:00 p.m.
Wed., Mar. 30	Grace Seminary Chapel	9:15 p.m.
	Berne, Ind.	7:30 p.m.

A CHRISTIAN AND PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL

By DICK MESSNER, Seminary Senior

Some people have expressed doubt as to whether a Christian should play professional baseball. Upon my graduation from Wheaton College in the summer of '52, I was faced squarely with that problem. Several major-league ball clubs had expressed their interest in me as a pitcher. What was I going to do? The only thing to do, of course, was pray. I prayed fervently that the Lord would show me exactly what should be done in such a perplexing situation. One evening the New York Giants scout, Gene Thompson, came to our home and wondered if I'd reached a decision. I told him that I would be interested in signing a Giant contract if a "no-Sunday clause" were inserted, that is, a provision not requiring me to participate in or attend any ball games on Sunday. At first he was rather hesitant, but finally he agreed, and a contract with the New York Giants was drawn up. I was then sent to Sioux City, Iowa, the class "A" farm club of the Giants.

During the past two seasons of professional baseball my experiences have been both thrilling and profitable. The Lord has given me an opportunity to labor for Him in a field that is truly "white unto harvest." Professional baseball is not only a challenge from the physical standpoint, but also from the spiritual. As the season progresses I make it my business to talk to each of the fellows on the ball club individually about his soul. Ballplayers as a group are very indifferent and many times hostile to spiritual things, but when talking to them individually, you discover a deep hunger for the things of God.

This past summer I played with the St. Cloud, Minn., ball club in the Northern League. My brother, Bob, who is a sophomore this year in Grace College, came up to St. Cloud and got a job with a roofing company. Every spare moment during the week was spent in working on musical arrangements, while every Sunday was spent in gospel-team work. Needless to say, the Lord abundantly blessed. Baseball fans from all over that section came to hear God's Word, and I'm quite sure some of them had never been inside a church before. When the baseball team left on a road trip, Bob would speak to young people's groups, lead singspirations, and make contacts for Sunday meetings. The Lord even gave us an opportunity on two different occasions to hold chapel services in the Minnesota State Reformatory, which is located right near St. Cloud. It seemed as if every man in the prison was an ardent baseball fan and knew all about us before we even got there. In each cell there were headphones with which they listened to every ball game. I spoke briefly on I Timothy 4:8: "For bodily exercise profiteth [for a] little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." After the services many of the men expressed a desire to talk with us, but the chaplain was the only one permitted to do so.

Of course, our "religious activities" every Sunday caused a great deal of curiosity among the ballplayers. Many of the fellows came to see me and wanted to know what I talked about every Sunday. Questions like that gave me a wonderful opportunity to tell them the "good news" of Jesus Christ and to invite them to church. There were very many times, however, when things weren't so easy. For instance, nearly every Monday afternoon I'd come into the clubhouse and hear: "Well, here's 'Deacon Dick' again; he should feel well rested after his Sunday vacation." "Heard you were preaching again, 'parson.' Did you get anybody saved?" "Glad to have you back with us, 'Preacher'; we sure need lots of prayer." "Did you get a lot of Bible reading done yesterday, 'Deacon'?" Each remark would be followed by uproarious laughter and slaps on the back. At first, incidents like that really bothered me, but after a while the Lord enabled me to shrug them off and keep on witnessing for Him.

Over and over again during the course of the season I would get lonely and wish I could be back among Christian friends again. When you pitched your heart out and lost a close ball game, there were no sympathizers. After all, a person who takes religious seriously and prays to God before each game should never lose. The long 14- and 15-day road trips were especially trying, but the Lord always gave me that "peace of soul" just when it was needed. The verse to which I turned whenever I needed added strength and courage was Joshua 1:9—"Have I not commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed: for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest." Every time I turned to that wonderful verse I felt like I had new marching orders from the Captain of my salvation.

Whatever business you may be in, there will be trials and tribulations—times when you feel just like "giving up." But always remember: ". . . if God be for us, who can be against us?"

I Needed More Than Nurse's Training

By MARYBETH MUNN ('50)

"Who were the Samaritans that Philip went to preach to? Where did they come from?" "Was James the apostle and James in Acts 15 the same person?" "What was the difference between a Pharisee and a Sadducee?"

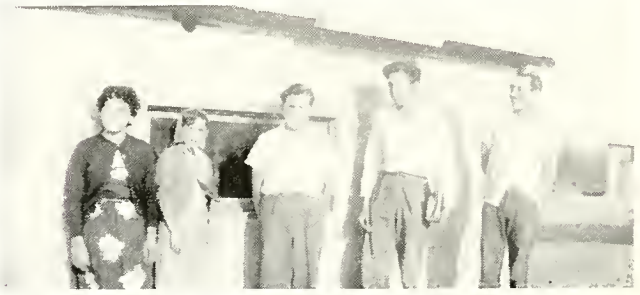
My first months at Bekoro were very busy months. The village at Beandje for the treatment of leprosy was already established before my arrival at Bekoro. Even before my trunks were unpacked, the leaders came to me with this request: "We don't want to just sit around taking medicine; we want to study. Will you have Bible class for us?" My understanding of Sango was so poor at that time that Mrs. Kennedy had to tell me what they were saying; yet what answer could I give them but yes?

During the day I would work at the dispensary treating the divers diseases, then in the evenings I plunged into preparing a study on Acts and looking up the answers to these and many other questions. You can well imagine how thankful I was to be able to go to my files of notes, taken during seminary days, and prepare my lessons from them.

Some people ask us why a nurse should bother to go to seminary before going to the foreign field. I don't know of a single nurse on our field who does not carry on a regular Bible-study class as well as her regular medical work. When we started our Bible training school at Bekoro, I prepared the lessons for and taught Old and New Testament Introduction, Bible Geography, and a study of Genesis. I never could have done that without my Christian Education training at Grace.

We can each praise the Lord for Grace Seminary because of its practical, thorough, and Spirit-led study of the Holy Scriptures.

Grace Training AND Mexican Missions



Ability to Evaluate and Catalog Doctrines Found To Be of Inestimable Value in Missionary Work Below the Border

By WALTER HAAG (Ex '51)

My studies at Grace Theological Seminary helped to crystallize and organize my thinking concerning spiritual things. The years of attendance in the Brethren Church had given a general understanding of God's Word, but as it wasn't necessary to pass that information on to others, my thinking was hazy and not organized. The courses at Grace helped me to evaluate and systematically catalog the blessed doctrine taught us in God's Word, and showed me how the Brethren Church was following closely these doctrines.

This help has been of inestimable value to my work in Mexico. Although I realize the first requirement is the love of God in the missionary's heart, yet organized and systematic thoughts concerning the teaching in God's Word are necessary for the Spirit to bring the sinner to Christ for salvation and then to ground him in the Word of God. This is especially true in Mexico, where most of the people are aware only that there are Catholics and Protestants. They suppose that all of the Protestants are of one and the same belief. Because of this, the cults and isms sway and sweep many into their ranks. Fundamental groups suffer greatly from the plague of isms that draw the untaught from their fold.

Perhaps the most important value of my training at Grace is being realized now as a Mexican Bible institute is being started to train the Mexican national to carry the Gospel to his own people. This is a challenging experience, and I am grateful to Grace Theological Seminary for its part in preparing me for the tasks that lie ahead in Mexico.

library. He said: "The little chairs and the books about fierce things." Try to picture the dimensions of your reader's life. Set him down in a chair that fits and tell him about things that will interest him fiercely. Our reader is a person of mind, emotions, and will, and we need to write to the whole person. God gave us grounds for appealing to the reason when He said, "Come now and let us reason together." But reason isn't enough. We must also meet the reader on the grounds of emotion. The emotions of the public are being exploited today and channeled into almost everything under the sun except Christian living. We should write, not to exploit emotions, but to seize upon them and channel them for the Lord.

In the Bible you can find some of the best examples of the simple, clear kind of writing you need to do. Remember the answer of our Lord when a certain young lawyer, willing to justify himself, asked, "Who is my neighbor?" The Lord answered in such a way that the record of this little incident has given us for all time a pattern of neighborliness: "A certain man, a certain man, went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which stripped him of his raiment, and wounded him and departed, leaving him half dead." You know the rest. Make your writing flesh and blood. Make abstract ideas interesting by showing them lived out in someone's experiences.

Remember, too, you aren't trying to put life into the Gospel. It is alive. Be careful not to shackle it, but show the meaning of the Gospel for the people and problems of our times.

THE TRUE CHURCH

By Don Ogden

The Apostle Paul wrote to the Corinthian church, "I hear that divisions exist among you." Today we sing in our churches,

"We are not divided,
All one body we."

These lines are true in actuality only if we get down to the spiritual truth of the Body. The hymn was written by Baring Gould to show that the Church of England was one, and not disrupted like the poor dissenters. Much to his surprise, the song began to appear in the hymnals of the Methodists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Baptists, and all the other "ists"; at the end of his life Gould confessed that the reception of his hymn had taught him that its true meaning was much deeper than he had originally intended.

"We are not divided,
All one body we."

situation which caused the depression is not removed at all. Whatever happiness they bring, everything else offered by the world, can only be very temporary. Jesus recognized the ability of the world to give a certain kind of peace, but he contrasted it with that which he came to bring. He said to his disciples: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" (John 14:27). Real peace comes to a troubled soul only when he is honest enough to face the sin that has robbed him of peace with God, and when he is willing to believe that 1,900 years ago Christ made "peace through the blood of his cross" (Col. 1:20).

Then, once such peace is experienced, he will find that the same God who gave him the knowledge of sins forgiven has also promised to fortify him against the vicissitudes of life. The Bible says: "Cast thy burden upon the Lord, and he shall sustain thee: he shall never suffer the righteous to be moved" (Ps. 55:22). Any person who is willing to do this can also "know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Rom. 8:28). It is not that all things he faces in life are good in themselves, but that all these circumstances are somehow bent by the mighty hand of God so that they will ultimately work out for his good. Such knowledge, when accepted by faith, is better than all the "happiness pills" in the world.

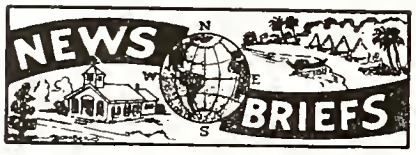
AKRON, OHIO. Dr. L. L. Grubb, secretary of the Brethren Home Missions Council, will be the speaker who will direct the fourth annual Christian Workers Conference at Akron Bible Institute during the week of April 11-15. Dr. Grubb is one of the founders of the Akron Bible Institute and served on the original faculty of the school in the department of evangelism.

LAKE ODESSA, MICH. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Darby celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house on Tuesday, March 15.



EVERETT, PA. March 27 is the day set for the mortgage-burning of the Grace Brethren Church with special services and special speakers featuring the occasion. Prayer is requested that the spiritual work will continue in their midst. Homer Lingenfelter is the pastor.

KITTANNING, PA. Mack A. Mahey, of Kittanning, began his service as director of music at the First Brethren Church on March 6, according to information received from Pastor William H. Schaffer. He was at one time associated with the Rodeheaver School of Music. William Schaffer and Stanley F. Hauser, of the Conemaugh Brethren Church, exchanged pulpits March 6.

W. ALEXANDRIA, OHIO. Nine men—members of the board of trustees, building committee, and the pastor, C. A. Flowers, of the Sampleville Brethren Mission—believe that God is still on the throne. On Saturday, Feb. 26, these nine men met to discuss which of three architests, all of equal reputation, should be chosen to solve their building problems. Without nominating, each member voted, and when the ballots were counted all nine men had voted for the same man. They say: "God still hears and answers prayer."

COVINGTON, VA. The First Brethren Church, of which Paul L. Mohler is pastor, climaxed their missionary conference rally March 13 with the dedication of their new parsonage.

GOSHEN, IND. Ground-breaking services were held Sunday afternoon, March 13, by the Grace Brethren Church, of which Herman Hein, Jr., is pastor. Dr. Herman W. Koontz, of Winona Lake, was the speaker. Building of the new church will be under way shortly by the Brethren Construction Company crew, which will bring two churches under construction by them at the same time.

WAYNESBORO, PA. Mrs. William Gray, wife of the pastor of the First Brethren Church, returned to her home from Johns Hopkins University Hospital on March 1 much improved. She will have to report back to Baltimore a few times for checkups. Pastor and Mrs. Gray express appreciation for the prayers and gifts during this time of trial.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Dr. Herman A. Hoyt, of Grace Seminary, and Prof. John Rea, of Grace College, expect to leave April 19 for a three-months tour of Europe and the Near East. They purpose to enhance their qualities as teachers in New Testament and Greek and Archaeology, respectively.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Rev. Clyde K. Landrum, Uniontown, Pa., secretary of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, and Dr. Paul R. Bauman, Winona Lake, Ind., with seven other persons, have been authorized by the Civil Air Patrol of the U. S. Air Force to travel by military aircraft to Washington on April 12. The purpose is to attend a joint meeting of the members of the National Chaplains Committee, Civil Air Patrol, and the directors of the various denominational endorsing agencies in America.

WHEATON, ILL. Youth for Christ has scheduled a national youth guidance conference to be held in Lincoln, Nebr., June 9-12 this year. It will bring together some of the nation's top Christian authorities on work with problem youth for the purpose of fellowship, exchange of ideas, and sharing with pastors, YFC directors, and Christian youth leaders valuable methods and practical procedures that can be used on the community level in helping young people.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. The new address of Rev. Victor H. Meyers is 10066 Del Mar Ave., Ontario, Calif. Please change Annual.

Three Emblems of Mockery

BY MARTIN GARBER
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

Jesus was, is, and ever will be, King! At His birth the angel announced: "The Lord God shall give him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end" (Luke 1:32b-33). The wise men came seeking Him who was born King of the Jews. When questioned as He stood before Pilate, He answered: "Thou sayest that I am king. To this end was I born" (John 18:37).

Jesus Christ was born king; He died king; and one day He will return to this earth as King of kings and Lord of lords.

As we open the Scriptures and read of the humiliation of the incarnate Son of God who was obedient unto death, we are horror-stricken to behold the King of the universe mockingly clothed in a kingly robe, holding a reed for a scepter, and wearing a crown of thorns, surrounded by subjects of Satan bowing before Him in mockery saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

It is therefore with great reverence that we proceed to examine these royal emblems of mockery as Satan tried his utmost to break Christ down short of the cross.

The Robe of Scarlet

The Romans detested the Jews and here was an opportune time to vent this hatred by making sport of their king. "And they stripped him, and put on him a scarlet robe" (Matt. 27:28). As we read these words we are reminded that a few years before, Christ stripped himself of His heavenly garments to take upon himself the form of a servant. For centuries the purple robe has been the emblem of royalty. As a man, Christ is mocked in having a scarlet robe put on Him by Satan-inspired men. While the kingly robe rightfully belonged to Him, Christ knew that as the Son of man He must first suffer before entering into His glory as the Son of God.

Before this, Satan had offered Christ a short-cut to the throne if He would fall down and worship him. The Lord refused the short-cut then, and now, clothed in the scarlet robe, He refuses to exhibit His regal power. But this is not the end. With the eyes of John the revelator, we may see into the future when the heavens will be opened and we behold One whose name is Faithful and True—the Word of God—coming to judge and to make war in righteousness. He will again be clothed in a scarlet robe—this one dipped in blood. This time no one will take it from Him. On His vesture will be written "King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

Christ bore the cruel mockings, and rejected the scarlet robe in Pilate's hall, for He knew that He must obtain His scarlet robe through death—dipped in blood, His own blood.

The Crown of Thorns

"And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon His head" (Matt. 27:29a). The soldiers continue their mocking. A king must have a crown! A crown of gold? A wreath? NO! A crown of thorns—the symbol of the curse. Thorns began because of sin. Who is not familiar with the words in Genesis 3:17: "Cursed is the ground for thy sake . . . thorns also . . . shall it bring forth to thee"? Sin-cursed men took the sign of the curse and pressed it down upon the brow of the only One who was able to bear the curse of sin in His own body on the tree. He bore the curse of sin for us in order that we might be freed from the curse. However, no more will He wear the crown of thorns, for with the eye of the revelator we see Him coming from heaven crowned with many crowns—heavenly diadems.

The Scepter—a Reed

"They put . . . a reed in his right hand: and they bowed the knee before him, and mocked, him, saying, Hail, King of the Jews!" (Matt. 27:29b). God promised Judah: "The sceptre shall not depart from Judah . . . until Shiloh come" (Gen. 49:10). Here is the second David, the son of Judah, to whom the scepter rightly belongs, is seen holding a reed as a scepter and mocked by sin-blinded men. In contempt, the reed—the scepter, symbol of authority — is snatched from the hand of the King and He is smitten on the head with it. When the rejected, the despised One, comes again, He will not use the scepter of love, but He will rule with a rod of iron.

Have you ever contemplated the mockery which our Lord bore for you? It was love for those wicked men who mocked Him that made Christ bear such reproach—love for them and love for us. Those today who are rejecting Him as King of their lives are mocking Him along with the Roman soldiers. The day is coming when all those who reject Him now will bow the knee and worship, just as did the soldiers, only then the King will be wearing His own blood-dipped scarlet robe, wearing the heaven-given crowns, and holding the scepter given Him by the Father. Then, instead of mocking, they will be crying for the rocks to hide them from the face of Him who sits on the throne.

Because He was obedient unto death, God has highly exalted Him, "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord" (Phil. 2:10-11). Christ is coming again—not to be mocked, but to reign, to be worshiped, to be obeyed, and to be served. Therefore, let us love Him, worship Him, serve and obey Him now as our King!

THREE LIES

BY CHARLES E. TABER
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

There are a good many lies in the Bible. This may startle you, but before you initiate excommunication proceedings against this writer, let me explain myself. The lies in the Bible are quotations either of word or deed of others than the author. Every word that God speaks is true, but not every word or work of man, and certainly not every word or work of Satan. The fact that the words were pronounced, or that the deed was done, is true. Their content is not always so. Among others, there are at least three lies in connection with our Lord's sufferings.

JUDAS BETRAYS

One of the 12 chosen by Jesus was the final instrument of His death. In what way was the betrayal of Judas a lie? Briefly, it was a lie because it was not in the power of Judas Iscariot, man or devil incarnate, to deliver Jesus up to death. Our Lord was "delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God" (Acts 2:23). Where then was Judas' guilt? Where the stain on the priests' hands? It was in the desire and intention of their hearts, for "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer" (I John 3:15).

Hate is murder; therefore Judas was guilty of murder. But it was not his hate that caused the death of Christ, but Christ's love for us. Until His hour came, nothing could kill Him. When His hour came, nothing could keep Him from the cross. One little incident shows how completely the hour of death was in God's hand. The priests had decided not to do the deed until after the feast (Matt. 26:5). But in the upper room Jesus unmasked Judas and forced his hand (John 13:27). Even in His death, our Lord was sovereign. Judas' betrayal was a lie, and the 30 pieces of silver were unearned.

PETER DENIES

Unlike Judas, Peter was really one of the Lord's own, chosen and called for a great ministry, and the Lord knows them that are His. Of course the Lord recognized Peter's human weakness and predicted the denial (Matt. 26:31-34). But Peter really loved his Lord passionately. Twice he had uttered words of inspired truth about Christ—once to recognize Him as Christ "the Son of the living God" (Matt. 16:16), and once to express His total dependence on Jesus' words as the only source of eternal life (John 6:68).

To Peter had been granted, along with James and John, an especial closeness to the Lord. To him had been granted to see the one manifestation on earth of Christ's glory—the Mount of Transfiguration. It was his very zeal and love for Christ that led him to do several of the things for which he was rebuked (Matt. 16:22-23; John 13:6-9; 18:10-11). It was his love that brought him as far as the high priest's court when others fled.

Peter's great sin was a dependence on the flesh to accomplish the desires of the spirit, and he failed. At the taunt of a little girl, his courage fled. How well has Morgan said: "Here then was a man who believed in Jesus, who loved Him with a great heart, or he had never followed Him to that court; denying his faith, and the denial was a lie; denying his love, and the denial was a lie." Thank God that repentance came, and that "the final thing is not the denial, but the tears."

THE PRIEST'S BURIAL

Of course the priests did not do the actual burying; the loving hands of Joseph and Nicodemus did that, preparing the body hastily with spices and putting it in a nearby tomb so that it would not be exposed on the High Sabbath. But the priests did have a part. After it was all over, they suddenly remembered that "the deceiver" had said, "After three days I will rise again" (Matt. 27:63). What an alarming thought! Suppose the disciples came and stole the body, pretending that the prediction had been fulfilled! The thought so disturbed them that they went to Pilate, High Sabbath or no High Sabbath, to demand a guard so that there should be no further nonsense.

After hearing them, Pilate said: "Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can" (Matt. 27:65). Oh, the unconscious irony of it! Here were mere men setting out to bind in His death the Prince of Life! Yes; they made it as sure as they could, but not all that man or Satan could do could hold Him, for it had been written long before: "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption" (Ps. 16:10). Therefore God raised Him up, "Because it was not possible that he should be holden of it [death]" (Acts 2:24).

Satan tried to surround the death and burial of Christ with lies—trying to get away with the myth of man's power over Christ, trying to make credible the myth of his own power over Christ's own. Judas, inspired of Satan, betrayed Jesus, but did not deliver Him up to His death. He died voluntarily. Peter, tempted of Satan, denied Christ, but bitterly repented the lie and was henceforth strong in the Spirit. The priests, led of Satan, tried to bind Christ in His death, but only succeeded in proving beyond the shadow of a doubt the supernatural character of His resurrection. Praise God, He is still sovereign, and He still knows them that are His!

Three Days of Burial

BY ROY SNYDER
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

The three days of Christ's burial can be considered in three ways: His burial in relation to His enemies, to His friends and disciples, and to himself. Not much has been written about the actual three days of burial. There are accounts, however, of the events connected with His death and events after His resurrection. From these we can learn just what took place during His time in the tomb.

What was the feeling among the enemies of Jesus? They scoffed and mocked Him on the cross, saying, "Save thyself—come down from the cross." They, like the unbelieving and scoffing multitudes of today, did not understand the reason for His death. Their conclusion was: He died a martyr's death; He died without a cause. Death was the end! He was just another Jew as far as they were concerned; He died, and was buried like all men.

There was, though, some uncertainty among His enemies, especially the chief priests and Pharisees. Matthew 27:62-66 tells us that they wanted to make sure none of His claims came true. Some remembered His words: "For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth" (Matt. 12:40). They sealed the stone before the tomb and set a watch there. They took the utmost care, supported by the power of Rome, to prevent any theft or deception by His followers. They could not have expected an actual rising from the dead or they would have known a seal and guard could not prevent it.

To Christ's friends and disciples, His death meant failure. They had hoped He would be the One "to deliver Israel." They had forsaken their nets to follow Him. Now their visions of that glorious calling had disappeared as a mirage on a desert. The days of burial were days of sadness and fear for them. Sadness because their Leader had died, and fear that they might be next. They were days of unbelief and uncertainty, for even when they heard the news of His resurrection, they doubted (Mark 16:13-14).

On the other hand, they, like the chief priests and Pharisees, recalled His words when He walked among them. In spite of His defeat in death, He was to them "a prophet mighty in deed and word." There was among them some perplexity of heart and an expectant hope of something else to take place.

While Christ's enemies were rejoicing and His followers were sad, where was He? Ephesians 4:9 tells us that He was in the lower parts of the earth. He died a physical death. It had to be a physical death if we are to believe that "he by the grace of God tasted death for every man." Physical death is the separation of the body from the soul and spirit. This separation took place when Christ died, and continued three days until His resurrection.

After He died upon the cross, His body was laid in the tomb. He descended in Spirit into the lower parts of the earth. There He made a proclamation to the dead: "Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust that he might bring us to God" (I Pet. 3:18-19). This was a message of joy and victory for the righteous, but one of doom for the wicked. Nothing whatsoever is said about another chance for the doomed to be saved. The presence of His Spirit in Hades during the time of His burial brought hope to the Old Testament saints, whom He released from captivity when He arose.

His soul did not remain in Hades, as Peter declares in Acts 2:27: "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell [Sheol of the Old Testament], neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption." His soul was not left in Hades (vs. 31), but after three days He was resurrected from the dead.

Christ's death did not stop His usefulness. He still ministered during the three days of His burial, proclaiming to some, deliverance; to others, doom.

Our Saviour

BY EVA LEIDY
Nanty Glo, Pa.

They left Him alone in the garden,
That sorrow-filled garden of prayer;
They left Him heartbroken and longing
For His loved ones who should have been there.

Then they went their way, being careless;
Tired and weary, they lay down to sleep.
They left Him alone in the garden,
There to pray and His long vigil keep.

Could we realize for a moment
How He pleaded and prayed for us there,
We never would leave our dear Saviour
All alone in the garden of prayer.

THREE CLASSES OF PEOPLE

The Romans (Soldiers)

Close to the temple in Jerusalem, and connected to it by two stairs, was the fortress of Antonia, manned by a Roman garrison. As the Feast of the Passover drew nigh, an armed cohort of between four hundred to six hundred men was detailed to guard the temple day and night.

And so it was to the captain of this cohort that the chief priests and Pharisees applied for a guard to arrest the Saviour. Armed with swords and staves, the latter used by Pilate for breaking up riots, the Roman soldiers, accompanied by a "multitude," marched through the dark streets of Jerusalem, down into the valley and across the Kidron, seeking with their swords and staves the King of kings, with their feeble lanterns and torches the Lord of light.

Yet these same brave Roman soldiers, beholding the Lord in the Garden of Gethsemane and hearing Him say, "I am he," recoiled "backward and fell to the ground." Recovering, and binding their prisoner, they returned to Jerusalem, where they became witnesses of the series of indignities, and took part in the brutalities inflicted upon the person of the Saviour, first before the high priest, then before Pilate, and finally culminating in that reviling scene of gross vulgarity as the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the common hall, put on Him the scarlet robe, the crown of thorns, and in His hand the reed; then mocked Him, spit on Him, and smote Him on the head, impelled perhaps not from hatred of Him personally as much as against Him as a representative of the hated, despised Jews.

Detailing then, as the custom was, four soldiers to each cross and the whole under the command of a centurion, Jesus was led forth, bearing His cross, to the place of the skull, called Golgotha, where He was crucified. There the soldiers parted His raiment, the headgear, the outer cloaklike garment, the girdle, and the sandals, one to each soldier; then cast lots for the remaining article of His poor worldly inheritance, the seamless, woven inner garment.

And so at the foot of the cross the soldiers sat, drinking and jesting, until darkness came over the whole land, hearing the last words of our Lord on the cross, and then the final cry, "with a loud voice," as He gave up the ghost—a cry, not as one dying, but as One who had encountered death, not as conquered, but as the conqueror. It was this cry that caused the Roman centurion to say, "Truly this man was the Son of God," a confession removed only a step from personal faith in Him whose sufferings he was witnessing as the representative of the ruling world power—a step since taken by millions the world over as they have witnessed the sufferings of the Lord on their own behalf.

The Jews (Multitude)

Typical of the multitudes that first thronged by the thousands to hear the Lord in the cities and in the wilderness, then by the "very great multitude" that accepted the Lord at His triumphal entry into Jerusalem and spread their garments in the way, a multitude going before and a multitude following, crying, "Hosanna to the Son of David," so that "all the city was moved."

Then, because of this acceptance by the multitude, the chief priests and scribes sought how they might kill Him, for they feared the multitude, because they took Him for a prophet, and so it was that Judas "promised and sought opportunity to betray him unto them in the absence of the multitude." However, present at the betrayal, accompanying the Roman soldiers, was a great multitude from the chief priests and elders of the people, of whom Jesus asked: "Are ye come out as against a thief with swords and staves for to take me? I sat daily with you teaching in the temple, and ye laid no hold on me." So the fickle crowd was gradually swayed and influenced by their leaders until it was the "whole multitude of them that arose, and led him unto Pilate," and there they began "to accuse him," and to cry, "Crucify him, crucify him."

When Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing, he washed his hands before the multitude, and on Pilate's profession of innocence, all the people answered, "His blood be on us, and on our children." Then he "released Barabbas unto them, and when he had scourged Jesus, he delivered him to be crucified." As Jesus was led through the streets of Jerusalem, He was followed by "women which also bewailed and lamented him." These cries of pity and sympathy from the women of Jerusalem reminded the Lord of how at His triumphant entry, on beholding the city, He wept over these daughters of Jerusalem. Now as He left it for the last time, they wept over Him, though for different reasons.

The Christians (Disciples)

Having traced the two classes of unbelievers—the soldiers and the multitudes—through the events of Calvary, we turn now to that final

THE THREE WOUNDS OF CHRIST

By LESTER W. KENNEDY, Missionary, French Equatorial Africa

Wounds! Suffering! These words cause a shudder to run through our whole body. Human sufferings are beyond words to adequately describe. What will be our experience as we meditate upon the three wounds of our blessed Lord and Saviour. May we approach this subject with awesome fear and love for Him who suffered such untold agony that "his visage was so marred more than any man."

"The path of the Holy One of Israel becomes increasingly dark and obscure. The night-piece of His passion carries us from the region of the tragical into that of the appalling. His sufferings increase to torture, His disgrace to infamy; and the words of Isaiah, 'He was despised and rejected; and we hid as it were our faces from him,' are completely realized" (Krummacher).

The Crown of Thorns

After the momentous decision had been made at Gabbatha, and the conviction of "high treason" passed upon the King of kings, our Sovereign was removed from the public eye into the inner courtyard of the palace. There He was given over into the unmerciful hands of the executioners, who, after having barbarously scourged Him, in whom was to be found no guide, planted a circlet made of long-spiked thornbush upon His noble brow. Thorns—the very symbolism of sin and suffering—are dramatically pressed into the King's brow with trickles of blood as a reminder to all mankind that "the King of the Jews," to whom the Magi presented gifts of majestic splendor, was here bearing the curse and anguish of sin in place of His own.

Wearing a wornout robe, a fragile reed in His hand, and a crown of thorns on His brow, these uncouth men of yore commence to spend their thirst for cruelty in the most poignant mockery upon this majestic Person. Behold, the miscreants bow the knee in mock reverence and in ridicule cry, "Hail, King of the Jews!" "Ha! Ha! What a king you be with a thorn circlet for a diadem, a bruised reed for a scepter, and cast-off robe for courtly splendors. What day will you ever reign as king?"

There is pathos and beauty in Christ's crowning with thorns. This satanic insolence is really a prediction of glory, for the King whom they refused "shall suddenly come to his temple." "Even so, come, Lord Jesus."

The Imprint of the Nails

Pilate, after casting aside all form of conscience, delivers the Man into the outstretched hands of the crowd. In one mad rush to accomplish their devilish deed, they push and jostle themselves out of the city's confines until they stand upon the summit of Mount Calvary—Golgotha. What a horrifying place—watered only by the blood of criminals and enriched by the bones of rebels. There they led the Lamb of God to the slaughter. He, who opened not His mouth before His shearers, was given a sedative by the kind "Women's League for Alleviating Suffering of Jerusalem," but upon being refused by the Sufferer, anxious hands reached forth to rid Him of His vestures.

Do human words adequately describe the humiliation of the Prince of Glory? Do we not gasp as we see those hands roughly fling our Redeemer upon the cruel cross? Dare we say more, for even the gospel writers of old pen the scene before us in one resounding phrase—"and they crucified him"—no more and no less.

Lester Kennedy

Those nails, forged in hell's foundry, are pressed into the outstretched palms and with one blow are driven through for our redemption. He, the "blessed and only Potentate," willingly extends His hands in humble submission and as the first twinge of pain flashes through Him He seals our redemption with His blood. What a price—the print of the nails!

The Wound of the Lance

Christ, after bearing the most excruciating physical and moral sufferings, sends forth His soul into yonder world, and death spreads his sable wings over the sufferer. The priests and scribes, accustomed to strain at a gnat and swallow a camel, think not of the heinous blood-guiltiness they have incurred but of the prevailing Jewish custom, to inter the bodies of the crucified before night. Jehovah himself had thusly commanded, and had placed a dreadful curse upon one who was hanged on a tree.

Having broken the limbs of the two malefactors and administered to them a final coup de grace, they turn their attention upon the Testator of the new covenant, but death had already marked its victim so that the breaking of His legs was thought needless. This was confirmed as one of the soldiers with his spear pierces His side, which alone would have caused His death.

As the beloved disciple bears witness to the wounding by the lance, he writes, "And forthwith came there out blood and water." As the lance tore its way, our surety was being secured once and forever. The blessed joy of not only knowing our sins are forgiven but also that the Son's legacy is securely sealed and tested for our peace and prosperity! The Testator's blood has adequately met the divine jurisprudence for bequesting to "His own" all the fullness of Sonship; and the water of the Word is more than efficient in cleansing and purifying His jewels.

Whittier, Calif.

Three hundred eighty-three present for Sunday school on a regular Sunday for Community Brethren Church is our new record. Three years ago Christmas Day we moved into our new church. Last year we completed three new classrooms, and this year we need three more. Thanks to southern California's sunshine, we have classes meeting on the lawn all around our buildings. In our completely departmentalized school we have 45 officers and teachers.

Trained teachers are the Sunday school's greatest need. We have just concluded a one-week leadership training school, with Rev. Harold Etling as teacher. Forty-two were enrolled, and we used the new Brethren Sunday-school course on administration. The teacher is tops, the course is excellent, and the result is enthusiastic teachers ready to work. Many of our teachers are young Christians, and most of them are young in years.—Glenn E. Miller, Sunday-school superintendent.

Covington, Ohio

The meeting at Covington, Ohio, First Brethren Church ended February 6. As the services closed, I couldn't help but go back to the prayer room and thank God for a real revival.

Twelve precious souls publicly confessed Christ as Saviour, nine rededications were forthcoming, and two young people gave themselves for full-time service. However, this is only part of what was done during this campaign—God alone knows the future of this group.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

We praise the Lord for opening the windows of heaven and for pouring out a blessing on us here at Covington. Brother Smith worked hard for two weeks with us. He preached the Word faithfully, and his prayer life is consistent. He proved to be an effective calling partner.

A father, mother, and three children (young people) were baptized and have applied for membership in the church. We are most happy to add that the revival did not end with our Brother "Bill's" departure.—James Young, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Phoenix, Ariz.

The First Brethren Church had the thrill of its short existence January 9-16 with an eight-day "Christ and Home" Bible conference with the Home Missions Council secretary, Dr. L. L. Grubb, assisted by his gracious wife in the showing of the pictures. The whole church, and both the immediate community and the Christian community of Phoenix rejoiced in the rich fellowship around the Word, and around the Holy Land by camera. Youth for Christ borrowed him for a Saturday night. The Young Married Class was well represented at all meetings and at one meeting came in a body.

The last Sunday morning witnessed an outpouring of the Holy Spirit as 15 members of the church dedicated themselves anew to the great and privileged task, an unfinished one, that the church here faces.—J. C. "Bill" McKillen, pastor.

In Memoriam

Mrs. Catherine Shaw, 80, departed to be with Christ March 2. She was the oldest charter member and a deaconess of the Grace Brethren Church of Juniata, Altoona, Pa.—J. Ward Tressler, pastor.

Mrs. Grace P. Srack, 86, went to be with the Lord Feb. 26 following a prolonged illness. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Alan Pearce and Dr. Charles Mayes.

Sister Srack, together with her husband, La Vosier E. Srack, united with the church in August 1913, following its organization by the late Dr. L. S. Bauman. Mr. Srack, a deacon in the church, preceded Mrs. Srack in death on Sept. 20, 1920.

In 1922 Sister Srack was ordained to the office of deaconoess. She spent two years on the home-mission field, teaching Bible at the Lost Creek, Ky., Brethren school. Later, under the Evangelistic and Bible Study League (organized by a few laymen, including Dr. Henry V. Wall and N. C. Nielsen, of this church, and some ministers) Mrs. Srack conducted Bible conferences in various Brethren churches throughout the land.

Besides her gift as a Bible teacher, Mrs. Srack frequently wrote poetry, among which are two songs, "The Faithful Old Church by the Sea" (her own beloved home church), which was written to the tune of "The Little Brown Church in the Wildwood," and "Glorious Someday," to the tune of "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Both songs have frequently been printed in our church calendars and yearbooks.—Dr. Charles Mayes, pastor, First Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif.

group, the disciples. These men were Christ's soldiers, clad in fishermen's garb and with the brogue of the Sea of Galilee. They proved, when endued with power at Pentecost, to be a far more militant and effective band of soldiers than any cohort of Caesar's soldiers. These men, entrusted with the message of salvation for a lost and dying world, were among those who fled at the approach of the soldiers in the garden, denied their Lord when questioned by a damsel, a maid, and a manservant; were staggered and were in large part unable to understand the momentous events of that night.

The two on the way to Emmaus being typical of the disciples, they were a sad and discouraged group with their hope of a Redeemer of Israel gone, made radiant only as they beheld the risen and ascended Christ, made bold and effective witnesses for God only as they were indwelt by the Third Person of the Godhead! Radiant Christians and effective witnesses are the greatest need of the world today to reach those that jeer and mock our Lord, and those that turn in unbelief from Him—He whose blessed return we anticipate day by day. Even so, come, Lord Jesus.

JESUS SAID:
"I AM THE RESURRECTION, AND THE LIFE: HE THAT BELIEVETH IN ME, THOUGH HE WERE DEAD, YET SHALL HE LIVE:"

John 11:25

FOREIGN MISSION NUMBER

The BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD

APRIL 2, 1955

Life From the Dead!

There was never an enterprise which seemed more completely at an end than did that of Jesus on the last Old Testament Sabbath. When He was buried, there was not a single human being that believed He would ever rise again.

The breakdown of the disciples had been complete. When He was arrested, "they forsook Him and fled." What remained for them but to return to their homes and their fishing nets as disappointed men?

Jesus had, indeed, foretold His sufferings, death, and resurrection. But they had never understood these sayings; they forgot them or gave them an allegorical turn which, after His death, yielded them no comfort whatever. The women came to the sepulcher on the first day of the week, not to see it empty, but to embalm His body for its long sleep. Mary ran to tell the disciples, not that He was risen, but that the body had been taken away and laid she knew not where. When the disciples were met together "they mourned and wept." There never were men more utterly disappointed and dispirited.

How is it to be accounted for that in a few days these very men were full of confidence and joy, their faith in Jesus had revived, and Christianity had a far greater vitality than ever before? The disciples say the reason was that Jesus had risen, and that they had seen Him. They tell us about their visits to the empty tomb, and how He appeared to Mary Magdalene, to the other women, to Peter, to the two on the way to Emmaus, to 10 of them at once, to 11 of them at once, to James, to the 500, and so forth.

Are these stories credible? They might not be, if they stood alone. But their reports of the resurrection of Christ were accompanied by the indisputable resurrection of Christianity. And how is the latter to be accounted for except by the former?

The remarkable thing is that when the disciples resumed their faith in Christ they were no longer pursuing worldly ends, but intensely spiritual ones; they were no longer expecting thrones, but persecution and death; yet they set about their new work with an ardor of devotion and a faith in results which they had never shown before.

What effected this change? The disciples say it was the resurrection and the sight of the risen Christ. But their testimony is not the only proof that He rose. The incontestable proof is the change itself—the fact that they had suddenly become courageous, hopeful, believing, wise, and equipped with resources sufficient for the task before them.

It is a happy thing that the resurrection is capable of such a proof, for if Christ be not risen, our faith is vain; but if He be risen, then the whole of His miraculous life becomes credible, for this was the greatest of all miracles. He was "declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4).

The Easter season, when once again we commemorate the fact that Jesus Christ rose from the dead, is a fitting time in which to place your trust in Him who said: "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die" (John 11:25-26). DISTRICT MISSIONARY RALLIES

We are praising the Lord for the appreciative response from the various districts where the foreign-missionary rallies have been completed. They began in southern California on February 6 and will conclude in May. Those having a part in these rallies at the present time are: Brethren Barnard, Churchill, Edmiston, Kliever, and Miss Marybeth Munn. Pray for them and for the churches participating. The schedule ahead is as follows:

March 28-April 10	East
April 13-17	Southern Ohio
April 18-24	Indiana
April 25-May 1	Northern Ohio
May 2-8	Michigan
May 9-15	Iowa
May 16-22	Midwest

NEW STAFF MEMBER

The Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church is happy to announce the addition of another member to its staff in the person of Rev. Clyde K. Landrum. Brother Landrum will serve as the assistant to the General Secretary, and will probably assume his new duties some time this coming summer. A complete announcement will be made at a later date.

Our Risen Lord

O risen Lord, in Thee are all our hopes.
In Thee our certainties;
In Thee doth rest the title deed of all
Our rich securities.

Through Thee, and through Thy death and sacrifice
Were we washed white as snow.
Hadst Thou not risen, we were lost indeed—
No other way we know.

By Thee were wiped away the tears we shed
At graves where loved ones slept.
Thou bindest up our bleeding, broken hearts,
And daily we are kept.

To Thee our joyful songs of praise arise,
Our hearts are lifted high;
Our eyes of faith discern Thee through the clouds
Which dim our earthly sky.

With Thee! O blessed Lord, the quick tears start!
Were ever works like these,
That we shall be with Thee, our Lord, throughout Endless eternities!

It's in Your Hands

In this season of foreign-mission ingathering in our Brethren churches, we are reminded again that in a very real sense our whole foreign-missionary program is in your hands. Ours is not a "vested" interest; we are not endowed; we have no great philanthropists supporting us. Only as we receive from your freewill offerings can we send out and support foreign missionaries.

Our missionaries, those on furlough and those on the various fields, graciously cooperate in making known the opportunities and challenges, as well as our plans and needs. We are utterly dependent upon you people for the support of our many missionaries serving in foreign lands. As Aaron and Hur upheld the hands of Moses, it is your privilege to uphold their hands as they proclaim the Gospel in foreign lands.

We have not attempted to cry, "Wolf, wolf," when there is no need. By withholding your prayers and your gifts you could close, or at least greatly curtail, our work in one year. By increasing your personal giving to foreign missions and by encouraging new supporters you can expand our program to meet the challenges which our missionaries have presented.

We do not have current expense reserves. As you give, we grow; as you fail to give, we curtail. Please enable us to grow, not just for the sake of growing, but in order that more of the one million to two million people available to our missionaries may have the privilege of hearing the gospel message. Pray with us that the Lord will enable more to give and others to give more.

What, No Elephants?

By Miss Marian Thurston, Bekoro, Africa

Some of the animals around Bekoro must have had a conference last weekend and decided the Bekoro nurse didn't have enough to do. Besides all the routine treatments and leper treatments, I had four different accidents.

Monday morning started as usual. I made rounds at the hospital from 6 till 7. At 6:40 the old tire rim, with the help of an iron bar and Mrs. Kennedy, rang out. At 7 my class in the Book of Acts, with 46 Bible-school students, began. At 7:45 I returned to the dispensary to teach a lesson from the Word of God to those who awaited treatment. It was about 8:30 when routine work got under way. About 9, however, an African ambulance came walking in—this ambulance was a blanket between two poles and carried by eight men. I inquired as to what had happened—a man had been hurt while hunting buffaloes. Three large wounds, which laid open both thighs, were bleeding. After about an hour of stitching, he was taken to the ward building.

Tuesday went as planned. Wednesday was leper day, so I was gone all morning to the leper dispensary at Beandje.

Thursday morning about 6 a truck drove in. It was the Administrator, but he did not come to the house—he went to the dispensary. He had with him a native woman who had been attacked by a lion while she was sleeping in her hut. She had three marks from the claws of the lion—two rather deep ones on the side of the neck, and one through the nose and mouth. It had only been a few hours since she had been hurt, but her face was so swollen she could not open her eyes. After medical treatment she was also taken to the ward building.

Friday was the day that the French doctor wanted to examine leper patients, students, and those who work for the mission. So I had decided that I would close the hospital since my native nurses would not be there.

About 7 Friday morning another truck drove in—again the Administrator was driving. With him was a French fellow who is overseer of a chain of stores out here. Both jumped out of the truck, and the overseer didn't seem to be hurt too badly, but he said a leopard had attacked him. He had on a leather jacket, but this was like paper to the leopard's huge teeth. After we took his jacket off we discovered about 20 different holes and teeth marks as the leopard had sunk those teeth in at least twice. Many of the holes went into the bone and the flesh was turned almost inside out.

I thought: "This looks like an interesting case—let us call two specialists, six surgery nurses, an anesthetist, and take him to surgery immediately. Stop dreaming! You're in Africa and even your native nurses are gone for the day."

But in Africa you soon learn to do the best you can with what you have. He was here for about two and one-half hours; then the Administrator took him to Bozoum and on to the government hospital at Bouako.

He had shot the leopard in poor light the night before, but he had only wounded it. When the natives called the storekeeper the next morning, they said it was a hyena and it was in the tall grass nearby. There is a difference between going in the grass for a hyena and a leopard, but after you're there and it is coming for you, you can't stop and argue that it's a leopard and not a hyena. He shot twice as it was charging, but evidently missed it. So he wrestled with it for a few minutes—they were both on the ground with the leopard trying to get his throat. One of the natives who was with him threw a spear, hitting the leopard about an inch above the eye and sinking into the skull about two inches. It was this spear that saved the storekeeper's life.

An African ambulance—there are several variations.

This leopard was captured!

The last thing I want to write about is to me worse than the first. A middle-aged woman came in with a large gash in her lip—swollen, red, painful. What came in contact with this lip—not an animal in the bush, but the teeth of another woman! I didn't ask what the fight was about, but it was one of two things—over one man or over a pot of beer. You say, "Oh, those terrible, wild, African women!" Read your newspapers! Are the civilized white women in America any better? What two things do they fight over?

The native that was hurt by the buffalo accepted Christ—he promised if the Lord would raise him up, he would be faithful. The others have made no profession of faith, but pray for us, white and native nurses alike, that we will be faithful witnesses for Christ as opportunities arise.

OUR CHRISTIAN DAY SCHOOL IN MACAPA, BRAZIL

By Edward D. Miller

What we believe to be a real step forward in the work here in Macapa was taken Sunday, January 30, 1955, when our first Christian day school was inaugurated. We have been planning and working toward this event ever since our return to the field last October. It is not necessary to point out the advantages of such a school as this in the work of evangelizing and building up the church; however, I would like to mention one or two.

First of all, in a land where almost two out of every three people are uneducated or have very little formal education, our school is indeed welcome. Of course, our first and most important aim is to help educate and train our believers' children in a sound Christian atmosphere. This is possible because we have two very capable Christian girls from Belem as teachers. Then, too, our aim is to not only meet the standards set up by the division of education here in this territory, but to surpass them if possible.

At the present time we are offering the "primary course," which consists of five grades. Along with this we teach the boys and girls Bible verses and choruses and memory work connected with their Bible studies. All of the children are required to study the Bible, although half of our students come from homes that are definitely not evangelical. Our enrollment has now reached 65 and more are coming every day, seeking information about our school and the course that we are teaching. We will soon be forced to turn away children because of lack of space and teachers.

Our Escola Evangelica, as we call it in Portuguese, is a wooden structure covered with aluminum. We have two classrooms with desks for 20 students in each room. The "wall" between the two classrooms may be removed so that there is one large room available for use for school programs. Then there is a room with sanitary facilities for the teachers to live in. Besides this there is a large back porch where we can prepare midmorning lunches for the children These lunches consist mostly of bananas and milk. This is necessary when so many of our children come from homes that have so little; often they come to school after having just a cup of black coffee for breakfast.

About half of the students study in the morning and

The Silent Witness

By Donald E. Bishop, Rio Cuarto, Argentina

There have been some very important questions asked of the people in Rio Cuarto in past months—questions which they may not have to answer now, but which they will have to answer in the days ahead. Posters, or carteles, as they are called here, have been used of the Lord to witness concerning His Word. These carteles are put up at night by the young men of the church. They have to be put up after 11 p. m. or the people will destroy them before the glue has a chance to dry. They are put on the walls of various buildings about the city. The business firms of the city also use this method of advertising. The carteles need to be stamped by the municipal authorities before they can be put up. This stamp also contains a date which signifies that the cartel is not to be covered up by another cartel until after this date. To date we have put up four different carteles.

The first cartel was entitled, "What Do the Evangelical Christians Believe?" Under this headline were stated the facts which the evangelical Christians believe.

The second cartel was put up the night before the religious holiday here commemorating the Apostle Peter and the Apostle Paul. It was entitled, "Listen to the Apostles, St. Peter and St. Paul." Under this heading were quoted two verses of Scripture—one from the words of the Apostle Peter in Acts 4:12: "Neither is there salvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved"; the other from the words of the Apostle Paul in Acts 16:31: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved."

The third cartel that was put up was entitled, "Where Will You Spend Eternity?" There are two destinations in eternity—one for the saved and one for the unsaved. Only the Lord Jesus Christ is able to save. This was the message that this cartel contained, along with Scripture quotations.

The fourth cartel was used for the advertising of the revival meeting that was to be held at our church. It was an invitation to the people to come to hear the unadulterated truth of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ.

We praise the Lord for the opportunity of putting up these carteles and we trust that they will result in much fruit for Him. Will you pray with us that they may be used of the Lord to bring many precious souls to a saving knowledge of Jesus Christ?

the rest come in the afternoon. Using all of the desks in each classroom, we could accommodate as many as 80 students (40 in the morning and 40 in the afternoon). But, of course, this is not possible since some of the grades have more than others. Pray with us that we might have the wisdom needed in dealing with all of the many problems that will arise in such a new venture as this.

Sunday, January 30, our school was inaugurated with appropriate services in the afternoon; there were over 200 in attendance. Many of the leading citizens were present, as well as believers from other evangelical churches in Macapa. We believe that with the opening of this Christian day school here in Macapa we will have an opportunity to reach with the Gospel many children and parents, too, whom we might not otherwise reach. Brethren, pray for us as we face this busy year ahead.

GOSPEL LITERATURE ON THE FIELD

Evangelical Literature Overseas, an organization which cooperates with mission societies, says: "Gospel literature is recognized as a must on the mission field, and little exists. Literacy campaigns are being sponsored everywhere. New literates will read everything they can get their hands on. The Communists have come to realize the importance of literature and are flooding the new literate areas with their destructive material."

MEXICO—Neighboring Land of Opportunity

(Editor's Note—This is the second in a series of historical sketches on each of our six mission fields; information on Brazil appeared in the Herald dated March 5, 1955. As stated previously, these sketches are not being presented in chronological order, but as space permits.)

Missionary witnessing in Mexico was, I suppose for most of us, conveniently left to others. Some of us even lived very close to the border for periods of time and, although we knew Mexico to be a different country, we had hardly thought of it as a field for missionary endeavor. For years our Foreign Missionary Society did not realize the needs and opportunities in this land joining the United States on the southwest.

It was not until Rev. Jack Green, who ministers to the young Russian people in Los Angeles, began to visit in the Russian community in Baja California, Mexico, that we became aware of the great challenges offered by that land for a gospel testimony. As Brother Green worked with the Russian immigrants, he saw the need and the opportunity as related to the regular Mexican population. He wrote articles for the Brethren Missionary Herald and discussed matters with members of our Foreign Board. This was followed by contact with our Board of Trustees.

As a result, Brother Green was recommended by our Board and appointed by our Society as a missionary to Baja California, Mexico. But illness came to Brother Green and he was not able to pursue this foreign-mission plan. Some years passed and no missionaries were available.

Then Brother and Sister Walter Haag, students in Grace Seminary, volunteered for this work. Both had already had experience in working with Spanish-speaking people. We and they believed the Lord was leading us to begin our missionary endeavor in this land as soon as possible following the close of the seminary school year in the spring of 1951. We were to be even more fortunate. During the 1950-51 school year, Brother and Sister A. L. Howard volunteered for missionary service in Mexico. Since Brother Howard finished his training in Grace Seminary that spring, the Haag and Howard families were associated together in pioneering our work in this neighboring land to the southwest.

Mexican government regulations make it very difficult for United States citizens to live in Mexico for any extended period of time without making a very large property or business investment in the country, or depositing quite large sums of money in Mexican-approved depositories. Neither of these plans seems to be the Lord's leading for us; hence our missionaries established living quarters near the International Border, on the United States side. Both families first lived at San Ysidro, Calif., just across the border from Tijuana, Mexico. Later the Howards moved to Calexico, Calif., approximately 150 miles inland from the San Ysidro location. Calexico is just across the border from Mexicali, Mexico.

Gathered for a service. Brother Howard in background.

We have attempted to win a foothold for a testimony which would extend into Mexico through a type of border activity, seeking there to win as many as possible of the Mexican citizens so that we might train them and use them to go down deep into Mexico in the work of evangelization among their own people. The missionaries also make frequent preaching and teaching trips down into Mexico, going from 500 to 1,000 miles south of the border.

During 1954 two more families were added to our Mexico personnel: Brother and Sister Sibley Edmiston, living in and working out of Laredo, Tex., and Miss Dorothy Robinson, assisting in the teaching work and a correspondence-school type of activity from San Ysidro, Calif.

Bible classes, constituting something of an informal Bible institute, are now in operation in the San Ysidro-Tijuana area, with the Haags and Miss Robinson as the teachers. At all of the centers there are children's classes and regular evangelizing and teaching activities.

We believe it is only a matter of time until our workers will find ways to get the Gospel down into Mexico in a more personal way. But until that time, our missionaries are certainly spending their time to great advantage in carrying on their present work in the border areas.

According to the last report, over 200 have made personal decisions for Christ. Groups of believers are meeting regularly in the Tijuana and Laredo areas, and there are effective Bible classes in the other areas. In another year we will be ready to present our first small group of trained Mexican workers; we trust that many others will follow in the years ahead. We have witnesses now at the three great crossings of the International Border —San Ysidro-Tijuana, Calexico-Mexicali, and Laredo-Nuevo Laredo. There are at least a half dozen other prominent border crossings where we would like, if possible, to establish the same type of activity and then from these border areas move down into Mexico at every opportunity to get the Gospel into this gospel-barren land.

In the settled areas, houses are close together. Many need to be reached with the Gospel.

OPERATION DODGE

AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY — PART 2

Boy! Is this Africa? I thought I was coming to the wilds! In a lot of ways Douala is just like New York. It certainly is not what I expected, in view of the tales I had heard before beginning my journey.

Take my second cousin who went to Korea. He wrote home that they did not land at a dock nor even have landing boats, but were simply dumped off in the surf and had to wade ashore. Then there is that letter which is handed down as an heirloom in our family, written by my great-uncle who went to Africa. He wrote home that the waves were so high when he was unloaded that the bungling crew dropped him alongside the surfboat where it was far too deep to wade. Besides, away back in his days they did not have such things as amphibians. So he sank to the bottom and drowned dead, and the insurance agents said the last rites over him. Then some missionary, who did not know how irreparably dead he was, pulled him ashore and he had a long life of honorable service.

So, having braced myself for a bout with the elements, I could hardly believe my eyes when we steamed into a quiet harbor and right up to a dock—just like New York. And they had a giant crane that picked me off the ship and set me down on the dock just like that, before I could say "Jack Robinson."

Another surprise! Douala has paved streets and electric lights and big buildings—well, not quite as big as New York, but they surely look big to me after all I had heard about Africa.

Now I know that all my pals back in Detroit who pitied me because I was going to "the dark continent" might just as well have kept their sympathy. Well, it gives me a good excuse to write up my adventures, just like an important somebody, because they all said they would be dying to hear from me.

While I was reflecting about all this, a tall, good-looking young man began eyeing me with special interest, so I spruced up and tried to look my best. This was not really hard to do, for I had not been at all seasick and had been only loafing for over a month. I was feeling pert and was just itching for a spin.

Sure enough, the young man got in and drove me away. I felt at once a master hand on the wheel. Then I heard another man with him address him as "Doctor Mason." "Oh," I thought, "am I going to have a doctor for a boss?"

I soon found out that Dr. Mason is not going to be my boss after all, but another doctor who stayed at the mission station, probably taking things easy, while his younger, more energetic, colleague went to the Cameroun to get me.

Tomorrow we start inland. From all I have seen of Africa so far I assume it will be a nice, jolly trip. I'll write you about it from Yaloke.

Yours for smooth sailing,

OPERATION DODGE.

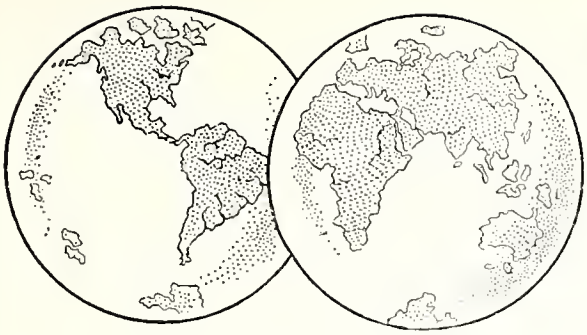
CHRIST OUR SAVIOUR!

"Declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead" (Rom. 1:4).



Well may we sing unto the Lord with exulting hearts, for He hath triumphed gloriously at the place called Calvary. His vicarious victory over all the powers of darkness and death was authenticated by His resurrection and ascension. It affords confirmation that He is the Eternal Son of the Father, and gives irrefutable assurance that His substitutionary sacrifice for sin has satisfied God's justice, and vindicated God's holiness.

But do we fully realize that He who so loved us and loosed us from our sins by His blood is our Resurrection and our Life? If we died with Him on the cross, so also have we risen with Him, and should know in daily experience the power of His resurrection.

—Dr. Harvey Farmer.

PRAYER BOOKLETS

As the copy for this issue of the Herald is being prepared, the new prayer booklets are being delivered to our Foreign Mission Office. These are being mailed to the churches on the basis of the number ordered. We are trusting that they may be delivered by the time you receive this Herald, or shortly thereafter. Thank you for your patience in waiting for these new prayer booklets. May the Lord bless you as you use them.

FMS NEWS FLASHES

AFRICA—

—The new missionary residence in Bangui has been completed and Dr. and Mrs. Orville D. Jobson have moved in. (See pages 86, 87, and 88 of the Herald, dated February 5, 1955.)

—Miss Ruth Kent, Miss Marie Mishler, and the Harold Dunning family are making plans for leaving on furlough in June.

ARGENTINA—

—Four young people and four children accepted Christ as Saviour at the two young people's camps this year. A number of others made decisions of consecration.

—The new temple (church building) in Corral de Bustos has been completed, with the exception of some finishing touches such as painting.

—The James Marshall family expects to leave in May for the United States for their first furlough.

—The Don Bishop family will move from Rio Cuarto to Corral de Bustos after the Marshalls leave for furlough.

BRAZIL—

—Christian day schools are now in session at both of our mission points. Over 65 are enrolled at Macapa and between 40 and 50 at Icoraci.

—The new missionary residence at Icoraci should be completed this month. The Burk family is anxiously looking forward to moving day.

FRANCE—

—On February 27 the first service was held in our new gospel hall in Lyon, with an attendance of 23. A week of special meetings in this new location will conclude on April 3.

—Work on the portable tabernacle began on March 5 and it will be completed in time for use for a series of summer meetings.

HONOLULU—

—Attendance at the Sunday-evening and midweek services at Grace Chapel have doubled and tripled in the last few weeks.

—Brother and Sister Tresise praise the Lord for surprises. They were pleasantly surprised on Sunday morning, March 13 to see a new coat of paint on Grace Chapel. Three servicemen, who regularly attend the services, agreed together to do the painting on Saturday, March 12.

MEXICO—

—Brethren Haag and Howard have recently completed evangelizing trips down into Mexico. Brother Haag, accompanied by four young men from the mission, went down the Baja California peninsula. Brother Howard, accompanied for part of the trip by Dr. Alberto Morales, went down the Sonora coast.

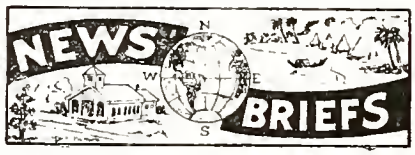
JOHNSTOWN, PA. Rev. and Mrs. Charles Gwynn celebrated their golden wedding anniversary by holding open house at their home on both Saturday and Sunday, Mar. 19-20.

FINDLAY, OHIO. The young people of the Findlay Brethren Church, Forest Lance pastor, sponsored a youth rally for all young people of this city on Mar. 19. Rev. James Lowden, former Youth for Christ director of this city, was the special speaker. He also showed pictures of his travels through Europe and the Holy Land.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. Pastor Lyle Marvin and the members of the Arrowhead Brethren Church have found that thoughtfulness is not entirely dead in businessmen. Brother Marvin recently saw a plot plan of a new subdivision that will go in north and east of the new Brethren church location. This subdivision will consist of approximately 400 homes. The subdivider consulted with the church to see if there was any way he could put in streets, etc., to their advantage.



LONG BEACH, CALIF. At the spelling contest sponsored by the Christian School Association of Southern California held at Culter Academy Friday evening, March 4, young people from Brethren High School did quite well. Brandt Carey took second place in the 11th grade and Bonnie Holmes second in the 8th grade.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (EPS). Evangelist Billy Graham preached to an audience of more than 2,000 persons in Washington historic First Presbyterian Church on March 6, in his last public appearance before leaving for a five-month campaign beginning in Scotland March 21. The congregation was possibly the most distinguished ever addressed by the evangelist. In addition to President and Mrs. Eisenhower, it included Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield.

BEAVER CITY, NEBR. A special emphasis has been placed on Sunday-school attendance for March. The record was broken the first Sunday of the month when 93 were present; the previous record was 75. Every time the attendance record is broken a phonograph record with the previous mark written on it is broken with a mallet. Some fun! Dayton Cundiff is pastor.

BEAUMONT, CALIF. "Mother" Waer, the oldest member of the Cherry Valley Brethren Church, of which Gene Farrell is pastor, celebrated her 93d birthday Mar. 4. She has 7 children, 30 grandchildren, 49 great-grandchildren, and 14 great-great-grandchildren.

ALLENTOWN, PA. The new address of John Neely is 507 Tilghman St. Please change Annual. The Atlantic District Laymen's Fellowship will meet at the First Brethren Church on May 7.

FREMONT, OHIO. The Grace Brethren Church is seeking to put every member to work in the position for which they are best suited. Under eight general divisions of music, teaching, trade, visiting, office, library, special services, and general work, it is purposed to recruit as many members as possible and put them to work where they feel they can do their best work for the Lord. Gordon Bracker is pastor.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF. According to Missionary Standard magazine, "Communism is taking over at the rate of 44 square miles per hour." While this growth continues approximately 72,000,000 professing Christians in America are giving two cents a year to missions.

SEATTLE, WASH. The View Ridge Brethren Church broke their Sunday-school attendance record on Mar. 6 when 62 were present. Rev. Thomas Hammers is pastor.

CLAYTON, OHIO. The Southern Ohio District Conference will convene here at the First Brethren Church May 16-19. Clair Brickel is pastor.

NORWALK, CALIF. The dedication of the new Norwalk Brethren Church will be conducted on Sunday afternoon, Apr. 3. Rev. John Aeby will be guest speaker. Henry Rempel is pastor.

WOOSTER, OHIO. The Northern Ohio District Fellowship will be held here at the First Brethren Church Apr. 19-21. Kenneth Ashman will be host pastor.

STOCKTON, CALIF. If you have relatives or friends living in or near Stockton, Calif., who would be interested in a new Brethren church in this city, their names and addresses should be sent to J. Paul Miller, pastor of the La Loma Grace Brethren Church, 1315 La Loma Dr., Modesto, Calif.

FREMONT, OHIO. Mr. Charles Haube, known to many of our pastors and missionaries, is convalescing from a goiter operation.

MIDDLEBRANCH, OHIO. The Northern Ohio District men's rally was held at the First Brethren Church Mar. 18. Wesley Haller was host pastor.

MEYERSDALE, PA. Leslie Moore has resigned as pastor of the Summit Mills Brethren Church to become the first full-time pastor of the Meyersdale Brethren Church. Mar. 27 was "youth Sunday," with H. F. Beukema, director of high-school Bible-club work in Johnstown, Pa., as guest speaker.

ICORACI, BRAZIL. James Melvin, weighing 8½ pounds, arrived Mar. 17 in the home of our missionaries, Jack and Jean Zielasko.

ELKHART, IND. Ground-breaking ceremonies were conducted Mar. 27 for the new Grace Brethren Church in this city. Prof. John Whitcomb was the special speaker. Lowell Hoyt is pastor.

EVERETT, PA. A mortgage-burning service was conducted Mar. 27 at the Everett Grace Brethren Church. Henry Kulp, pastor of the Altoona Bible Church, delivered the message. Homer Lingenfelter is the pastor.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Mr. Truymond Haddix, of Clayhole, Ky., is joining the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade as pianist.

UNIONTOWN, PA. Rev. Clyde Landrum has resigned as pastor of the First Brethren Church. See page 214 of this issue for details.

And a superscription also was written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS (Luke 23:38)

THREE LANGUAGES OF THE SUPERSCRIPTION

BY ROBERT HILL
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

It has been customary with many forms of cultures to announce the reasons for the condemning of a prisoner. The Romans were no exception. At each execution a crier went before the victim and proclaimed that person's wrongdoing and at the place of death there was usually affixed to the apparatus of execution an inscription bearing the charge or ground of the criminal's condemnation.

Our Lord's crime was that He was a King and neither Roman, Hebrew, nor Greek would have Him as such. Little did Pilate realize that by writing these words he was playing a very important part in the prophetic plan of God at the scene of the crucifixion of our Lord. When confronted by the chief priest to change the wording of the superscription, Pilate replied, "What I have written, I have written."

This was meant to silence the opposition, but in reality it has provoked a controversy that exists to this day. Pilate might just as well have said: "What God has written, has been written." Three languages, three cultures, three ethnic groups are represented in the superscription and to each the words had a different meaning.

To the Romans it meant humiliation. The Latin language was the official language of the country. The Romans were the ruling class, and Pilate's primary reason for writing JESUS THE KING OF THE JEWS was to humiliate the Jewish leaders who had previously annoyed him at the trial of Christ by turning his hand at every opportunity. "Behold your King," said Pilate, and the Jews replied, "Away with him."

Now here was an opportunity to insult the Jewish leaders further by proclaiming to the populace in three languages that this is what happens to a Jewish king. The king is symbolic of the people and if the king should die a humiliating death before the eyes of his subjects, so likewise, the subjects must realize they are slaves of the executioner. The Romans at the foot of the cross saw in the superscription and cross a means of insulting all others but Romans. Only enemies died on the cross, never a Roman. Cicero said: "It was the most cruel and shameful of all punishments. Let it never come near the body of a Roman citizen; nay, not even near his thoughts or eyes or ears."

To the Jewish leaders it meant rejection. These leaders had but one concern in this superscription and that was that no one should believe it. They would have nothing to do with this professed King of theirs. It is conceivable that they went milling about sowing seeds of doubt concerning this One upon the cross. Pilate must have rejoiced to see their concern for those words written over our Lord's head. The Hebrew language represented a religion that spoke of a coming great King—One that would deliver them from oppression, from injustice, from the yoke of bondage. Yet, when presented with that One, they turned aside with, "We have no king but Caesar." God's ancient people rejected God's Son to be their King.

To the remaining group about the cross the superscription meant salvation. The language used on the superscription to represent the Greek was not the classical, but the Aramaic, the dialect of the peasant, the trader, the common man. These common people may have been unaware of the conspiracy taking place, but they were cognizant of this one fact: this Person in the middle was different. "And all the people that came together to that sight, beholding the things which were done, smote their breasts, and returned." "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Christ is King of all these: the cultural, the political, the religious. John speaks of the superscription as a "title." It is interesting to note that this same word, as used in the Old Testament, refers to a guidepost, a marker "as that giving directions." This superscription should cry out to all men, in every sphere of life, that He is King because He arose from the dead.

THREE CRUCIFIED MEN

BY HAROLD MASON, M.D.
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

Had we been present at a certain place called "The Skull" outside Jerusalem on that appointed day over 1,900 years ago, we would have seen the crucifixion of three men. Undoubtedly a similar occasion had attracted crowds to this same spot on other days. Capital punishment must have been an acceptable method and crucifixion the acceptable means of criminal control in those days. So the people had gathered to witness the spectacle of the two duly convicted thieves and this controversial person called Jesus of Nazareth.

Probably the thieves were well known, and their detention in prison and their trial was a subject of public conversation. But no less a topic of interest was this One who had healed many, this One who preached of the kingdom, this One who claimed to be the promised Messiah. Apprehended during the night, brought to trial this very morning, He now is raised on a crude wooden cross just as the other two. He is suffering as they are. His body is dying, as are theirs. Each of them suffers the agony of exposure and humiliation; of blood loss and the accompanying extreme thirst; of approaching doom. Each knows that now there is no means of escaping this torture and the certain, impending death.

Two of these men were robbers. They were not mere petty stealers, but were the kind of thieves who would travel in groups and require an armed band to apprehend. Their lives had been devoted to wickedness, to taking that which rightfully belonged to someone else. Now as they receive their reward, they bitterly reproach the One on the third cross as do the chief priests, the soldiers, and the people. As one of these robbers continues to call, "Come down from thy cross; save thyself and us," a wave of condemnation sweeps over the other. He recognizes the utter wantonness of the life he is finishing and the just reward he is suffering; he repents of the wickedness of it, and requests mercy of the One hanging on the center cross. His greatest desire is to request pardon and the privilege of going with Jesus, but recognizing his own unworthiness, he asks only that Christ think of him when He arrives in His kingdom. Jesus replies mercifully, "Today thou shalt be with me" in the place of the righteous dead, in Paradise. There is no hesitation, no delay, no promise for the distant future, but—"TODAY!"

How great is the contrast as we turn our eyes toward the Man on the center cross. As we recall His sinless life and how His ministry was devoted to teaching, preaching, and healing—completely selfless acts—we wonder how it is that He is here on this cross. Above His head we read, "The King of the Jews." Having been addressed just now as a king by one of the thieves on another cross, He has replied with kingly authority, He has given an authentic, sure promise. King of the Jews? Yes; but now He is their rejected King. Now, dying on the cross, He becomes the Saviour of all who will open their eyes and their hearts to believe in Him.

If there is a tremendous difference between the two thieves—one redeemed, the other unredeemed—there is an even greater difference between them and Jesus. He is not only man but also God. He is able to bear the sins of the whole world in His own sinless body. He is not one dying for His own sins but for the wickedness of others—to redeem them. In dying, He remains the King who at the appointed day will return in power, but He also becomes Saviour. He bridges the gap between this dying world and our holy, righteous, everlasting God. He conquers death.

As we see Him hanging there we realize that no one is taking His life, but rather that He is voluntarily giving it up. There is no loss of strength, for twice He cries out with a loud voice. No weak, hoarse cry, no whisper. But at the very end, after crying out with a loud voice, He releases His spirit and dies.

We are reminded of the accounts of Africans who will their own death. Healthy and active, they become convinced that they must die. Guilty of a crime, or perhaps merely in an attempt to appease the evil spirits, they set their minds to die. And they die! With no apparent cause other than their own will power, they "give up the ghost." But in Christ's death He atones for our sins. He sheds His blood that we might be washed "whiter than the snow."

There are still many here in Africa who have never heard the account of the three crosses and the three who died on them. They remain as the unrepentant thief—condemned. Some have heard and, like the other thief, have repented. Some have found pardon from the One who died on that middle cross, but many many others remain in superstition and ignorance. Will you remember them at this Easter season?

There are still thousands in Africa who have access to no medical care whatever. When we recognize that 90 percent of this population has some illness or parasite, we see how great is the need. We have come to Africa to help these people. In ministering to their bodies and providing medicines for their illnesses, we are seeking to reach their souls and to show them the One who died for them. Will you remember this part of the work?

THREE TRUTHS

BY CHARLES SUMEY
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

Jesus said: "I am . . . the truth."

During the last 24 hours before the death of the Lord Jesus, there were three profound truths uttered by three different individuals, who represented three different walks of life. These are worth considering.

Pilate uttered the first. He was the governor, well versed in righteousness, justice, and the shades of the law. He said that Jesus was "a just person." The thief who died with Jesus spoke the second truth. He was an expert in the field of right and wrong, especially the latter. He knew a wrongdoer when he saw one. He declared that Jesus had "done nothing amiss." Death usually reveals what a man really is. The centurion judged our Lord by the way He died. He had seen many men take that last leap and he was qualified to speak. The manner in which Jesus died forced him to the conclusion that "surely this was the Son of God."

PILATE SPOKE TRUTH

This is a study in black and white. Jesus before Pilate, or if you prefer, Pilate on trial before Jesus. The governor was in trouble. He had to make a decision, and it was very difficult for one of so weak a character as Pilate. Canon Liddon said that "the pores of a man's soul are always open, and whether he will or no, the insignificance or greatness of that man will reveal itself." How true in the case of both Jesus and Pilate! The politician knew that Jesus was a just man. Rumor told him, his wife had so warned him, and somehow he had that unexplainable conviction in his own soul that it was so. Jesus did not try to convince him of it—He opened not His mouth. There is some truth in the saying that "innocence needs no defense." Pilate came to his decision, not after years of observing the life of Jesus, that is usually necessary to determine one's character, but he was standing in the presence of God and he could not but say what he did.

Sometimes even the shallowest of people utter profound truths. Pilate is an example of this. But the pores of his soul were open. His inconsistency, his cowardice, his insignificance revealed itself. How much in contrast is the Lord Jesus. The Just dying for the unjust.

THE THIEF SPOKE TRUTH

Our Africans are good at character reading. The lift of an eyebrow, a glance of the eye, a certain tone in your voice, and they have your motive tagged. This thief knew the genuine article when he saw it. He knew those of his own stripe when he saw them. Surely he could boast no previous knowledge of the Lord Jesus. They lived in two different worlds. The thief dwelt in the half-light of the underworld, and if ever he had seen Jesus, it was probably as he slipped through the crowd following Him, stealing from the people as he went. He was not qualified to judge the life of Jesus; he was with Him for such a short while.

I do not think he was referring to the life of our Lord when he said "nothing amiss," but rather to His claim that He was the Son of God. After all, that is why they were crucifying Him. "Come down from the cross if you are the Son of God," they challenged. The thief said to his partner in crime, "He hath done nothing amiss." Literally, he said, "He hath done nothing out of the way." He wanted to say: "We are dying justly for our crime because we did it, but this man hasn't done anything out of the way; His claim is true. He is the Son of God."

And so again in a very short time the eyes of a man were opened to a very great truth. Jesus did not try to convince this man that He was the Son of God, but the spittle, and the dirt, the thorns, and the blood could not hide His real identity.

THE CENTURION SPOKE TRUTH

Death often reveals what a man is. The integrity, the character, the faith of a person undergo a rugged test in the hour of death. He may boast of his fearlessness and willingness to die—while he is in good health—but he is "whistling in the dark."

The centurion had seen many people die. His profession made it necessary. He would probably have said that none of them wanted to die. Few in their right mind ask for it. Man clings desperately to life trying to prolong it. It was the death of Jesus that forced this assertion to the lips of the soldier. He had never seen anyone die like this. This man did not shrink from it; quite the opposite, He defied it. He seemed intent on doing and saying certain things before it overtook Him and then He actually opened the door to it when He had fulfilled His purpose.

What an impact the life of Christ, or the death of Christ makes upon those who study Him with unprejudiced eyes. Three men from varied backgrounds arrive at three tremendous truths after a short time in His presence. Study Him closely and see if you too are not forced to the same conclusion.

THREE PHYSICAL MANIFESTATIONS

BY DR. FLOYD TABER
MEDICAL MISSIONARY
AFRICA

Back and forth, back and forth, went the old-fashioned hand-driven washing machine; 12 whole minutes for every tubful—except the extra dirty ones, which took longer.

The boy began figuring. Thirty strokes per minute. Twelve minutes. If he did 40 strokes per minute, he would finish in nine minutes. If he could do 360 strokes in one minute, he would be through. If a person could do an eternity of work in one second, one second would equal eternity.

DARKNESS

That is just what happened at Calvary. Into those three awful hours of darkness was crowded an eternity of the pangs of hell.

It was not natural darkness. Some have supposed an eclipse. But astronomers tell us it was the full of the moon! An eclipse was impossible.

"God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." Darkness is the absence of God. "Cast into the outer darkness." Beyond the reach of God's grace. Impossible to see God's face. The darkness of a lost soul. "Tasting death—eternal death—for every man." He drained the cup. He drank the dregs. The Creator of light himself — cast into outer darkness for three eternal hours. "My God, my God, why . . .?"

Let every redeemed soul echo the question. "Why, oh why, was God the eternal Son cast into outer darkness, in order that I, vile worm of the dust, should live forever in the very presence of the One who dwelleth in light unapproachable?"

God himself could not look upon the spectacle of His Son bearing away the sin of the world. And He veiled it in darkness from the gaze of curious onlookers. But when Jesus had cried triumphantly, "It is finished," the Father could keep silence no longer. He spoke in the earthquake.

EARTHQUAKE

This was no ordinary earthquake. It was the bursting of rock-bound tombs. At the very moment of death, God speaks of resurrection. He cannot wait three whole days before announcing to all who have eyes to see that death is conquered.

But note how careful the Holy Spirit is to inform us that God did not allow these Old Testament saints to have priority over Christ in the resurrection. "Christ the first-fruits." The first who had ever really tasted death was the first to enter into the resurrection life.

Did anyone have the curiosity to look into those opened tombs during the three days? Nothing but dry bones! That is not much of a promise of a resurrection.

That is the way people see the church today. It is full of dry-bone church members. They are free from the curse of the law. The bonds of death have been broken. But they have not yet come out of their graves to walk in newness of life.

I wonder who those favored saints were, the chosen few who had the glorious privilege of accompanying Jesus in a triumphal procession on that resurrection morn. They must have died longing for the coming of the Messiah. They must have loved His appearing. I wonder if Job was not one of them. "I shall be satisfied, when I awake, with beholding his likeness."

The earthquake was God's sign to the many. The water and the blood were His sign to the one whom Jesus loved. Here we take off our shoes and listen to the still small voice.

A BROKEN HEART

The earthquake proclaims God's triumphant power. The water and the blood show forth His broken heart.

Psalmists and prophets had exalted the God who reigns supreme. John gets a glimpse of the God of the broken heart. "The Lamb slain from the foundation of the world." The heart broken from the foundation of the world. This is the supreme revelation of God. This is the final proof that Christianity is a revelation, not an invention.

Men have invented all sorts of gods. But in his wildest dreams, no man would ever have imagined that the King of the Universe is the God of the broken heart. He had to reveal himself.

"I am crucified with Christ." Then I too must have my hour of darkness. I too must have my earthquake. I too must have a broken heart.

There is one difference. For me, the "power of his resurrection" comes first, "the fellowship of his sufferings" afterward. And both these experiences are given "that I may know him."

"For me, to draw near to God is the sum of all good."

ON THE ROAD TO EMMAUS

The way to Emmaus seemed longer that day,
To the two who were walking the road—
For each carried with him a sad, bleeding heart,
And the weight on each heart seemed a load.

Together they walked, and together they talked
Of things that had happened of late.
Of how they had seen Him, the prophet of God,
The victim of cruelty! Hate!

They saw how the leaders delivered Him up—
Condemned Him to die on the tree.
And then as He died, their hopes, too, seemed to die—
They'd hoped the Redeemer was He.

Three days now had passed since that terrible day,
And some of the women had said—
And not only they, but some others as well—
That He was now raised from the dead!

A soft step was heard, and a Stranger drew near
To walk with them now on their way—
He asked them of this they were talking about.
They answered, perhaps with dismay!

"And are you a stranger among us?" they asked,
For these things were known far and wide—
How Jesus had claimed to be God's only Son—
And now He was dead! Crucified!

But now as they walked, 'twas the third Man who talked
And expounded the Scriptures with power!
For it was no stranger who walked with the two—
'Twas Christ walking with them that hour.

The evening was coming. They urged Him to stay,
To enter their home and find rest.
And then as the Stranger man blessed and broke bread,
They knew who it was, this their Guest.

And I, like the two, have been burdened at times,
And doubtful and weary and sad—
But then He has come, and has walked by my side.
He has lifted my load—and made glad.

THREE BARRIERS

BY ROBERT WILLIAMS
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

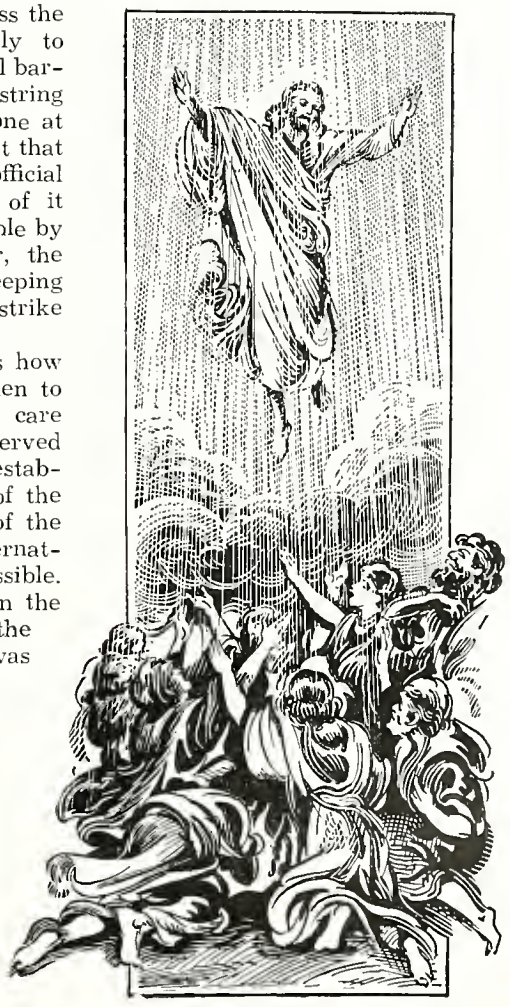
The little group of faithful women shivered in the chill of the winter morning. They were discouraged and sad. They had been so certain that this Jesus was their promised Messiah who should restore the throne and kingdom of David. But now He was dead, rejected of Israel, and crucified.

But their disappointment did not dull their devotion. The setting sun had ushered in the sacred Sabbath on the eve of His death before they had time to prepare the sweet spices to anoint His body. But they had been present when Joseph and Nicodemus had laid His body in the tomb. They had marked well the spot. And now in the early morning of the first day of the week, long before daylight, they were on their way to the sepulcher on their mission of love.

As they went they were mindful of a great barrier in the way of accomplishing their purpose. The great stone at the entrance of the cave—who would roll it aside so that they might enter to anoint the body of Jesus? Joseph had built well this tomb which he expected no doubt would one day receive his loved ones, as well as himself, in their final rest. A cave it was, chiseled into the solid stone of the hillside. And a great stone had been prepared to roll across the doorway. It was of this stone that the women were concerned as they made their way out through the city gate. Little did they realize that the great stone had already yielded up its treasure. He had told them that He would rise again the third day, but they did not understand. How limited was their understanding! How little their faith, in spite of the largeness of their love!

But what they had failed to comprehend, the Jews had fully grasped. And now as they drew near the sepulcher, behold, a fire was glowing before it and men were walking to and fro. There was the glint of shields, and the noise of ribald talk and laughter—soldiers guarding the Master's tomb, a second great barrier rising before them. While these faithful women had faithfully kept the Sabbath, the Jews had broken it. They who had accused the Master of breaking the Sabbath had desecrated the sacred Sabbath of the Passover to call the Sanhedrin together. The purpose? They remembered that He had said He would rise again after three days. They had crucified Him, but they could not forget what He had said. It seems strange that they should have understood Him and the disciples had not. But they did, and they were afraid. They could not sleep. I wonder if some of them remembered the day at the door of Lazarus' tomb. Anyway, they met the first thing in the morning to ask Pilate to secure the sepulcher.

"Ye have a watch," Pilate said; "make it as sure as you can." Why did he say it like that—"as sure as you can"? Did he begin to sense the futility of their efforts, trying to seal the Son of God in a sepulcher?



As a further precaution they had the tomb sealed with the governor's official seal. Truly well guarded was the body of our Saviour in His garden tomb. There was the physical barrier, the fastness of the rocky cave with the great stone across the doorway. It would yield only to strong men. There was the legal barrier—the seal—only a piece of string to be sure, fastened to the stone at each end with a bit of wax. But that wax bore the stamp of the official seal of Rome. The breaking of it without authority was punishable by death. And the third barrier, the vigilant Roman soldiers keeping watch day and night, ready to strike down any meddler.

How well our Father knows how to make the evil devices of men to praise Him! All this pain and care on the part of the Jews only served to accomplish one thing—to establish without dispute the fact of the resurrection. The evacuation of the tomb by any other than supernatural means was utterly impossible.

As those women hesitated in the shadows beyond the light of the soldiers' fire, suddenly there was a flash of brilliant light, the earth began to tremble and shake; the talking and laughter of the soldiers ceased, and they fell down as dead men in the presence of a bright and shining one from glory. This heavenly herald rolled back the great stone with a touch and revealed—an empty tomb. Only a few discarded graveclothes were left, collapsed where they lay as the resurrection body made its exit from them.

What were these barriers against the Lord from heaven? Would the stones bar the way of Him who had spoken them into existence? And what was the seal of Caesar against the Sovereign of earth and skies? Would the Lord of life, He who holds the keys of death in His hand, fear before the death penalty of a corrupt earthly king on a tottering throne? And those few soldiers—what were they before One who had more than 12 legions of angels at instant command, any one of which could liquidate an army of 80,000 soldiers in a single night?

"He is not here." "He is risen as he said." "Come see the place where the Lord lay, and go and tell"

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Pray for the foreign-mission offering at this Easter season. We must have an increase if we are to meet the challenges on all fields and send out new missionaries.

2. Continue to pray for the district missionary rallies now in progress. (See page 214 for the schedule and those participating.)

3. Praise the Lord for providing suitable employment for Brother Tresise in Honolulu. Continue to pray for him and Mrs. Tresise as they seek to minister to the spiritual needs of those in the area of Grace Chapel.

4. Pray for the health of all of our missionary personnel. We are not always aware of their particular needs. Pray especially for Mrs. Rose Foster, who is not at all well.

5. Pray for the educational programs in Africa, Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico as our missionaries train native and national workers to take the Gospel to their own people.

6. Pray for the native and national believers in all our fields, that they may be steady and faithful and that they may continue to work toward the goal of establishing self-governing, self-supporting, and self-propagating Brethren churches.

7. Pray for the Marshall family as they make plans for furlough from Argentina in May. Pray also for Misses Kent and Mishler and the Dunning family as they plan for furlough from Africa in June.

8. Pray that the special meetings at our new permanent location in Lyon, France, which conclude on April 3, may serve as the beginning of a most fruitful work. Pray for the Fogles—their responsibilities are heavy.

9. Pray that the Lord will raise up the needed new missionaries for our various fields and that He will supply the funds to send them.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Pray for the weekly Bible classes at the Brethren Navaho Mission, that the Navaho people will learn to read and study the Bible in their own language.

2. Pray for the Alexandria, Va., church which desires to become self-supporting this year to release the funds used there to start another Brethren church.

3. Pray for the boys club started at Johnson City, Tenn., that it will be used of the Lord to reach the boys of the neighborhood. Also pray for funds to equip the club with needed materials.

4. Pray for the building program at Parkersburg, W. Va., and for the Brethren Construction Crew, who will be erecting the church.

5. Pray that the Lord will raise up more strong lay leaders for the Spanish-American work. Praise the Lord for funds that are being provided for the summer VBS program.

6. Pray for Rev. Robert Cessna as he assumes the pastorate of the home-mission church in Cleveland, Ohio. Pray that the upper auditorium will soon be completed.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Pray for the ministry of the faculty and students in various churches over the Easter vacation.

2. Pray for the ministry of the Grace College choir as they make an eastern tour during the Easter vacation.

3. Pray for the seniors in both seminary and college that they may be led in their plans for the future.

4. Pray for needed building facilities for an expanding seminary and college program.

5. Praise the Lord for answered prayer in additional supporters of the monthly offering plan for maintaining the school.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

1. Pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in the erection of the new Missionary Herald Building.

2. Pray that the Lord might send the buyer for our present property.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE—

1. Praise God for Evangelism Sunday blessings, particularly for the support of the laymen.

2. Pray for the Crusade teams as they continue their evangelistic ministry.

WMC——

(Supplied by Indiana District.)

1. Pray that we may be united in accomplishing our local, district, and national projects, and that we may go over the top in these Foreign Project months.

2. May we respond as never before to the great needs of all the fields as presented through the missionary rallies, realizing that this might be our last opportunity.

3. Pray for the health of all our missionaries, that they will be able to meet the daily demands.

4. Pray for the national workers, that they will be faithful in whatever capacity they serve the Lord.

SMM—

(Supplied by the Iowa District.)

1. Pray that the girls will accomplish their goal of rolling 10 bandages per girl this year, as well as their other goals.

2. Pray for district officers as well as national officers, that they might be used of the Lord in a real way this year.

3. Remember the patronesses as they give of their time to help the girls.

4. Pray for the district officers of Iowa as they begin to make plans for the district rally.

BYF—

1. Be praying for the various committees as they prepare for district and national camps.

2. Ask the Lord to give our young people in various schools the necessary funds to finish out this year.

3. Ask the Lord to give Brethren people a vision of the needs of our young people: spiritual teaching, good example, and understanding encouragement.

4. Thank the Lord for the fine group of students at Grace College and Seminary, products of the youth activities of our churches.

5. Pray that the Lord will raise up a man to be national youth director.

6. Seek the Lord's will regarding future plans and programs for Youth Fellowship, Boys Clubs, and the Sisterhood.

COMMUNION

By MRS. WALTER HAAG

There was once a child born. He was a beautiful child and there was joy over him. But, as the years went by, the beautiful child did not grow. He was fed well, but remained a certain size and there was sadness over that child. It seems he had lost much action power and that the fine food was not being burned as fuel. He became obese, sluggish, and therefore no longer useful. This is the sad story of many new-born Christians' spiritual development.

Let us therefore realize the value of communion with the Lord as a governing factor and a growing factor after we are born in Him. In constant communion our souls are constantly supplied with the necessary heavenly vitamins for spiritual development.

Coming to the Lord is the beginning factor.

Physical birth continues to be a unique miracle, although a usual one. Spiritual rebirth continues to be a powerful miracle, although a practical one.

The statement: "But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name" (John 1:12), gives us a certainty of these following facts: That we were formerly not sons of God; that we are changed by given power into sons of God; and that the deciding factor is our receiving, believing Him. To believe, in perhaps more understandable words, is "putting all one's confidence in." Therefore to believe on Jesus is to put all one's confidence in Him—one's confidence for rebirth, growth, and completion. He is the author and finisher of our faith.

This is a powerful miracle and the extent of the power necessary for the performance of it is beyond our human comprehension. It is power given by Him. God alone could be the originator of such power. We cannot understand it, but we can experience it.

The birth of a child into this world is a unique miracle which no human can completely explain; yet it is a very usual occurrence. We, as humans, have not balked at allowing God to perform the miracle of having babies born into this world through us. Let us never balk at allowing God to perform the miracle of rebirth in us on the weak excuse that it cannot be completely comprehended.

Communion of the Lord is the governing factor.

If we read II Corinthians 6:14: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?" we find that communion is fellowship and yoking together.

If we have come to the Lord, we have begun. Coming is the first step, and it is necessary. Communion is the next step, and it is necessary. If we would allow the Lord to govern our lives, we must be yoked. Oh, what a heavy, old idea to be immediately yoked! But listen—"Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light" (Matt. 11:29-30).

We are now believers; we are now declared righteous in Him; and we are the light of the world. Let us realize this to the full. Let us rejoice in allowing His yoke to be the governing factor in our living. Let us not have fellowship with, communion with, or yoking with, unbelievers, unrighteousness, or darkness. Allow Him, whose yoke it is, to decide with whom you should be yoked in that new life you are beginning here and living for eternity. Each time someone would slip into that experience-yoke with you, ask Him about it.

Communion with the Lord is the growing factor.

Communion is the act of using a thing in common. "Using" is an action verb giving the idea of employment or service. We need action for growth.

Often these phrases pass through our minds: "what sweet communion; what blessed fellowship; leaning on the everlasting arms." They, perhaps, give us the idea of the blissful position of reclining. Let us more often find ourselves in an upright position of employment of service. Shall we apply the word "leaning" as to the extent that one leans on his backbone to proceed to accomplishment? The communion with the Lord is our backbone if Christ is our head. It is the thing used in common by the head and the body. The main nerve trunk is the spinal cord bringing the stimulation from the head and receiving the messages of the body. All this sets one in action, and action means growth.

The word "communion" is used in that benediction of Paul in II Corinthians 13:14: "The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost, be with you all."

The commencement service comes as the closing act of a course of study, and it really means the beginning of the application of the knowledge gained. The benediction comes as the closing act of a study of spiritual things. May it mean the beginning of the application of the knowledge gained. As the words enter our minds —"the communion of the Holy Ghost"—let us rise up to action and growth. Let us realize that we have been well fed, and let us not lose that communing—power to burn that food as fuel. We do not want to become obese and sluggish with spiritual food and therefore be rendered useless. Communion with the Lord can prevent this from happening and can make us growing Christians.

Suggestions for Mother-Daughter Meetings

With the month of April we ladies all begin to think about the possibility of joint meetings with the girls of our church during the month of May. It is our desire to present in this Herald a number of interesting suggestions for themes around which could be built the program, and the decorations for such a meeting. Having a desire to make a number of different ideas available, we asked one of our very talented ladies, who modestly asked to be kept anonymous, to give us some plans from which to make a choice. We felt that the needs of a much larger number of councils would thus be met than if we presented one single theme, but in completer detail. Our desire to suggest a number of themes necessarily means that we cannot give too much space to any one idea. However, if the suggestions are not sufficient to lead a council in the development of the chosen theme, additional help may be obtained by requesting it.

We would also like to add that past Heralds have carried some very fine suggestions. Especially fine programs and ideas may be found in the Heralds for April 14, 1945; April 13, 1946; April 8, 1950; and April 11, 1953. A great many pastors have files of past Heralds from which these particular numbers may be gotten.

May we wish you all a happy time as you choose and plan your mother-daughter banquet or tea and as you have a blessed time of fellowship together.

WHICH DO YOU CHOOSE?

Mother—such an indefinable word! Not because it has such little content, but because it has so much. How wonderful that the two God-given institutions, the home and the church, should take time to honor Mother. Since no home is complete without children, how splendid that we take time each year for a mother-daughter get-together of some kind, be it a wiener roast, a picnic, tea, or a well-planned banquet.

We trust that each church will take advantage of this opportunity to contact the unchurched mothers and daughters of the community. Eating, laughing together, singing and working together in such meetings can be very helpful. Be friendly. Introduce the new folks to your regular members. Make them feel that church members are human and not "mournfully" so either!

There are as many situations and circumstances as there are churches. Consequently we make suggestions only in this article, but will be glad to send patterns or further ideas of poetry and materials if you send a self-addressed envelope to Box 718, Winona Lake, Ind.

1. One church has chosen the theme, "Walking in the Sonlight." The motif of decoration will be candles and pictures of Christ. The messages will emphasize the joys of walking with Christ, the Son of God.

2. Another church harnessed the idea of Mother's influence upon her child and the vanity of fair youth, by choosing the theme, "Reflections of a Mother." The programs were in the shape of a hand mirror made of pastel shaded construction paper. A circle of aluminum foil was used to make the mirror part.

3. "Grandma's Album" can help afford entertainment and real spiritual blessing as Grandma sits in a rocking chair to one side of the platform and turns to different stages of life. For instance, a young mother can rock her baby as she (or someone offstage) sings—

> "Rock-a-bye baby. We love you so.
> God-given treasure, may you Christ know.
> Glorify Him in thought, word, and deed;
> May He supply your every need."

Another picture can be that of a little one kneeling at Mother's knee (or a cribside) praying or singing, "Now I lay me down to sleep." Courtship days, wedding day, and such events of life can be enacted as Grandma reflects.

4. Since we think of mother and daughter as "home" bodies, use your invitations and programs in the shape of a house. The centerpieces can be little villages of log, dollhouses, or like those used under the Christmas tree. Put a steeple on one so that you combine the ties of the home and the church. Use the Easter grass, green crepe paper cut in shreds and sprinkled over a cardboard moistened with laundry starch of rather thick consistency, or plant grass seed a few days before the banquet in oblong cake pans for your landscaping. Give the rooms of the house names such as prayer, forgiveness, service (probably the kitchen) and use them as the basis of one longer or several short messages, songs, or poems.

5. Revival has been borne on the wings of song. In the Uphouse household we find the names, Miriam, Hannah, and Deborah. Sister Iva Kolb wrote to Miriam and asked: "Did you ever stop to think that each of the Bible characters with your names sang a song? Each song was sung under different circumstances." Miriam had not thought about it, but it is the basis for a good study. If you use this idea, decorate with notes and toy instruments. If you prefer to use flowers, mount the notes on fine wire and insert them here and there among the flowers. The programs can be in the shape of notes, toy violins, baby grand pianos, harps, or regular booklets with a staff of notes across the cover. As to the messages, we would consider the songs of these various women, the admonitions to sing unto the Lord, or we could dramatize a song or the story of how it was written. The staff can represent the staff of life, the Bible. The musical scores suggest harmony. C# can call attention to alertness and watchfulness. The ties remind us of the ties of fellowship and the beloved song, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." The story of how this song was written lends itself to dramatization. Pantomiming of hymns can be very lovely.

6. Since the WMC theme has been dealing with the Christian walk, the rhyme of the woman in the shoe came to mind. The decorations can be little shoes stuffed with paper dolls or small dolls. Some of her children could be taught about friendships, stewardship, prayer, service, such as may meet the needs of your particular group.

7. Since there are roses in some sections of the country, had you thought of the lessons that you could learn from "T" roses? Some are T-ruth, T-act, T-houghtfulness, T-rust. Even music lends itself with the theme by way of "Jesus, Rose of Sharon."

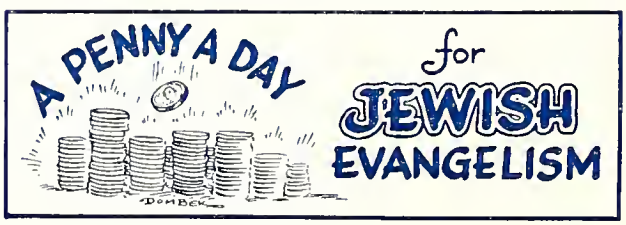
If one uses flowers as the decoration, the rose can stand for devotion. The Pansy always suggests thoughtfulness. You know—

"She always learned to watch for us—anxious if we were late.
In winter by window, in summer by gate.
And though we mocked her tenderly, who had such foolish care,
The long way would be more safe because she waited there."

Tulips can represent the two lips of comfort. The verses of the song, "Nobody Knows but Mother," lend themselves to these thoughts very well. The forget-me-not says, "I will not forget thee," while the violet suggests the reserve and shyness of the mother who works behind the scenes for the success of her children. The lily stands for purity and fragrance of life. One can add meanings according to the number of flowers available. Little old-fashioned nosegays are nice at the plate if this thought is used.

8. Isaiah 12:3 reads: "Therefore with joy shall ye draw water out of the wells of salvation." If you should like to combine beauty and real Scriptural background, Mrs. Whitcomb gives us instructions for making "Well" centerpieces and "Bucket" nut cups. For the well secure a coffee can or a gallon ice-cream container. Paste and cover the can or container cut to a depth of 4½ inches with brown crepe paper. Draw a "stone" design on the paper with colored chalk. To make the roof of the well cut a 10-inch square of cardboard and score through the center. Bend the cardboard to make a slanted roof. Cover the top with green crepe paper and mark off to resemble shingles. Cut six lengths of No. 15 wire 18 inches long. Take three wires and wind within two inches of both ends. Cover with a ½-inch wide strip of brown crepe paper until the posts measure ½ inch in diameter. Fasten posts to the well by spreading fan fashion. Secure with tape. Vines and flowers may be wound around the posts for extra beauty. For the bucket individual favor cover the nut cups with brown paper. Paste two ¼-inch gold bands around the cup, one near the top, the other near the bottom. Use brown pipe cleaner for the handle and tie a pink ribbon on one side of it. Remember the little mottor of "Jesus first;
Others next;
Yourself last."
It would go nicely with the verse and decorations.

We pray that these get-togethers may prove a blessing of fellowship, and that the mothers and daughters of Brethren communities may be drawn closer to Christ and each other.



NATIONAL OFFICERS MEET AT WINONA LAKE

The national officers of the Women's Missionary Council took advantage of other board meetings being held at the seminary to have a meeting of their own in order to evaluate the work of the past few months, to plan for the Portland conference, and to approve measures to make WMC still more effective in the months ahead. The meeting was held on Friday afternoon, March 25, at the home of Mrs. Lester Pifer.

Those who attended the cabinet meeting were: Mrs. Kenneth Ashman, president; Mrs. Miles Taber, vice president; Mrs. Lester Pifer, recording secretary; Mrs. Chester McCall, financial secretary; Mrs. Jesse Deloe, literature secretary; and Mrs. Ben Hamilton, editor.

MAJOR OFFERING

For March, April, May.....Foreign Missions
$2,500 Toward a Missionary Residence in Brazil

Who's Who for April

REV. MARVIN L. GOODMAN, JR.

Marvin L. Goodman, Jr., was born in Modesto, Calif., on October 22, 1921, receiving the priceless heritage of Christian parents who believed the Word of God and taught him to do the same. Somewhat later in life than is usual, his parents felt the call to full-time Christian service and prepared for where the Lord might lead. Someone has said that there just must be missionary blood in that family. They believed, however, that the Lord should have first place in their lives and that they should serve where He called. Marvin's parents are missionaries to India under the Child Evangelism Fellowship, and his sister and her husband, Rev. and Mrs. Edward D. Miller, serve as missionaries in Brazil under our Brethren Foreign Missionary Society.

Marvin's childhood and boyhood days were spent in the area of his birth. At the age of 9 he accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour and became a member of the church to which his parents belonged. After conversion he was deeply moved by missionaries who spoke concerning the need for the Gospel in Africa.

His college work was taken at Modesto Junior College and the University of California at Berkeley. While Marvin was away at school his parents were led of the Lord to change their church membership; they became members of the La Loma Grace Brethren Church of Modesto, Calif., at this time. When he came home for vacations Marvin, too, saw that this church preached the Gospel, and so on Easter Sunday, 1942, he became a member of this same church. This step had a great bearing on his spiritual growth and the events which followed. As a result of the counsel given by the pastor, Marvin enrolled in Grace Theological Seminary to complete his preparation for missionary service. By that time he was convinced that the Lord would have him serve in Africa.

While attending Grace Seminary Marvin met Miss Dorothy Hay, a registered nurse from La Verne, Calif., and a member of the First Brethren Church of that city. She was also preparing for missionary service in Africa. They were married in June of 1944.

In November of 1945 Marvin and Dorothy sailed for Africa, where they were privileged to serve the Lord for one four-year term and part of a second term. Four children were born to them while they served in Africa —David George on April 27, 1947; Anne Jeanette on October 27, 1948; Paul Marvin on March 25, 1951; and Suzan Marie on April 1, 1952.

Because of the serious illness of Anne, which was finally diagnosed as polio, the Goodmans had to leave Africa in the summer of 1952 for the United States. They have made every effort for Anne to have the necessary operations and treatments which might enable her to walk again without the aid of a brace.

During this time of testing their zeal for the Lord has not diminished. They have been pioneering the new work in West Covina, Calif., and are looking to the Lord for His continued leading.—Ruth E. Reddick.

REV. CHARLES R. TABER

Charles R. Taber spent the first seven and one-half years of his life in Paris, France, where he was born on November 1, 1928. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Taber, were studying in France preparatory to missionary service in Africa—his father as a medical missionary and his mother as a teacher. Following the completion of his father's medical training in France, the family came to the United States for about a year of rest and deputation work before assuming their missionary activities in French Equatorial Africa. A part of this year was spent in Allentown, Pa, and a part in Long Beach, Calif. During that year Charles accepted Christ as his personal Saviour and was baptized shortly after his eighth birthday. He is a member of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif.

The next eight years of his life were spent in Africa. Soon after coming home to the States in 1945, Charles, at the age of 17, realized that missionary service was for him, so he yielded his life to the Lord for that purpose. He then completed his high-school training in Allentown, Pa. This was followed by four years at Bryan University in Dayton, Tenn., from which he graduated in 1951 with a B.A. degree. During the summer of 1951 he married Miss Betty Joyce Hanna, whom he met at Bryan. Betty is a member of the First Brethren Church of Cleveland, Ohio.

Charles and Betty came to Winona Lake, Ind., for the 1951-52 school term at Grace Theological Seminary. They had already applied for missionary service in French Equatorial Africa under The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church, expressing particular interest in the field of education.

In October of 1952 Charles and Betty sailed for France for a period of language study before going to Africa. Someone might wonder why Charles needed to study French. From one standpoint he didn't. He already spoke French—in fact, he taught French for two years at Bryan University and during his year at Grace Seminary. However, in order to be in charge of our French school system in Africa he had to meet the requirements of the French government in this regard. Not only did the Lord enable Charles to pass his examinations in France, but he passed at the top of his class with some of the highest grades on record. Betty did not complete her language training while in France, but has continued to study on the field and will take her examinations there at the proper time. While they were in France a new member joined the family group. A daughter, Christine Anne, was born on February 11, 1953.

In July of 1953 they arrived in Africa and made their home at the Bassai station, where they opened the French school. Another daughter, Diana Ruth, joined the family group on March 25, 1954. At the recent Field Council meeting in Africa, it was decided to move the French school to the Yaloke station, so in July of this present year the Charles Taber family will move again.

BIRTHDAYS DO BRING CHANGES

By MRS. ARNOLD KRIEGBAUM

How fitting that the pastor's wife, who gathered the first Sisterhood girls of Mary and Martha about her to teach them more of Christ and how to serve Him, should be named Mary! Close to the year 1900, Mrs. Mary Bauman (first wife of Dr. Louis S. Bauman) saw the need of guiding the activities of girls in the Philadelphia Brethren Church where she and her husband were ministering; and invited them into her home. Together they read and discussed the story of Mary and Martha as told in the Gospel according to Dr. Luke.

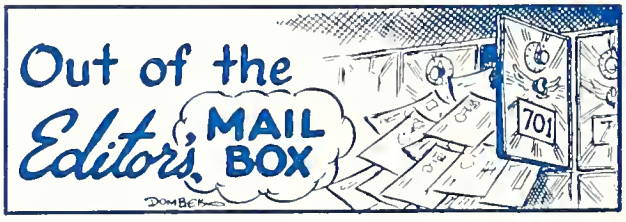
They decided to meet each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, before the worship service, for prayer and Bible study, and to plan their missionary activities. To quote from early records: "Not great numbers do we seek to join our ranks, but those who can conscientiously take our pledge, those who want to know and do more things that He would have us do, we gladly welcome. Every member has an opportunity of doing something. Four committees of three each afford work for the girls who want it."

Mrs. Iva Kolb carried on when Dr. and Mrs. Bauman moved west. Mrs. Kolb continued this Sisterhood until she was 75 years of age. Twice each year the Iva Kolb Auxiliary, made up of charter members and those who joined during the first 10 years, met for fellowship and a Bible study by Mrs. Kolb. Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets, gifts to missionaries, and bandage rolling were some of their projects.

National Sisterhood began in 1913 with 21 Sisterhoods reporting. The first covenant read: "I will not cease to make offerings of prayer, time, and money to the end that the daughters of sorrow in every land may know the love of Jesus."

The first foreign project on record was the sending of bandages to the lepers. When the Gribble party sailed in 1918, Sisterhoods gave them a supply of bandages. Two years later, James Gribble appealed to the Sisterhoods to supply bandages semiannually to the extent of a box 14 inches square and 2 feet long. The provision of bandages has grown until in 1932 it became necessary to appoint a national bandage secretary. In 1953 district bandage secretaries were appointed. One local group in northern Ohio rolled over 300 bandages last year. Over a thousand girls are enrolled as members of Sisterhood. Our goal this year is a minimum of 10 rolls per member, so we should have at least 10,000 rolls of bandages rolling in 1955. This project becomes rich to our hearts when we hear the missionaries tell of the lives protected and saved through using the bandages, and of souls saved through telling the gospel story while applying the bandages.

United in effort, the Lord has enabled Sisterhood to accomplish several projects. The Bethany Mission Home in Ashland, Ohio, was built by Sisterhood funds. A baby hospital built in Africa; a bus purchased for the church in Clayhole, Ky.; a gift fund given for national pastors' children in South America; flannelgraphs and object lessons sent to Africa, South America, and Kentucky were all Sisterhood projects.



In 1939 our national reorganization was set up in Winona Lake, Ind. Each summer the national executive board meets for two days to initiate interesting projects and oversee Sisterhood records. This board includes the national officers, and president and patroness from each district of our denomination. This meeting is followed by a week of Sisterhood sessions attended by representatives of all Sisterhoods.

A home for our missionaries on furlough in Winona Lake was another project of Sisterhood. A dwelling for the single missionary ladies was built at the Central Bible School in Africa through Sisterhood funds. "Jim the Jeep" was purchased for the missionaries to use at Clayhole, Ky. Over a thousand dollars was raised toward providing camp equipment for the youth of Argentina. A well was purchased for work among the Navaho Indians. (We dug deep so our missionaries could have water and in turn give the Living Water to those dead in heathen witchcraft.)

A power plant and public-address system for the work in Brazil was another project. Sisterhood helped build a chapel in Dryhill, Ky. One year, Marybeth Munn was Sisterhood's missionary to the lepers in Africa. Household furnishing for the Brethren mission home on the Navaho station was provided last year. Our present project is to give sufficient funds to build a dispensary at Bassai, Africa, and purchase a microscope for the missionaries to use there. The former dispensary was destroyed by fire.

Birthdays do bring changes. In Sisterhood many

The council at Middlebranch, Ohio, remembers the aged and needy at Christmastime by packing baskets to be taken to them.

The WMC of Limestone, Tenn., promoted child evangelism by contributing to the Children's Bible Mission. They have also furnished a nursery and made 23 garments for a needy family.

In addition to many other projects, the Senior WMC at Mundy's Corner, Pa., is buying a window for their new church. They had their birthday offering month in February.

Our WMC at Goshen, Ind., is just one year old, but they report that this first year they contributed to all national projects, sent clothing to the Navahos, purchased a folding table for a lady in a rest home, sent a sunshine box to a shut-in, and began a missionary gift chest.

EXCESS BAGGAGE

(COLOSSIANS 3:8)

By AVA SCHNITTJER

The scene is Ann's bedroom. Her suitcase is open and her possessions are strewn about, preparatory to packing.

CAROL: How are you ever going to get all those things into your suitcase, Ann?

ANN: I'm beginning to wonder myself.

JANICE: Where is it you're going, Ann?

ANN: I'm off for Portland, Oregon, to the conference. I already have my plane ticket.

ELENER: How much of this stuff are you taking?

ANN: Everything I have laid out here on the bed and on the floor. I don't know where I'm ever going to put it all. The airline will only let you take 40 pounds.

CAROL: How are you ever going to decide what to take?

ANN: I don't know. I need it all.

ELENER: How can you ever carry it all?

JANICE: If you take all you have laid out, it will be so heavy to carry that you'll never get anywhere.

CAROL: Do you have to take the radio and the panda?

ANN: Well, I like to have pretty things on my bed, and in the afternoons I like to have the radio to play.

ELENER: But there will be so much to see out there that you won't have time to sit around and listen to the radio.

CAROL: Whatever are you taking that fancy dress for? Do you think you'll need it?

ANN: They have a banquet and I want to look nice for the banquet.

CAROL: And that big jewel box, Ann. Surely you don't need that.

ANN: I have sentimental reasons for wanting to take that along. Why does that old airline have to be so fussy? Twenty extra pounds wouldn't mean much.

ELENER: If all the passengers took 20 extra pounds, it would make a big difference. And it's probably all the plane can do to get over the mountains as it is. If there were any excess baggage, they might have to dump your stuff overboard and you'd have nothing.

JANICE: Why, I even heard of a plane up in Alaska that had trouble landing. They had to do something drastic or the plane would have crashed. So they dumped out nearly all of their supply of gasoline. That was about all there was to lighten the load.

CAROL: You know, girls, this reminds me of a Christian's life. Sometimes we wonder why certain things are taken away. I guess we just get so overloaded with things that we can't be used by the Lord. We use up our strength on these unimportant things and there isn't enough left to get over the mountains. Then He has to get rid of the excess baggage.

ANN: What do you mean by excess baggage? What would be some?

JANICE: I've seen some girls who carry a lot of anger around with them. They won't talk to each other, and they'll say mean things about each other behind their backs.

ELENER: And they get weighted down with anger till there's no song in their heart and no Christian testimony left.

CAROL: Anger is really a dangerous thing and can cause a lot of trouble.

ELENER: If you don't get rid of anger it turns into malice, and that is really hard to get rid of.

JANICE: Jealousy, too, makes girls want to hurt the feelings of others. It's so easy to get angry if we're a little jealous, and if we don't get over it, it turns into something worse.

CAROL: It proves the truth of that verse: "Don't let the sun go down on your wrath." It's not the getting angry that is so bad, but the keeping angry—not getting rid of the excess baggage.

ANN: If we don't get rid of anger, but hold onto it, then it's easy to go on to other things—saying things we shouldn't, telling stories that a Christian shouldn't be listening to or telling.

ELENER: Couldn't we say that anything that hurts our Christian life or testimony is excess baggage?

ANN: Yes; because it would make our progress slower and slower, and it would also hinder others from finding Christ—just like excess baggage on the plane could have

THEME SONG—"Footprints of Jesus." Also have an opening prayer.

CHORUS TIME—Enjoy a time of singing and testimonies.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ROADMAP—Read together I Corinthians 6:9-20.

PRAYER CIRCLE—Each girl should take part in this part of the service, even if she says only one sentence. Encourage all of the girls to pray.

DEVOTIONAL TIME—Seniors study "Excess Baggage"; Middlers study "Forgiving, as Christ Forgave."

SPECIAL MUSIC—This is the perfect place to begin our service to the Lord. After using our talents in a small group of girls to the praise of the Lord, it will be much easier in the future for further Christian service.

LEARNING THE PAST—Have a report on "History of the Brethren Church—IX."

BENEDICTION—Sing part of theme song, "Footprints of Jesus," and repeat the SMM Benediction.

a harmful effect on all the rest of the passengers, not just on the one who carries it.

CAROL: I think that's a good point. It hurts not only the one that carries the excess baggage and does these things, but it hurts others as well.

ELENER: Isn't there a verse that says just these things about getting rid of excess baggage like anger, and telling the wrong kind of stories?

JANICE: Yes; Colossians 3:8: "But now ye also put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth."

CAROL: I believe you'll have a better trip, Ann, if you'll leave all that excess baggage home.

ANN: I think you're right. I'm sure I'll have a better time if I'm free of all the things that would hinder one.

ELENER: We aren't going on a trip, but we could go through our lives and check up on the excess baggage there. We could sort out all the things that are hindering our progress, and throw them out as excess baggage.

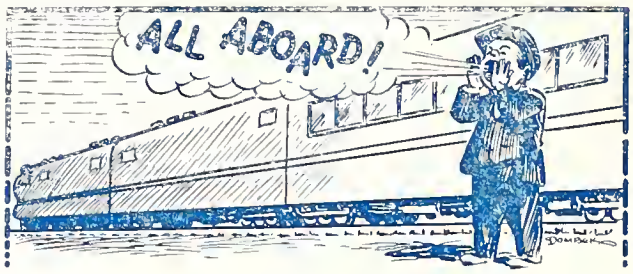
CAROL: There goes Ann's panda; she's taking out the excess baggage. Here go all unbecoming remarks, slang that isn't becoming a Christian girl, and any kind of questionable saying.

ELENER: Oh, thank you, Ann, for letting us help you pack today. We're all traveling light from now on. We're no longer earthbound with excess baggage, but with affections set on things above, and excess baggage gone, we're soaring into action for the Lord.

ANN: I'm so glad the Lord helps us to recognize excess baggage and helps us to "put off all these."

HAVE YOU BEEN WONDERING?

Perhaps in the past you've had to send to the Literature Secretary for small items which your SMM needed, and you didn't know exactly how much the cost would be, or what all is available. Well, we hope that after this, you'll have no such doubts, for here is a list of the items made available to you girls by the SMM:



Pennants	$0.65
Scarfs	.75
SMM Emblems	.25
Stationery	package 1.00
Pins	.50
Post Cards	.01
Announcement Cards	.01
Additional SMM Constitutions	.10
Additional Handbooks	.25

Take advantage of these articles. Your local group might try this for something different: Give a scarf or pin to each new girl who comes into your group and has said the aim, goal, verse, etc., of Sisterhood. Or have a contest in which the winners will receive stationery.

All the articles listed above can be purchased from the Literature Secretary, Carole Sue Quartz, Box 49, Winona Lake, Ind.

SMM OFFICERS

President—Myra Joy Conner, Bryan University, Dayton, Tenn.
Vice President—Amy Lou Bracker, Winona Lake, Ind.
General Secretary—Nancy Weber, 835 Spruce St., Hagerstown, Md.
Treasurer—Mary Hooks, Box 262, Winona Lake, Ind.
Literature Secretary—Carole Sue Quartz, Winona Lake, Ind.
Bandage Secretary—Marie Sackett, 1010 Randolph St., Waterloo, Iowa.
Patroness—Mrs. Arnold Kriegbaum, Winona Lake, Ind.
Assistant Patroness—Mrs. Leslie Moore, 112 Beachley St., Meyersdale, Pa.

VISITING WITH THE OTHER SMM'S

Well, how did you all like the trip we took the other month to the Sisterhoods? Are you all ready for another trip? All aboard! First stop will be Winona Lake, Ind.

The Junior girls enjoyed a Halloween party, and at Christmastime they gave a fruit basket to a needy family. At the first of the year they chose two teams, Mary and Martha, for competition in enrollment, which did prove an effective way to increase their group.

We can't stay long at one place, but will hurry over to Johnstown, Pa.

This is only a new group, organized in the fall of 1954, with five girls. For the National Project, the girls are babysitting. At Christmas they stuffed dolls for their church nursery. The officers were installed at a special Valentine's meeting.

Here we go again, over to Indiana to see the girls of the SMM in Berne.

In December the girls enjoyed a covered-dish supper along with a night of rolling bandages, at which time they rolled 232. Before Christmas the girls prepared treats for the elderly women of a nursing home nearby, enclosing a tract in each one.

While we are in Indiana, let's go over to the Fort Wayne group, shall we?

After pestering their penny partners for quite some time for pennies, the girls of the Senior group presented them with a pair of socks. But before they could receive their pair of socks, they had to give the girls some pennies. Sounds like fun, eh?

How about taking a quick trip out to California? I'm sure they'll show us a good time!

The Senior SMM of Temple City was just started in June of '54 with three girls and are now a group of nine girls. At Christmastime they sent soap and dolls to the Indians, and are working hard on their verses for goals.

Sorry to say this, but we must hurry off, for we only have time for one more stop. That will be the Senior group of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach. All aboard! And here we are. . . ."

At a meeting in which the girls rolled bandages, they also started a missionary scrapbook, with some girls working on Argentina and its missionaries and other girls on other fields. The book is in sections, some concerning the lives of the missionaries and how they made their decisions, others on the children of the missionaries, and another section on the letters written by the missionaries themselves. All the girls are taking a great interest in this new project.

Say, that's quite an idea, and a helpful one, too! They should be quite well acquainted with the missionaries by the time their scrapbook is completed. You other groups get busy and plan something special, too. Then write to the general secretary, so the other girls can in turn hear about it also. So long for now, everybody!

History of the Brethren Church—IX

By REV. GERALD POLMAN

After the Dayton, Ohio, conference of 1883 the Brethren Church was regarded as a fixed institution, and charters were obtained in all the states where congregations existed. New life was manifested in all the organized churches, and new congregations were organized in all parts of the brotherhood. State and district conferences were organized in rapid succession in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana; then Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia in one district. The next to organize were "Illiokota" (Illinois, Iowa, and the Dakotas), then "Kanemorado" (Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, and Colorado).

The second general conference was held at Ashland, Ohio, in 1887. At this conference it was defined that the apostolic idea of congregational church government related alone to the incidental affairs of the congregation, and not to doctrinal practices, which must be universal. A mission board and a women's organization were formed at this time.

The next conference was held at Warsaw, Ind., in August 1892. This conference reaffirmed the former position of the church in renouncing all creeds of every description except the Bible, the whole Bible; but for the satisfaction of honest inquirers, who were not acquainted with the church, they announced officially that the Brethren Church understands her creed to teach, among other things, the following:

1. That the ordinance of baptism is trine immersion only.

2. That feetwashing is a divine institution, and should be practiced in the public worship by all saints, in connection with the Lord's Supper.

3. That the Lord's Supper is a full evening meal, and is to be eaten in the night, as a divine institution, in the public worship of God, in connection with the communion of bread and wine.

4. That the eating of the communion bread and the drinking of the communion wine, in connection with the Lord's Supper, is a divine ordinance, to be thus kept and obeyed by the church, in her public worship.

5. That the "holy kiss" is a divine institution, to be practiced by all the saints in the public worship of God.

6. That the various separate and collective congregations, while absolutely and truly congregational in government, yet each and all have a divine relation to each other, and to the whole church as the body of Christ; and that, therefore, the faith, character, and practice of each and all are under the same divine law of government, under Christ and the Holy Spirit, to each other, as the Word of God teaches.

7. That hereafter our general convention shall be called the Brethren General Conference.

Other conferences were held in 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, and then in 1899 the conference was held at Winona Lake, Ind. During the conference of the next year (1900), held at Winona Lake, a most important event took place. The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church was organized with a charter membership of 53. The first foreign-mission fields were Persia and Canada, with the addition of Argentina by the year of 1907.

The Lord continued to bless the growth of interest in the missionary program and organizations.

By Our President, Myra Joy Conner

1. DID YOU REMEMBER? Yes; the birthday offering should be in to the national treasurer by May 10. You'd better hurry if you haven't sent yours in yet.

2. WE WANT SOME NEWS FROM YOU! Won't you write to the national general secretary and let us know something interesting that you've been doing? Your group should send in at least two of these this year.

3. HAS THE LORD EVER FAILED YOU? No; I'm sure He never has. But . . . have you ever failed Him? I have. There are a number of ways that we can show our faithfulness to Him, especially in Sisterhood. Have you been faithful in attending all church services possible? What about inviting a new girl to Sisterhood? Have you been interested enough in the Lord to attend the Sisterhood meetings?

> "How can I do less than give Him my best,
> After all He's done for me?"

4. WILL WE GET TO THE TOP? Remember, it's up to you if we reach our goal for the National Project! We're striving for $1,700, so get busy with your "penny partners" and any other way you know of for reaching this goal. The dispensary and microscope for Africa are needed immensely! Don't let them down. Above all, remember that it's for the Lord!

FORGIVING, AS CHRIST FORGAVE

By MRS. JAMES DIXON

We have been studying how we might walk worthy of the Lord and how to please Him in everything. In order to do this we have learned that we must be fruitful in every good work, and we must increase in the knowledge of God.

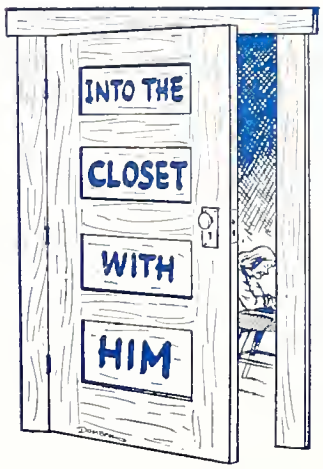
When we were saved we became partakers of God's divine nature. We are longing for the day when we shall see Him face to face and be changed into His likeness. Meanwhile we still have sin to contend with. We must put sin out of our lives. This must be done whenever sin arises. We must recognize it as evil and confess it, by name, to the Lord.

We must be not only diligent in fighting sin, but we must put on the virtues of Christ. We must be like Him in compassion, kindness, humbleness, meekness, and patience.

Let us "increase in the knowledge of God" by studying more about our Lord Jesus Christ, that we might be like Him.

What did you do to merit your salvation? If we are honest we will have to say we did nothing to earn God's mercy or grace. As the Scripture says in Romans 3:10-12, "As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one: there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God. They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one." But God loved us when we were dead in our sins. He had mercy on us while we were His enemies, and saved us through Christ.

Think of the great debt of sin you owe God. Think of a huge book in which is recorded every wrong ambition, every evil word, and every sinful deed. Think how long that book would have to be to record every sin you have ever done. Then see the words stamped through the account: "Forgiven in full through the blood of the Lamb." "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus." He remembers our sins against us no more.



Our hearts are filled with thanksgiving for God's mercy and grace. Yet with one breath we praise God for His love and with the next breath speak evil of one who has wronged us. Think how much smaller his debt is to you than your debt is to God. Remember, the Lord Jesus said: "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses" (Matt. 6:15).

This does not mean that this is one work we must do to earn forgiveness, but it does mean that if we can harbor bitterness and unforgiveness in our hearts, we undoubtedly have never really been saved. We do not really know the love of God. So if you have bitterness in your heart toward anyone, be sure you have been saved. If you really belong to the Lord, confess your sin to Him and He will forgive. If you really repent, you will forgive your enemies also. Remember, the hardest one to forgive is the one who gossips against you and the one who accuses you falsely. They did this to our Lord also and He prayed: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

"Dear Lord, help us to forgive, as Thou hast forgiven us. Help us never to hold against another what You do not hold against us. Through Jesus Christ our Lord we pray."

1. Has anyone ever wronged you?
2. How can you forgive them?
3. Does resentment for what they've done keep coming up in your heart?
4. What should you do when these thoughts come to your mind?
5. Can you forgive and not forget?
6. Did Christ forgive all your sins?

PRAYER REQUESTS

Pray that it will be possible to meet our goals in Sisterhood.

Pray for the local SMM's as they are having their spring cabinet meetings at this time.

Continue to pray for Miss Gail Jones in Africa, and for all the other missionaries who are proclaiming God's Word.

Pray for the national officers, as they soon will be working on plans for conference and next year's theme.

Pray for the writers, both of this year's articles and of the coming year's, that the Lord will lay on their hearts that which He would have them to write.

changes have developed through growth. If Sisterhood is to stay a live organization, more changes will naturally come. But because Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, and today, and forever, the aim of Sisterhood will ever be to develop every girl to be a living testimony for her Master; to give the girls of dimly lighted regions an opportunity to know Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour.

The aim is accomplished through the careful guidance of dedicated patronesses. In Titus, the second chapter, God's order states that the older women teach the young women, by precept and by example. Love and patience are high requirements of patronesses who have the joy of successful Sisterhoods. If in each girl's life God's will is followed, the highest achievement possible is attained. One patroness wrote she feels she practically deserves the purple heart award, but her letter was filled with cheerfulness for her task and deep, sweet satisfaction in doing God's will.

Sisterhood has grown from 1 to 125 in organizations; from 7 members to 1,071; from a few dollars in giving to over $5,000 a year; from 100 bandages rolled to 10,000. But as in the beginning "not great numbers do we seek" as much as that Christian girls will grow in their love for the Lord Jesus and give gladly their all to Him. During April, a Sisterhood birthday thank offering is given for the higher education of missionaries' children, and Sisterhood is glad to give, for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver.

THREE WORDS OF EXPIRATION

BY O. D. JOBSON, D. D.
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

The first three words Jesus spoke from the cross concerned others. There was the prayer, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." There was the promise, "To day thou shalt be with me in paradise." And there was the provision, "Woman, behold, thy son! . . . Behold, thy mother!" Then there was silence from the ninth hour until the twelfth. Darkness was over all the land. That silence was broken by the cry which is the subject of this brief meditation, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" This word concerned himself, as did the three that followed it: "I thirst," "It is finished," and "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."

Of all the sayings from the cross, this is the one that pierces our hearts and causes awe and wonderment. Our Lord forsaken of the Father for our sakes. No wonder Isaac Watts could write:

"When I survey the wondrous cross
On which the Prince of Glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride."

There is no other saying of our Lord, during His trial and crucifixion, so difficult to explain as this one. It is certainly not our purpose to attempt to do so. One can only stand in admiration and gratitude and meditate on such a cry as this. Surely there can be no explanation apart from the fact that "For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him."

During those silent hours on the cross, when darkness was over the land, our Lord was in perfect communion, as He always was, with the Father. At length, in His role as the sinbearer, He felt the separation and alienation from the Father's holy presence. The judgment and penalty of our sin was upon Him. He was momentarily forsaken of God that we might be forever pardoned and linked in fellowship with the Father. He became sin that we might be reckoned righteous. He was forsaken that we might be received. He died that we might live.

In rereading this fourth saying from the cross, one is struck with the emphasis of the possessive pronoun, twice repeated, "My God, my God." A. Tholuck writes that in these words "there is an acknowledgment full of confidence. To be able to say to that great Spirit from whom, and by whom, and to whom are all things—not with mere words but in true faith—'Thou art my God,' to be able to say that at any time was much, but to say it upon the tree of shame, and at the close of such a life, was unspeakably more. For surely everything appeared to say that that God, the God of His youth, to whom, as a boy twelve years of age, He had looked up as His Father, to whom as a man He had trustingly prayed during the battle of life—surely now everything appeared to say that that God was His God no longer." But despite all of this, in the darkest hour of His life, Jesus exclaims, "My God, my God!" The Father on whose business He had come, and whom He always pleased, was His God even on the cross.

Then there is that little word, "why." In the complications of life and through many of its varied circumstances we often exclaim, "Why?" That is because we can see only a part and not the whole of our life's span. We are perplexed and puzzled, and when led through deep waters we often wonder, "Why?" This cannot be the same sense in which Jesus asks, "Why?" He knew the end from the beginning. But we must always remember that He was man in the fullest sense of the word. It is not to be wondered that in this hour of His suffering He meditated on the Psalms. In fact, many of the Psalms find their fullest expression and final fulfillment in Him. Certainly we are not to think of Christ questioning the Father, nor in His divine nature ignorant of the experience through which He was passing. Is it not rather a cry of lamentation such as the psalmist used when he said, "Why is my heart disquieted within me?" or "Why art thou so far from me?"

Finally, there is that fearful word, "forsaken." His Father in His holiness veiled His face from the Son as He bore the sin of the world. That momentary alienation pierced the heart of our Lord with anguish. How much He bore for us! What ignominy! Deserted of the Father for our sakes. "There is nothing fitted," writes Dr. Tholuck, "to move men more deeply, nothing that can more strongly impress them with a sense of the majesty of God, than the miracle of grace by which the cross—for man the memorial of the basest ignominy—is converted into a source of consolation, full of immeasurable grace."

There is no defeat here. But a triumphant Saviour through suffering. He died, He lives. He has commanded that we be His witnesses unto the uttermost parts of the earth. To obey is to follow Him in sacrifice and suffering. Faithful service will require long years of sowing and watering. But certainly this is the least we can do for the One who suffered so much for us.

"I suffered much for thee,
More than thy tongue can tell,
Of bitt'rest agony,
To rescue thee from hell;
I've borne, I've borne it all for thee,
What hast thou borne for Me?"

THE THREE MARYS AT THE CROSS

BY DONALD F. MILLER
MISSIONARY
FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

It was in the very early hours in the city of Jerusalem. The Sanhedrin of the Jews had convened during the night and sentenced Jesus to death. Gladly would these arrogant, self-righteous Jews have carried out this execution in the Jewish fashion by stoning Him, but the Roman law declared that all capital sentences must be brought before the government representative of Rome to confirm or reverse the sentence. Therefore, on this historic morning we see this group of angry Jews bringing Jesus before the Roman representative, Pilate.

Pilate did not share the feelings of this group of Jews against Jesus, and he chose to release Him, for he found no fault in Him, but the mob cried out, "Crucify him." Pilate, unable to control the desires of this angry mob, became baffled with the situation. He compromised, and delivered Jesus into their hands saying: "I am innocent of the blood of this just person: see ye to it." (Matt. 27: 24). The sentence was passed upon Christ, "And he bearing his cross went forth into a place called the place of a skull, which is called in the Hebrew Golgotha: where they crucified him" (John 19:17-18). It appears that the Jews' desire was fulfilled, but Christ was treading a divinely marked pathway.

Near the scene of the crucifixion we see three distinct groups of people.

The Roman Soldiers. This was the group nearest the cross. To these four soldiers fell the actual details of the crucifixion. After their task was finished they sat down at the foot of the cross and divided and cast losts for the garments of Jesus. What a horrible picture!

The Sanhedrin. After this group of men had condemned Jesus in their own court, they accompanied Him through the civil court of Pilate on to the place of the crucifixion. While Jesus hung on the cross this group of men stood at the side and looked up at Him on the cross, jesting and mocking and saying: "He saved others; himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross." There was no note of sympathy from this crowd.

Mary, the mother of Jesus; Mary, the wife of Cleopas; and Mary Magdalene. Let our attention now be directed to a third group. It is a comparatively small group. As the eyes of Jesus swept the throng of people who were jesting and mocking Him, His eyes fell on a small group of faithful women who had followed Him from Galilee and ministered unto Him during His earthly ministry, and now they were near Him even as He was on the cross. Let us note the faithfulness of this group of women and glean a lesson from them for our own selves.

First, note their position, as stated in John 19:25—"Now there stood by the cross of Jesus." In this position they manifested a great fortitude, faith, and trust. They were witnessing the agonizing death and shame of their best Friend. They had followed and loved Him, and they had trusted that it would be He who should redeem Israel and reign over them forever, and there He was, perishing before their eyes in defeat and shame. We are sure that the hearts of these women were filled with mixed emotions; however, they wavered not, but they continued to stand with Jesus at the cross. As the mob stood by shouting, laughing, and mocking, these faithful women did not join in this ridicule, but silently stood and witness this heartbreaking event.

As they stood there, many who had condemned Jesus knew these women and no doubt associated them with Jesus as His followers. Undoubtedly their own lives were in jeopardy as they stood there among this crowd; however, they counted not their own lives dear, for these women loved Him. It was more than an ordinary affection of human friends, for it was in Him that they attached a Christian hope as the Messiah and Saviour.

Their faithfulness is an example for Christians to imitate today. They stood by Him in His hour of trial and suffering. It was one thing to stand by Him in His hour of power, when at His word, or His touch, the sick were healed, or the blind saw, or at the command of His voice the waves were stilled. But it was another thing to stand by Him while He was hanging on a cross. They remained with Him when others had left Him. It is easy to stand by Jesus one of many, but it is another thing to stand by Him one of a few. It is one thing to follow Him with faithful disciples and a crowd, but it is another thing to stand alone by His cross.

The Scriptures mention that there were five people in this crowd of faithful followers of Jesus at the cross—the three Marys, the disciple of love, John; and one other woman. Where were the beloved disciples who were so zealous for Him before? Perhaps others may have been in the crowd, or on the outskirts observing from afar off, but these few faithful ones stood by the cross when all had left. Where are you today? Are you willing to be identified with Him as these faithful ones, or are you standing afar off? Might we stand firm in Him, realizing daily that the cross could not hold Him; that He is the Victor over death and hell, and that He is our Saviour and coming King!

RECONCILIATION

FIRST EFFECT OF THE CRUCIFIXION

By J. PAUL DOWDY
MISSIONARY TO ARGENTINA

WITHOUT DOUBT the crucifixion of the Son of God is the greatest event of the ages. In that solemn demonstration of God's love to man and man's hatred and rebellion toward God are involved more of the works and attributes of God than in any other accomplishment in the divine plan. If any order in time can correctly be assigned to the different works of God in the plan of salvation, of necessity reconciliation would come first.

What then is reconciliation and what is its relation to human experience? Being a word in current use, its basic meaning is generally misunderstood. Naturally, it presupposes a state of disrupted relations between two or more parties. When satisfactory terms are agreed upon or proper restitution made, the estrangement is undone and a friendly relation reestablished. This is reconciliation in the ordinary sense. However, reconciliation in the New Testament sense is a more profound matter than it is in purely human affairs, though the basic idea is the same. To answer more fully the question at the beginning of this paragraph we shall go directly to the Word of God. The principal passage to be considered and which suggests the outline of this article is II Corinthians 5:18-21. We notice first that reconciliation is—

A Manifestation of God's Love

In verse 18 we are told that God "hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ." The following verse amplifies this idea in these words: "God was in Christ [that is, by means of His ministry] reconciling the world unto himself." Obviously this reconciling took place when Christ died on the cross. By no other means could so great a good have been accomplished.

The death of God's Son on the cross is the supreme manifestation of His love, for He died there on behalf of a lost and sinful humanity. He who knew no sin, the Just One, the infinitely Holy One, took our place, bearing "our sins in his own body on the tree." John 3:16 tells us that it was in this manner that God loved the world. The Apostle Paul in Romans 5:7-8 calls attention to this unusual and great love. He says that "scarcely for a righteous man will one die," which means that human love is measured by the estimated value of the person loved. "But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

We should be exceedingly grateful for such a manner of loving, for we, with all mankind, were in a hopeless condition, defiled by sin, condemned and estranged from God. God is holy and cannot have fellowship with sinners. He is just and cannot overlook sin. The penalty had to be paid. But our God, being a God of love, loved us in spite of our sinful nature and practice, and gave His Son to pay the penalty for us. God provided in the person of Christ the perfect sacrifice for sin, thus satisfying the demands of divine justice. In this way alone could the estrangement between a holy and just God and a world of sinful men be put out of the way, thus effecting a reconciliation. But this great reconciliation is more than a manifestation of God's love. Reconciliation is—

A Message To Be Proclaimed

The Apostle Paul in the passage under consideration says that God "hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (vs. 18), and "hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation" (vs. 19). This obviously means that it is our responsibility to make known to others this work of reconciliation which God wrought on Calvary. It is a message to be proclaimed.

It is quite probable that this message of reconciliation is not given its proper place in the preaching and teaching ministry in general. Its importance should not be overlooked nor underestimated, since a reconciliation was necessary before God could do anything else to redeem man. We, as Christians, perhaps value too lightly the fact that God "hath reconciled us to himself." When we cease to marvel at the great love and mercy of God, we cease to be grateful and thus fall into the sin mentioned in Romans 1:21, "When they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful."

We cannot fully know the horror and all of the terrible consequences of the separation between man and his Creator, a separation caused by man's sin. But to exist at all in the universe and have no fellowship nor favor with the Creator and Sustainer of all things would be bad enough. Yet the situation of sinful man was far worse, being, as he was, under condemnation and destined to eternal punishment. How we ought to glorify our wonderful God and give Him thanks for His mercy and kindness in reconciling us to himself by Jesus Christ!

However, the message of reconciliation is a message primarily for the unsaved. There are all kinds of people in the world with a great variety of ideas regarding the destiny of man, but there prevails almost universally the conviction that man is estranged from God. Many forms of sacrifice and suffering have been invented in the vain attempt to appease an offended God. But there are people, perhaps very many, who in their pride and rebellion do not recognize the awfulness of sin and know nothing of the terrible estrangement between God and man. To all the unsaved of every class it should be made known that an awful separation existed between man and his Creator until God, entirely of His own will, brought about a reconciliation through the death of His Son Jesus Christ.

Reconciliation is therefore a work of God, by means of which He in perfect justice put out of the way everything that made a peaceful relation with fallen man impossible. "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus."

A secondary phase of this message of reconciliation is expressed in the words, "be ye reconciled to God" (vs. 20). This means that the sinner is to lay aside personal pride and opinions of men and believe that "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them." The estrangement no longer exists. Accept the reconciliation which God wrought by the death of His Son and which He offers freely to a lost world of men.

"And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14-15).

REGENERATION

SECOND EFFECT OF THE CRUCIFIXION

By LYNN D. SCHROCK
MISSIONARY TO ARGENTINA

THE VERY WORD "regeneration" makes us think of that night when Nicodemus visited our Lord. For that night, though the word "regeneration" was not employed in the conversation, the meaning was amply expounded. The Lord spoke clearly of the need of being born again. And that is exactly what "regeneration" means.

After He declared the absolute necessity of being born again, our Lord spoke of the divine provision for the new birth. The mighty work of God's Spirit in the sinner's life is one part of this provision, and the mighty work of God's Son on the cross is the other part of the provision. It was to give life—eternal life—to dead men that Christ said that He "must . . . be lifted up" to die. Let us meditate together on this wonderful truth—the fundamental truth of our precious faith.

The Illustration of Regeneration

Without a doubt the main point of Christ's use of the Israelites' experience in the wilderness is the comparison between Moses lifting up the serpent and His own lifting up on the cross. And some would say that this is the only comparison we should see. Nevertheless, there are other remarkable parallels that we should not pass by. One is the illustration of our regeneration.

As you recall, the urgent need for the brazen serpent was that the people were dying. The poison of the fiery serpents was already in their veins. Their certain end was death.

Doesn't poison work in the human race now? Haven't all the members of Adam's race been bitten by "that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan"? Isn't death—eternal death—the sure end of all mankind, unless there be divine intervention? And doesn't the unconverted man live in death—spiritual death—even now?

The affirmative answer to each of these questions confirms the parallel between the Old Testament illustration and the New Testament reality. But the parallel does not finish here. Against this tragic and apparently hopeless background there emerges light and hope. God has intervened and there is life!

So the Old Testament illustration teaches us. The last two words of the story speak of the person whose body was filled with poison and therefore dying, and declare that "he lived." What precious words! The Israelite "passed from death unto life."

That is God's offer to the sinner today! Just recently I was speaking to a man in the post office here in Rio Cuarto about the things of Christ. He expressed his opinion that all religions lead to the same goal; that is, to morality. I was very glad to tell him that the Gospel is infinitely more than that. Its goal is salvation, and that includes life—eternal life. What a wonderful message to preach in this land—in every land!

The Divine Provision for Regeneration

There is a "must" in the verses quoted at the beginning of this article. The Son of man "must" be lifted up.

God could not give life to men only because He wanted to. That may seem to be a strange statement, but so it was. And it is this truth that explains the must of John 3:14.

Sin was the cause of our spiritual death, for the wages of sin is death. That is to say, sin had separated us from the source of life. It was necessary, therefore, that the sin question be dealt with. It was necessary that the separation between God and man be done away with.

How could all this be done? There was only one answer—the Son of man must be lifted up. Only the death of our blessed Lord could pay the necessary price to give us life.

But thanks be to God's infinite grace, that price was paid. How do we know? Because Christ himself told us so. He said, "It is finished." And it has been pointed out that this expression means "paid." In the original it is just one word. And it was the word used to mark tax receipts as already paid. The payment has been received; the debt is wiped out, for the Redeemer of mankind has paid the price of redemption.

This is the matchless message of the Gospel! The door of salvation is open. Or to use another figure, the supper is ready. Or to return to the idea of regeneration, there is life for the dead.

The Acquiring of Regeneration

No one need die eternally. God's terms are such that anyone can meet them. We are so happy for that truth in this land. Though we do preach the Gospel here to many who are capable and well-to-do, the majority are of little education and poor. If human wisdom were necessary to have life, we would have no message for this great multitude. If money were essential to be born again, many would have to die in their sins. But such is not the case, for it pleased God "to save them that believe" (I Cor. 1:21). And anyone can believe—the uneducated and the poor, as well as the educated and the rich. That is, anyone who sees his urgent need of salvation and is willing to abandon his sins to live for Christ, is able to believe.

Such was the need in the case of the Israelites. They had to realize that they had been bitten and therefore were dying. It was only upon seeing this that they could look by faith to the brazen serpent and live.

How is it with the reader of these words? Have you seen your need—your urgent need of life? If so, thank God that He has worked in your heart, and read once again and obey the words of the Lord Jesus Christ: "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life" (John 3:14-15).

RESURRECTION

THIRD EFFECT OF THE CRUCIFIXION

By JAMES B. MARSHALL
MISSIONARY TO ARGENTINA

The Lord Jesus Christ hung on the cross and the world looked with scorn. It did not know the cause of His death, therefore it could not properly understand the effect. If those who watched Christ suffer and die that day on Calvary had known that He was dying because of their sins and the sins of the whole world, that Christ the Righteous and Just One, the perfect, spotless Lamb of God was making himself sin for them and bearing in His body the wrath of God that they deserved, they would not have mistaken the crucifixion. But they looked at the appearance of things and to them the apparent effect of the crucifixion was but the death of another man. To them it meant separation from His friends, defeat of His purpose, the silencing of His preaching. No doubt many that day left His presence thinking to themselves, "We're better off without Him. Better dead than alive!"

How tragic the conclusions of the world! Actually the effect of the crucifixion was life, eternal union and communion with His friends, and victory over Satan and sin. Let us look at these effects.

Life

Jesus Christ is the source of life (John 1:4; 5:26) and no one could have taken His life. Christ laid it down voluntarily (John 10:17-18). In order to give His life to others He first had to give it for them. On the cross He poured out His blood—His life—for a sinful world that through Him the world might have life. Even before His death Jesus said: "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die" (John 11:25-26). And so, although the Roman soldiers hanged Him on a cross and pierced His side, and later His disciples placed Him in a tomb, He was not dead forever, for He had promised to rise from the dead (John 2:19; 10:18). Death could not hold the Author of Life any more than man can detain the mighty force of a hurricane.

Let the world think what it will about the crucifixion! A shameful death? Yes! But a glorious resurrection and the promise of life to humanity dead in trespasses and sins.

Therefore, let us identify ourselves with Him in His death on the cross in order that we might be able to say with the Apostle Paul: "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me" (Gal. 2:20).

Eternal Union and Communion With His Friends

After Jesus had eaten the last supper with His disciples (Matt. 26: 31-32) He announced to them: "All ye shall be offended because of me this night: for it is written, I will smite the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock shall be scattered abroad. But after I am risen again, I will go before you into Galilee." In these words we have a prediction of His death and resurrection. It is interesting to note how literally these words were fulfilled.

After the crucifixion the disciples were confused and bewildered (Luke 24:14-15, 21). Their Lord and Master had been taken from them. They were alone. How could they forget the promise of Jesus so soon! But their eyes were closed, and until Christ opened them they could not understand (Luke 24:31).

Before His death He had walked and talked with them, but as a man of flesh and blood He could only be in one place at one time. When He was with them He could not be with Mary and Martha (John 11:6, 21) at the death of Lazarus. He was limited in His earthly ministry. Many sick and afflicted tried to reach Him and some were hindered by the multitudes (Mark 2:4). Then the cross brought separation from His friends.

But after the resurrection, how different! As the resurrected Christ He can be with all His friends, in all parts of the world at the same time. The resurrection established an eternal relationship that cannot begin to compare to the former. But not until Jesus Christ had risen from the grave could He say to His disciples, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the [age]" (Matt. 28:20).

What a blessed relationship! What union! Christ raised from the dead and seated at the right hand of God (Eph. 1:20), and every true believer seated with Him (Eph. 2:6).

Oh, that we might be more conscious of this union with our Lord! Our communion would be sweeter and our life richer.

Victory Over Satan and Sin

"The wages of sin is death." This is no stale truism or platitude. It is one of the most fundamental and basic truths of the universe. The evidence of death and sin is all about us. Men die because they are sinners. But why did Christ die if He never sinned? Did Satan gain the final victory over Christ? If the crucifixion had been the final event in the life of Christ, we would say yes, but the resurrection proves that such was not true.

Christ died because He made himself sin (II Cor. 5:21) for us. He bore our sins in His body on the tree. But our sins could not hold Him in the grave, for He is greater than our sins. He is our substitute. He became like us in all things and suffered even unto death that through death, as the apostle says, "he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil" (Heb. 2:14).

The apparent effect of the crucifixion was defeat, but the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead proved that it was a glorious victory.

Beloved friends, what does the resurrection of Christ mean to us? It ought to mean a consciousness of newness of life; of a new walk and communion with Christ Jesus through every moment of this earthly life; and victory over sin and the Devil. God grant that we "may know the power of his resurrection" in our daily lives to the end that through us those who are still dead in their sins may come to know the living Saviour.

New York City in Trouble

This title over an article in the U. S. News and World Report for March 25, 1955, is of real significance to every believer in Christ.

The main discussion of the article deals with figures on population, taxes, and other civic matters. New York is not growing as rapidly as other U. S. cities. A great influx of Puerto Ricans, with many more to come, has made a problem for this giant city in housing and other social matters. The "big town" will probably always draw a large number of tourists and fortune seekers.

But one of the biggest problems of this great metropolis is also a problem and a challenge for Christian people. In the last four years the region on the edge of New York City has added 898,000 people. By 1975, it is estimated there will be 19:2 million inhabitants in the area. Over 86 percent of this increase is expected outside the city limits. In one area, Nassau-Suffolk, nearly 150,000 new houses have been built in the last five years. Industry is moving out. It wants cheaper space, more room to build and expand. This exodus has helped to pile up a four-billion-dollar debt for the financially plagued city. What an opportunity to establish Bible-believing churches!

A worse problem is the increasing crime rate and the expressed inability of the city administration to cope with it. In 1954 on the average each day in New York one person was murdered; another died of criminal negligence; 26 people were assaulted; 3 women were raped; there were 130 burglaries; $138,000 worth of property was stolen; 34 cars were stolen; 66 grand larcenies were reported; 28 street robberies were reported; and 15 other felonies were reported. Major crime increased 2.3 percent in 1954 compared with 1953. Arrests of juveniles increased 20 percent in 1954.

As metropolitan areas go, New York City presents the greatest single challenge for evangelization found anywhere in the world. It is religious but pagan. Unbelief rules because few New Yorkers or those in its environs know the simple story of salvation in Jesus Christ. Compared to the population, Bible-teaching testimonies are few. Mass evangelistic efforts to this point have been impossible.

Yet actually no single fundamental denomination seems to be doing much about it. Compared to the population few new churches are being built in the area. Many of those being built are offshoots of modernistic groups. A careful investigation will reveal that even though the population of the area is increasing, there are less gospel testimonies per capita today than ever in history.

Few U. S. cities present such an opportunity. Why, then, have we not begun to woo this "giant" for Christ? Culture, the arts, education, business, and a thousand other angles of life are greatly affected by influences in this city. All the more reason why orthodox groups should be putting in their roots and beginning churches all over the area. Many say it is too difficult to start a church in New York. Admitting all the religion, Roman Catholic influence, etc., coupled with the opposition of any large city to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Word of God is just as powerful in New York as elsewhere. Some great churches in the city have proved this fact. No difficulty is insurmountable, especially by older denominations which have available great financial resources to meet this challenge.

We wonder whether there is not something about this problem which indicates the special attention of Satan. In the Word of God he certainly gave special attention to certain people and places. Why shouldn't he do so today? Under the present circumstances New York City is serving his purposes admirably. American influences go around the world from this great city. Aside from the very few missionaries who leave its piers for the fields of the world, these influences are generally not Christian. Careful thinking will reveal that Satan's influence may be multiplied many times through the tentacles of this great city as they circle the world.

New York is in trouble! Its greatest trouble is spiritual trouble. The administration of the city does not see this. We do! Therefore, we should be doing something to bind up the wounds of this suffering colossus.

Pray that New York may have the Gospel of Jesus Christ!

One for Your Scrapbook

In the days of the Transvaal gold rush, President Kruger allotted free land for religious purposes. Jewish representatives were informed that Christians would get four stands, but Jews would have two—"because you use only half the Bible."

Later Mr. Kruger was asked to speak at the opening of a Jewish synagogue. After being properly introduced, he left his Jewish hearers speechless by saying:

"I see some of you are Jews and I have come here to convert you. I know that you were the chosen people of God in olden times and that you believe in your religion as implicity as I believe in mine. I hope that in due time you will be brought to what I consider to be the right religion. However, I have not come here to quarrel with you for your belief, and only hope that you will not indulge in any ceremonies I don't understand and can't appreciate."

Then pausing and glaring at his audience, he added: "I now declare this church open in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

We have no record at hand as to what happened after that, but little consideration is needed to believe almost anything could happen.

We admire Mr. Kruger's conviction and sincerity, but we doubt if this is the proper way to get the Jews converted.

No doubt this is the only synagogue in history which was opened in the name of Jesus Christ!

We should pray constantly for the seed of Israel and evangelize them at every opportunity.

GOSHEN, IND., BREAKS GROUND FOR NEW CHURCH

By Herman H. Hein, Jr.

The day had arrived! What day? The day to break ground for a new sanctuary to God in the land of Goshen.

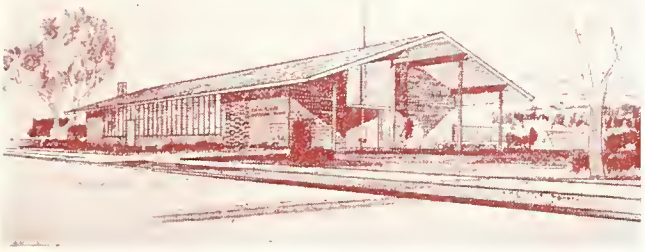
It may not be the Goshen of old mentioned in God's holy Word, but it certainly is part of that land Jesus spoke of when He said: "Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest" (John 4:35).

Sunday, March 13, 1955! An even 100 souls gathered on a three-acre plot of ground almost as level as a tabletop. The sun was smiling brightly down upon this happy group. They were gathered together for a service that will long be remembered and cherished. The day had arrived!

The service began by the singing of several hymns of praise led by Dean Fetterhoff, of Grace Theological Seminary. Rev. Russell Ogden, pastor of the Sunnymede Brethren Church of South Bend, led in prayer. The speaker for this very special time of blessing was Dr. Herman W. Koontz, pastor of the Winona Lake Brethren Church. He brought a very challenging message, one of exhortation, encouragement, and blessing.

The moment had arrived—the shovel bit deep into the rich black soil—it was done—the first shovelful of earth. The ground was broken at last. The members of the church were thrilled to see the work begun; the pastor was blessed at seeing the answer to one and a half years of prayer coming to pass. Friends of the church were encouraged. To Dr. Grubb and Rev. Lester Pifer it was one more step along the way in the great task of seeking the lost for Christ.

Many remarks were made concerning the richness of the soil. Dr. Koontz said: "I would like some of this soil for my flowers." Dr. Grubb was in hopes of obtaining some for his lawn. Many similar remarks were passed among the group, but all of this brought to mind the richness of God's Word and the field He has given us to care for. Much sowing needs to be done. Yes; some will fall by the wayside and be devoured; some will be sown in stony places and wither away; and some among the thorns; but praise be to God, if we sow faithfully, some will fall into rich, fertile soil and bring forth much fruit.



We are more than thankful for this haven of rest God is building by the hands of the Brethren Construction Company, the hands of our own people, and the combined gifts of our own members and faithful friends throughout the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. Our prayer, and chief motive for building, is to win souls for Jesus Christ, and to bring praise to His holy name.

God works in mysterious ways. We had planned on starting to build sometime in June. We were praying much, and making plans as much as possible. Suddenly, without warning, we were informed that the Brethren Construction Company would be here the next week. Things began to happen with a rush; plans to be drawn immediately; materials to be ordered; parking space for the six trailers; clearance for sanitation; and a dozen or so other necessary items.

God works in mysterious ways again I say. Man planning with his finite mind is only able to see day by day. God works with an all-seeing eye, able to see the end from the beginning. God always knows best and we are confident that He will see us through if we remain faithful and trust in Him.

Yes; that beautiful black soil has been broken, a new church is taking shape. May God grant a rich harvest of souls, and many, many blessings as we got forth into that field to reap the harvest before it is too late. Pray for us.

SEATTLE READY TO START BUILDING

Architect's drawing of the View Ridge Brethren Church.

The plans for the new View Ridge Brethren Church, Seattle, Wash., have been completed. They have been approved by the Brethren Home Missions Council and the "go-ahead" signal has been given. Financing has not been completed; however, funds have come in to get the building well on the way. Pray that others will be challenged to assist in financing the church that funds will be available to complete the building.

THE BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD VOLUME 17, NUMBER 16

Entered as second-class matter April 16, 1943, at the post office at Winona Lake, Ind., under the act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly by the Brethren Missionary Herald Co., Winona Lake, Ind. Subscription price, $2.00 a year; 100-percent churches, $1.50; foreign, $3.00. Board of Directors: Robert Crees, president; Herman A. Hoyt, vice president; William Schaffer, secretary; Ord Gehman, treasurer; Bryson Fetters, member-at-large to Executive Committee; Walter Lepp, S. W. Link, Mark Malles, Robert E. A. Miller, True Hunt, Lyle W. Marvin, Arnold R. Kriegbaum, ex officio.

Prayer Can Lick This Liquor Problem

Left (top down): Liquor destroys property; (center) liquor creates poverty; (bottom) liquor causes death. Right (top): Liquor available within two miles of the mission if this license is granted; (bottom) liquor-saturated driver of a pickup truck results in an accident killing this 18-year-old boy.

It would be impossible for us to present in pictures or words the problem created through the sale of liquor to the Navaho Indians. The pictures above are used only to call your attention to the great need for prayer that this evil might be hindered through the forbidding of the issue of licenses to individuals who have only their own financial gain at heart.

Only the missionary on the field knows the problems to their fullest extent, and he knows the only answer is through the prayers of God's people. From time to time, Rev. Evan Adams in his articles on the Navaho mission work has mentioned this very problem, but we will take a few excerpts from some of his recent letters to us so that you can get the picture firsthand.

February 2, 1955—Saturday we had quite a drunk-riot in our neighborhood. Some of it lasted into Sunday, and we got a little of it at the mission. A woman tried to kick in the door of our dispensary. One drunk man came to the camp of the Christians on our property and told them they would have to give him all their belongings. It is good to know that the bar only a few miles away will be closed on February 11.—E. M. A.

February 17, 1955—The bar closed on February 9 only to begin operation again on Monday, February 14. The owner of the building is so anxious to make some money that he started operation immediately upon exclusion of the other party. I went to Santa Fe to the state liquor offices on Tuesday afternoon and checked on the licenses for the place. The office reported there was only one license and the present operator could not operate on the former operator's license. Yesterday the liquor and revenue officers came and closed the bar again. The former liquor dealer has purchased property within two miles of the mission and plans to establish another outlet in our area. We plan to take action as a group to see what can be done to prevent such a place being established.—E. M. A.

February 28, 1955—There have been some new developments in the liquor problem of our area. There has been a growing movement through the whole area against the opening of any more liquor dispensaries. Now there is a unity of voice on the part of most, including traders, ranchers, and missions to exclude all from the area. Petitions have been circulating and some of us have made personal appearances at the state offices in Santa Fe. Navaho tribal leaders went to Santa Fe on Friday to protest the issuance of any liquor permits for the area. Joan and I had a good hearing with the acting liquor director last Wednesday and also with the governor's executive secretary. Everyone in the area is encouraged with the attitude of the new administration. We have been promised that no more applicants will be granted license to operate until a thorough hearing has been held. We feel confident that the Lord will do a great thing in rebuking the evil forces working for the detriment of the Navaho people. Prayer can make a possibility out of the impossible.—E. M. A.

La Crescenta, Calif., Plans Expansion

The Mountain Brethren Church, La Crescenta, Calif., is remodeling the present building to make it more adaptable and usable for the services of the church and Sunday school. New pews and a new baptistry will be installed, equipment which can be adapted to the future new plant. Partitions will be constructed to add more classroom space and separate the kitchen from the auditorium. The exterior improvements include a steeple, painting, landscaping, and an asphalt parking lot. The latter will also serve as a recreation area. The estimated cost of the remodeling program is $8,500 to $10,000.

The over-all plans for the property include a future building U-shaped which will enclose the present building. It will seat 500 plus classrooms and office space. The present building would then be used as a parish house for social functions, youth activities, vacation Bible school, convention hall, and additional classrooms. A Christian day-school building would be erected at the rear of the existing structure and this would completely surround it.

This present building program plus the cost of the property will be approximately $28,000 and will meet an immediate need. Every part of this program is designed to be incorporated in the future program, thereby making it a good investment from a business standpoint, as well as meeting a present need.

RIVERSIDE BREAKS GROUND

The Riverside Brethren Church, Johnstown, Pa., broke ground for their new home-mission church on Sunday, April 3, 1955, at 2:30 p. m. The building plans are complete and contractors are figuring the cost. A local bank has approved a loan for the construction. Watch next month's Home Mission Number of the Herald for full details.

ISRAEL CALLS!

THE COWARDLY INTELLECT

By Bruce L. Button

The person who does house-to-house calling to give forth the Gospel of salvation soon realizes that people generally fall into one of several classifications with regard to their readiness to receive the message of the Word of God. Those most difficult to deal with are the people who can be classified as the "cowardly intellect" type. I do not mean by this statement the people are physical cowards. Rather, I mean they are cowards in that they fear to read on all sides of a question lest they should find themselves proved wrong. In other words, they do not seek truth, for they do not want to be proved wrong.

The people in this group, for the most part, absolutely refuse to read on both sides of the question. If they should start to read material supporting that which opposes their views, they refuse to read further than the point at which they discover opposing material. Such people usually take the stand that scholarship is on their side. They also maintain those who hold the opposing view are unscholarly because of their view. As I think back over several weeks of calling there are three people who come to my mind. These are good examples of this group.

The first is a lawyer who lives on Formosa Avenue. His home had been contacted three different times. Twice his wife answered the door and once there was no answer. On this, the fourth occasion, the man of the house opened the door. He had on the yamaka (head covering) and was holding a copy of the Old Testament in his hand. I introduced myself and at the same time handed him a copy of the Mediator. His response was, "What is this?" to which I replied: "This pamphlet is a paper by gentiles and Jews who have a common belief in Messiah——" and that was as far as I got. The man proceeded to rip the Mediator to pieces, all the while using abusive language (the second one to use such language in the five years we have been here!). And when he had finished, he threw the pieces on the floor and ordered me to leave.

I continued down the street contacting other homes, and as I was testifying to two Jewish women, my lawyer friend came up to me with "What is this goniff trying to do, convert you?" And of course he was then in the conversation. I attempted to hold the discussion in the realm of the Old Testament and was successful to some extent. We discussed Genesis 49:10 and its implication regarding the coming of Messiah. I was told that I didn't know what I was talking about, but my lawyer friend offered me no counter explanation. He then brought up the Isaiah 7:14 passage and asked if I believed the Hebrew word almah meant "virgin." I replied that I did believe so and that the statements of Jewish men supported my claim. With that he challenged me to meet in the philosophical section of the Los Angeles library at 2:30 o'clock that afternoon. "I will prove to you," he said, "from the Hebrew how wrong you are."

I accepted the challenge and at 2 o'clock that afternoon I was at the appointed place. I waited until 4 o'clock, but my lawyer friend did not show up. As I think back over our conversation I realize how narrow and blind this man had become. I had tried to impress upon him the necessity of reading both sides and considering all the facts involved in a question before one rendered a decision. I asked if he had read the New Testament, which according to his own admission he had never done. His only reply was, "I'll not read such trash." Such is the attitude of one who was trained in logic and deduction.

The second person I have in mind is a woman who lives near the mission. She is well educated, holding a Master of Arts degree from U. C. L. A. I have witnessed to her many times, and each time she has brought up the question of evolution and its apparent disagreement with the Bible. Several times I have requested that she read certain books from my library which expose the evolutionary theory and its foolishness. Each time she has refused to take the book offered. She has given no reason for her rejection other than, "I will not read that book."

I have also requested that she read her own Old Testament. And I have pointed out to her that he who believes the Old Testament to be the Word of God cannot agree with the evolutionary theory. Her only reply: "It is not necessary for me to read the Old Testament. I am a Jew, and we Jews have the Word of God in our hearts." I immediately called to her attention the words of Jeremiah: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it? I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins . . ." (Jer. 17:9-10).

The third person I have in mind also lives near the mission. Sometime ago I asked this person to read the book, "The Fall and Rise of Israel." I told her that the book was written by a Christian missionary and this book set before the world the shameful record of the gentile nations in their handling of Jewish minority groups and also the equally shameful record of the gentile nations with regard to the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine.

She took the book with her and did start to read it, covering the first two chapters (some 58 pages out of a total of 398). These chapters covered Jewish history from the time of the captivity down to the period of the Spanish Inquisition. This is all the further she would read. The references to the spiritual blindness of Israel apparently caused her to rebel from reading the complete book. Neither would she be encouraged to continue reading in this book, nor was she willing to discuss what she had read in the light of Old Testament prophecy. Her reason for not reading the book? She stated it this way: "I will not read it."

As I think over these three contacts, the question comes to my mind, "Why this intellectual cowardice?" Only in this field, the field of religion and Messianic belief, does the Jewish mind shut the door to reason. In every other field the Jew reads and investigates all the evidence. And he is able to draw true conclusions as evidenced by the prominent positions he occupies in these fields. Never in the secular field do they say something

1954 Thanksgiving Offering Less Than Previous Year

By FRANK POLAND

For the first time in five years the Thanksgiving Home Mission Offering has failed to exceed the previous year's figure. Even at that time the difference was only $167.26. The 1954 offering of $141,422.04 failed by $5,735.73 to equal the one for 1953 and at the same time failed by $47,000 to meet the 28-percent increase needed for the proposed 1955 budget.

The directors of the Brethren Home Missions Council met at Winona Lake, Ind., from March 22 through 25 and were faced with this problem of arriving at a balance between the income and budget for 1955. Needless to say, they were forced to cut the assistance to present home-mission churches and limit new fields for 1955. This cutback may mean the difference between a self-supporting church and a Council-assisted church in many cases during the next year. However, in the face of this apparent limitation of the Brethren home-mission work, the board is looking to the Lord to supply an additional $22,000 to help assist some new churches that might be lost forever through one year of delayed action. This amount will have to come from some source other than the usual. Pray that this will come about only for the glory of the Lord.

The Midwest District came nearest to reaching the goal. The increase for this district was over 24 percent and was by far the largest percentage of increase. This same district showed the same increase last year, which adds up to a real gain over the two-year period. Three other districts registered increases, and seven registered decreases. In comparison, last year nine districts reported gains and only two reported losses.

New Life Members of the Brethren Home Missions Council numbered 114. This number of new life members is less than last year, when a record of 164 was established for one offering period. Life members are individuals giving $100 or more to Brethren home missions and for which a life certificate is given, entitling those persons to the privilege of voting in the corporation meetings during their lifetime.

The National WMC surpassed their goal for home missions. The National WMC home-mission project offering for 1954 was $2,995.59, with a goal of $2,500. The two-year project of the WMC to raise the $5,000 for a schoolbuilding at the Navaho Mission was completed this year with a total offering of $5,722.10 for the two years. Thus the WMC ladies continue a good record for exceeding goals in home missions.

Almost 50 percent of the churches report a decrease. A study of the comparative report that follows will reveal that 71 churches increased their home-mission offering while 69 decreased. This was for the 140 churches that had sent their offerings to us in time for this compilation. The study further reveals that this decrease was general and not limited to any one section of the nation. We have no explanation to make for this situation, for certainly there was no decrease in the emphasis on the need. In fact, there was an increase in the materials provided and in the personal presentation of the need by our home-mission representatives. COULD IT HAVE BEEN A FAILURE TO PRAY FOR THIS NEED ON THE PART OF THE BRETHREN?

THE BRETHREN HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL, INC., THANKSGIVING OFFERING COMPARATIVE REPORT

Note: Gifts sent in designated for local projects, district missions, or other work extraneous to the Council are not included in this report. No gifts for the Jewish mission work are included in the Thanksgiving offering.

South Bend, Ind. (Russell Ogden, pastor)—

There are now six people ready to be received into the membership, pending baptism, and others showing a definite interest. Everyone is thinking in terms of growth and expansion, which is good. Rev. Arnold Kriegbaum will be holding a revival meeting for us May 1 through 15. There are many prospects in the community who are parents of our Sunday-school children, and we would like you to pray especially for the revival to reach these for our Lord.

Yakima, Wash. (Henry Dalke, pastor)—

There is a wonderful spirit prevailing here, and we are enjoying the work. We have three more candidates for baptism, and they will be baptized next week. This will make a total of 15 in the last eight months. Our Sunday school is moving ahead, too. New standards have been adopted for teachers and new rooms are being added by changing some of the partitions.

Roanoke, Va. (W. Carl Miller, pastor)—

The Lord has marvelously blessed in our Sunday school. We have won first place in Division B of our National Sunday School Contest for January and February of this year. Our attendance for March is running far ahead of February, and we hope to reach 200 for Easter Sunday. We are going to inaugurate the six-point system starting with the new quarter. The possibilities are almost unlimited in the expanding area. Each week new families are moving into the 150 new homes being built within a few blocks of the church.

Elyria, Ohio (Galen Lingenfelter, pastor)—

I talked with the architect last night, and he said he would give me the detailed plans for the arches and steel next week. He said he would be willing to complete the basement plans so we could get the new building under way and then complete the remaining plans at the earliest possible date. I feel confident that once we get our own church building in the fine residential area, we will be able to win many for Christ in Elyria and even reach into Lorain, Ohio. Things are being done in a big way here and we feel the Lord's work is no exception. To say we have 100,000 people in our field would certainly be using a conservative figure.

Covina, Calif. (Marvin Goodman, Jr., pastor)—

The Lord has blessed us in the past few weeks with an increased attendance and considerably more interest from people in the community. Our average attendance in Sunday school for March was 20 over the previous month. Pray for our Sunday school contest that it will result in new members and salvation of souls. The winners will be able to attend the summer camp which we trust will be a blessing to them.

Grandview, Wash. (Harold Painter, pastor)—

We had 60 last Sunday and two young people accepted the Lord in the morning service. When Rev. Keith Altig was here we had four young people respond to the invitation for dedicated service. We have a possibility that may work out for lots near our present meeting place, and we are waiting with the building plans until the location is settled.

is untrue just because they disagree with the facts and the evidence indicate otherwise. But in the field of Messianic belief such a Jewish person adopts the attitude, "It is impossible to be wrong." "My father believed thus and thus and that is the way I will believe. I refuse to accept any enlightening to the contrary." We might sum it up another way, through a statement made by a Jewish lady as to the answer her sister received from her father when she questioned him concerning the return of Jesus. She received a slap in the face.

In the light of such narrowness of mind it seems almost impossible for Jewish people to ever believe. With man it is impossible, but with the Lord Jesus nothing is impossible. Remember to pray for the Jewish people, that their blinded eyes might once more see, the deafened ears might hear, and that the proud heart might submit itself to the righteousness of God, the blessed Lord Jesus the Messiah, both theirs and ours.

YELLOW CREEK, PA. Max Fluke and Charles Winter, students at Grace Seminary, were guest speakers on Apr. 3 at the Grace Brethren Church. Sheldon Snyder is pastor.

ALTOONA, PA. Ralph Burns has resigned as pastor of the First Brethren Church of Clay City, Ind., and has accepted the call to become pastor of the First Brethren Church of this city.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. The morning worship services of Leamersville Brethren Church were broadcast over WRTA during the month of March. Robert Crees is pastor.

DAYTON, OHIO. The Patterson Park Brethren Church had a 50-percent increase in attendance during March. C. S. Zimmerman is pastor.

FREMONT, OHIO. The sixth anniversary of the Grace Brethren Church will be celebrated May 15. Dr. Robert Culver, former pastor of the church, will be guest speaker. Gordon Bracker is pastor.

CHICAGO, ILL. Two Bible conferences are planned by Moody Bible Institute for this summer. One will be at Montrose in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Pennsylvania, July 2-10, and the other will be at Winona Lake, Ind., July 17-24. Both conferences are sponsored by the Moody Alumni Association.

CUYAHOGA FALLS, PA. Richard Burch, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church, was guest speaker at a Good Friday service in the St. John's Episcopal Church.

WOOSTER, OHIO. The Northern Ohio District Conference will convene here Apr. 19-21. The moderator's address will be delivered by Kenneth Ashman at 8 p. m. Apr. 19.

MEYERSDALE, PA. A banquet was recently held in the Meyersdale Brethren Church honoring the officers and teachers of the Bible school. Leslie Moore is pastor.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. The dedication of the new Sunday-school annex of the First Brethren Church was conducted Mar. 27. Dr. C. W. Mayes is pastor.

PARAMOUNT, CALIF. Attending the Christian day schools sponsored by the First Brethren Church are 510 boys and girls. About 45 percent of the students come from the First Brethren Church, with the remainder from the North Long Beach Church, Stearns Street Brethren Church, and several other Brethren churches within driving distance. About 100 students come from non-Brethren homes.

JUNIATA, PA. Dr. Bob Finley was guest speaker at the Grace Brethren Church Apr. 3-10. J. Ward Tressler is pastor.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. Mr. and Mrs. George Kashishian celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary during March.

CLAYTON, OHIO. The Southern Ohio District Conference will convene here May 16-19.

WARSAW, OHIO. Kenneth Ashman, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio, will deliver the Warsaw High School baccalaureate sermon on May 22.

CHEYENNE, WYO. The First Brethren Church realized a 150-percent increase in attendance during March. Russell Williams is pastor.

LONG BEACH, CALIF. The California District Conference will convene June 1-4.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA. The Atlantic Fellowship of Brethren Churches will convene here May 11-14.

WESTCHESTER, N. Y. (E/P). The Westchester Hotel, overlooking the Hudson River, has been purchased by the board of trustees of The King's College, according to Dr. Percy Crawford, president. The move to the new site will take place this summer. Westchester is about 30 miles north of New York City. The old campus has been sold to the Tide Water Associated Oil Company, who will take possession of the campus on July 1.

SPECIAL. In view of the position recently established by Reader's Digest to refuse to accept any advertising of alcoholic beverages, tobacco, or medical remedies, it would be well for thousands of Christians to write a letter of commendation to the Digest editors.

GLASGOW, SCOTLAND (E/P). Billy Graham slipped into the back row of the Dowanhill Presbyterian Church the day before his current Scotland Crusade began, remaining unrecognized for almost a half hour. While thousands of persons were trying to get reservations for one of the "Tell Scotland" meetings during the next six weeks, Graham spoke in the half-empty church to an average audience.

NEW YORK, N. Y. The American Bible Society has announced the 1955 Bible-reading campaign will run from Thanksgiving through Dec. 31. The high point of the program will be universal Bible Sunday on Dec. 11.

WINONA LAKE, IND. The 1955 summer season for the Winona Lake Bible Conference has been scheduled for July 24 through Sept. 5.

Christian Workers Training

Pastor Russell Williams presents certificate to Mr. Ralph Peterson.

Mrs. Russell Williams presents certificate to Mae Deike.

One of the major objectives of your National Sunday School Board as set forth in the Second National Sunday School Convention was "trained workers." That objective is becoming a reality in many of our churches. Now the first Christian Workers Training Certificates have been issued, and from the pen of the pastor of the Cheyenne, Wyo., church, Russell Williams, we tell you about that service.

"We in Cheyenne feel that ours was a real privilege to be the first Brethren church to award Christian Workers Training Certificates. On Monday evening, February 14, for our Valentine evening workers conference 30 people met at the church for a potluck fellowship dinner. Following the dinner we adjourned to the church auditorium to hear a challenging message by Thomas Inman, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Denver, Colo. Incidentally, we are having a real competitive race with the Denver church to see who will be ahead in the Sunday-school contest.

"It was a real joy to present to Mr. Ralph Peterson, our Sunday-school superintendent, Christian Workers Training Certificate No. 1. One member of our class was unable to be present to receive her certificate because of an accident which put her in the hospital. The pictures of the presentation of the first certificate to Mr. Peterson will be a memorable event (and a historical event) to our church. Miss Mae Deike was given her certificate on her hospital bed, where she is compelled to remain. Even an accident cannot hinder real Christian progress.

"We are looking forward to having another Christian Workers Training Course within a few weeks, when course No. 11 will be ready for use."—Russell Williams, pastor.

At the present writing, certificates have been issued to persons who have completed the first course in West Alexandria, Ohio, and Washington Heights, Va., churches, with others now completing their work.

The winners of our monthly contest are all of one accord when it comes to the answer to the question, "How do you do it?" Without any hesitation, one word, "Visitation," tells the story. We must all agree that it is God's will that His house be filled as the Word of God is taught on Sunday mornings. Whether or not the attendance will be what it ought to be on Sunday morning will depend to a large degree on the amount of visitation that is done between Sunday-school sessions. A sign on the church building is not enough to bring people to the church. We must visit them in their homes.

What about the absentees in your

Sowing at Bethany---Reaping in Ft. Lauderdale

No one who was at Camp Bethany last August will forget the keen competition and friendly feud that existed between the "odds" and the "evens" as they worked frantically to raise at least $300 each for their special projects. Offerings were taken in bushel baskets, washtubs, queer-looking banks, and open palms!

The "evens" were dedicated to the task of buying chairs for the new church in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where the former youth director, Ralph Colburn, was going as the first pastor. Posters by Dombek, publicity by most everyone, and even persecution from the "odds," who were trying to buy Eddie Miller a new and larger outboard motor for use in Brazil, were all evident.

But more than $300 came into the "even" coffers during the week!

Brethren YOUTH
By Ralph Colburn

(And an equal or slightly larger amount was raised by the "odds" for the boat motor!) When we arrived at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., last January 7, we were thrilled to see 52 beautiful new chairs, tubular-steel construction, and a pleasing tan in color.

Believe me, we've needed those chairs. You see, our temporary meeting place is a small community hall, and it has a total of about 30 nondescript wooden chairs of various vintage and manufacture. And we had 29 present at our very first service! So the next week we moved most of our new chairs in and were ready for crowds. And we've topped 60 at several services so far! We keep a few of the chairs at our house, where we need them for our midweek services, and have permission to store the rest in the building where we meet. Those first 52 chairs cost us just over $200, and we have enough money to buy about 28 more, and we're going to need them most any day, but our big problem is that

This picture was taken about ten minutes before Sunday school began one recent Sunday and shows some of those swell new Bethany chairs full, and some empty. We filled them all that Sunday, with a record 57 in Sunday school and 61 in church. And that filled the room, too!

WOOSTER YOUNG PEOPLE ATTENDING GRACE COLLEGE, SEMINARY

The First Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio, is well represented at Grace College and Seminary. Pictured is the group, with their pastor. The picture was taken at the home of Miss Louise Blankenship, secretary in the office of the Brethren Home Missions Council. She formerly was of the Wooster congregation.

Included in the group are three seminary students: Richard Maycumber, Randall Maycumber, and George Johnson. Also there are three college students: Earl Hodgdon, Margaret Martin, and Roberta Sprowls. Mrs. Randall Maycumber (Evelyn) and Mrs. Richard Maycumber (Ruth) are employed in secular work, assisting their husbands through school. All of these young people have dedicated their lives to the Lord for service as He may lead.

The Wooster congregation has taken a special interest in the college and seminary since several of the young people are now in attendance. Other local young people are planning to enter Grace this fall.

FELLOWSHIP

For the ninth time the family under this roof is experiencing the pleasures of a baby toddler. Mark Fremont, now 15 months old, who has been walking since he was 10½ months, is another animated doll. He is at once the joy and despair of the entire clan. Mother is sure the person who "invented" stairs never had a baby. The older children know a baby is the world's worst violator of privacy. Nothing is safe from his fat fingers. Daddy says a baby bankrupts the family with dry-cleaning bills, thanks to dear little inquisitive fingers which enjoy messy situations.

If Mark grows up completely unspoiled it will be a minor miracle. There isn't one soul in this house who doesn't make a fuss over him. That child No. 9 could be so loved is a constant source of wonderful delight to Mother.

Big Brother Bob drapes a baseball cap six sizes too large on Mark's head, covering his eyes, and then calls the little tyke "Beetle Bailey." Everyone laughs, even Mark. Brother Bill, who has never been too sure that a large family is a blessing or a pain in the neck, has capitulated completely to the charms of No. 9. Mother's cup is full when Bill calls her in a whisper to look at the sleeping baby while he exclaims: "He is undoubtedly the sweetest baby I've ever seen." Many has been the night when the 18- and 16-year-old boys went to bed between 10:30 and 11 that Mark awakened to the tune of dropped shoes, and squealed with delight at his brothers. Taking him up, they'd romp with him on one of their beds for a half hour or so; then back to his crib he'd go to sleep the sleep of exhaustion from delightful play. That's fellowship, and Mark understands it.

David, 14, has assumed the pleasant task of bathing Mark every morning just after family worship and just before he leaves for school. The noise and splashing in the bathroom indicate a hilarious time of fellowship.

What can Mother say of her oldest daughter's love for and interest in the baby? Words are not adequate to explain what Dorotheann has meant to Mark, except to say she is his second mother. When Mother was in the hospital a month last year, Daddy could not have gotten through those harrowing days of double work and responsibility without his first girl. The baby was only four months old then, but this didn't stump Dorotheann. She actually knew more about his routine, feeding habits, and clothing problems than Daddy. She knew the fellowship of love. She still does.

Sharon, Paul Kent, and Althea enjoy Mark as a playtoy; they love him frequently and drop him as fast as a new interest intrudes itself upon their horizon. Ardyth, whose "nose was cut off" with Mark's advent, tolerates her brother because she can do nothing else. She talks to him in her own three-year-old talk one minute; the next she knocks him down in order to retrieve a ball or confiscate his cracker. But she is learning to enter into fellowship; to learn its privileges and responsibilities.

Family fellowship is a lovely jewel and none but large families possess a fully cut gem. This is largely because the more individuals there are the greater the variety of personalities. It is the living and working and blending together of these personalities which turn out a gem of many facets.

This story runs true in God's family. There are many personalities, but one salvation sufficient for all. There are many brethren, but one Lord "who is rich unto all who call upon him." There are many gifts, but one purpose in their distribution among the saints. The purpose: to glorify God through Christ and win other lost to Him. There is one family fellowship, for the purpose of edifying the saints and giving them a united front to meet the onslaught of evil.

True fellowship is greatly lacking in many congregations of God's people this day. If Mother's eldest sons decided they were too far advanced to fellowship with their baby brother, he'd not only never get to know them, but their lives would be the poorer for not having enjoyed the sweetness of a baby. If everyone under this roof insisted on living only for himself, never "in honour preferring one another" (Rom. 12:10), ever expecting the other fellow to give in to him, there would be serious personality malformations and appalling lack of understanding and peace. This is likewise true in local churches, whether we like to admit it or not.

What about that recently saved person in your church? Have you done anything besides tell him you are glad he's in the church? That is fine, but it is not enough. How about visiting him for an evening in his home? Let him feel that there is some warmth in your expression of welcome. Then how about inviting him (and his family, if he has one) for a supper of beans and weiners? Of course you don't know him very well yet, but there's no better way to learn about a person than when several pairs of feet are under a table.

He isn't in your "set," or "clique," or family? God pity us if we've become so hidebound that we can do nothing but move in the same prescribed circle which has outlined our activities since our entrance in the church. How can we ever expect to develop well-rounded spiritual personalities and have our church grow in spiritual perception or numbers if there are cliques in the local congregation? A honeycomb of cliques is Satan's design to break up true fellowship and divide the church. Not one member of any congregation can be healthy in spirit if his brother in the Lord is spiritually ill. Every member of the body needs the other members if there is to be wholesome development. This calls for fellowship.

Suppose our children decided because Baby Mark does what they don't like by getting into their personal belongings or into their "hair" that he must go? What if they were willing to forfeit fellowship and family unity because they and Mark do not see eye to eye? Sound foolish? It is indeed—foolish and immature. But it happens consistently in God's family within local congregations. Why? For lack of fellowship not only with one another but with the Lord himself in faithful, daily prayer and Bible study.

If Christ were but the Key Figure in all our church and family relationships, there would be sweet and unbroken fellowship. The Apostle Paul thanked God for the fellowship of the Philippian Christians, but it was more than a personal relationship. It was a "fellowship in the gospel" (Phil. 1:5).

What part does fellowship with the saints and fellowship in the Gospel play in your life, fellow Christian?

OUR MODERATOR SPEAKS

By Rev. R. Paul Miller

UNSHAKEN MEN IN A SHAKING WORLD

If ever the storms of unbelief, infidelity, materialism, and the subtle, undermining schemes of Satan were beating upon the house of Christian faith, it is today. Millions are going down before it. Millions are being blinded and misled. Millions are becoming discouraged and are giving up the fight, and drifting along with the glittering world about them. Every previous age reached its highest point of invention and achievement, and in the arts and sciences, and a soft life just before it collapsed. Outward advance was always accompanied by moral decay until sudden destruction overtook them.

The sad fact of history is that the professing church always suffered weakness and spiritual decay along with the world about it. Today is no exception. We are swiftly approaching the climactic end of another age. The same satanic forces are attacking the church and the believer today. While many go down, there are many who will stand gloriously till the clouds break away and the voice of the Lord will call His own out of it all. No matter how the world in its sin and rebellion against God may crumble, there are those who are sustained by the mighty power of God who shall not crumble or fall.

Certainly the world and all that is in it is being shaken today. The mighty powers of truth and falsehood, of sin and righteousness, of fact and folly, of the Spirit of Christ and the Spirit of Antichrist, are waging bitter warfare over the souls of men.

The social world is falling apart. With a third of a million homes breaking up each year in America, all the time-honored restraints for the preservation of morality are being cast away. Sensing this disintegration, the youth of our land feel no regard for self-control and are now engaged in the greatest revolt against the world they have been brought into, and are engulfing us in the worst wave of moral degradation and crime in all history.

The educational world is falling apart. With the abandonment of thousands of "little red schoolhouses" where the parents had something to say about what and how their children were taught, and the federalizing of the school system, the Christian teacher has been silenced, and the infidel welcomed. An educator friend of mine told me a short time ago that all of the educational conventions he has attended for 10 years have been a bedlam of confusion. Without Christ, all education is deadly to the child.

The banking world is falling apart. A Christian banker told me recently that independent banking for private enterprise would soon be a thing of the past. He said he had just attended a meeting of the Indiana Bankers Association and that they had been addressed by a government official who had told them of the course to be expected ahead. When they adjourned, he said that those bankers went out saying: "Why should we try to carry on from here? What is the use? It is all over."

The political world is falling apart. The titanic forces of communism and Rome, freedom and slavery, religion and atheism are fighting viciously for the mastery in the arena of human events. Wrote Will Durant, the famous philosopher: "We are seeing the decay of the most successful capitalistic society ever known."

The religious world is falling apart. The World Council of Churches, dominated by infidelity, is swiftly seizing control of outward, organized Christendom. It has no saving Gospel, no faith in the Bible as inspired of God, and no answer for a world of lost men. Those who still hold to the true faith, and look for our Lord's return are being shunted aside and disregarded. Like Simeon and Anna, who daily waited in the temple just before our Lord's first coming, looking for Him, so the true saints are today being separated from the world by their very faith in Him. That same faith and occupation with our Lord is also separating them from the apostate world-church.

In the midst of all this crumbling world, there is a people who are not trembling. A people who are not afraid. A people whose hearts are calm and undisturbed. They are standing every day, not on a shaking world, but on things that cannot be shaken.

The believer in Christ is kept by the God who has an unshakable throne. "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever" (Ps. 45:6). No throne in this world is secure. Fifty rulers were at the coronation of King George V of England. Within 25 years not one remained. The Czar of Russia and his family were murdered in cold blood. Wilhelm of Germany died in exile. Emmanuel, of Italy, was deposed. The King of Spain fled for his life. Of the 3¾ million square miles of European territory, 3¼ million square miles are under dictators today. But, thank God, there is one throne from which its Ruler can never be driven. That is the throne that rules over the Christian, and keeps him against all odds. That is why the Christian is not afraid in a shaking world.

The believer is kept by an unshakable Word. The word of men has never been so impotent and false as today. Treaties among nations, and agreements among men are all but worthless. Woodrow Wilson wrote 14 points of law at Versailles that didn't last six months. Moses wrote 10 points of law at Sinai that have stood for 3,000 years. The difference? Wilson was the voice of man, and Moses recorded the words of God. Jesus said: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." He that "putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe." The believer in Christ has put his trust in the unshakable word of Christ, who lives forever to perform His Word.

The believer is part of an unshakable church. In Matthew 16:18 Jesus said, referring to himself: "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." The powers of hell have risen up against the church of Christ. Emperor Diocletian of Rome, in his hate of Christ, slew Christians at the rate of 6,000 a day. Still the church rolled Alto, Mich.

February 8-20 proved to be a real time of spiritual refreshment and blessing at the Calvary Brethren Church.

Evangelist Bill Smith was God's servant unto us, and our people are still talking of the increased understanding of the Word through Him. Brother Bill preached forceful and simple messages of the grace of God, and God gave the increase of 23 public decisions.

The meetings were well attended by various denominations from our community. Each evening the attendance increased, until the last night climaxed with 157 present. The average attendance for the campaign was 107, for which we praise God.—Irvin B. Miller, pastor.

God has just worked during a blessed revival meeting at Alto. An excellent attitude prevailed during the campaign and deep interest in the message made preaching the Word a joy.

In order to take care of the crowds during the meeting it was necessary to bring in extra chairs. These were supplied by a funeral home in the community.

Rev. Irvin Miller, pastor of the church, is loved by the people. It was a pleasure to work with him and to share his love for this field of service.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

Wooster, Ohio

Crusade Team 2 (Lynn, Byers, and Martin) ministered at the First Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio, in a two-week "Crusade for Christ." During that time 12 radio broadcasts, one high-school assembly, and three children's meetings were conducted, in addition to the evening services. We found these brethren willing to work and efficient in their callings. Especially appreciated was their readiness to go calling with the local laymen who gave their afternoons for this ministry.

There were 45 public decisions, with four additional home decisions. Twenty-three were first-time confessions of Christ, the balance being renewals, rededications, and commitments for life service. The average attendance was 171, with 81 being lowest and 303 highest. The total offering was $445.

The Wooster church has a busy schedule. They were hosts to the Grace College Choir Easter Sunday. They will entertain the Northern Ohio conference April 19-21. They will have the ministry of Al Zahlout and family and the Grace Trumpeters in the near future. The congregation is also inviting the National Sunday School Board to meet here for an eastern convention in October. —Ken Ashman, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Portis, Kans.

Since the first of the year we have completely redecorated our auditorium. New fiber-glass ceiling, new lights, new pulpit, new rug, a new paint job, and newly refinished floors and pews make the building take on a "new" appearance. Approximately $2,000 for materials and hundreds of dollars of free labor went into the beautifying of our auditorium. We are now working on our basement.

The Lord be praised for His goodness to the work here in Portis.—R. H. Kettell, pastor, First Brethren Church.

school? Why were they absent? Will they make every effort to be present next Sunday? These are all questions to which every Sunday-school scholar holds the answer. It is not sufficient that just the teachers, or the pastors shall do the visitation work. Jesus said, "Go ye," and that means every one of us in every one of our schools. You will have to determine how much visitation it will take to get those absentees to be a part of your school every Sunday, but let each of us, for the sake of a more effective Sunday school, and for our own sakes, determine now that we will VISIT.

we don't have room to store any more between Sundays! But we'll solve that problem, and fill up the rest of those chairs one of these days! Wait and see! The way the Lord has been blessing down there, we can't miss!

We really appreciate the way the National BBC showed an interest in our going to Florida, too, and promised to buy us some hymnbooks, a mimeograph machine, and an office typewriter. On the strength of their promise, we got 36 Triumphant Service Songbooks with which to begin our services, and they hardly stretch around any more. Then we bought an old used mimeograph, which does good work. And we're looking for a good used office typewriter—my portable is not the best for stencils. A few BBC's have already sent in some offerings for this purpose, but we need lots more to make up the BBC goal of $300 for these projects. How about it, fellows, can we do it? Sure we can, if we all work at it!

on. Neither the burning-stake, the torture-rack, the Iron Maiden (a torture frame in human form), the decapitating block, nor the dungeon have been able to crush the church. Nations have risen and fallen by the hundred and disappeared, but the church goes marching on. Julian of Rome, dying on a battlefield where he tried to crush the Christian cause, cried, "O, Galilean, Thou hast conquered." So long as Jesus Christ lives, the church can never die.

WHAT IS The Gospel?

By REV. JOSEPH L. GINGRICH
Sterling, Ohio

In these days of deletion, perversions, and misnomers, one must adhere closely to what the Scriptures say on any given subject as it relates to the Christian and the church. Referring to our subject in the form of a question, here is what the Apostle Paul says in I Corinthians 15:1-4: "Moreover, brethren, I declare unto you the gospel . . . that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures: and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures." In case you are further interested as to what the Scriptures did say, please read Romans 5:10 and I Peter 2:21. Yes: this is the glorious Gospel of God, the Gospel of Grace, and the Gospel of Christ.

The first wonder of the Gospel is its source. God is the source of the Gospel (Rom. 1:1). It is the outcome of eternal love and the production of infinite wisdom. For this reason it is the only original Gospel. There are no duplicates of it—although there are many imitations and perversions of it. It was not coined in Rome, composed in Berlin, nor conceived in Los Angeles. God is the source of the Gospel.

In the second place, Christ is the subject of the Gospel (Rom. 1:1-3). What weird and ghastly subjects are tagged as gospels nowadays—many without reference to the Lord Jesus Christ—whereas in the Gospel of God's grace there is no one and nothing else but the Lord Jesus Christ and His death for our sins and His resurrection for our justification. Christ alone is the subject of God's glad tidings to the world. In this glorious Gospel there is no incense or nonsense. There are no Protestant altars, visions, or tongues; nothing but the death and resurrection of the Son of God, the Saviour of mankind. For salvation, the sinner must have nothing less than this. For sanctification, the saint needs nothing more than this. And for perfection, the man of God desires nothing less than this. This is the Gospel Paul received from heaven and preached and practiced on earth.

Furthermore, redeemed souls are the success of the Gospel! "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16). The success of a program or plan is determined by its results. Countless thousands have been saved because hundreds were not ashamed of the blessed Gospel—not ashamed to witness by word and life. One reason more sinners aren't saved today is largely because too many Christians do not emulate the noteworthy example of the Apostle Paul. They are ashamed to witness by their everyday lives.

So God gives us the Gospel, and if we believe it, we shall be saved.

Are you resting in the Saviour?
Are you trusting in His blood?
Do you shun all human labor,
As a ground for peace with God?

Is the cross of Christ your glory?
Can you say, "For me He died"?
Is your only song and story,
"Jesus Christ the crucified"?

Saved friend, remember the unbeliever may not read the Gospel bound in leather, but he is studiously reading and quoting the Gospel bound by skin (your skin).

EDITORIALS

By Paul R. Bauman, Vice President

Announcement of Scholorships in Groce College

The Board of Trustees and Faculty of Grace Theological Seminary and College are pleased to announce the setting up of three scholarships now available to qualified young people who plan to attend Grace College. Pastors should call the attention of their young people to these scholarships and urge any whom they believe to be qualified to make application immediately. The following paragraphs describe the scholarships as recently announced in the new 1955-1956 school catalog, copies of which are now available upon request.

1. Academic Achievement Scholarship.

This scholarship established by Grace Theological Seminary and Grace College offers attendance at Grace College without payment of tuition for one year. Applicants must possess the highest qualifications as indicated by superior high-school record, genuine Christian character, and clear potentialities of leadership. The student must show that his financial need is such that without this scholarship it might be difficult for him to attend college. Applications should be in the hands of the Registrar, with record of high-school work, recommendations for both character and intellect, and such other information as might be helpful, not later than July 15. If the student maintains the same high standards, this scholarship may be renewed annually through the four years of college.

2. Academic Encouragement Scholarship.

This scholarship established by Grace Theological Seminary and Grace College offers attendance at Grace College without payment of tuition for one year beginning in the year the scholarship is granted. Applicants for this scholarship must possess such qualifications as warrant further encouragement for training and preparation for a life of usefulness in some field of service that is in some sense unusual. The applicant must show by various means that he is earnest, faithful, and possesses high Christian character. He must be a high-school graduate, or demonstrate that he may be treated as such by virtue of circumstances through which he was compelled to go. Applications should be in the hands of the Registrar, with records of high-school work, recommendations for both character and achievement, and such other information as may be helpful in deciding the grant, not later than July 15. If the student maintains the same high standards, this scholarship may be renewed annually through the four years of college.

3. Grace Seminary Alumni Scholarship.

This scholarship, established by the Alumni Association of Grace Theological Seminary, provides $250 per year to be applied toward the tuition of some worthy student. The applicant must present a commendable high-school record, possess genuine Christian character, and clear marks of leadership, and he must show that this grant will meet a financial need. Applications should be in the hands of the Registrar, with high-school records and recommendations for both character and ability, not later than July 15. If the student maintains a worthy record in college, this scholarship may be renewed annually through the four years of college.

High School Senior Day April 29

An interesting and varied program devoted to high-school seniors has been planned at Grace College for April 29. Pastors and sponsors of young people's groups near enough to Winona Lake should by all means plan to bring or send their young people to the Grace College campus for the entire day. The program will begin at 8:30 a. m. with registration of visiting young people. They will then meet a college welcoming committee of students who will make them feel at home and show them the building and campus. The program in the morning will include such interesting features as attendance at a special chapel service featuring much of the school's fine musical talent, a faculty panel forum, lunch at the Eskimo Inn with dormitory students, and inspection of dormitory rooms.

The afternoon will be devoted to a variety program, including a fun period, slides showing life at Grace College and Seminary, and a softball game. The special day will conclude at 5:30 with a special supper for the dormitory students and their guests at one of the faculty homes. Those who can remain for the evening are invited to enjoy a formal concert in the chapel. A group from the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will present the last of the Concert and Artist Series for this year.

Those planning to attend, or sponsors bringing them, should notify the school immediately in order that adequate preparations can be made.

New Dormitory Facilities

Next month, in the Education Number, full announcement and information will be given concerning excellent new dormitory facilities for Grace College students. Accommodations for a greatly increased student body will be available, and the dormitory will be located much closer to the campus. Watch for this important announcement.

Heart-Touching Letters

One of our missionary couples in French Equatorial Africa sent in a gift of $50 to the school, writing as follows: "Having recently heard of a need in regard to the operating expenses of Grace Seminary, we take this opportunity to send a gift for the general fund. We appreciate the work that Grace Seminary is doing, we are continually thankful for the time we spent there, and we pray that the Lord will continue to bless and provide for every need." In almost the same mail another letter from one of our alumni couples in South America arrived, containing a gift of $15. Again and again we have been reminded of the sacrificial spirit of our missionaries through such gifts as these. May more of us profit by their example!

Grace Choir Presents Chapel Concert Before Leaving on Tour

At the regular chapel hour on the morning of March 30, the students of Grace Seminary and College gathered in the chapel to hear the Grace College Choir present their entire program just before beginning their 12-day tour of churches located as far east as Philadelphia and as far south as Winchester, Va. During the chapel program the choir members, represented by Don Rough, presented to their surprised director a beautiful gold watch in token of appreciation for his tireless work in their behalf and in behalf of the school.

Director Ogden receives watch from Don Rough.

As this material goes to press it is too early to give a report of the trip which covered upwards of 2,000 miles. Already, however, letters of appreciation have arrived from pastors of churches they have visited. One pastor writes: "Praise the Lord for Grace Choir! They were here yesterday afternoon, and we had a wonderful service. The choir did a fine job of singing, and you couldn't have a better man directing them than Don Ogden. . . . Our people were thrilled with the concert, and the attitude and behavior of the choir were excellent. Our peopel are "sold" on Grace, and I am sure it did a world of good for our young people. Enclosed you will find a list of our young folk whom I definitely feel will be interested in coming to Grace."

BOOMERANG ROAD

In the wake of woodcutters and linemen, big rigs bulldozed and graded a road to the rear of the school via the East Wayne School's playground.

The sandy thoroughfare begins at the King's Highway, runs east between the grade school and the former Bauman residence, swings north in time to cut across the west-end of the seminary building, and joins the driveway as it slopes toward Wooster Road.

County road commissioners will tar the boomerang-shaped street as soon as the foundation can be laid, and will maintain the new road permanently.

THE WORLD ON A WALL

A "five-by-three" world map, housed in a narrow wooden frame behind thick glass doors and illuminated by a hidden fluorescent lamp at the bottom, hangs handsome in the main hall.

Built by Middler Max Fluke and paid for and planned by the World Missions Fellowship, the map will contain column pictures of each graduate on foreign missionary fields with a red cord pin pointing his station.

GRACE MOYER, M.D.

At sunrise on the semester's first day of classes, a glistening green Dodge with Pennsylvania plates rolled into the parking lot and out stepped Miss Grace Moyer, M.D. She hurried to the Registrar's office, signed up for 15 hours, and prepared her notebook.

"It must seem strange to you," she replied to the school's newshounds, "that I've come to study the Bible at this time—after finishing school so many years ago. But I've come for just one purpose: to study the Word of God and to continue that study."

Dr. Grace Moyer

In 1923 Dr. Moyer graduated from Gettysburg College and in 1927 from the Woman's Medical College, Philadelphia. After one year of internship, she sailed for India, enlisting her talents for Christ in that needy place. For seven years she doctored in the new republic, then was forced to surrended to illness and return home. For the past five years Dr. Moyer has been engaged in work on the staff of tuberculosis institutions, with schedules providing more regular hours, and work better fitted for her physical strength.

"I've asked for four months leave for Bible study," says the charming lady from Palmerton, Pa., because I felt the urgency of knowing God's Word. I also craved Christian fellowship. On the outside it is not easy to find."

AFTER SCHOOL, SALVATION

Warsaw High School's Bruce Whiteneck peddled interstate bootleg liquor, stole a pickup truck, and was ready to be expelled from school for petty thievery, when his science teacher, Seminary Senior Archie B. Keffer, asked to see him.

"You need Christ," Keffer urged, and before teacher and pupil left the classroom, Whiteneck was on his knees receiving new life in Christ. The transformation stunned the school.

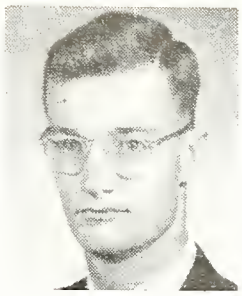
Over in Winona Lake, fellow seminarians rejoiced with Archie, and agreed to pray for a second "toughie" named Lanny Ellis. Next day Archie's beaming face told the story—another of his pupils in Warsaw High responded to the claims of Christ and was converted.

"I don't want to be facetious," Archie related, "but you know how the world looks at this. They think I've got some magic formula to straighten these guys out. Let's pray that they may see that it's Christ, and Him alone."

PART-TIME UNDERTAKING

One week after enrolling for seminary classes in January '54, Detroit-born Jack Lowe accepted a folio of advertising brought to his house by Warsaw's "Welcome Wagon." He glanced at one of the ads and went for his coat.

"I'm going to get a job," he told his surprised wife, and sped to the Landis Funeral Service home in Warsaw. Two days later he was shaving dead faces, clothing corpses, and wheeling a hearse in funeral processions.



"This work has enriched my understanding of human nature," says Jack. "You learn how to mourn with people who mourn, and how to do your work without losing your composure—excellent training for any minister. Christian funerals are full of hope. What a contrast to the unbelievers' services!"

Dressed in his cool gray hat and coat, Jack is still tending the dead, between child-evangelism classes, and finds it's the best-paying part-time work he's ever had!

Dr. Hoyt

Hoyt and Rea Begin Tour of Bible Lands

Prof. Rea

Boarding a TWA plane at Idlewild Airport in New York City at noon on Tuesday, April 19, Dr. Herman A. Hoyt and Prof. John Rea began a three-months tour of the Near East and Europe. The plane will travel by way of the Azores, Lisbon, Madrid, Algiers, Tunis, and Rome. Their first destination, however, was Cairo, where they expected to arrive at about 2:30 a. m. Thursday, April 21. In Egypt the two seminary men will visit a number of the pyramids and tombs at Sakkara and Gizeh. They will take a night train up the Nile to Thebes, where they plan to spend the following day seeing the tomb of Tutankh-Amon in the Valley of the Dead Kings, and they will visit also the great temples at Luxor and Karnak. If possible, they hope to be able to cross the Suez Canal and take a trip by jeep to Mount Sinai.

On about April 27 they will fly to Beirut, Lebanon. There Professor Rea expects to visit his cousin, who is a son of former President Dodge of the American University of Beirut. In Lebanon Professors Hoyt and Rea will travel by taxi to Sidon and Tyre, and after a few days will go by car over the mountains to Damascus, capital of Syria. They hope to drive northward in Syria to Ras Shamra on the Mediterranean coast, site of the ancient North Canaanite capital city called Ugarit. From there they may go on to Aleppo, second largest city in Syria and the site of an old Hittite city. An interesting 24-hour train trip skirting the Turkish border is planned from Aleppo to Mosul in northern Iraq. From Mosul they will visit Nineveh across the Tigris River and other Assyrian cities. A night train will take them to Baghdad, the growing capital of Iraq. Several days in this area will give them opportunity to see the ruins of Babylon and other Babylonian and Sumerian sites. In all of these modern cities they will make a point of going through the fine museums of antiquities.

About May 12 they plan to return to Damascus, meet a native driver from Jerusalem, and travel by car to Amman, capital of the Hashemite Kingdom of the Jordan. This city is old Rabbot-ammon, where Uriah the Hittite died in battle. Professors Hoyt and Rea will drive through Moab to Dhiban, site of ancient Dibon, where the famous Moabite Stone was found. The American Schools of Oriental Research are excavating at Dhiban again this spring. After a short visit there they will continue on south through Edom to Petra. A night will be spent there within the valley before returning to Amman and then crossing the Jordan River to Jerusalem. Professor Rea is looking forward to seeing Dr. and Mrs. Free, with whom he worked in the excavation of Dothan during the spring of 1953. The Frees are nearing the end of their third season of excavation there. Plenty of time will be taken to visit such places as the region around Jacob's Well, Bethel, Jericho, Bethlehem, and, of course, Jerusalem itself.

About June 6 they plan to cross into Israel, where they are looking forward eagerly to seeing Alvin Showalter, '53, who has been working as a missionary in Israel since his graduation from Grace Seminary. He hopes to be their guide and driver. In the middle of June they will fly to Istanbul, Turkey. From that city a side trip to Smyrna and Ephesus is planned. They will go on to Athens and Corinth, thence to Rome, and up to Zurich, Switzerland. They hope to have time to drive down to Lyons to visit the Fogles and Cones before continuing on to Germany. After landing at Frankfort, Dr. Hoyt intends to visit the village of Schwarzenau, where the Brethren Church was born in 1708.

After touring other cities in Europe they will leave Paris for London. A week or so in England will complete the itinerary. Their return flight is scheduled for July 19, bringing them back to New York on July 20.

Pray for the Lord's blessing and protection upon them as they travel. Such a tour will greatly enrich the ministry of Professors Hoyt and Rea, and its benefits will be reflected in the lives of students for many years to come.

WASHINGTON, D. C. (E/P). Nature once again is being studied in America's ever-continuing search for "secret weapons" which will enable this country to maintain military superiority in a world which desires peace but cannot seem to discover (or accept God's answer) the formula. The Navy has announced it has been conducting special tests in an effort to learn how whales and porpoises manage to swim without making any noise. Experiments reveal that the most sensitive detection equipment cannot pick up their sound. If this secret can be learned, Navy scientists might employ it in designing a noiseless submarine. [Editor: The answer is simple: put life in the submarine like God did in the whale.]

DEDICATION OF L. S. BAUMAN PLAQUE

By Homer A. Kent, Sr.

The major portion of the regular chapel service at Grace Seminary on Wednesday, March 16, was conducted in the school corridor, where the entire student body and faculty gathered to formally dedicate a bronze plaque to the memory of Dr. Louis S. Bauman, one of the school's founders and for several years president of the Board of Trustees.

The above picture shows some of the members of the student body which gathered for the service just outside the chapel and upon the steps leading to the second floor. Standing against the wall from left to right are Dr. Norman H. Uphouse, former secretary of the board and now Professor of Education in Grace College; Dean Herman A. Hoyt; Foye B. Miller, treasurer of the board; Mary Bauman, granddaughter of Dr. L. S. Bauman and sophomore in the college; Mrs. L. S. Bauman; Dr. Paul R. Bauman, vice president and son of Dr. L. S. Bauman; President Alva J. McClain; and Dr. Homer A. Kent, Registrar and chairman of the Administrative Committee.

The program began with the singing of "Faith of Our Fathers," after which appropriate Scripture was read by Dr. Paul Bauman. Dr. McClain gave a brief message and closed the ceremony with a prayer of dedication.

The plaque, commissioned two years ago when the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches voted to establish a 15-year lectureship as a tribute to Dr. Bauman, is secured to the wall where it may be seen by all who enter the building. The Bauman Lectureship began during the annual Grace Bible Conference in January when the first series of lectures was presented by Dr. Charles W. Mayes, Dr. Bauman's successor as pastor of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif.

Dr. Bauman's long and colorful career was one of the most varied in the history of the Brethren Church. It included pastorates in Philadelphia, Long Beach, and Washington, D. C. His pastorate in Long Beach lasted for 36 years, and resulted in the largest Brethren church

NEW PEOPLE

"A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you an heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit within you, and cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments, and do them" (Ezek. 35:26-27).

BY NEIL BEERY

Pastor, First Brethren Church
Ankenytown, Ohio

These are words spoken by Ezekiel at the command of God unto the people of Israel in relation to their conversion and restoration. It is of course accepted that Israel, as God's chosen people in the day of law, is quite frequently a type of the church, God's chosen people in the day of grace. Therefore this passage before us bears a fine description of the transformation, both within and without, at the time of salvation.

It is interesting to me that in the verses just preceding our text, the Lord makes it very plain to the people of Israel that He is not doing this for them because they have deserved it. A study of their conduct would reveal that they deserved only severe punishment, even as we did when we were in sin. In like manner God has redeemed us not because we are deserving, and certainly not because we have earned it, but rather giving us freely all things because of the work of Christ on Calvary's cross.

There are many passages in the New Testament which speak of this transformation. The writings of Paul are filled with much of that which has to do with putting away the old and being made new. Paul speaks in Romans 6:6 of our old man being crucified with Christ that the body of sin might be destroyed. We are informed that if we are in Christ, we are a new creation, and old things are passed away, thus making all things new (II Cor. 5:17). Paul instructs the Christians at Ephesus to put off concerning their former manner of living (Eph. 4:22). Finally, Paul reminds the people that they have put off the old man with his deeds (Col. 3:9).

Let us notice now the two verses before us. In so doing I see immediately three things that are new. First of all there is—

A NEW HEART

The heart of flint taken. Man cannot change his heart; rather he must allow God to perform the operation (Ezek. 36:26). Man has tried by social reform and moral programs for many generations to take away his hard heart, but history proves to us that he has failed miserably. When there is still within man that which would drive him to crime, we surely know that man by his power has failed. How wonderful is the beauty of the deft hand of God as by His power He wrenches the flinty heart from the breast of wicked man. God in a split second can do that which man has failed to do with his energy, though he has tried for centuries.

The heart of flesh given. "A new heart also will I give you. . . . I will give you an heart of flesh" (vs. 26). Medical science has now practically perfected a method by which they can go into the chest of a human and take the heart in their hands and by massaging it, bring back the beating which has for a few short seconds stopped. How much greater, yea, even beyond comparison, is the act of God as He not only takes out the old heart but by grace puts in us a new heart. A heart of life eternal—a heart of joy and peace. A heart to make us love Him who first loved us. A heart to make us want to please Him.

A NEW SPIRIT

We know that in order for a person to be all new, he must not only have a new heart but he must have a new spirit. In both of the verses before us there is instruction in relation to the act of God as to the giving of this new spirit.

The description of the spirit. "A new spirit will I put within you" (vs. 26). This spirit, in contrast to the old spirit which was partner to the heart of flint, is to be different and new in every respect. It will be new in desires, new in attitude, and new in action. Whereas the old spirit was lustful, selfish, proud, quick to flush with anger, and at odds with God, this new spirit will be humble, meek, slow to anger, and desirous of pleasing God in all things.

A NEW WALK

This brand-new person has not only a new heart and a new spirit, but he has a new walk. "And cause you to walk in my statutes, and ye shall keep my judgments and do them" (vs. 27). Beloved, when God gives us a new heart and His Spirit, our walk just naturally is completely new. God's Word is full of passages which speak of this new walk. Even though there are times when this walk leads through suffering, it is not a walk of sorrow. Though at times it may be a walk through thorns, there are also the roses. Though there may be testing, there is always triumph. Though there may be the wind-swept sea, there is always the harbor of safety. What kind of a walk is this new walk?

It is a walk of love. We are instructed to walk in love as Christ also has loved us (Eph. 5:2). I would remind you that Christ manifested His love toward us when we were yet unlovely in our sins. He loved us though for many years we spurned His love. Now, according to this verse in Ephesians, we are to have that same kind of love. It is not difficult to love those who are lovely, or those who love us. But it is sometimes very difficult to love those who perhaps do not agree with us in relation to certain matters.

It is a walk of light. We are instructed to walk as children of light (Eph. 5:8). It is a simple matter to pick out of a group of children those who have been taught to mind their manners. So God's children ought to stand out in the world as those who have the light of the knowledge of salvation. The light from the new heart and the new spirit should shine out in the new walk. The promise of cleansing from sin and fellowship with other believers is based on walking in the light as God is in the light (I John 1:7). Our new walk must be a walk of light because if we say we have fellowship with God and our walk is not changed from a walk of darkness to a walk of light, we are liars, and do not the truth (I John 1:6). Even in the ages of eternity to come when we are in heaven, we shall continue to walk in the light of Christ (Rev. 21:23-24). In this new walk, we will keep His statutes for we have the light of God's presence and the knowledge of His will.

EVIDENCES OF THE RESURRECTION

BY ROBERT HOLMES

PASTOR, WEST HOMER BRETHREN CHURCH
HOMERVILLE, OHIO

Christianity has a voice for eternity, as well as for time. It does not leave its followers without hope for the future. The attitude in the past was—and still very prominent today is—to view the resurrection with the eye of suspicion and not to look upon it as a literal event, but to spiritualize the whole teaching on this fundamental doctrine. May we consider the threefold evidence of this great truth.

PAST EVIDENCE

Going back to the Old Testament, we find that the prophets displayed belief in the fact that man should live again. Job 14:14 asked the question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" In Job 19:25-26, he gave evidence to the truth of the resurrection that was yet future, for he said: "For I know that my redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth: and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh I shall see God." Isaiah also gave evidence to this truth, for he said: "Thy dead men shall live, together with my dead body shall they arise" (Isa. 26: 19). Daniel would add his word of evidence in Daniel 12:2: "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt."

For more evidence let us now consider some New Testament evidence. The most explicit teaching is in reply to the Sadducees who denied the resurrection of the body. This teaching and evidence is found in Matthew 22:22-23; Mark 12:18-27; Luke 20:27-40. In brief, Jesus says to His questioners: "Do ye not therefore err, because ye know not the scriptures, neither the power of God. . . . As touching the dead, that they rise . . . he is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living: ye therefore do greatly err" (Mark 12:24-27). May we add that the Sadducees of our day, along with the modernists and many other cults who deny the bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, "are in error." God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

To these who have already given evidence of the resurrection, let us add the testimonies of many others. We find Mary Magdalene, who was first at the empty tomb (Mark 16:9); Simon Peter (Luke 24:34); the two disciples on the road to Emmaus; the apostles in the upper room as Jesus stood in their midst; Paul; and then there were above 500 brethren who beheld the risen Lord. The evidence of heaven also was given by the angel in Matthew 28:5-7. The empty tomb, the graveclothes, the earthquake, the military force, all speak of the evidence of the resurrection. Jesus himself said, "I am the resurrection and the life."

PRESENT EVIDENCE

We who have come into intimate relationship with the risen Lord give evidence to the resurrection each Lord's Day as we assemble together. The true church of Christ today stands as evidence to the truth of this great claim of the resurrection. It would have been killed long ago if it, the church, would not have had the risen Christ as its life and leader.

What kind of evidence are we bearing today? Are we faithful, regular, and consistent with this evidence of the resurrection? The Lord's Day is more than just another day, more than just a time for us to get together, more than a day of fuss and form and ritual. It is a day wherein God would desire His church to proclaim faithfully His Word and to commemorate the risen Lord!

We either defy or verify the evidence of the resurrection in the present by the way we preach, teach, and live. The resurrection of Christ was the cornerstone of Paul's preaching and teaching. This is certainly not true in many churches across our land today. As to living this evidence, we are exhorted again and again to walk in newness of life and have our affections lifted to higher realms than the passing things of this earth. The evidence of the resurrection comforts and stabilizes the Christian. "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead" (I Pet. 1:3).

FUTURE EVIDENCE

"But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept" (I Cor. 15:20). He who said, "I am the resurrection and the life," is first to give or experience this evidence. He being the "firstfruit" is the pledge that there is more fruit to follow. Christ today is a specimen of divine humanity at the right hand of God.

Paul declares that nature will show and give evidence in resurrection glory. "Because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now. And not only they, but ourselves also, which have the firstfruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body" (Rom. 8: 21-23). In Romans 8:11 Paul says that the Holy Spirit in believers is the pledge, or evidence, of their resurrection. We are further told in I Corinthians 15:19: "If in this life only we have hope, we are of all men most miserable." In this hope of the resurrection lies a great motive to power and action. For John tells us:

FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH AT DAYTON HEARS LAYMEN

By H. L. Edwards, Local President

On February 27, 1955, the laymen had charge of both morning and evening services. We wish to thank our pastor, Brother Steffler, for the confidence that was shown in our organization as he was in Pennsylvania holding revival meetings and left the entire day for us to plan.

The cabinet (elected officers) met several times and prepared an outline for the two meetings. Then it was presented to the men's fellowship for approval or change. We tried to use as many different men as possible in the services. Bro. Paul Griss, assistant secretary of the local group, was the morning speaker. His theme was "A Step Farther Than Responsibility." We had about two hundred at our morning worship service.

At our evening service, Bro. Owen Hacker, national vice president, was the speaker. His theme was "My Personal Lord." The evening service was attended by over one hundred. The chorus of 12 men sang at the evening service.

Bro. Walter Hoyt, national treasurer, presented the laymen's goals and projects at each service and urged that a good "evangelism offering" be given on this day. I am happy to report that $181.49 was given to the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade, and $36.50 to the national laymen's general fund, as well as several dollars to our local organization.

It is my earnest prayer that in 1956 every Brethren church will have a men's organization, and that they might get a vision of the work that can be done with a group of men united in the things of the Lord. May this report stir up more of the men to contact their district representatives and find out more about the laymen's work and push this work on to greater accomplishments in the coming year.

(We are available to meet with any men close to southern Ohio to explain laymen's work and help them get started.)

The men of the Atlantic District gathered in Philadelphia, Pa., on January 29 for their regular get-together. Third Brethren Church was the host for this meeting.

There were 103 men present, representing nine of the churches of the district. This was the largest gathering since the inception of the district meetings and indicates a growth of interest.

Fellowshiping with us were Dr. Paul Bauman, Prof. Jesse Humberd, and Dr. James L. Boyer, of Grace Seminary.

After an enjoyable meal served by the host church, a devotional program followed, with Rev. Andrew Telford, well-known Bible teacher and pastor, bringing a challenging message. An offering of $86.65 was received for the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade.—Richard D. McCarthy, Cor. Sec.

IS YOUR REPORT ON LAYMEN'S SUNDAY STILL OUT?

By Earle Cole

Personally check with your financial secretary and make sure that the Evangelism Sunday offering gets to our treasurer.

Treasurer Walter Hoyt reported about a month ago:

"Dear Brother Earle:

"Things still do not look so good, for I have received from January 1 to March 1, 1955, only the following:

Evangelism Project	$186.73
General Fund	15.25
Student Aid	10.75
Brethren Boys Clubs	10.00
Laymen Director's Funds	11.00

"Brother Earle, I do not have enough money in the general fund to pay the bills.

"The laymen here have done real well this year, around $468.59 from my church. We have tried to sell the laymen's program.

"Prayer can change things."

The Homegoing of "Mother" Lichty

By Dr. Alva J. McClain, President
Grace Theological Seminary
Winona Lake, Ind.

I have just now received the news that on March 17 at San Diego, Calif., Mrs. H. M. Lichty, known affectionately to many of us as "Mother" Lichty, was "loosed away upward" to be with her Lord forever.

Mother Lichty was the last living representative of her generation in a group of four families which at the beginning of the present century laid the foundations of the Brethren Church in the Northwest at Sunnyside, Wash. The heads of these four families were H. M. Lichty, S. J. Harrison, Christian Rowland, and my own father, W. S. McClain.

The Lichty family came to Sunnyside in 1898 from Carleton, Nebr.; the Harrisons in 1899 from Waterloo, Iowa; and the McClains in 1900 from Los Angeles, Calif. The Rowland family, although closely associated with the Sunnyside colony from its early beginning, did not move there until 1908. They came from Lanark, Ill.

It would not be wrong to say that all four of these men took their families out of settled and pleasant communities to become pioneers in central Washington, then for the most part a desolate-looking land of sand and sagebrush, for reasons which were primarily and definitely Christian rather than economic. In 1901, as representatives of the small group of Brethren there, they joined with the Baptists, Presbyterians, Christians, Methodists, and Congregationalists in erecting a building which was known as The Federated Church.

This venture was not too successful, and upon the final dissolution of the interdenominational arrangement the building was sold at auction for a bid of $4,825, made by my father, representing the Brethren Church. With additions and improvements, the building is still used as a place of worship by the Brethren, now under the pastorate of Rev. Harold D. Painter. Mother Lichty was a member of the congregation from the time of its organization, over fifty years ago.

My own mother in 1920 was the first of her generation in these four families to be "present with the Lord." My father went in 1925, Christian Rowland in 1935, H. M. Lichty in 1936, and S. J. Harrison in 1938. I do not know the exact dates of the homegoing of Mrs. Rowland and Mrs. Harrison, except that they both outlived their husbands. But Mother Lichty outlived them all, reaching the surprising age of 95.

She lived in her own home at Sunnyside until five years ago, when she went to live with her daughter Ethel in San Diego. Although she never lost her first love for the old church at Sunnyside, the move to southern California brought her happily to the place where her three remaining children lived.

As Ida Cook she had been born in Pennsylvania in September 1860, and moved to Alliance, Ohio, where she met her husband while in college. Following the marriage, they went to Ashland, Ohio, where he taught for a time in Ashland College. Later they moved to Carleton, Nebr., to enter the banking business, and from there to Sunnyside, Wash.

As I write these few lines about this remarkable Christian woman, a great many memories of earlier years become once more vivid in my mind. I remember the cold winter day when my father came to meet my mother and six of us children at the old Mabton railroad station, and then the long and tiresome drive in a lumber wagon seven miles through heavy sand to the Lichty home near Sunnyside. There was no railroad into Sunnyside in those days. And I shall never forget the kindness of Mother Lichty as she welcomed us, and then did so much to raise the morale of my mother, who was pretty much discouraged by that time with the dreary look of the new country.

In the midst of sandstorms, financial reverses, and other circumstances which at times became almost humanly intolerable, Mother Lichty went about her many duties gently, unruffled, and courageously. Being the mother of five children herself—four of them boys—with company almost incessantly in the home (including myself very often), I suppose there must have been times which sorely tried her very soul. But if she ever lost her patience and poise even for a moment, I never witnessed it. She will always be to me the "grand lady."

I saw her last in San Diego two years ago at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Scatchard. Mrs. McClain and I talked with her about the old days at the little town of Sunnyside, and also about the things of the Lord. Then we had prayer together and she kissed us goodbye. She knew, I am quite sure, that this was au revoir until that glad day when "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither . . . any more pain" (Rev. 21:4).

The finest thing about Mother Lichty, I think, was her unwavering faith in the Lord Jesus Christ as a divine Saviour who died for the sins of His people, and her assurance that this same Jesus is now alive forever in heaven and therefore abundantly able to keep to the very end all those who have come to the Father through Him.

Note: For certain of the above-mentioned dates I am indebted to my old friend, Mr. Roscoe Sheller, who has written a very able and interesting account of the history of the town of Sunnyside. His book, entitled, "Courage and Water," may be secured by writing directly to the author at Sunnyside, Wash.

in the nation. Before concluding his work there he laid the foundation for the establishment of the first of three Christian day schools now operated by the church in Long Beach. He was always interested in the field of Christian education, having served for several years as trustee of Ashland College and Seminary before Grace Seminary was established.

Dr. Bauman was one of the charter members of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church, serving as its general secretary for many years. He was a director of several other missionary endeavors, including the International Christian Leprosy Mission.

Dr. Bauman was active in the Bible-conference field and appeared on many of the best-known conference programs throughout the country. He was a featured speaker on the annual Winona Lake Bible Conference program. He was also a gifted writer, being the author of several books on prophecy and numerous denominational tracts, pamphlets, and shorter works.

Dr. Bauman was born November 13, 1875, in Floyd County, Iowa, and died November 8, 1950, while serving as pastor in Washington, D. C.

It is difficult to estimate the extent of Dr. Bauman's influence in the establishment of Grace Theological Seminary and in the securing of its support during the early days of its existence. The school will always revere the memory of his name.

Wooster, Ohio

The junior choir of the First Brethren Church, Wooster, Ohio, was presented in a nationwide broadcast of "The Children's Hour," sponsored by Rev. and Mrs. Henry C. Geiger, Chattanooga, Tenn. The recording was made at an evening service, February 25, and released from 110 stations on Sunday, April 4.

The choir also presented a sacred musical service at the church Sunday evening, April 4. In addition to the choral numbers, there were duets, solos, original poems, and instrumental numbers. This program was a part of the expanding musical ministry of the Wooster congregation. These youngsters are encouraged to use their talents for the Lord.

Other musical organizations at the church include the youth choir, the adult choir, two male quartets, a ladies trio, and several instrumental groups. A beginners choir will be organized at the close of school.

The church takes as a command the words of the psalmist: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, come before his presence with singing." Every willing musician and singer is used for the glory of the Lord.—Kenneth Ashman, pastor.

Ankenytown, Ohio

We have just finished two weeks of special meetings with Bob Holmes, pastor of the West Homer Brethren Church, Homerville, Ohio, as our evangelist. There was a real earnest passion for souls among the people. The brethren here worked and prayed hard and God honored their prayers. There were a number of real victories for the Lord, and many for whom we had been praying attended the meetings and were definitely under conviction. Our evangelist preached powerful messages at each service.—Neil L. Beery, pastor, First Brethren Church, Ankenytown, Ohio.

In Memoriam

MISS ESTHER ROW, 58, daughter of Mrs. John T. Row, was suddenly taken from this life with a cerebral hemorrhage on Mar. 10. She was a high-school teacher for 29 years, a highly respected citizen, and a valued member of the First Brethren Church of Dallas Center. Her funeral was one of the largest on record in this area.—A. D. Cashman, pastor.

MRS. FANNIE SHANER, 98, the mother of Mrs. A. D. Cashman, passed away at the parsonage of the First Brethren Church of Dallas Center, Iowa, on Apr. 4. Funeral services were conducted in Lanark, Ill.

EVIDENCES OF RESURRECTION

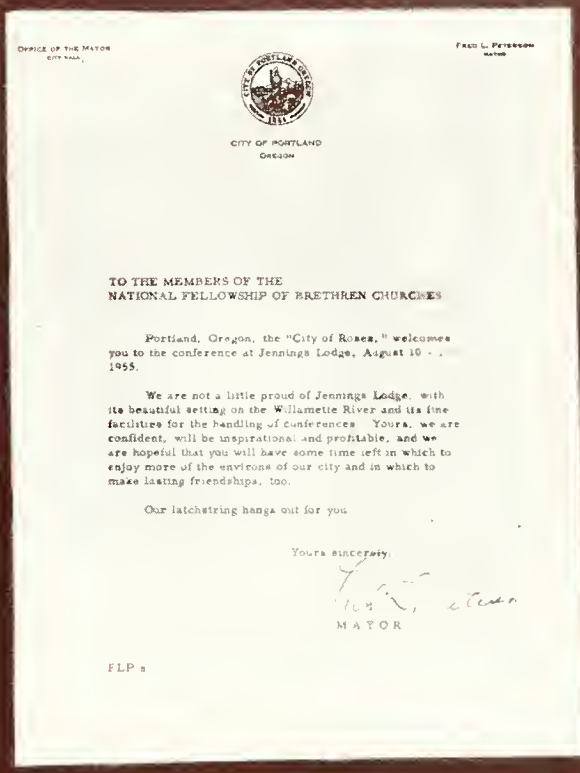
"Every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he [Christ] is pure." Take away the hope of the resurrection and you leave very little to inspire and challenge men.

Unsaved men and you who deny the truth and evidence of the resurrection will some day give evidence to the resurrection. Paul, in preaching in Acts 17:31, has declared that God "hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained: whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead."



We who have received Christ into our hearts know that we shall rise again. Why? Because we have demonstrated it by ingenious reasonings or by refuting the world-old fallacies of materialism? No! But because we already live again in newness of life, having what the Lord calls eternal life. It is His doing, it is His gift, but it is our possession.

WHY YOU SHOULD COME

By VERNON J. HARRIS

You should come to National Fellowship in Portland, Oreg., August 10-17. It is both a privilege and a responsibility for all Brethren people.

We often wring our hands, chew our nails, and tear our hair over the way some cults and isms grow and spread. However, one look at the way they turn out en masse for their conferences and conventions gives us at least part of the reason why. Each annual conference is important and essential to our growth and function for Christ.

1. There is work to be done for our Lord. Most of the planning for the years ahead is done at this time.

2. We need to be challenged and inspired to carry out these plans. The fine program planned for this year promises to accomplish this.

3. The fellowship is wonderful and leads to unity of spirit throughout the entire brotherhood.

4. This year many will have the opportunity to come to the Pacific Northwest who may never be able to otherwise.

5. Though some will be living nearby in hotels and motels, we will be able to meet together in the various buildings and eat together in the dining hall as one big happy family. We will not have the interference and competition of other groups or conferences.

6. Afternoons will be free for sightseeing trips, etc., in the Portland area.

Welcome to Sunnyside, Washington

By PASTOR HAROLD PAINTER

The pastor and people of the First Brethren Church of Sunnyside, Wash., join with the other churches of the Northwest District in an invitation to stop and visit with us while in the great Pacific Northwest to attend the National Fellowship at Jennings Lodge.

The Sunnyside church is the oldest Brethren church in the district and was among the first to be established in Sunnyside. It has been the "home" church for many that have become well known for their distinguished service in the Brethren Church and include the McClains (ask one of the old-timers to tell the part Dr. McClain had the time a boy fell through the ceiling of the church one Sunday evening just at the climax of the minister's sermon), the Stovers (Mrs. L. S. Bauman), and others now serving the Lord as missionaries.

The present building was erected in 1901 and was known as the Federated Church, where six denominations worshiped together. In 1910 the building was purchased by W. S. McClain for the Brethren church for the reported sum of $4,825.

Sunnyside is located on Washington State Route 410 in the Yakima Valley, which is known as the "Fruit Bowl of the Nation." Scenic points of interest nearby include the Grand Coulee Dam and the great Columbia Basin with its pioneer developments, "Farm in a Day," etc., the Hanford Project, the U. S. Atomic Energy Reservation (no visitors allowed), Mount Rainier National Park, and the mighty Columbia River with her great hydroelectric dams, locks, fish ladders, and bridges. Also nearby is the Yakima Indian Reservation, home of several Indian tribes (no scalping permitted).

The First Brethren Church of Grandview, one of the newest churches of the district, is a branch church of the Sunnyside Brethren and which is located in Grandview, hospitably opens her doors and urges you to make Grandview one of your visiting points. You will find a cordial welcome.

THE NORTHWEST

We of the Northwest do welcome you
To the land of rivers and lakes of blue.
You'll love the scenes you will see each day,
And it's all free; you don't have to pay.

Our conference in Portland will be so grand,
As the Brethren arrive from across this good land.
'Twill be such a gathering you won't want to miss;
Ne'er a conference ground as pleasant as this.

The Yakima folks will surely be there,
The vision to catch, and the burden to share;
To see the great work for which we are here,
And pitch in and help, ere He doth appear.

Such spiritual blessings will surely be yours
If you will but come and enter the doors
Of chapel, or hall, or maybe a tent;
'Twill be worth every dollar, right down to the cent.

To miss this great conference you cannot afford,
If you would be challenged in serving the Lord.
So make your plans now, let nothing deter.
You'll be glad that you came, and that is for sure

We'll be seeing you then, out here in the West;
For you and your kin, we are planning the best.
The arrangements are made, the carpet is out,
You'll like it so well, you'll just have to shout!—H. D.

YAKIMA, WASH. INVITES YOU

From the "Fruit Bowl of the Nation" we welcome you all to National Conference in Portland, Oreg., this summer.

Yakima is a nice city of about 42,000. The pears will be ripe about the time of our conference. Come and get some and see the work here in our city.

"FISHIN" IN HARBOR AT SEATTLE, WASH.

By PASTOR THOMAS E. HAMMERS

SEATTLE—"largest city for its age in the world, America's great northwestern gateway to Alaska and the Orient, shining example of the dynamic vitality of the American way"—invites you to enjoy AMERICA'S COOLEST SUMMER CLIMATE en route to or from the Sixty-sixth Annual Conference of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, to be held at Portland, Oreg., August 10 through 17.

Just 200 scenic miles north of Portland and 110 miles south of the Canadian border in the very heart of the "evergreen" Puget Sound area, Seattle was founded only 100 years ago. Today its population tops the half-million mark within the city limits, a 50-percent increase over the population of only 15 years ago, with an additional quarter-million spilling over into the adjoining metropolitan areas.

Seattle stands 19th in size in the nation. It is the 20th city in retail sales and its effective buying income is more than $500 above the per-capita average in the nation. On every hand this tremendous growth is being translated into new homes, new factories, new businesses. Land that was forested just a few years ago now boasts planned communities, numbering hundreds of new dwellings. Home ownership is one of the highest in the nation, with 65 percent of Seattle's population living in their own residences.

Rich in natural beauty and scenery, Seattle is a city of low hills and lovely lakes, affording year-around recreation in beautiful parks, playfields, golf courses, and on extensive bodies of salt and fresh water with their accompanying beaches. It is the small-boating capital of America and the jump-off place for all kinds of fishing and hunting.

To the west is the magnificent Olympic Peninsula with its majestic snowcapped mountains, affording a scenic paradise with areas not yet reached by white men. This is truly America's last frontier.

To the east are the scenic Cascades, dominated by breathtaking Mt. Rainier, towering 14,408 feet above sea level and covered the year around by one of the largest glacial systems in the United States. But a short drive from "sea level to ski level," Seattle is internationally reputed as the sports center of the West Coast.

Seattle is the site of the famed Boeing Airplane Company, employing 37,000 persons; the campus of the University of Washington, with an enrollment in excess of 13,000; the amazing Lake Washington Floating Bridge, largest floating structure in the world.

The dynamic drive toward a population of one million is well under way in Seattle today. It is one of the most challenging mission fields in our nation, with church attendance the lowest in the land.

Here, under the direction of the Brethren Home Missions Council, we have established our "first" Brethren church in this great city. We expect construction of our building to be well under way by the time you visit us. Whether still in the parsonage at 6242 30th Ave. NE., or in the new building, the View Ridge Brethren Church of Seattle, of which Thomas E. Hammers is pastor, urgently invites you to include Seattle on your Northwest trip this summer.

Descriptive literature of the entire area, as well as the State of Washington, often called the most scenic in America, will be mailed free upon request.

ND HARRAH, WASH.

A STATE KNOWN FOR BEAUTY SINCE THE DAYS OF THE STAGECOACH

BY PASTOR DONALD FARNER

WE OF THE Northwest District extend a hearty invitation to brethren to attend the annual conference of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. As you already know, the conference will be held in Portland, Oreg. We invite you not only to the conference, but also hope that you will be able to spend some time enjoying some of our beautiful scenery. The Northwest has an abundance of interesting scenery.

If you are a lover of sports and outdoor recreation, you will certainly feel at home. Someone has said that this is the land of great variations. It is certainly true, and we assure you that whatever your outdoor recreation hobby may be, you will enjoy it here in the midst of our pleasant surroundings.

The vast shoreline, most of which is public free, offers pleasure for the swimmer. The rivers, lakes, and streams extend an invitation to the fisherman. From coastline to snow-covered mountains, God's creation attracts the eye of the traveler.

While you are in the Northwest, be sure and visit Harrah, Wash. The pastor and people of the Harrah Brethren Church invite you. Harrah is located in the Yakima Valley. Harrah—spell it forward or backward and it sounds the same. This small city is situated in the heart of the Yakima Indian Reservation. It has the population of about 350 people, and serves a community of 1,000.

However, Harrah has not always been Harrah. The first name that was attached to our fair city was "Saluskin," named so in honor of an Indian chief of the Yakima tribe. In 1915 the name was changed to Harrah in honor of the late J. T. Harrah, who owned and operated a large ranch nearby.

You will learn more about the Northwest when you get here; we will be expecting you. You will enjoy the scenery; you will enjoy our choice atmosphere; you will enjoy our friendliness and hospitality. Visit the Northwest in '55.

PARADISE CREEK AND JOSEPHINE LAKE IN GLACIER NATIONAL PARK

WELCOME TO ALBANY, OREGON

BY PASTOR GLEN WELBORN

Yes; it is true! The Northwest Brethren churches welcome you to the National Fellowship in the Pacific Northwest. The Albany Grace Brethren Church joins in heralding the welcome. We welcome you not only to the Northwest but also to Albany. We would love to have you stop in for a visit!

Albany is called the "hub" of the fertile Willamette Valley. It lies at the crossroads of U. S. Highways 20 and 99E. It is a city of 12,000 population.

Twenty-five miles north of Albany is Oregon's capital city of Salem. Fifty miles further north is Oregon's largest city of Portland. The National Fellowship will be held about 10 miles south of this city.

In promoting this conference in the Northwest, there is something far more important than the place. It is what goes on there from the spiritual standpoint that shall be most important. This should be more than a vacation. It should be more than a sightseeing trip. It should be more than a renewing of old acquaintances. This should be a time for God's people of the Brethren Church to gather before God in humility. Christ, the Head of the church, must be in control.

We must not be content with just being fundamental. We must be evangelistic. It would be a good thing if we could experience a Holy Spirit revival of love for Christ, His church, and lost souls. Such a revival would halt any subtle drifting into worldliness and careless living. It would produce dedication and sacrifice of time and money for Christ's sake and the Gospel. It would result in the salvation of many more souls. Let's be praying for this lest we drift into coldness and apostasy and perish as a spiritual force in this wicked world. Let's be busy occupying, for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

DRIVING TO PORTLAND

BY WM. H. SCHAFFER

Going to Portland, Oreg., for our National Fellowship? Here are a few interesting routes if you have a few extra days for travel. From the East we'll take Winona Lake, Ind., as starting point.

The simplest and most direct route from Winona Lake is U. S. Route 30. This route, if you take Bypass US 30 as you enter Portland, will take you within sight of our Grace Brethren Church in Portland at 23d and Bryant. In Portland take US 99E and 12 miles south you'll find Jennings Lodge, our conference grounds for 1955.

Maybe you would like to try the northernmost route? This will prove a fast route because of lack of trucks and level roads for the most part. Take US 131 or US 27 north to Mackinaw City, cross on the ferry to St. Ignace and pick up US 2. This route will take you into Glacier National Park, within four blocks of our Spokane church (Washington and Montgomery 2300 North), and near Grand Coulee Dam, which is the largest structure yet built by man. From there you can go into the Yakima Valley and visit three of our churches, Yakima (29th and Arlington), Harrah, 12 miles southwest, or Sunnyside, 35 miles southeast. From Yakima take US 97 to reach Sunnyside.

When you come to the Columbia River you have the choice of following the river on the Washington side to Vancouver or taking the ferry at Maryhill and traveling the express highway into Portland on US 30. The latter is the better and more scenic.

LOWER FALLS OF YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK

Would you like to visit Yellowstone National Park? Then you can take various routes like US 30 or US 20 into Yellowstone, or US 16 through the Bad Lands and Mt. Rushmore of South Dakota, and then into Yellowstone. From Yellowstone you have your choice of dropping south to US 30 or going north to US 10 through Spokane, Wash. You may continue on US 10 into Seattle and then south on US 99 to Portland.

For the southern Californians, why not try US 395 through Reno to Valley Falls, Oreg., Oregon 31 to US 97 to US 20 to Albany (Grace Brethren Church) and north on US 99E. Return trip could be made on US 99E or US 99W or US 101.

We have traveled most all of these routes. All of them have advantages of their own. You will find that US 2 does not have very many overnight accommodations from Michigan to Washington.

Using any of the routes we have suggested from Winona Lake, you can figure from 2,350 to 2,500 miles to Portland.

Spokane, Wash., Awaits Your Coming

By PASTOR JESSE HALL

Greetings from Spokane! Visiting Brethren, en route to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches at Portland, will want to take a look at Spokane, the capital of the great Inland Empire, and the area comprising eastern Washington, northern Idaho, and western Montana. This territory is bounded on the west by the Cascades, on the north by the Canadian border, on the east by the Rockies, and the Bitterroot Mountains, and on the south by the Blue Mountains.

Spokane is the commercial center of this region and the key gateway to the national parks of the American and Canadian Rockies and the Cascades whose majesty beggars description. Surfaced highways invite side trips that offer much enjoyment and recreation. No trip through the Inland Empire would be complete without seeing the Grand Coulee Dam, the greatest engineering and construction undertaking of all time. The McNary, Chief Joseph, and Hungry Horse Dams also add their share to the Northwest power pool that is so vital to the development of the Inland Empire.

The First Brethren Church of Spokane, located at Washington and Montgomery in the northwest section of the city, with its pastor and people, join with our sister churches of the Northwest in rolling out the carpet and welcoming you all in the lovely name of Jesus. Join with us in prayer that the Lord will enable the Brethren Church to establish many new churches in this rapidly developing section of the United States.

GENERAL INFORMATION

1. LOCATION: The Jennings Lodge Assembly Grounds is owned and operated by the Evangelical United Brethren Church. It is beautifully located on the east bank of the Willamette River, just 10 miles south of Portland's city center on U. S. Highway 99E.

2. LODGING: On the grounds. The private rooms and cabins on the grounds have all been taken by reservations. However, there is still an abundance of open dormitory space and tents. The open dorms are buildings which have large rooms with a number of beds in each. These can be used by the single men or women. In these the single bed is $1.25 and the double bed $1.50 per day, bedding included.

The 16-x-16 tent on a raised platform is $15 per week and will care for a family of six. Without the platform the same-sized tent is $10 per week. The 12-x-14 tent for two people is $6 per week. These tents have electric lights, beds, and bedding. Those bringing camp stoves may cook on them.

(NOTE ON BEDDING: You will save money on the above prices if you can bring your own bedding or sleeping bags, and the management will be happy if you can. This also applies to board members staying at Camp Menucha the week before.)

Lodging off the grounds: Those unable to find what they need or want on the grounds can find very good accommodations nearby. One fine 80-room hotel (three miles away) has given us the following special daily rates: Single rooms, $1.50; double-bed rooms, $2.50; twin-bed rooms, $3; single-bed rooms with bath, $3 and $4; double-bed rooms with bath, $5 to $7. (Cots are available for children.)

Thirty motels are from one to five miles away, with 5 to 20 units in each. Half or more of them have cooking facilities. Cabins with two double-bed rooms and cooking facilities run from $20 to $65 per week, with $30 to $40 being the average. Two couples can use many of them. Other sizes are priced proportionately.

3. MEALS: The Jennings Lodge Assembly Grounds operates a very good dining hall which is capable of feeding 500 people per hour. The prices there will be: Breakfast, 65c (or cafeteria); lunch, 80c; dinner, $1.

4. TRAILERS: There are some fine trailer parks nearby, with complete facilities. Trailers can be parked on the grounds, but there are no facilities for their use. However, they can be parked alongside a friend's cabin for electricity and water.

5. RESERVATIONS: For further information on lodging or for registrations, just write to Jennings Lodge Assembly Grounds, 18113 SE. Morse St., Portland 22, Oreg. No fee is required for preregistration (as yet anyhow). Reservations must be made to save the rooms at the West Lynn Hotel. They also can be made if desired to assure you the kind of motel you want nearest the grounds.

CALLING ALL GIRLS

SMM OF THE NORTHWEST DISTRICT INVITES YOU

SMM

We're skimping and saving; we're planning and praying;
We're anxiously counting the hours.
Expecting to meet all you Sisterhood girls
In Portland, the city of flowers.

So hunt up your bonnet and perk up your bows;
Pack up your suitcase; get set on your toes.
Soon school will be over and you know the rest.
Bring Mom, Dad, and Brother and travel Northwest.

M. L. H.

P. S.—We'll be seeing you in August.

AN INVITATION TO ALL

Women Manifesting Christ

ACROSS OUR NATION

Have you ever been to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches? Have you ever left your daily responsibilities to go to a National Women's Missionary Council Conference? Going needing strengthening in your faith—leaving with renewed strength and courage in Christ. Going needing instruction in God's precious Word—leaving instructed and blessed by the ministry of the Word by some of God's choicest saints. Going needing an understanding of the urgent necessity for building more Brethren churches across our great land—leaving with a pressing desire to give and to pray such churches into being. Going needing a new and broader vision of the tremendous need for the Gospel beyond our own borders—leaving seeing as Christ sees, loving as Christ loves, and the whole world having become your burden for intercession and sacrifice. Going in need—leaving seeing the needs of others. Returning home with a new determination that your life shall be daily used to the glory of your Lord.

If you have, then you know what a blessed privilege it is to draw apart from the duties of home or job to the inspiration of a week with God's Word and God's people. If you have not, then there yet awaits you just such a mountaintop experience as you look forward to the Women's Missionary Council Conference at Portland, Oreg., this summer. Isaiah the prophet has given the invitation in this manner: "And many people shall GO and say, COME YE, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths" (Isa. 2:3).

Truly our WMC sessions this year shall be another mountaintop experience with our Lord and with our sisters in Christ. Every day will be a peak of blessing from the Lord. Every hour with the WMC ladies of other districts will encourage your labors in your own council through the following year. Every message will be a challenge to help you determine your own place of service for the Master as you manifest Christ at home. This is but a faint picture of what the WMC conference will mean to you spiritually. Your personal attendance alone can prove to you what a blessing and inspiration it will be in your own life.

We ladies of the Northwest District Women's Missionary Council wish to extend our invitation to you in the words of Moses, when he said: "We are journeying unto the place . . . come thou with us, and we will do thee good(Num. 10:29). This will be a new experience for many of us here in the Northwest who have never been able to attend a national conference. We are looking forward with great anticipation to the joy of learning to know our WMC sisters from across the nation. Be sure you will receive a warm northwestern welcome.

MRS. THOMAS HAMMERS,
Northwest District WMC President.

Left to right—Mrs. Frank Stockstill, financial secretary-treasurer, Yakima, Wash.; Mrs. Harold Painter, vice president, Sunnyside, Wash.; Mrs. Thomas Hammers, president, Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Jesse Hall, prayer chairman, Spokane, Wash.; Mrs. Ernest Morrell, assistant secretary, Harrah, Wash.; Mrs. Will Stover, secretary, Sunnyside, Wash.

The BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD

FOREIGN MISSION NUMBER

MAY 7, 1955

For Your Information---

Prayer Booklets—

The new foreign-mission Prayer Booklets have been mailed to all pastors in accordance with the orders submitted to us. We are happy to present this booklet with the prayer that it will be a constant companion to every person interested in Brethren foreign missions. The booklet is of a size that will fit into any average-sized Bible, and what better place of residence could any prayer booklet have? We have quite an ample reserve and will, therefore, be glad to send additional copies free to anyone writing for them.

Missionary Newsletters—

For several years now we have encouraged our missionaries to write newsletters once every three or four months which we will mimeograph and mail from our foreign-mission office. Most of the missionaries are taking advantage of this correspondence privilege. The mailing list has been supplied by each missionary and, in addition, we have frequently made the offer in the pages of the Herald to send these missionary newsletters to anyone requesting them. Recently we have decided to put every Brethren pastor on the mailing list for every one of the missionary newsletters which come to us. Now again we offer to send them to anyone else desiring to receive the letters from one or from all who write. If you wish to receive these letters, please write to our Brethren Foreign Mission Office, Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind.

How may these letters be used? Many of our pastors read the entire letter, or selected portions, at the midweek prayer service or in the Sunday worship services. Others read such to the Sunday school or other interested organizations. Usually the information in the newsletters has not been given through the pages of the Herald and, therefore, it is a new source of missionary information and inspiration. The missionary mailing lists submitted by the missionaries include hundreds of names completely outside the mailing list of the Brethren Missionary Herald.

Offering Reports—

At this writing we have just fragmentary reports of foreign-mission offerings. We are encouraged, but we are not venturing any estimates. Rather, we are urging prayer that in the last days of this foreign-mission offering period sufficient funds may be presented to the Lord in order that our work in all fields will not be hindered.

Offerings to count as a part of the so-called Easter Offering for foreign missions should be in our office by the end of June, thus giving time for the offerings received during the month of May to be totaled and forwarded to our office. Offering report blanks and full instructions have been sent either to the pastor or to the contact person in each of the churches.

As quickly as possible following the close of the offering period and the receipt of the offerings in our office we will publish the totals, by churches. The complete annual report, however, will not come until the close of the calendar year. Offerings received by our office will be considered a part of the annual offering to foreign missions and membership in our Society is determined on the basis of the total gifts during the calendar year.

Two Types of Society Membership—

For many years there have been two types of membership in The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church—active annual membership and life membership. Annual membership is on the basis of gifts totaling at least $5 given by one person during a calendar year. Thus, those who are annual members during 1955 are the individuals who gave at least $5 during the calendar year of 1954. Life membership is on the basis of gifts of $100 or more given to our foreign missionary work by one person during any one calendar year. Voting membership in the Society is the privilege of members of Brethren churches who have made gifts to our Society entitling them to annual membership or life membership.

Missionary Rallies—

The missionary rallies will continue through the month of May, having begun in February and continued steadily throughout the four months of our special foreign-mission emphasis. We want to thank the missionaries who have given so unstintingly of their time, and who have, in most cases, been away from their families for this entire period. We want to thank the pastors and churches for their gracious cooperation in these rallies in all 11 districts. Comment has been so universally favorable that it is planned to continue with such rallies in future years. Probably much the same season will be offered to the churches again next year and plans will be announced in the near future.

Missionary Availability—

Insofar as possible, our foreign missionaries who are on furlough will be available to our churches throughout the entire year at the invitation of pastors, churches, or districts. We are always glad to know of your desires in relation to missionary speakers and will do our best to supply them as they are available in the different sections of the country. You may contact either the missionary or our Brethren Foreign Mission Office, Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind.

Miller, True Hunt, Lyle W. Marvin, Arnold R. Kriegbaum, ex officio.

PRESENTING OUR NEW STAFF MEMBER

Clyde K. Landrum

We are happy to announce the appointment of Rev. Clyde K. Landrum to the office staff of The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church. He will serve as an assistant to the General Secretary, sharing in matters of promotion, publicity, administration, and so forth.

Following graduation from high school, Brother Landrum spent two years at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. He later graduated from the Morehead State Teachers College at Morehead, Ky. After some years spent in teaching school, he enrolled in Grace Theological Seminary, from which he graduated in 1948 with the honor of cum laude. He served as the organizing pastor of the Leesburg Brethren Church, Leesburg, Ind., and for the last six years has been the pastor of the First Brethren Church of Uniontown, Pa.

In experience, as well as training, Brother Landrum is well fitted for his new responsibilities. He was a schoolteacher for nine years; during the latter of those years he served as principal of a large consolidated grade school. For several years he was associated with the Prudential Life Insurance Company, organizing for them the territory in the Winchester, Ky., area. He was then transferred to Louisville, Ky., where he served as the agency assistant manager for the entire State of Kentucky. During part of the war years he was employed in the shipyards at Stockton, Calif., in promotional activity.

In Christian activity, in addition to the years in the pastorate at Uniontown, he has served as the secretary-treasurer of the East District Mission Board. At present he is the secretary of our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, a member of the Board on Ministerial Relief, chairman of the Board of Evangelism, a member of the Board of Trustees of Grace Theological Seminary, and president of the Seminary Alumni Association.

Brother and Sister Landrum and their two sons, Philip and Jerry, will move to Winona Lake about June 1, and Brother Landrum will assume his new responsibilities at that time.—Russell D. Barnard.

CONFIDENCE

First: God brought me here; it is His will I am in this strait place; in that will I rest.

Next: He will keep me here in His love, and give me grace in this trial to behave as His child.

Then: He will make the trial a blessing, teaching me the lessons He intends me to learn, and working in me the grace He means to bestow.

Last: In His good time He can bring me out again—how and when, He knows.

Thus I am here—
(1) By God's appointment.
(2) In His keeping.
(3) Under His training.
(4) For His time.

And He bids: "Call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me" (Ps. 50:15).

—Andrew Murray.

A GOOD MISSIONARY

Andrew Fuller (1754-1815), speaking of the qualities of a good missionary, says: "No man is fit to be sent, in my judgment, either as a principal or an assistant, who does not possess a peculiar desire after the work; such a desire as would render him unhappy in any other employment. I do not mean to plead for enthusiastic impressions; yet an impression there must be, and an abiding one, too, that all the fatigues, disappointments, non-success, and discouragements of such an undertaking shall not be able to efface. When God has had an extraordinary work to perform, it has been His practice to raise up suitable instruments, and to impress their minds with suitable views and desires. The wall of Jerusalem needed rebuilding, and God put it into the heart of Nehemiah to go and build it. It was this particular desire which God put into his heart which enabled him to encounter difficulties and surmount obstructions at which 99 men out of 100 would have fainted."—Congo Mission News.

"Prove all things by the Word of God—all ministers, all teachings, all preaching, all doctrines, all sermons, all writings, all opinions, all practices—prove all by the Word of God. Measure all by the measure of the Bible. Weigh all by the balance of the Bible. Test all in the crucible of the Bible. That which can abide the fire of the Bible, receive, hold, believe and obey. That which cannot abide the fire of the Bible, reject, refuse, repudiate, and cast away."—Bishop Ryle.

Who walks with God must take His way,
Across far distances and gray,
To goals that others do not see,
Where others do not care to be.

Down the River With the Gospel

By Robert S. Williams, Batangafo, Africa

Doubtless many people think we have interesting and exciting experiences every day or so here in Africa with lions and leopards and buffalo and snakes. Of course that is not the case. Many people have spent years in Africa without even a glimpse of these exciting animals, or anything else extremely exciting. Actually, life in Africa is just like life anywhere else; it is boring, humdrum, interesting, or exciting, not so much in accordance with what happens as in one's attitude toward what happens.

Robert S. Williams

Not too long ago we took a little trip and our experiences were a little different this time because it was a trip by canoe down the river. The River Ouham (pronounced "wam") flows near our station. And there are a number of villages along its course, some quite large, which can only be reached by canoe or bush trail. Some of these villages have never been visited by a missionary. In fact, the natives tell me that there are still some villages that have never been visited by a white man.

The "Crew"

We started from the mission station that morning a gay company, with my stuff piled on the station push-cart. When my "gondoliers" met us at the river, they just took one look at my equipment and said, "Go get another canoe." The African is polite like that. He wouldn't say, "Mister, why did you bring all this junk?" He just says, "Get another canoe." The second canoe arrived in short order, and in a few minutes we were floating down the river in our little dugout canoes.

There were six of us in the company at first. The one canoe was manned by Joseph and Jonas, with Alphonse, the boy, holding down the middle of the canoe. Of course, we connect the name "Jonas" with a person who had some marine experience, but in this case Joseph proved quite capable too. Daniel, an old hand at the job and also a pillar in the church, was chief "gondolier" in the other canoe, with Jeremie, a lad of perhaps 12 years, paddling valiantly at the bow, and Bounjou (that's me) seated triumphantly, like a king on his throne, in the center of the canoe. But Bounjou, as is so often the case, was not too happy in his high and exalted position. His throne, as thrones sometimes are, was very unstable and he soon transferred, voluntarily, to a more lowly position. (I'll be willing to await the Kingdom Age to try out a throne.) A little later, Jean, a boy of some 14 years, joined us. (I might say, as an aside, that we don't encourage the use of the name "Bounjou." It is a corruption of the French bonjour and, to the native, means "white man." But it prevails pretty generally when we aren't supposed to be listening.)

The "Sights and Sounds"

I was all eyes and ears for interesting sights and sounds as we moved on down the river. Some kind of a fish hawk was sitting in a tree waiting his chances to dive on an unwary fish. I took a shot and somehow I bagged him. He was a pretty thing—black with a white head. Then there was some kind of a big gawky bird sauntering across a sand bar. He reminded me of an old man in a gray Prince Albert coat strolling pensively along with his hands behind him. The boys urged me to shoot and I did; unfortunately, I hit the old fellow.

Later on the boys called my attention to what they thought was a crocodile lying on the point of a sand bar. But as we moved closer and closer and he didn't move, I concluded it couldn't be a "croc"—it must be just a bundle of grass washed up on the sand. But just as my "gondoliers" were beginning to agree with me, the bundle of grass got up and waddled off into the water. He was enormous. After that we saw a lot of "crocs"—big, little, and middle-sized. One little fellow fooled us all. His father, mother, and all his brothers slipped into the water. But he stayed on. I even took a couple of cracks at him with my "22." Finally, when we all agreed that it was just a stick of driftwood, he got up, looked at us, and grinned, and slipped lazily into the water.

Another natural phase which interested me greatly and gave rise to some philosophical ramblings was the bright green of woods which rose up along the water's edge, but which hardly hid the broad parched expanse which stretched away into the background. My first thought was of the First Psalm. "And he shall be like a tree planted by the river of waters . . . his leaf also shall not whither" But a closer observation revealed that these trees did not symbolize the psalm. This is not the stream of waters, or "canal" as the Hebrew has it, for irrigation. These trees, in spite of their show of life and vitality, are actually dying. The river is washing the soil away from their roots. There they were—clutching, grasping at the bank with crooked, gnarled fingers.

COVER PICTURE

Our cover this month pictures the new boat which Brother Robert Williams has recently completed—that is, it is now ready for the motor which will be shipped to Africa just as soon as possible. Brother Williams himself was the designer and carpenter, since most of the Africans in his area had never seen a boat like this one.

The Batangafo station, where Brother and Sister Williams are located, is situated very near the Ouham River. The article on this page (which was written before the boat was completed) will give you an understanding of the great need for such a boat.

Christened "l' Evangile" (The Gospel), this little vessel measures 16 feet 4 inches by 5 feet over all. In the center, a section two meters long (78 inches) is roofed with aluminum. In fact, most of the boat could have been roofed with 12-foot strips, but the boatmen must have elbow room for poling the boat.

Some of their brothers had already lost in the struggle and caved off to their death in the river. That which had been their life had brought only death. Here and there across the savanna a less grasping brother had braved the hardships, drought, and fire, and stood out a tower of strength on the landscape. But these along the water's edge were all little, crooked, mean, and grasping. They are like the people whose only thought and purpose is to drink their fill of the good things of this life. And eventually that which is their life washes the foundation from beneath them and sucks them down to their death.

One day, as we were drifting along, Jean lost his pole. When he jumped to grab it, he threw us all off balance and almost upset the boat. In the scramble my rifle slipped overboard and sank beneath the waves. Did my heart sink with it? It would be hard to get permission to bring another one into the country even if I could find the "wherewith" to buy it. The water was 10 to 12 feet deep. Mostly the water is only a few feet deep, and in some places we had to portage over the sand. But we found a nice deep place for our accident. It would be like that! Fortunately we were near the shore. We tied up and the boys began diving, and I was talking to the Lord about it: "Lord, I surely would like to have that gun back. But if You really don't want me to have it, then make me submissive to Your will." About the fifth or sixth time down, Joseph came up with my gun in his hand. I didn't forget to say, "Thank you, Lord." The boys were happy, too. The gun means meat for them—at least sometimes—and they are always meat hungry.

There are lots of other things we could tell you about—sleeping on a sandbar out in the river at night; hearing the guttural grunt of the crocodile, the laughlike snort of the hippo, the weird cry of the hyena, and, on one ocasion, the roar of lions. Much more could be said concerning the natural phenomena, but I must mention the most important thing, the people.

The People

The people of Africa—these people here along the river—how needy they are! There are 8,000 or more people scattered for over a hundred miles down the river, with just two or three native workers to bring them the Gospel of life in Christ Jesus. The Devil has plenty of teachers at work. At the time of my trip two rival cults were hard at work among the people mustering converts. Every night, from opposite sides of the village, they vied with each other to see which could beat their drums the loudest and longest, and who could emit the wildest screams. Finally, completely overcome with fatigue, they would creep away and throw themselves on their grass mats to sleep it off. By about noon the next day they would be again in circulation, striding arrogantly up and down the village, their bodies decorated with the finery associated with their cult. These young men will be hard to reach, but some can be reached. And some can be reached before they fall under that influence. The needful thing is to get the Gospel to them.

I have made it my goal now to spend at least two or three weeks each dry season in this region. But what is two or three weeks among 8,000 people in some 25 villages scattered over a 100-mile stretch?

The Challenge

I made one little side trip to visit one of my workers. En route we passed four other villages. It was just an overnight trip and it was utterly impossible to stop over in these villages. The next morning we returned by another route. I learned later that three of the four chiefs that we had passed up had gotten together and were waiting my return to task me to send workers to their villages. Another young chief followed me back to the post to ask for a worker. He himself has made a profession of Christ, but now there is no one to teach him and his people. At another time three of four chiefs came to our native leader at Batangafo and asked the church to send workers to them. The trouble is, no one wants to go. There is no one to say, "Here am I, Lord, send me." They are all too occupied with the easy comfortable life and remunerative work here at the post. Perhaps they are like some of the Brethren back home—they are waiting for some glorious vision, some bright and shining light, some miraculous call. Pray much that the Lord will send forth laborers into His harvest from among the African Christians.

I don't mean to indicate that all of these people are just waiting with open arms to receive Christ. There is plenty of opposition. These very chiefs who are pleading for workers may change and give the worker a hard time when he does come. They may think there will be some magic advantage to their village just to have a man of God among them. But now the way is open. And since we know the Word is powerful to save, we know that where it is preached, souls will be saved.

Do pray for us, that we may have strength, wisdom, energy, zeal, power, courage, and fellow workers, both black and white, for the great work which He has committed unto us until He comes.

GOD USES US

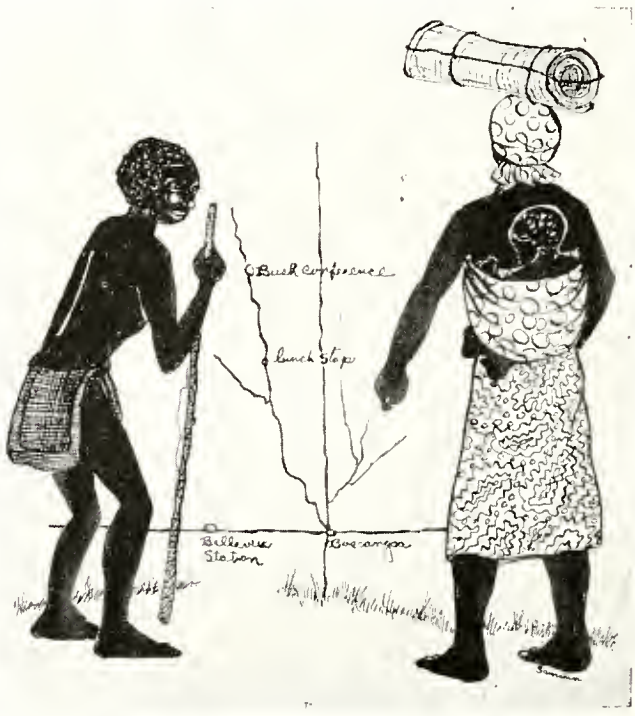
Ryland's reputed remark to William Carey: "Young man, sit down, sit down. You're an enthusiast. When God pleases to convert the heathen, He'll do it without consulting you or me!" is still repeated in different ways. Surely the whole Bible with its inspiring record of the call of prophets and apostles goes to prove that it is His will that men and women should be His fellow workers in the fulfillment of His everlasting purpose. We have modern evidences of His continuing call and evidences also of the response, "Here am I, send me."—Congo Mission News.

To the African Bush!

By Mrs. William Samarin, Bellevue, Africa

Pack your cot and mosquito net and take another trip with us. We are going to leave the comparative cool and comfort of the mission station to hold a three-day Bible conference in the bush country of Africa. As we travel down the dusty dry-season roads, we search the landscape for beauty or even just something green to rest our eyes. But on all sides we see nothing but sun-scorched dryness. The villages we pass are parched-looking and the little native children look almost white in their layers of dust. Yet there is a joy and eagerness in our hearts that even the heat cannot spoil, for we are going out to visit and aid a group of Christians whom we can rarely see more than once a year.

Let us stop for lunch at one of our chapels where the Christian worker has planted a mango tree for shade. We will open a can of tuna, and we have boiled eggs and plenty of African homemade bread and cookies. There are three demijohns of boiled water, so drink your fill.



We must be nearing the conference village, for we see groups of natives carrying their rolled mats on their heads. They are Christians on their way to conference. They wave to us happily although they have many hot miles yet to walk. Finally, up ahead, we see a large village. The church is easy to find, for already there is a crowd of people waiting for us. We stop in front of the government rest house and soon the house is surrounded by a happy crowd. They are delighted, for this time we've brought our two little girls. A few of these people say they have never seen a white woman and a lot of them have never seen white children. They ask if the children are girls or boys and they notice with surprise that the children wear shoes. Even when Bill goes down to the church to greet friends and I begin setting up cots and nets, some people stay to watch the children. The first thing the girls do is to dig into the suitcase for their dolls. Someone catches sight of the dolls and claps his hand over his mouth with glee. "Look at their hair," someone shouts.

The Christian folks have dampened and swept the clay floor of the rest house before we arrived. So I set up housekeeping with one eye on the girls and one eye on my work. When the work is done, we see that long shadows have fallen across the veranda and it's time to think of supper. Three rocks are placed in the back yard. Over these rocks we set a gasoline can lid. Under the lid we light our wood fire. On this stove we prepare our evening meal. Bill comes back for supper to report that all is ready to begin conference tomorrow in the coolness of the early morning. We have an audience while we eat, but there is no need to be self-conscious. They are watching our two-year-old eat with a spoon.

With supper over, we push our chairs to the edge of the veranda to catch the first night breezes. Around us is a hazy darkness—the moonlight mingling with the smoke of the village. I find myself listening to a sound more beautiful to my ears than any sound on earth. At some 30 or 40 fires are gathered groups of Christians, each group singing the gospel hymns of their choice. Out across the African night goes the sound of 800 voices in a jumble of hymn-singing; yet it is nonetheless God's miracle in black Africa. We catch such phrases as "happiness is, real happiness is," or "Jesus died for every man." These songs, though sometimes off-key, must be joyful sounds to God's ears, for 15 or 20 years ago the air of this village had been filled with nothing save the tapping beat of drums.

Let's step off the veranda and walk among the groups gathered around their campfires. Be careful where you step, for the small children are already asleep on their mats. See the old, old lady with the large discs in both sides of her nose. She nods sleepily too, for she has walked far today on her thin old legs. She heard the Gospel late in life, but not too late. Beside her sits a pretty young mother with a fat baby asleep on her lap. Through the smoke a hand is stretched for you to shake. As you return the greeting, you see it is a leper's hand—a leper who now has hope, both for his body and his soul. The young man who stands to greet us is a Christian worker. In a few weeks he will come to our station for some Bible training. He leads a group of 25 Christians.

Back in the rest house we sit and talk. We talk of the foreign-mission offering and we wonder if the goal will be met. We wish—oh, how we wish—that each person in our denomination were here to see this group of 800 people that we as missionaries have time to visit but once a year. Then they would understand why each station pleads for new missionaries to help with the work. We need more help to care for the old woman, the young mother, that leper, and every other "new-born babe" that God has given us. We need help to reach the pagans who sit within their huts muttering against this invasion of Christians into their village.

But now it's time for bed. Our bodies need to be rested and strong tomorrow, for we have but three days to give these people and we must give them our best. This foreign-mission season is your time to give—they deserve your best!

L. E. Maxwell, in the Prairie Overcomer, says: "Christian pulse is not to rise and fall with the morning paper. Let men question Christianity as they will. Let the externals of the Christian church rise and fall, wax and wane, ebb and flow. Let men and reason rave. Come wars and rumors of wars. Come A-bombs and H-bombs. In spite of all, 'Thou remainest.' No change Jehovah knows. It is not for us to be unsettled by conditions in this present evil world. Our cause rests with Him."

WHO ARE EXCUSED FROM GIVING TO MISSIONS?

. . . Those . . .

WHO believe that the world is not lost and does not need a Saviour, who believe that Jesus Christ made a mistake when He said: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature."

WHO believe that the Gospel is not the power of God, and cannot save the heathen.

WHO wish that missionaries had never come to our ancestors, and that we ourselves were still heathen.

WHO believe that it is "every man for himself" in this world, and who with Cain ask, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

WHO believe they are not accountable to God for the money entrusted to them.

WHO are prepared to accept the final sentence: "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me."—Selected.

To acknowledge God in everything is the most important thing. It is one of Satan's deceptions to get workers tired out in what is called work of the Lord, while they do not live in continual contact with the Holy Spirit by means of prayer.—Exchange.

ARGENTINA

LAND OF PLENTY AND LAND OF NEED

About 5,000 miles to the southeast of us, under the Southern Cross, is this land of plenty—the fertile land of Argentina. It is largely an agricultural land, with ranches of from 1,000 to 10,000 acres each. As one looks out across the countryside in about any section of Argentina, one sees the fields of grain and often the one field extends as far as the eye can see. Alternately there are the pasture lands, always covered by red and black dots. Coming nearer to them, one is aware that they are red or black cattle. The larger cities, of course, have many industries. There are new buildings everywhere, especially in the cities, housing modern factories and plants.

Argentina is a great melting pot for the peoples of the earth. It really seems that there are so few native Argentines—that is, people who were actually born there and whose families have lived there for generations. Most of the people, or their parents, came from Germany, France, Spain, England, Portugal, Switzerland, Sweden, Italy, many countries of the Orient, and, of course, many from the United States of America. All of these seem to have been built very effectually into the one people, the Argentines.

Buenos Aires is the largest and the capital city. About one-fourth of the 18,000,000 people of Argentina live in the greater Buenos Aires area. It is a modern city with beautiful wide streets, tall buildings, spacious parks, efficient subways, modern trains, and ample bus and street-car service. About one-fourth of our missionary personnel now live and serve in this great center where one-fourth of the Argentine people live. Opportunities for the presentation of the Gospel seem to be unlimited in this area and in most of the other larger cities. I think it is not an exaggeration to say that we would be able to place a number of missionaries equal to our entire missionary personnel in all fields in this one Buenos Aires area and still not completely meet the need for evangelical preaching and teaching. There are, of course, many other large cities—a dozen or more that exceed the 100,000 mark in population. Although there is some evangelical witness probably in each of these cities, the field is far from being fully occupied.

A typical street scene in one of the smaller cities.

The older and larger area of our field in Argentina is located some 300 to 400 miles to the west and north of Buenos Aires, in the large interior province of Cordoba. Our center of activity there for many years has been in the rapidly growing city of Rio Cuarto. It is now a city of about 75,000 people. Each year our missionaries upon our authorization are visiting in the surrounding provinces and in the larger cities, investigating and evaluating these areas. We are trusting that as a result of some of these visits the Lord will open the way and supply the workers so that we may enter new areas with our Brethren evangelical testimony.

A modern hotel in Rio Cuarto.

Of our six Brethren mission fields, Argentina is the oldest. Our first missionaries there, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Yoder and Miss Bertha May Bell, sailed from the United States August 2, 1909. Ten years later, or on November 15, 1919, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Sickel arrived in Argentina. After some years of faithful service Dr. Sickel was chosen as superintendent of our work in Argentina in 1934. Dr. Sickel continued in active missionary service until his promotion to his heavenly home on December 11, 1951. Our missionary personnel has increased in Argentina until now there are 18 North Americans serving among the 18,000,000 people in Argentina. One has rather uniquely said, "A missionary per million." However, in saying this we must recognize the many other evangelizing agencies serving in Argentina. With all of those, however, and with our own, although Argentina is a land of plenty, it is still a land of need so far as evangelization is concerned.

Argentina has through the years been a very difficult mission field, chiefly because of the opposition and antagonism of a priesthood, and because of the fear and distrust inspired in the minds and hearts of the common people by these religious leaders. We pray that the privilege which we have had of preaching the Gospel in that land may continue.

Through the years there have been those faithful souls who are willing actually and literally to "forsake all" for Jesus Christ and to become a part of that group of evangelical believers often persecuted and distrusted. Of these dear ones God has raised up a very substantial and growing Argentine National Brethren Church. There are now some 25 congregations in our fellowship in that land and more are being added annually. The churches are now quite well organized and just recently have taken steps for government recognition. These will soon be entirely self-supporting, self-governing, and self-propagating Brethren churches. An advising and directing council or committee called the National Brethren Council, composed largely of Argentine believers with missionaries as members of the committee, has very largely to do with the direction of the work in Argentina. Most of the Argentine believers who are members of this committee are successful businessmen in whose leadership we can have great assurance. There is a continual need for missionaries in Argentina, especially if we should be enabled to establish more testimonies in the Buenos Aires area and in other large centers of population. We will probably never be able to send sufficient missionaries to do the job and, therefore, our greatest challenge at the present time is to find, call out, and train national Argentine believers for leadership.

(Editor's Note—This is the third in a series of historical sketches on each of our six mission fields. We have not listed in this sketch of Argentina the missionaries who are now serving in that field; these, together with their addresses, are listed in the Foreign Missionary directory in this issue of the Herald.)

AN AFRICAN'S THOUGHTS ON GOD'S WORD

(Malachi 4:1-3)

By William J. Samarin, Bellevue, Africa

The African understands the fourth chapter of Malachi very well during the dry season of the year. The rains are finished for a number of months. The crops have been harvested and the gardens are dry and forsaken. Around the villages and for miles and miles throughout the uninhabited "bush" the tall grass is brittle-dry, ready to be burned.

First, around the villages the grass is burned to protect the houses, and then in the garden to hunt what little animals can be found there. Finally away out in the bush, where live the lions, buffalo, and all types of antelope, the grass is burned and burned until nothing is left but ashes and the trunks of the hardy trees.

The African thinks about all this when he listens to the words of Malachi describing the coming of the Lord. When the Lord comes, it will be like the heat of a terribly hot oven. It will burn up the arrogant and the evildoers as if they were stubble. So thorough will be the burning that neither root nor branch will be left. This day of judgment is terrible to the African because he can still hear the roaring of the fire and the crackling of the grass being consumed by fire as it rushes over miles of ground. He can see the flames reaching up 15 or 20 feet into the air and every living creature, small and large, in the path of the burning monster fleeing in panic.

The Day of the Lord is going to be like that. Only it will be worse. For the judgment of the Lord will be so thorough that it will leave not a root, not a branch, as it were, of the evil ones. Terrifying as they are, the grass fires are not so complete in their destruction. It is mainly the grass that is consumed to ash. Some types of grass, that with thick, canelike stalks, lose only the leaves. And the trees, although the leaves are burned and the trunks and branches are set on fire, are not all destroyed. There is always a remnant—either the roots or the branches or both—which will take to life again after the first rain. But the judgment of the Lord will be thorough, leaving neither root nor branch.

Those who are still under the judgment can only quake with fear upon hearing this description of the final day of judgment, the like of which they have not hitherto heard. But the Christian is reassured in the knowledge that he has been delivered from death and judgment and made a child of life. Moreover, all the injustices he suffers because he is a child of God will some day be righted, for the unrighteous, consumed by the fire, will be like ashes under the feet of the righteous. These ashes remind the African of what once was a thick, impenetrable barrier—grass and trees and vines, all making walking in the bush impossible. But a few minutes after the fire has done its work, he can walk over the land, once more its master.

"Dry and forsaken."

If the unrighteous person is depicted by the dry grass and stubble which is so easily consumed by the fire, then the righteous person is depicted by the tree which grows by the streams. Its leaves do not wither (Ps. 1:3). The dry seasons do not affect these trees, though they may be next to the mighty Ouham River or some little stream or even a spring. In these there is verdure the year 'round, so the fire which comes after devouring the dry grass finds nothing to burn, and dies out.

The African can think about these things and understand. He who is without the life of Christ fears, but he who has the life of Christ because he is a part of the Vine can be glad.

ALTOONA, PA. J. Ward Tressler, pastor of Grace Brethren Church, was heard over radio station WRTA at 7:45 each Friday morning during April.

ALLENTOWN, PA. John Neely, pastor of the First Brethren Church, conducted the funeral services of Mrs. Lizzie Kamoie, mother of Mrs. Floyd Taber, missionary to French Equatorial Africa, April 20. Mrs. Kamoie was making her home with relatives in New York when she went to be with the Lord.

MEYERSDALE, PA. At the last quarterly business meeting the congregation of the Meyersdale Brethren Church extended a call to James Hoffmeyer, Jr., to become assistant pastor to Rev. H. Leslie Moore.

BIRTHS. Several prospective members of the Brethren Church were recently reported. Carol Beth joined the W. Russell Ogden family at the parsonage in South Bend, Ind., Mar. 22; Paula Ann arrived at the missionary home of the Donald Bishops in Rio Cuarto, Argentina, April 15; Rebecca Ann came to the Homer Kent, Jr., home at Winona Lake, Ind., to assist in the teaching profession, April 15; a new musician, Diane Ruth, to the Donald Ogden home in Winona Lake, April 16; and a son to the Lester Kennedy missionary home in M'Baiki, French Equatorial Africa, April 18. The latter's name had not been received at the time of printing.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. Robert Crees has resigned as pastor of the Leamersville Brethren Church, effective Sept. 1, and has accepted the call of the Third Brethren Church of Philadelphia, Pa.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Enrollment in the nation's private, parochial, and Christian day schools is increasing twice as rapidly as in the public schools, the U. S. Census Bureau reports here. Since 1948, the first year for which data is available, the number of public-school pupils has increased by 4,800,000, or 20 percent, whereas the number of private- and parochial-school pupils has grown by 1,200,000, or more than 40 percent.

WASHINGTON, D. C. William Smith, Brethren evangelist, announces his engagement to Miss Phyllis Schumacher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schumacher, of Osceola, Ind. Miss Schumacher is presently teaching in the Whittier, Calif., Christian day school. Plans for the wedding are being made for the latter part of August.

WINONA LAKE, IND. The Evangelical Theological Society and the American Scientific Affiliation will meet jointly at Grace Seminary June 21-24. Speakers will include Dr. Lawrence Kulp, of New York, who will speak on ancient dating by means of Carbon-fourteen process, and Dr. James Buswell, speaking on the implications of scientific discovery for the doctrine of Biblical inerrancy.

RINER, VA. A new Sunday-school attendance record was set by the Grace Brethren Church on Apr. 17 when 102 were present. Joe Larue is Sunday-school superintendent and Thomas Craghead is pastor.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. The new address of Ralph Burns is 2934 Maple Ave., Altoona, Pa. The telephone is Altoona 27642. Please change Annual.

CHICO, CALIF. A new Orga-sonic organ was donated to the Grace Brethren Church. Phillip J. Simmons is pastor.

SEATTLE, WASH. Apr. 1 prowlers broke into the home of Thomas Hammers, pastor of the View Ridge Brethren Church. Articles stolen included a camera, pocket watch and wrist watch.

MARTINSBURG, PA. The largest communion service in the history of the First Brethren Church was conducted on Apr. 17.

WINONA LAKE, IND. It is nearly too late to expect "speedy" service on your Sunday-school orders. Secretaries should check to see if orders for next quarter's material have been sent to the Missionary Herald.

FAMILY LIFE IN BRAZIL

BY EDWARD MILLER
Missionary in Brazil

One of the most important influences in molding Christian character is the home. No one will deny the fact that the church and the school go hand in hand with the home in helping to develop this character, but basically God ordained that this Christian training should begin at home in the family life.

In the Old Testament we find that Hannah, a devout and righteous woman, dedicated her son Samuel to the Lord's service. And we read that "the child Samuel grew, and was in favour both with the Lord, and also with men." Then later on, after Samuel had become a prophet, we read that "all Israel . . . knew that Samuel was established to be a prophet of the Lord." No doubt much of the early training that Samuel received at home accounted for his great life of service to the Lord.

Then again in the New Testament we find that Timothy as a child was brought up in a knowledge of the Scriptures. Much of his early training was received not only from his mother but his grandmother as well. Here again we see this early training bearing fruit in later years as Timothy became a young pastor under the guidance of the Apostle Paul.

Time and time again we find this same truth brought out. Many great men of God throughout the years testify that their early training at home had a great deal to do with molding their lives for God. Here in Brazil we find that this principle works in reverse. Much of the low moral standards and lack of Christian character can be traced to the home life—a life which is not founded on God's Word.

Family life here in Brazil is much like that in the States, only we find that in many instances the family seems to be very closely knit together. The father seems to hold much the same position as the patriarch in the Old Testament. The children all seem to respect his views, even though they may be grown children with families of their own. Many times married children will live with their parents to help in the family store or farm.

Catholicism being the predominant religion, there are many religious holidays, at which times there are very many worldly festas or parties. The Brazilian likes to display the outward forms of his religion in various ways. Perhaps the most familiar is the sign of the cross. This is worn by men and women alike. Almost every home, no matter how humble a dwelling it may be, has a cross hanging above the door or on the walls inside. Many patron saints, as well as other religious pictures, hang on the walls with a little light burning underneath or sometimes a candle at night.

The women have much to do with the early life of the children in the home. It is the mother who sees to it that the children are ready to take their first communion in the Catholic church. However, when it comes to real Christian training in the home life of these children, there is very little, if any. Most of the families are large, and many times the children run at large in the neighborhood during the day. Because of the extreme poverty on the part of many of these families, younger children are frequently given away to friends or relatives who can afford to raise them and give them the necessities of life. These children generally stay with these families for the rest of their lives.

Because of this lack of Christian training in the home, many of the children that we come in contact with today are eager to hear the story of the Gospel that we have for them. Most of the children tell us that they have to "ask permission" first if they can come to our services or become Christians. Since there is such a definite lack of Christian training in the lives of these children, we feel that the church has a real opportunity to reach many of them. Because of this we have started our first Christian day school here in Macapa along with our Sunday school and church.

Not only are these children lacking in Christian principles, but illiteracy among them is also great. It has been estimated that there are still 50 percent of the people that can't read or write. We have Christian teachers in our school that open the day with prayer and have regular Bible studies during the week. As a result of the high Christian standard that we are setting in our school we have many children from homes that are not believers. One might find this confusing in a land where Catholicism is so dominant, but we find that on the whole the people are ready to see their children get a good education, and they know that in our school this is possible.

As a result of this training that they receive through the week we find that many of the children become interested in Sunday school, and it isn't very long before they have their parents interested as well. Of course our main objective in starting this Christian day school is to provide an adequate training for the children of our believers. In this way we can supplement the training that they receive at home. Many older missionary societies working here in Brazil have found that from these schools come the future pastors and leaders in the church.

What we are trying to do here in Brazil is reach the greatest number of people with the Gospel in the shortest time possible. Certainly this is what the Lord had in mind when He told His disciples to "go into all the world and make disciples of all nations."

MOTHERS AND MISSIONARIES

BY SOLON HOYT

MISSIONARY IN ARGENTINA

A HEART-TO-HEART TALK WITH MOTHERS

After months and perhaps years of fond expectation, the dearest and sweetest baby in the world is in your arms. Although the days and nights may grow long in your tender and faithful care of this divine entrustment, you willingly spend your last ounce of energy, for this precious little one has become entwined about your heart. Just a smile from this helpless one seems to repay all your tireless efforts.

But, dear mother, isn't it also true that scarcely before you realized it you were dreaming—yes, your mind had spanned the years and you saw your daughter sitting at a piano bringing forth enchanting music with a master's touch, or happily married and comfortably located in her home with the grandchildren at your knee; or perhaps you saw a son who had attained a place of prominence because of carefully guided study.

But was there no vision of that dear one separated from you by thousands of miles, living in humble circumstances, daily sowing the gospel seed in the hearts and minds of those who have never heard, but for whom Christ died also? Or did the slightest thought of separation, or danger, or privation strike fear to your heart, causing you to respond, "Lord, let it never be that!"?

Dear one, the highest honor and the greatest blessings which could ever come to you and your son or daughter is that God should call that one to be a missionary of the cross; the greatest tragedy and resultant remorse if your influence should cause that blessed child to refuse God's call. "For whosoever would save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it" (Mark 8:35). The simplest application of this text to your case is that the greatest joy and honor shall come to your life, as well as to the child's, if he is unreservedly given back to God.

Hannah of old learned this lesson. How her heartstrings must have strained as the day drew nigh for taking him to the temple, as she prepared his last meal at home, planted the last kiss upon his tender cheek, and as she turned from him, having clung to that last glimpse. Yes; all that is true, but the Scripture tells us that God gave her three sons and daughters as a reward for having yielded Samuel to Him. God will be a debtor to no one. If we fully submit ourselves and all we have to Him, the blessings which we shall receive in return will literally amaze us, but self would rob us of these blessings.

Mother, do not forget the words of Christ, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it." If you would direct your dear one in such a way as to save him for your own satisfaction and pleasure, be assured that your fond expectations shall vanish as a mirage in the desert. There are a thousand and one ways by which your dreams may be reversed—lingering illness, deformity, accident, death, war; yes, and even rebellion against God on the part of that dear one. The reversal of these blessings sought by coveting that dear one for self is not always so evident but is nonetheless true.

Dear Christian mother, doubtless you have felt so helpless many times when confronted with the thought of reaching the lost for Christ. Your days are so filled with the wiping away of tears, the mending and cooking—not to say anything of the multitude of miscellaneous things about the home. No; you cannot go to the heathen lands nor perhaps do too much outside of your own neighborhood, but there is something very effective which you can do right from your own little base of operations. It is something more than just refraining yourself from usurping the child for your own motherly gratification; it is to positively yield the child to the work of the Lord, if it be His will to call that way. And having yielded, to do all within your power to teach that child the Scriptures and to instill within him the greatest of all passions—the passion to win souls. The relation of mothers and missionaries is so very vital—much depends upon you as to whether or not your children will be missionaries for the Lord.

MOTHER

BY FOSTER TRESISE
MISSIONARY IN HAWAII

Her children arise up, and call her blessed (Prov. 31:28).

We do well, not only at this season but every day of our life, to honor Mother. Perhaps, apart from God and His Son Jesus Christ, Mother is the greatest name on the lips of mortal man. I believe Thackeray has well voiced it when he said: "Mother is the name for God in the lips and hearts of children." And Dr. C. H. Benson says: "In the child's earliest hours, Mother is all of heaven and earth to him. Mother's arms are his heaven; her eyes, the stars; and her care and provision, the Providence on which he relies with fullness of faith." And as years progress, do we not well to look upon Mother with homage, respect, and love, and do her honor—she who gave us of herself?

Oh, Mother, when I think of thee,
'Tis but a step to Calvary;
Thy gentle hand upon my brow
Is leading me to Jesus now.

What a privilege it is to be the divinely ordained channel through whom God has chosen to carry on the propagation of the human race. In the beginning God created Adam and Eve, and God blessed them, and said unto them, "Be fruitful, and multiply. And Eve . . . conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord" (Gen. 4:1).

This privilege was so cherished in those early days, I suppose, that every Hebrew maiden looked forward to the time she would have the joy of bearing children of her own. We know from the Scripture record how Hannah, because of barrenness, suffered rebuke, scorn, and ridicule at the hands of her sisters in the flesh. And we know, as well, the passions of her heart and the movement of her soul because of her affliction, God thus revealing the normal desires of every young maiden's heart. Is this not a part of that which is revealed when Mary, the channel God chose to bring to pass the incarnation of our blessed Lord, said, upon the salutation of Elisabeth: "My soul doth magnify the Lord, and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour"?

This privilege extends not only to the bearing of life, but to the building of a life as well. For successful motherhood is not to mold plastic clay only, but to rear eternal tabernacles for the Son of God to inhabit. Dr. Benson says: "During the most impressionable years of life, the mother is the child's constant companion and almost his only teacher." Therefore, it is in the home, and particularly from Mother, that we get our first and most enduring ideas of God. Is it any wonder adult converts repeatedly testify to a godly mother's contribution in the salvation of their souls?

Thus, normally and naturally, mothers should be aware of their great responsibility. We speak much of the atom and hydrogen today as units of power, but to bring into this world a soul, and then to shape that life with eternity's end in view, is a power that far exceeds the former, and of greater value. Motherhood is the most potent force in the world, and the world of tomorrow is being shaped by the motherhood of today. One has said: "The tomorrows of life will owe more to the mothers of today than to any other force or institution." God, therefore, has placed a heavy responsibility upon motherhood.

Another has said that "when you see a great man, you can usually look over his shoulder and see a great woman—his mother." Still another remarks that most "great men are just the lengthened shadows of great mothers." Now this is but the testimony of innumerable passages of Scripture. We see it exemplified time after time in the Old Testament, only just to mention Sarah and Jochebed and Hannah along with the mothers of David, Gideon, Samson, and others. But in the New Testament, as always, we see it so crystalline clear. The Apostle Paul, in writing to Timothy, says: "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also" (II Tim. 1:5). Notice the succession. The unfeigned faith was passed from mother to daughter, then to grandson, and Timothy was but the lengthened shadow of his heritage before him.

Thus it always is. The Apostle John expresses it in these words: "We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen" (John 3:11); while the Apostle Paul says: "For I have received of the Lord that which also I delivered unto you" (I Cor. 11:23). They knew, and realized, that that which was being transmitted to others was that which they really were at heart, and not what they merely hoped to be or were trying to attain unto. Oh, we would that mothers, and all men everywhere, would realize this, and take appropriate steps constructively. Following a revival meeting, the minister asked a young man what it was that caused him to come forward and accept Christ. "It was not your preaching, sir, but my mother's practicing that made me want to be a Christian."

And, Mother beloved, when we dedicate ourselves, with our children, wholly unto the Lord, there is great reward. Faithful Hannah found her great reward in Samuel's great career. Moses on the mount was the "wages" of the poor Hebrew mother who cradled him in her basket of bulrushes. St. Augustine's mighty service for the Gospel was the best reward that God could give Monica, and Washington was God's splendid recompense to Washington's mother. When young Matthew Simpson broke the news to his widowed mother that he felt called to preach, she exclaimed with tears of joy: "Oh, my son, I have prayed for this hour ever since you were born. At that time I dedicated you to the ministry."

How our hearts are warmed as we cherish memories of yesteryear. The day was spent, the chores of the home were finished, so Mother gathered her children preparatory to sending them off to slumberland. The Word of God and a Bible-hero storybook was our delight, as we anxiously gave attention to the faithful reading. I little realized that that which was our delight then was destined of God to become the warp and woof of our character in later life. It must have been, as she ministered, she prayed: "Lord, make it real to their hearts and lives; grant they might set their affections on things above." And God heard.

Any honors given or successes enjoyed on the part of any, is only and always because of mother. When Garfield was inaugurated, he refused to accept congratulations and handclasps from anybody until he had publicly kissed his mother and remarked, "I owe it all to you, Mother."

This reward, the reward of wholly dedicated motherhood, we are sure, has been experienced by many, and will be experienced by others.

PROBLEMS OF AN ARGENTINE MOTHER

BY MRS. RICARDO WAGNER
HUINCA RENANCO, ARGENTINA

Mothers in Argentina, like mothers in all the nations of the world, face many problems in the rearing of their families. Some of these problems are universal, while others result from conditions and customs existing in this country. We will try to consider a few which differ somewhat from those with which mothers in the United States have to deal.

One problem which many mothers in this land have to face is poverty. There are many more poor people here than in the States, and more in some sections than in others. Reactions to this condition vary widely, depending on the individual, but for simplicity we can divide mothers of poor families into two classes. There are those who abandon themselves to their lot in life without any ambition to do anything to change it. The fact that their families, often more than ten in number, have to live in one or two small rooms does not harass them (and there's always room for one more), nor do they ever seem to be hurried and fretful about getting their work done on time. Such a passive attitude toward life may reduce considerably the problem of poverty from the mother's standpoint, but it does not tend to contribute a stable element to society in general or to our mission work in particular.

There are, however, poor mothers who are continually struggling to improve their living conditions and who are really concerned about the physical comfort and the development of their children. For these there are many daily problems and plenty of hard work. The Christian mothers in this class often find it difficult to keep their families in clothing sufficiently presentable to be able to attend services, and yet many of them are surprisingly faithful.

Mothers on every level of the social scale confront a major problem when their chlidren become of school age. This is a problem which has many angles and degrees of seriousness as it involves the school system itself, the supervisors, the teacher and her capability, temperament, and moral standard; the child and his physical and mental ability, temperament, and early discipline; plus the cooperation of the home and its reactions to routine and special situations.

Probably one of the first questions that comes to the mind of a mother in the U. S. when considering sending her child to school is, "What shall he wear?" The Argentine mother adds, ". . . under his white uniform?" The white uniforms undoubtedly solve more problems than they create. It is true that one has to either buy or make them expressly for school and that they complicate the weekly laundry problem tremendously, but they are a wonderful protection for other clothing. Since schoolrooms in this country are not usually heated, children must go warmly dressed, and it is obviously more advantageous to put the less washable woolens under a uniform and thus protect them from the inevitable soil of playground and schoolroom, including those horrid and ever-present inkspots!

Uniforms also go a long way in putting children from both poor and rich homes on an equal basis. The child who is obliged to wear rags and tatters under his uniform to school is not so conspicuously different from the one who wears expensive clothing. So in this way the uniform reduces to a minimum a problem which would otherwise remain unsolved for a multitude of mothers.

The physical well-being of the child is considered the mother's responsibility rather than the school's. Very little attention is paid to such things as correct posture, difficulties resulting from poor eyesight, etc. If a child comes to school, he is allowed to stay even though he may be ill, so there are frequent epidemics of children's diseases. In recent years some steps have been taken to prevent serious epidemics. Most schools require children to be vaccinated for smallpox, and if cases of diphtheria or typhoid break out in a locality, the parents are advised to have their children immunized.

The school system in Argentina doesn't allow for any studying to be done at school. Children go to school (half a day) to recite their lessons, do exercises, and receive instructions from their teachers, but the actual studying must be done at home. This is where Mother becomes candidate for a schoolteaching position without salary because even the best pupils need vigilance, encouragement, and some help during their study hours if they are to do satisfactory work. It is easy to understand how complicated things become in cases where the child is retarded, lazy, or rebellious; the teacher is incapable, impatient, and/or overly exacting; or the mother is illiterate or too busy to help her child.

In conclusion, we wish to at least mention a youth problem which ought to concern Christian mothers more. The social setup of the country is such that it is very difficult for young folks to participate in sports, develop musical talent, or even satisfy (where congregations are very small) the craving for companionship without compromising their Christian standards. Also, there is only a very limited amount of Christian literature in Spanish which appeals to the young reader. Many mothers, with sorrowing hearts, see their young folks being slowly lured into worldly entertainments and friendships, not realizing that they might do something to prevent it. Their limited resources and accommodations do not inspire them to make the home a center of youth activity. Could these mothers be taught to at least cooperate with the church in its effort to provide the activity and fellowship which these young folks need? Pray with us for the answer.

Mother's Prayers Avail

BY M. L. MYERS

Pastor, First Brethren Church, Akron, Ohio

Many mothers have persevered in prayer only to meet the sad experience of unanswered prayer. Many have had their faith well nigh eclipsed. Some have grown weary and given up, and have felt it must not be God's will to save their boy or girl. But the true story I relate should lend encouragement to all who are passing through similar experiences.

About five months ago I was happy to have a mother of late years come forward to renew her solemn vows to the Lord. With her she brought a younger daughter, who likewise renewed her pledge. At the same meeting the young daughter's fiance, a fine upright man in his early twenties, accepted Christ. Together, these three began a prayer campaign to win the other members of the family.

For several months nothing spectacular happened. And then, four weeks ago, the Lord began to bare His arm. A younger son, the son's wife, and a 13-year-old granddaughter came forward and were gloriously saved. Two weeks later, three more granddaughters came in tears to make their peace with God. The household had launched out on a campaign of earnest, fervent praying to win the others not yet saved. They reaped rich rewards at the throne of grace.

The following week God was pleased to save three more from the same family. The elder lady's oldest son, the son's wife, and his little girl came in great sincerity to open their hearts to Jesus.

Total the score: TEN precious souls from the same family in just a few months! Do mothers' prayers avail? The Infallible Word of God answers an emphatic yes, and the above true story verifies the Word. Mothers' continue patiently at the throne of grace. Your God is bound to answer. Remember, He is the God of the impossible!

MOTHERS, TURN TO CHRIST

BY EVANGELIST BILL SMITH

We honor the dignity and sanctity of the American woman. Whether women realize it or not, they owe everything to Jesus Christ. Only in Christianity have women been lifted to a true equality with man. In many parts of the world women are still considered almost as beasts of burden. It was Christ who valued womanhood.

Recall woman's position in the ancient pagan world. They were offered as booby prizes for athletic contests in Greece. Women's tombs were even marked with a muzzle, to show that wives should not speak; with a pair of reins, to show that they should be led or driven by their husbands. A whip might have been added to those tombstone markings, for frequently the wife was hardly more than a slave. In Rome a husband could discard his wife at will; legally he held the power of life and death over her.

Into this reign of unspeakable misery, indescribable lust, came Christ, and through Him motherhood was elevated to its heights. He might have entered the world as one of His prophets had left it—on a chariot of fire. He might have descended, as He later ascended, by a spectacular miracle of divine power. Instead, He, the mighty God, was born of the Virgin Mary. What an honor to motherhood!

The Bible is full of stories of women of God who have contributed to making this world a better place in which to live and ultimately to advance the kingdom of God. A royal list of women is emblazed in Holy Scripture: Ruth, Deborah, Mary, Martha, Mary Magdalene, Lydia, Dorcas, Phebe, Priscilla, Lois, and Eunice. There are scores of others that we could mention who have been followers of God.

If we had more Christian mothers we would have less delinquency, less immorality, less ungodliness, and fewer broken homes. Every mother owes it to her children to accept Christ as her personal Saviour, that she might be the influence for good in the lives of those whom Christ has graciously given to her. The influence of a mother in her home upon the lives of her children cannot be measured.

One of the most difficult jobs in the world is to bring up a family in the nurture and admonition of the Lord during these terrible days in which we live. With the magazines filled with their filthy literature, with immoral conditions in high schools across the nation, and with a thousand temptations that the last generation never knew, it is only by the grace of God these days that a child grows up in the fear of God. Mothers must spend much time on their knees in prayer.

Too many women have too much leisure time for their own good. They have time for criticism, gossip, fault-finding, and complaining. Then there are other women who have too little time for the real things of life. They are too busy flitting about doing this and that. They have great activity and great doing, but they lack time to cultivate their souls so that in turn they may cultivate their children.

Mothers, have you done your best to lead your sons and daughters to know Jesus Christ?

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Pray for the restoration to strength for Mrs. Rose Foster, Miss Elizabeth Tyson, and a number of others who have had health problems in recent weeks and months.

2. Pray for the many missionaries who are preparing for furlough —the Marshalls expecting to leave Argentina in May; Miss Kent, Miss Mishler, and the Dunnings to leave Africa in June; and the Fogles to leave France in July.

3. Pray for the completion of the portable tabernacle in France, and that during the summer months it may be very effectively used for evangelization in the Lyon area.

4. Pray for the Bible institutes which we sponsor or with which we are cooperating. Pray especially for a moving in the hearts of the young people in the various fields to cause them to take this training.

5. Pray for our Christian day schools in Brazil and in Africa, and those under consideration in some of our other fields.

6. Pray for the early completion and the effective use of a large printing of first-, second-, and third-grade books now being prepared for our work in Africa.

7. Pray for wisdom in the choosing of specialized equipment for the printing and production of gospel literature in our various fields.

8. Pray for Brethren Miller and Zielasko as they return from the great Youth for Christ Congress in Sao Paulo, Brazil, and begin to apply the many valuable lessons learned.

9. Pray for our foreign-mission staff as with the coming of Rev. Clyde K. Landrum we undertake greater things for Christ in foreign missions.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Praise the Lord for the growing Sunday school at Denver, and pray for the immediate need of born-again consecrated teachers.

2. Pray for the vacation Bible school and Bible camp plans at Clayhole, Ky., and also for transportation which is so important in this mission point.

3. Pray for the James Knepper family as they join the Brethren Construction family. Pray for an early completion of the Goshen, Ind., church, that a number of other new churches may be started yet this year.

4. Pray for wisdom in selecting contractors for churches in Seattle, Johnstown, and Fort Lauderdale, where plans have been completed, but the Brethren Construction Company cannot possibly build because of a full program.

5. Pray for the selection of a proper church location in Davenport, Iowa.

6. Pray for the financial need of each church where assistance has been cut, due to the drop in last year's home-mission offering, and pray for at least $22,000 additional to come in throughout the year in order to end the year without a deficit.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Praise God for His provision from month to month, and pray for the finances through the summer.

2. Pray that the graduation exercises may be a blessing and testimony to all who attend.

3. Pray that the Lord may lead each senior in his future ministry.

4. Pray that many Brethren high-school seniors may be led to Grace College.

5. Pray for wisdom and guidance in the planning of a program of expansion.

6. Pray for Dr. Hoyt and Prof. Rea as they spend the summer in the Holy Land.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE—

1. Praise the Lord for a new Crusade worker, Mr. Truymond Haddix.

2. Praise the Lord for good meetings with many decisions in recent months.

3. Pray for meetings in Osceola, Ind., and Lansing, Mich.

4. Pray for funds to care for Crusade needs.

WMC—

(Supplied by the Iowa District.)

1. Pray that more WMC councils may be started in our foreign fields, and that these women may get a new vision of service.

2. Pray a special blessing upon the two missionaries which WMC is supporting this year, Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Myers.

3. Remember to pray that our special offering this quarter will go over the top (for a missionary residence in Brazil).

SMM—

1. Pray that the girls may be led into a deeper spiritual life through the study of Colossians.

2. Pray for the national officers and those who are planning the program for next year.

BYF—

1. Pray for the vacation Bible school programs in every church, that they may be effective in training our young people and in winning souls.

2. Pray for the plans being made for summer camp work in each district and for the national work as well.

3. Pray that our teen-agers may develop leadership and initiative in the Lord's work.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

1. Pray for the material being produced on the new offset press, that the Lord will use this as a means of spreading His message.

2. Pray for the architect as the plans are drawn for the new Herald Building, that the work might be completed rapidly.

3. Pray that the proper source might be contacted for a loan with which to construct this new denominational office building.

DAILY LIVING FOR THE LORD

By MRS. LOREE SICKEL

There is no doubt that if every Christian were to live each day as to the Lord, there would be little need for preaching and evangelizing, for the beauty of Christ in their lives would be sufficient to attract souls to Him. How sad it is that there is so much Christian profession that is little more than pretense; so many living for self; so many just hanging on. They bear His name but do not manifest His holy character in their daily living. They "seek their own, not the things of Jesus Christ."

A missionary received this testimony from the people among whom he labored: "There's a sense of God where you are." That was because he sought daily to live for the Lord, avoiding what Christ would not be and seeking always to be what He would be.

"For me 'twas not the truth you taught,
To you so clear, to me so dim:
But when you came to me you brought
A sense of Him.
And from your eyes He beckons me,
And from your heart His love is shed,
Till I lose sight of you and see
The Christ instead."

—Evangelical Christian.

Do those among whom we live and work have a sense of Him? They should. It is the acid test of whether or not we are living daily for Christ.

How difficult it is to realize that in the daily round and drudgery of life we can live for the Lord as truly as the one who occupies a place of prominence in His vineyard. God has a special ministry for each one of us, and we shall find in our daily lot— in the pots and pans, in the quarrels of the children, in the contacts with our neighbors—the opportunity for fulfillment. Perhaps we are sighing for a place of larger service. We should profit by the experience of the landowner who sold his property in order to go in search of diamonds. His life was spent in vain. But the man who purchased his property found it full of diamonds. Right where we are in the daily round of life, we will find our opportunity for living for Him. One who has exerted a greater influence for Christ over our Argentine young people than any other single person is a mother of seven children who for a long period of time was an invalid. Of her, one of our young people could say: "Her home has been a haven for all of us, the young people of the churches, and her life a testimony that has drawn us closer to Christ." She has found a fruitful field of service in the midst of home duties.

The secret of such a life centers wholly in the Lord himself. Christ is in the Christian not only as the source of life but as the resource for living that life daily. Christ gave us the illustration of this wonderful truth—the vine and the branches. In speaking of himself as "the true vine" and the disciples as the "branches" He signifies that there is a very vital union between himself and them. Moreover He is the one who is the essence of their spiritual life and fruitfulness, for it is only through Him that these can be possessed and produced. "He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing" (John 15:5). Just as the life and goodness of the vine flows naturally into the branch which abides in it, so the divine life of love, grace, and strength, which are in Christ, become the possessions of those who dwell in Him.

To live in such a close, intimate union with Christ is not easy. Sometimes we realize in a very vivid manner the presence of Christ within, and we enjoy sweet fellowship and victory throughout the entire day, but perhaps most of us will have to confess that such seasons are all too rare. We begin the day with prayer, determined not to take our eyes from Him for a moment, but with the pressure of duties—sometimes very trying ones—interruptions, difficult problems, we forget Him. Then it is easy to yield to the temptations to irritability, hard thoughts, and sometimes unkind words.

Every Christian, whether layman or minister, housewife or missionary, has need of drawing daily and hourly upon Christ, of living in utter dependence upon Him. Many folks seem to think that when a man or woman leaves the shores of this land to give themselves to missionary work that every problem is solved, the way made absolutely smooth, and all temptations removed. But one does not become a saint by crossing the ocean or a missionary by leaving home. And the attacks of the enemy of our souls are very real out there where he has held undisputed sway for so long. The missionary must frequently face disappointments, misunderstandings, difficult days when it seems impossible to go through with the daily routine. There are other times when he has labored faithfully and can see no fruits. The Christian he was sure had come into a vital experience with Christ slips back into sin. Perhaps he is placed with several other missionaries who are very human, even as he. There may be clashes of opinion or of personality and the natural tendency to see the mote in the other's eye. We have the will to do, but how is the question.

We realize that in Christ there is all that we need. But in spite of that confidence in our hearts we fail to lay hold upon it. We fail to "abide." In words of the Apostle Paul in Galatians 2:20 we find four essentials for daily living for Him that makes such a life both practical and workable.

1. Reckon yourself dead. "I have been crucified with Christ." He took our flesh and blood that he might nail it to the cross; it is just as though we ourselves had hung there. What kind of a death was this? Again the apostle gives us the explanation. "Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not serve sin" (Rom. 6:6). "Likewise reckon ye also yourselves to be DEAD indeed unto sin, but ALIVE unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 6:11). We are not to strive to make it so, but reckon it is so.

2. Know of a certainty that Christ lives in you. "Nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." What an amazing thing! The One who created all things lives in me! And He lives there today and every day. There cannot be defeat, or failure, lack of joy or peace or love, if ye know His presence as a daily practical fact. We should cultivate the consciousness of His presence. We should invite Him to take over, adjusting our way of living to His presence. One of the most subtle temptations that comes to Christian worker and layman alike is the criticism of fellow workers or believers. The Spirit of Jesus Christ indwelling us is the Spirit of love and the resource for getting along with others, especially with those nearest to us, for loving the unlovely, for giving others the benefit of a doubt, for not listening to or retailing the faults and failures of others, for withholding criticism. Let us invite Him to take over.

3. Yield to His control. "Yet not I." "Yield yourselves unto God as those who are alive from the dead."

4. Lean upon His faithfulness. "Christ liveth in me." "For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do his good pleasure." Not by striving but by resting on the faithful One. Not I, with my failures, but Christ with His limitless resources. He is all I lack and all that I need. His faithfulness in me. What a resource! There is not a part of my life, not a failing, nor a tendency, nor anything unbecoming to a Christian but what Christ's faithfulness corrects and covers it all. Any failure in our daily living is simply the failure to let Him live out His faithfulness in us.

The great need today is for men to know God, whom to know aright is life eternal. May those whose lives we touch see and know Christ in our daily lives.

IN THE UNITED STATES—

Michael Marshall.....July 12, 1951
c/o Merritt Marshall, New Vienna, Ohio.

A letter from Mrs. Leila Polman, California District WMC president, gives us this very interesting news: "A new WMC has been organized at Phoenix, Ariz. Mrs. Edna McKillen (pastor's wife) is president. They will complete their organization at their first meeting soon. It was our privilege to speak to their women Sunday afternoon and present the projects, objectives, etc., of WMC. Also, after the morning service the new church bulletin board that was provided by funds from the California District WMC was dedicated. It is our regular procedure that when each new mission church is accepted into the district, it receives a gift of $100 from the district WMC." We welcome this new council into our fellowship and look for good reports to come to us from this first Arizona council.

Mrs. Polman also reports that June 2 at California District Conference will be WMC Day. They are making a special drive for attendance at National Conference. California District has a special honor roll of those that read the Bible through in one year.

The secretary from Clayton, Ohio, writes: "We are enjoying God's richest spiritual blessings. Our council is growing and our attendance is good. One of the main highlights of the last several months was at the January meeting when our prayer chairman called for testimonies of "What the WMC Means to Me." It thrilled my soul to hear the fine testimonies and how the women are growing in grace."

The WMC at Beaver City, Nebr., reports that they have had great blessing from fellowship with the Sisterhood girls by having "mystery daughters."

"The Following Were Elected . . ."

By Mrs. Kenneth Ashman, National President

One of the most important functions in the WMC is the election of officers. When the minutes come to the statement, "The following were elected," may it be true that we have chosen those on the local, district, and national level who "walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called." It would be well for each one to take her Bible and read Ephesians 4.

The purpose of each officer is one of service—service which we are to perform with humility, with patience, and with love. We are to work together, not as individuals, but as one body, pleasing unto the Lord. What would it be like if our fingers worked independently of each other, or of the hand, or of the arm? ALL would be in quite a state of confusion. But our body does not work that way—there is coordination, the whole body working together as one big unit.

We Christians have one faith, one Saviour, one God and Father—we are one in Him and our goal should be one. We must all work together toward that goal, forgetting self, but using our God-given talents in the most fruitful way possible for the good of all. Some are called to serve in high places, some in more humble places. Should we feel abased, let us remember how the Lord Jesus Christ humbled himself for us. Whatever our calling, be it big or small, let us serve with gladness and willingness, remembering all is for His glory.

All members of the WMC, and especially those whom we elect to be officers, should be born-again believers. They should be well acquainted with the organization and have a passion and zeal for WMC work. They should be constantly studying the Word and "growing in grace." They should be faithful in prayer, in attendance at the services of the local church. They should be missionary in spirit and action. They should assume their duties with wholehearted enthusiasm and desire. All the WMC officers should be members of the Brethren Church.

Being an officer in the WMC is an important calling. Jesus said: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit." In a special way, the Lord calls the officers to make their talents usable in His service. Officers should be elected upon the basis of spirituality, upon the basis of devotion to duties, upon a past record of work completed, upon evidence of knowledge of the organization and the goals, and upon a willingness to care for the duties prescribed. In Romans 12:11 we are told to be "not slothful" in the Lord's work.

The president should be a born-again woman, one well acquainted with WMC, one who is a good executive, one who will serve for the glory of the Lord, and one who will take her duties very seriously, completing each detail throughout the year, being zealous about the work of WMC.

The vice president should be capable of stepping into the position of the president when need be. She should be a willing substitute, one who will work in harmony with her superior officer. She must often do the less glamorous work of the council and do it cheerfully.

The secretary should be a woman who has time for detail work, the keeping of accurate minutes, and the organization of supplies and information. She should be one who is interested in reporting district and national movements. She must be consecrated, accepting her work as a serious part of the Lord's business, as well as prompt in caring for her duties.

The treasurer has a very important work to perform. She should be accurate in her records, careful in her handling of the money, and diligent in the expenditure thereof. There are several funds usually kept in WMC work. Therefore, she must be very conscientious in every detail of her work. She should be a systematic person, banking the funds promptly, expending the funds by check, and keeping receipts of money expended.

The prayer chairman has a vital part in the planning of the local program. She should get all materials promptly, distribute the same to all members, and encourage personal and public devotional living and prayer.

In truth, all the officers are highly called. There should be the ability and desire to get along well with each other. Loving cooperation should mark each procedure. Prayerful preparation will be needed on the part of each one to assure a successful council. Thoroughness, carefulness, and diligence should be characteristics sought in our officers. Cheerfulness is a great help. The complainer, murmurer, and faultfinder should never be called into a position of leadership. Surely, a new, inexperienced member should not be called into an official capacity until well grounded.

When elections have been completed and new officers have been installed, the retiring officers should turn over all materials, books, and instructions to their successors at once. The installation service should always be a high point spiritually, with a great deal of emphasis being placed upon the full consecration of both the officers and the members.

Prayerfully, carefully, and sincerely study your WMC group and allow the Holy Spirit to direct you in your choices at this next election. You'll be satisfied that you have chosen the best, the Lord will be pleased that the faithful ones have been honored, and your WMC will prove to be a thriving organization of fruitfulness and blessing to all.

Who's Who for May

MRS. HAROLD DUNNING

Marguerite Edna Gribble Dunning was born October 29, 1915, in Chicago, Ill., the only child of James S. and Dr. Florence Gribble, pioneer Brethren missionaries in French Equatorial Africa. Marguerite, with her parents, Miss Estella Myers, and Miss Mae Snyder, was a member of that original Brethren party which sailed from New Orleans on January 7, 1918, and went through many of those experiences so vividly described in Dr. Gribble's books, "Undaunted Hope" and "Stranger Than Fiction."

In 1921 Marguerite came back to this country with her mother. When Dr. Gribble returned to Africa the next year, Marguerite remained with Mr. and Mrs. John Weed in Sunnyside, Wash., where she made her home for a number of years. In 1923 Marguerite's father went on to his heavenly home, and her mother continued her labors in the field of Africa until her death in 1942.

In 1927-28 Marguerite spent a year in France with her mother, studying in French schools while there. She had felt the call to the mission field from early childhood, and after her graduation from high school in Sunnyside, she went to Moody Bible Institute, where she took a three-year course. It was at Moody that she met Harold Dunning, of Hawthorne, N. J., who became her husband on June 30, 1937. They spent the next three years studying at Grace Theological Seminary.

The Dunnings had set their eyes toward Africa, but encountered many difficulties because World War II was then in progress. They finally sailed from Port Tampa, Fla., on December 27, 1940, arriving at Matadi, Belgian Congo, some weeks later. It was Dr. Gribble's "crowning joy" when her own daughter and her husband arrived to take up their missionary duties in the field of Africa.

Marguerite and Harold have three daughters—Marguerite Ruth, whose arrival on November 1, 1941, brought great joy to her Grandmother Gribble; Verna Marie, born March 10, 1945; and Alberta Mae, born May 11, 1949. The Dunning family, having completed a third term on the mission field, is due to arrive on furlough in this country in July.—Marcia Lowe.

REV. LESTER W. KENNEDY

Lester Washington Kennedy, the elder son of Rev. and Mrs. Lester W. Kennedy, early Brethren missionaries to French Equatorial Africa, was born in that mission field, at Bassai Station, on July 4, 1923. The parents returned to the field following their first furlough, leaving three-year-old Lester and his brother, Paul, to make their home with Mrs. Kennedy's sister, Miss Louise Schwab, in Pennsylvania. It was during that second term in Africa that Lester's father, yet a young missionary, departed to be with the Lord in November 1931. His mother has continued to serve the Lord in Africa.

When Lester was about six years old he accepted Christ as his Saviour at a revival service, and a few years later publicly made known his desire to serve the Lord as a missionary. His years of education were planned with this purpose in mind. After high-school graduation he took his college work at Juniata College, Bob Jones College, and then Taylor University, where he graduated with an A. B. degree in 1948. Following this he entered Grace Theological Seminary.

Lester's marriage to Miss Lois Hall of Boones Mill, Va., took place on June 16, 1950. They spent the summer of 1951 studying at the Wycliffe School of Linguistics at Norman, Okla. During his last year in seminary, Lester also acted as director of physical education for the school. He graduated with a B. D. degree.

In August of 1952, just a few short months after their graduation from seminary, Lester and Lois sailed for France, where they spent some time in language study at Paris. In the summer of 1953 they arrived at the destination which had been their goal for so long a time—French Equatorial Africa—where they are now serving as missionaries. Their first child, a daughter, Judith Lynn, joined their family in Paris, France, on March 16, 1953, and a little son, Lester Washington III, just arrived in Africa on April 18, 1955.—Marcia Lowe.

A WORD FROM MRS. FOSTER

Dear members of our WMC and other sisters in the Lord who have so faithfully remembered me in prayer and with cards and gifts.

Will you please accept this "Thank you" as a reply? It is impossible for me to reply in writing. But I do want each one of you to know how very much you have done for me in remembering me in the way you have.

Thank you again one and all. May the Lord's richest blessings rest upon you all.

Rose A. Foster.

TOWARD MORE EFFECTIVE HELP TO THE NAVAHO SCHOOL

Few projects in the history of WMC have met with as wholehearted, enthusiastic response as the mission school among the Navahos. Our women have taken those little neglected Navaho tots into their hearts and supplied everything from the fine schoolbuilding itself to food and clothing for the children. This interest is commendable and deeply appreciated by the mission staff. At Christmas season almost every council felt the urge to include the Navahos in their distribution of Christmas cheer. The result was such an overwhelming avalanche of Christmas boxes that the missionaries were fairly worn out unpacking them.

This fact came to the attention of the national WMC officers and we wondered if some plan could not be presented to our WMC members whereby this "Christmas cheer" could be spread out over the entire year. There is a saturation point in a small school such as ours beyond which toys and candy lose their appeal even for tots like the Navahos who have had so little. We rather imagine that the little girls' dolls take quite a "beating" in that primitive land and that any of the children would prefer one new doll or toy automobile every three or four months than to receive three or four at Christmastime.

Consequently, your national board would like to suggest that the district project chairmen work with the national project chairman in formulating a plan whereby the councils of each district would be responsible for sending their gifts in a different month of the year. Each district chairman could then decide with her local councils what part each council should have in the gift of the district. One or two councils could supply toys and games, others dried fruit, others vitamins, others toilet articles, etc. These different categories could rotate from year to year within the district to add variety to the local council packing. It is rather a pity to have too many toys when their little bodies are crying out for the foods and medicines that would prepare them for the struggle against the ravages of disease.

Before presenting this matter to the WMC, our national project chairman wrote to the missionaries to get their reaction to the idea. Mrs. Adams' letter, in part, follows:

"Dear Mrs. Taber,

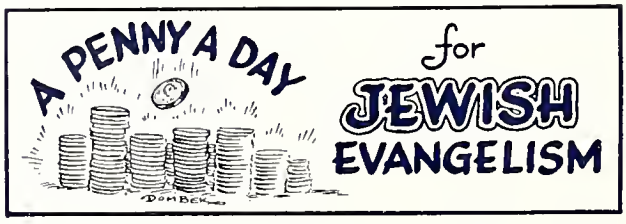
"Your letter arrived three days ago. I must be sure this gets into the mail today. We all have been discussing the ideas for the Christmas gifts, and have decided your suggestion that the different districts respond to different project such as vitamin, fruit, candy, and toys, is the best idea. Indeed, it is really a huge task when it all arrives at Christmastime or as it did this year, after Christmas. Perhaps you know best as to which district should do the most or what. The California District is large, so could handle more. The district we are in has few churches, and the response is thus smaller. The need for fruit and vitamins is very important. It takes a long period of time to build these children up. They also love fruit, dates, nuts of any kind. Nuts are put on their plates and into cakes and cookies, so they all enjoy them for a long time. Candy they all enjoy, but their teeth are poor, so nuts, raisins, dates are really appreciated. But, of course, some candy is appreciated at Christmas. The older girls like socks, panties, simple blouses and skirts that can be made cheaply. Socks, handkerchiefs (red and blue), are liked by boys, group games and individual games are nice. And, of course, dolls are always welcome. Toothpaste, combs, shoestrings are always needed (toothpaste especially).

"Your idea to have the different districts send the gifts all during the year is a fine idea, Mrs. Taber. Could you go ahead on this and announce it, so the WMC women will be sure not to miss it?

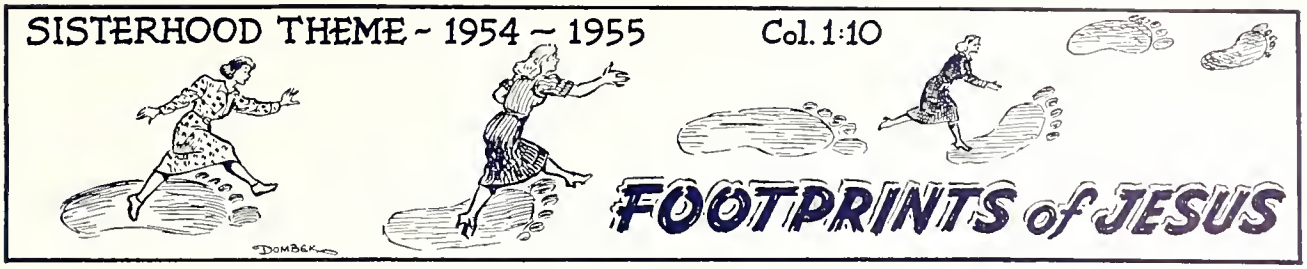
"Love in Him,

"Mrs. Joan Adams."

Since a plan such as this is the express wish of the missionaries and will result in a wiser use of the Lord's money by providing the articles really needed in the school, we suggest that all district chairmen contact Mrs. Taber immediately to work out further details to pass on to the local councils.



OUR NATIONAL PRESIDENT HONORED



Mrs. Kenneth Ashman (left) and Mrs. C. W. Sprowls

The ladies of the Northern Ohio District took advantage of the recent district conference to honor our national president at the conference at Wooster, Ohio.

A lovely tea and a shower of beautiful gifts testified to the great love the women of her own district have for our president and expressed their sincere appreciation for her deep consecration and untiring service.

BOULEVARD STOP

(COLOSSIANS 3:9)

By AVA SCHNITTJER

MARY: I wonder why people do lie. Actually it seems rather foolish when you think about it.

LOUISE: Christ said, "I am the truth." So a lie must be something against the Lord, as well as against one another.

ELLEN: I think truth is the foundation for everything. It's like a solid rock, which is stable and dependable. You can stand on it, knowing it won't slip out from under you or let you down.

ALICE: A lie makes me feel miserable. I told sort of a lie—well, it was just a little one—to my piano teacher about why I didn't have my lesson; it didn't seem very important, but afterwards I felt—soiled; I didn't want to look straight at her, and I didn't feel much like staying and visiting with her.

ELLEN: She probably knew you told a lie just by the way you acted.

MARY: It must be true that the things you think about show on your face. I found something in a book that seemed to fit our lesson so well that I brought it to read: "Truth beautifies the wearer. It sits like a royal diadem upon the head of all who possess it. Nothing so beautifies the face as a noble heart and a clear conscience. One whose motives are all pure, and who has spoken the truth can look the world in the face without flinching. The light of honor and sincerity give to the homeliest face a beauty that is becoming."

LOUISE: First lesson in "How To Be Beautiful": Always tell the truth! Seriously, though, there is no true beauty that doesn't include beauty of character.

ALICE: Since this is true, I wonder why people do lie.

ELLEN: Sometimes I think cowardice causes people to lie. A girl may make a mistake or a blunder, and then she is afraid to face the consequences, so she tells a lie to cover up the deed.

JANE: Even so, it's better to tell the truth even if you get punished.

ALICE: There is another kind of lie that is worse than the cowardly one.

JANE: What is that?

ALICE: A girl at school deliberately told a lie about another girl to hurt her because she was jealous of her. My mother said that kind of lie is about the same as murder.

ELLEN: Oh, not murder!

ALICE: Yes; because there's the same evil motive in the heart.

ELLEN: That is a terrible kind of lie.

MARY: I know another kind of lie that looks terribly silly.

LOUISE: I didn't realize there were so many kinds of lies. One shows cowardice, another murderous intent, and now, one is silly. Explain it.

MARY: I mean the one where a girl pretends to be richer, or finer, or to be something that she isn't. One girl I know is always trying to be with someone who is rich, and she just can't speak or be friendly with someone common.

LOUISE: We agree that that looks silly.

JANE: Some lies indicate thoughtlessness. Have you ever had someone tell you she'd meet you at a certain time and she didn't show up? And you found out later that something else came up that she wanted to do more, so she just did it without letting you know.

ELLEN: I think a promise is a promise no matter whom you make it to, and you should keep it. Not to keep such a promise is stealing as well as lying—you're stealing another person's time.

LOUISE: There's one more I'd like to mention. It bothers me to hear someone tell untruths to little children in order to frighten them into being good.

MARY: I'm sure that must hurt the child.

ALICE: We've said lies were cowardly, murderous, silly, thoughtless, and—shall we say—warping. In John 8:44 we read: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it." And in the next verse: "And because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not."

ELLEN: There is Satan, the liar, and there is Christ, the Truth. Our verse says: "Lie not one to another, seeing ye have put off the old man with his deeds."

LOUISE: Of course. If you say you are a Christian and you lie, you are saying you belong to Christ and acting as if you are Satan's child.

JANE: And when you come to that broad way that leads to destruction, Christian, please notice the sign: BOULEVARD STOP.

MARY: If the Spirit of Christ dwells in us, and we are really yielded to Him, He won't let us lie. The best advice for any girl is always to speak the truth from the heart. If we know in our heart we have been true, haven't been false witnesses, nor spoken deceitfully, we can face the whole world courageously.

HISTORY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH—X

By REV. GERALD POLMAN

In the "Handbook of Missionary Facts," which has been published by the Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church, we find many interesting events recorded. I would suggest that anyone interested in the work of our Foreign Missionary Society from its beginning until 1942 get the handbook and read it completely. Here are a few items of interest which followed the organization of the Foreign Missionary Society (1900) and the opening of the first works in foreign lands (Persia and Canada by 1907).

The fields of Persia and Canada were later closed, but the third field—Argentina, South America—is a thriving field today. In 1909 Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Yoder went to Rio Cuarto, Argentina. At present we have 18 missionaries to Argentina. In 1952 our missionaries began working in the third largest city in the Western Hemisphere—Buenos Aires, Argentina.

It wasn't until 10 years later that the mission field of Africa was approved. The missionaries who left in January 1918 for French Equatorial Africa were Mr. and Mrs. James S. Gribble, Miss Estella Myers, and Miss Mae Snyder. For a complete record of the thrilling story of the events which led to the founding of our African work read the book "Undaunted Hope," by Dr. Florence Gribble, wife of the pioneer missionary. The first years were marked by a period of long waiting and the death of several of the missionaries. James S. Gribble was only permitted a little over two years of work in our new mission field of French Equatorial Africa before his untimely death, but a strong work was established. It has been strengthened through the years until at the present time there are 49 missionaries, doctors and nurses. A strong African church has been established with a number of native pastors and evangelists.

Over 20 years passed before the Brethren sent Rev. and Mrs. J. Keith Altig to Brazil in 1949 to begin a missionary work at the mouth of the Amazon River. At present, the Altigs are not serving as missionaries to Brazil, but there are three other missionary couples located in two different cities. These cities are across the Amazon from each other, but remember that the river is 200 miles wide at this point.

Two missionary families, the Walter Haags and the Roy Howards, began the Brethren missionary work in Mexico in the spring of 1951. A total of seven missionaries are working in Mexico now. Because of government financial requirements, all of these missionaries live in the United States in the border towns at the present time. Only Mexican-born citizens may pastor churches in Mexico, so our missionaries are concentrating on training the natives in schools to reach their own people.

In the fall of 1951 the Brethren Foreign Missionary Society opened still another field. Rev. and Mrs. Fred Fogle went to France. It is necessary for all of our African missionaries to take training in France, and so even as they learn the French language they can assist in our French mission which has been established in Lyon, France.

The newest foreign-mission work in Hawaii has an interesting beginning in that it was started by a serviceman, T/Sgt. and Mrs. Edwin J. Jones, who gathered a group together for Bible study. When it was necessary for the Jones family to leave Hawaii, Rev. and Mrs. Foster Tresise went to take over on a self-supporting basis in May of 1953. The work is still carried on by the Tresises, who earn their own support and pastor the church.

Let us each one be faithful in praying for these fields that the Lord has given to the Brethren Church.

1. IMPORTANT DEADLINE—Yes; the deadline for reporting the memorization of Colossians to the national general secretary is June 10. Remember that the entire book must be said at one time to both the pastor and the patroness. There's still time left, so keep working.

2. JULY 15—Hope you haven't forgotten this big date. The free-will offering for the general fund, and all of the offerings for the national project should be sent in to the national treasurer by this date. Also, all bandages should be sent to the DISTRICT bandage secretary by this time. One more thing—statistical blanks are to be sent to the DISTRICT secretary and the NATIONAL president by July 15.

3. EVERY DISTRICT AN HONOR DISTRICT—Yes; that's our goal this year. Not only would it thrill our hearts, but even more so, the heart of our Lord Jesus if this were accomplished. Don't forget that you should have a district project, and also a unique display to be presented at National Conference.

4. PORTLAND, HERE WE COME! What about your district president—is she going? One of your goals is to help her come to the early board meetings, and we need her desperately. The minimum amount is $10, but if you live in the East, it's a long, long way to Portland, Oreg. See if you can double this amount for your president.

PROGRAM GUIDE FOR JUNE

THEME SONG—Sing "Footprints of Jesus," followed by an opening prayer.

THE CHRISTIAN'S ROADMAP—Read Philippians 3: 8-21. Comments on this portion by the patroness or a strong Christian may prove helpful to all.

HEAVENLY SUNSHINE—Sing choruses and favorite hymns.

PRAYER CIRCLE—"The Sisterhood that prays together stays together."

SPIRITUAL FOOD—Seniors, "Boulevard Stop." Middlers, "Love as He Loves."

SPECIAL MUSIC—Don't forget about the goal, to take part in at least one meeting!

LEARNING THE PAST—Keep your group up to date on the History of the Brethren Church. We urge you to review each time, for this study will doubtless prove helpful in the future.

SMM BENEDICTION.

BUSINESS MEETING.

LOVE AS HE LOVED

By MRS. JAMES DIXON

Our Sisterhood theme for this year is found in Colossians 1:10: "That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God."

This verse is a portion of Paul's prayer for the Colossian church. The rest of the epistle is devoted to showing these Christians how they might walk worthy of the Lord and how to please Him in everything.

We must put all sin out of our lives. We must put on the Lord Jesus Christ if we are to walk worthy of the Lord.

Our verse for study this month is Colossians 3:14.

Our context, Colossians 3:12-14, tells us to put on a heart of compassion, kindness, humbleness, meekness, longsuffering; we are to put up with one another and forgive all who wrong us. We must forgive as completely as the Lord has forgiven us. Now we come to the crowning virtue—love (love is the literal meaning of charity in verse 14).

Love is an attribute of God himself—"God is love." To be able to truly love we must first of all partake of God's love through Jesus Christ (John 3:16).

Do you know how much God loves you? He was willing to give His only Son to save you. He was willing for Him to be made sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him.

Oh, if we could comprehend the breadth, and length, and depth, and height, if we could know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge; then we would be filled with the fullness of God. We could love as He loved.

There is nothing that better characterizes a Christian than love. I John 4:7-11: "Beloved, let us love another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love. In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins. Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."

I John 4:19-21: "We love him, because he first loved us. If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God love his brother also."

Love is not a lot of sentimentality. It is an earnest concern for the welfare of another. To love means you must be willing to sacrifice and put yourself out for another.

HURRY, HURRY! TIME'S A-WASTIN'

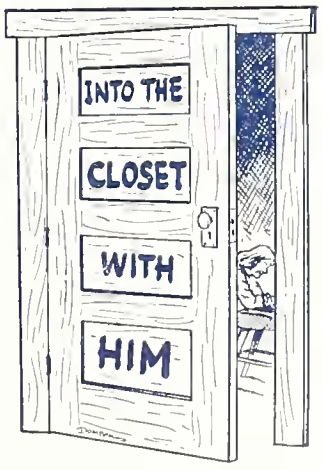
It won't be long until June 10 is here and gone, and before it does, we'd like to see more of you girls memorize the Book of Colossians. You may be saying to yourself that it is too hard to memorize a whole book that long and say it all at once. But you don't know how easy it really is until you sit down and concentrate on it. So far only one girl has memorized it. Certainly some more of you will, won't you? Remember, the Lord will reward you abundantly in spiritual blessings!

Here's the form we'd like you to fill out completely and mail to the general secretary no later than June 10:

I have memorized the Book of Colossians and would like to have the following award: ☐ SMM Sweater*; ☐ $7.50 in Christian supplies from the Brethren Missionary Herald Co.; ☐ $7.50 toward Camp Bethany; ☐ SMM Key Necklace.

Signed

Address



I have heard repeat the Book of Colossians and she knows it well enough to say it at one time. (Not learned verse by verse, or chapter by chapter, but the entire book learned.)

Signed (pastor).

Signed (patroness).

Note: If you have chosen the sweater, give the following measurements so we can get your sweater to you on time: Bust _____; length of arm from shoulder to first joint of first finger _____; height _____.

PRAYER REQUESTS FOR JUNE

Pray for the national officers of SMM, for summer work will soon be facing them. Pray that Myra Joy Conner will have guidance from the Lord for her many duties.

Pray for the writers of next year's topics, that the God will use them in guiding all Sisterhood girls.

Pray that the Lord will lead in the SMM sessions of conference, for we will again be electing officers, and we need help from the Lord as to who He wants for each office.

Pray, not only in Sisterhood, but also in your daily devotions, for our missionaries.

Pray for the district officers, that they will also have guidance for the next year's program.

Pray for all the local Sisterhoods, that the girls in the Brethren Church will show a greater interest in this work, realizing that our aim is to Do God's Will.

The Hollins, Va., council made a recent local project the purchasing of tablecloths for the church.

The Junior WMC at Peru, Ind., helped their church this past year by paying the insurance premium when it came due. One of their interesting social affairs was a "favorite dish" dinner for their families. They also had a shower of baby clothes to be sent to the seminary to be given to wives of needy students.

Alexandria, Va., reports interesting monthly meetings. One of their projects is the sending of extra Sunday-school papers to Hawaii.

In an interesting report of varied activities and projects from Clayton, Ohio, we found this interesting and novel idea. The child evangelism committee handed out children's tracts with the Halloween "trick or treat."

The talents of the Limestone, Tenn., WMC members were used to good advantage during the six months when the church was without a pastor, and the local membership was responsible for the Sunday services.

The WMC at Listie, Pa., had charge of an evening church service with the district president, Mrs. Anthony, as guest speaker. They climaxed the service with a candlelight consecration.

Because the Findlay, Ohio, church has completed a new building, the local WMC saw many needs. They undertook the furnishing of a beautiful nursery, of which they are justly proud. They report many other projects, as well as challenging meetings and devotional programs.

The Junior WMC at Listie, Pa., has been busy. In addition to joining the senior council in projects and services, they have purchased trays for the new church at Reading, Pa.

The Mansfield, Ohio, senior council reports many blessings from the WMC lesson studies. They have sent love gifts to a number of our missionaries.

One of our newer councils, Elkhart, Ind., reports that they have been busy for the Lord. They have a regular monthly visitation program when they give out the Word in the homes of the community.

The North Long Beach, Calif., WMC followed the usual plan of distributing gaily wrapped boxes of home-made cookies and personal items to the old people in two rest homes. This year they took the junior-high Sisterhood girls with them to bring additional cheer to lonely hearts by singing Christmas carols.

Perhaps some of you have not seen your report in the Herald or haven't recognized it as yours. Lack of space has required making many reports brief. Even so, your editor still has quite a stack of letters on file. We appreciate your news reports. KEEP THEM COMING!

MOTHER

What a friend we have in Mother,
Dearest friend we have on earth;
Always working, striving for us.
Who can tell a mother's worth?

How like God she understands us
When we wander far from home,
And, like Him, will ne'er forsake us;
Always she will welcome home.

Oh, how much we owe to Mother,
For her toil down through the years.
And the sleepless nights we've caused her;
For the needless pain and tears.

Let us show our love for Mother
While she's with us here below.
Tell her that you love her dearly
And on her your gifts bestow.

Do not wait till death has claimed her,
Then sing praises of her worth.
Give them while she can enjoy them;
Fill her heart with songs of mirth.

Always treasure your dear mother,
Hold her high above them all;
She's a gem that's oh, so priceless,
Rarest, purest gem of all.

When her hair has turned to silver,
And her frame is bent with care,
You'll recall the love you've shown her,
Did your best while she was here.

Then when Mother's work is ended
And she nears that golden shore,
You'll rejoice in heart in knowing
She'll be waiting at the door.

LOVE AS HE LOVED

There can be no happiness without love. We must love, as God did, even our enemies. "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

"Now abideth faith, hope, charity [love] these three; but the greatest of these is [love]."

Question for the Leader to Think Through

1. Why is love called the "bond of perfectness"?
2. Explain the love of God.
3. How was God's love demonstrated most perfectly?
4. Calvary was the crowning evidence of God's love. What other evidences of God's love are there in the world today.
5. How can we learn to love?
6. How do we demonstrate our love for others?
7. Can you be a Christian and hate anybody? Why?

NEWS BRIEFS—Items of Interest From Our Brethren Churches

Elkhart, Ind.

(See Cover.)

On April 3, ground was broken for the new Grace Brethren Church, located at Mishawaka Road and Clayton Street. The service was originally scheduled for March 27, but any who might remember that date would agree that it was good to postpone the service lest it turn out to be a "cold" service. (A blizzard hit Indiana on Saturday.)

The Lord was gracious, and one week later He sent a beautiful spring day. The cover pictures were taken at this service and show (1) Pastor Lowell Hoyt standing by the pump that will supply water for construction of the building. The purpose of

(3) The finance and building committee of the Elkhart church (l. to r.) Wesley Miller, Robert Schumacher, Willard Secaur, Edward Kluth, Paul Kurtz, John Sternberg, and Pastor Lowell Hoyt. (4) Ministers present for this special service, many of whom had part in the service: Arnold R. Kriegbaum, Lowell Hoyt, Arthur Collins, Herman Hein, Mark Malles, Dr. James Boyer, Ralph Gilbert, Douglas Starks, pastor of the Twin Branch Bible Church, Mishawaka, Ind., and Dr. Paul Bauman. (5) Special music was furnished by Eldon Hoyt and James Mayer, accompanied by Mrs. Lowell Hoyt.

Grafton, W. Va.

Our spring evangelistic service closed on Sunday, April 3. The evangelist was Bro. K. E. Richardson, a servant of the Lord well known and loved among our people as well as by those outside the church.

The Lord blessed us in these services with good attendance. A number never missed a night, thus showing their interest in the good messages which were being given.

The last Sunday evening we baptized five as a result of the meetings. Others will be baptized and received into the church at a later date.

We wish to praise the Lord for the good meetings at which time we were blessed in seeing God work in our midst.—Lee Crist, pastor.

It was a real blessing and privilege to be with Rev. Lee Crist and his fine people again this year for a two-weeks revival which began March 20. They had been holding cottage prayer meetings for some weeks before I arrived. Brother Crist has a little prayer band that meets each Saturday night and most of these were in the prayer room every night, which reminds us of the importance of prayer, as our Lord blessed with many decisions.

Brother Crist is not very well; yet he is always ready to call upon and help his people. We should all pray that his health will be better soon.

We enjoyed having Rev. Emory Shana, a young fellow of 90, with us the first week. His ability to quote from memory the Scripture lesson each evening was a great inspiration and help.—K. E. Richardson, evangelist.

Norwalk, Calif.

The Norwalk Brethren Church was dedicated April 3, 1955, to the glory and service of the triune God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. The members of the church looked forward to this day with great anticipation as they had stepped out on faith to build the church and God has honored this faith by giving them the means and ability to construct the building as owner-builder. Many hours of loving labor have been given in its construction and many problems were settled through prayer.

On December 6, 1953, the congregation held its last public meeting in the old church, and the groundbreaking for the new was held the same date. Church services were then held in a schoolbuilding from this date until October 3, 1954, when the people stepped out on faith and began to worship in a small chapel on their own grounds. Since that day the Lord has blessed in more ways than can be enumerated here.

The building unit covers 7,300 square feet and was erected at a cost of $37,000. Over 1,600 hours of donated labor went into the construction of the edifice. The chapel seats 250 and there are two large rooms for Bible and Christian day schools. Four new rooms are planned and construction will soon be under way.

April 4-10 Dr. Duff-Forbes, president of the Jewish Evangelical Witness, was Bible-conference speaker, assisted by Vere Raley, baritone.

Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and the leadership of Henry Rempel, our pastor, we are expecting a steady growth of the testimony in this fast-growing community.—Mrs. Ray Runyan.

Crusade Team One

The first meeting in California this season was at Fillmore. This is one of the older churches of the district, and it has had some severe blows. Satan has surely done his best to wreck it. However, since Max and Elaine Brenneman have gone there, the situation has changed wonderfully. The Sunday school was down to about 35 in attendance when they arrived on the field. A Sunday recently they had 101. The people have a new spirit of progress, and they are working otward the goal of once more being the real Bible-teaching center of the city. At the rate they are now advancing, that day will not be far off. The meeting we held there helped along some in the victory.

From Fillmore we went to San Diego. This is another church that has received several hard blows. But the members that are left have gotten a vision of rising out of their difficulties and starting a new work on the north edge of town. They are now in the process of selling their present property and buying a new piece of ground—five acres in a new section where they will have limitless possibilities. The present pastor, Archer Baum, and his wife are doing a fine work of unifying the folks and leading them into the new venture. San Diego now has 430,000 inhabitants, and forecasts are that there will be 1,000,000 there by 1964. What greater opportunity could any congregation want than to be caught in such a stream of expansion? In the new location a congregation of several hundred could undoubtedly be built within that time, besides a couple of new Sunday schools in other sections. This is a great field, and during the meetings we tried hard to crystallize the entire program.

The next campaign was held in Chico, Calif., where Brother and Sister Phillip J. Simmons hold forth. This is a fine new work in a very promising field. Many fine Christians of high type are already in the church. Most of them have come to the Brethren Church because of our stand on the great truths of the Scriptures. Growth has been steady since the beginning and the Lord added more during the meetings. The testimonies of converts during the closing service were worth traveling a long way to hear.

Certainly no pastor in our brotherhood could have a finer place in the hearts of the people of the community than the place Brother Simmons holds because of the very fine work he has done with the boys. Over and over again, in home after home, the words of praise and appreciation came spontaneously. That means a lot for the future.

Vernon Harris, pastor at Portland, Oreg., was the very efficient songleader and children's worker in this campaign. I hope that I am permitted to have him with me again in other meetings.

After Chico, we went directly to Ramona, Calif., where Bro. Grant MacDonald is pastor of a very fine congregation. Grant came here from Glendale, where his health failed him. In Ramona, his health has steadily improved, and today he is robust (really robust) again! His church is growing and stands high in the community for the teaching of the Word. The churches of the city met with Brother MacDonald's people for Passion Week services. We had a fine time there. It was my privilege to stay with the MacDonalds and enjoy their novel and beautiful home. Ringed with beautiful mountains, Ramona is truly a

Dayton, Ohio

The history of the First Brethren Church is long and interesting. It was in Dayton that the progressive branch of the Brethren Church was born. The "First Church" has long been a landmark on the west side of Dayton, but physical conditions have made it necessary to relocate the church in this city.

On Resurrection Day a sunrise service and the morning worship service, at which 450 were present, was conducted at the Cornell Heights School, located just two blocks from the location where the new church will be built. Construction is scheduled to be started this summer. A fully organized Sunday school has been held in the Cornell Heights school since last September. William Steffler is pastor.

thrilling beauty spot in America. It is a great place to go to gain health.

Following the meeting in Ramona I took a train for Los Angeles and got there in time to start a meeting Easter Sunday night at Whittier Community Brethren Church. There were 748 in attendance at the Sunday-morning service. Not bad for a five-year-old church, do you think? I covet for every church in our brotherhood a group of devoted laymen such as grace this congregation. —R. Paul Miller, evangelist.

Whittier, Calif.

Four hundred twenty-three in Sunday school yesterday. The need —100 more folding chairs. Eleven classes meeting in the sunshine around the buildings.

Easter Sunday morning featured a combined Sunday-school program and morning church service—time, 9:30 until 11:30; no dismissal until 11:30. The departments were brought in one at a time or, in one case, one grade at a time, performed for parents, and returned to their classroom. The parents had completely filled the auditorium by 9:45. The count—taken about 10 o'clock, although all were present before 9:45, when the program started—was 748. One hundred of them were standing or looking through the windows. We rented 100 chairs that day and all were full. Many who came at 11 for church saw the crowd and never stopped. It took a state highway patrolman to get the cars on the boulevard at the close of the service. The thrill was that all who were present were either regulars or parents, because no one else knew of our service starting at 9:30 except those who were notified by letter of the program. Praise God! — Glenn Miller, Community Brethren Church.

Modesto, Calif.

We praise the Lord for an all-time-high attendance of 147 for Sunday school and 158 for morning worship service on Easter Sunday. We were especially gratified in that the increased number was composed of the residents of our immediate community, many of whom have never made a profession of faith in Christ as personal Saviour. Most of the visitors came as a direct result of a personal call in the home by a Sunday-school teacher or member of the congregation. The previous record was 112.—Raymond W. Thompson, pastor, McHenry Avenue Grace Brethren Church.

Everett, Pa.

On March 27 the Everett Grace Brethren Church witnessed the burning of the church mortgage by the board of trustees. The speaker for the occasion was Rev. Henry Culp, from Altoona, Pa. Homer Lingenfelter is pastor.

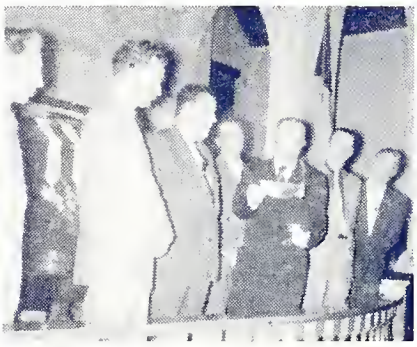
Crusade Team Two

This article of news includes four meetings: Roanoke, Va., Robert Miller, pastor, two weeks; North Buffalo, Pa., Donald Rossman, pastor, one week; Wooster, Ohio, Kenneth Ashman, pastor, two weeks; Ashland, Ohio, Miles Taber, pastor, two weeks.

It was a real pleasure to work with these capable and devoted pastors and their churches in a soul-winning and revivalistic effort. Many dedicated laymen rejoiced our heart by their zeal for the Lord. Hundreds of visits were made by the team in cooperation with the pastors, and God richly honored the personal contacts. Many decisions were made in hospitals, jails, homes, and in the meetings at church.



The team has been well received in all the churches. The spirit of cooperation has been wonderful. Hospitality in many homes was graciously manifested, and we sincerely thank the pastors and people for all the kindness shown to us. The Lord has been faithful. We praise Him and give Him thanks for every blessing.

Team Two is happy to be working under the direction of the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade. We praise the Lord for the vision and love of the laymen who are sponsoring the Crusade. We covet the prayers and financial support of all the Brethren in this labor of love.—Team Two (Bill Byers, Jim Martin, Rev. Archie L. Lynn).

Rittman, Ohio

After coming through an undefeated season of 11 wins and no losses, the Rittman Brethren basketball team came from behind to win the championship of the annual Northern Ohio Brethren Church Basketball Tournament. Starting the tournament with two successive wins over Akron "Ellet" and Canton Brethren, Rittman lost to the Ashland team, sparked by All-Ohio Dick Messner, 67 to 60. This was on Friday, April 1. On Saturday, April 2, in this double-elimination tournament, the Rittman team won successive victories over Canton (67 to 54), Wooster (61 to 40), and in the double-header final, over Ashland (61 to 48 and 49 to 48).

The final game, the second of the day for Ashland (West 10th St.) and the fourth of the day for Rittman, was won in a three-minute overtime by one point. Ashland had the grand opportunity to tie or win the game as Dick Leaf fouled out at the buzzer. But the Ashland player failed to make either foul shot and the score stood at 49 to 48. Hence, Rittman became the 1955 champions and Ashland (without the services of Dick Messner in the final game) the runner-up. The Ashland Brethren reserve team took the reserve championship without question by soundly trouncing a scrub team from Rittman.

Other churches in the tournament were Wooster, Sterling, Canton, Ankenytown, and Akron. Beautiful trophies were presented to the champions, runner-ups, and reserve champions.

Individual medals will be presented to the winners by the pastor, and a dinner is being planned in their honor.

ADVENTURE

By RUTH SAMARIN

COTTON FOR SHOES

One by one Foli picked the fluffy white balls of cotton. Gingerly he placed them in the wide-mouthed basket. This was his cotton—his very own cotton. In other years he had helped in the family garden, but this year he had asked his father to let him have his own garden.

Foli's father was a very wise man. He knew that a cotton garden was a lot of hard work. "What is it that you want that the money from a cotton crop will buy?" he asked Foli.

"I want a pair of shoes," Foli answered shyly. Foli's father was greatly surprised at such an answer. Some of the men in the village had shoes, he thought. He himself had even seen some women at the government post wear shoes in the office. And he had a pair that he wore on Sundays. It may not be such a bad idea at that to want a pair of shoes.

"If you can work hard and do not ask for any help," he said to Foli, "then you can make your own garden."

When the rains had soaked the ground until it was soft and yielding, Foli happily began to clear a patch of ground for his garden. The grass came out easily, but the brush and the rocks clung stubbornly to their earth bed. Foli worked until his hands were full of blisters. At one time he would have thrown down the hoe and given up in disgust, but he saw his father working hard in the garden nearby. Foli felt too ashamed to quit—he was afraid his father might think he was weak as a girl. So he worked on.

Once the ground was cleared, he laid strips of bark down in long rows to guide him when he planted the seed. One day he went with his father to the big cotton shed near his village where a white man gave out cotton seed.

"Why don't we use the seed we saved from last year?" Foli asked his father.

"The white man says he has some seed that will give us better cotton plants," his father replied. And so they planted their seed—father in his garden and Foli in his. Foli carefully put four seeds in each hole. When this was done, he watched the green plants come out of the rain-soaked earth. He hoed the ground and pulled the weeds as he had done before in the family garden.

At night he would hear the grumble of the big hippos as they foraged for food. Foli prayed that they would not find the small green plants in his garden. The months went by and then the cotton was ready to pick. The white man had been right. Each bush was heavy with white fluffy balls of cotton. Everyone agreed that they had never seen such a good cotton crop before.

Cotton marketday dawned bright and hot. Foli ate his morning manioc in quick gulps and then hurried out of the cool hut. With a big heave Foli hoisted his cotton basket from its rack outside the front door of the hut and placed it on his head. Down the road he hurried with the great basket of cotton jogging up and down, up and down, on his head.

At the cotton shed he lined up with the others of his village. When his turn came, a white man weighed his basket and handed him a paper. He saw his cotton dumped with the others in a big pile; then he went to collect his money. Another white man took Foli's paper and handed him 2,000 francs ($12). Foli held the money a long time, looked at it almost unbelievingly before he put it in his pocket. It was the first money he had ever earned!

That evening Foli laid his money out on his mat. He laid aside 200 francs—he wanted to do as his father did, give God His part, a tenth. Next Sunday he would put it in the offering plate at church.

Then he laid aside 1,000 francs—that would be for clothes. There on the mat was 800 francs left of all his money. Eight hundred francs would not buy a pair of shiny black shoes like his father's, thought Foli. But it was enough to buy a pair of white canvas shoes—and he could keep them clean with the white chalky rock from the river.

With a happy smile Foli lay down on his mat to sleep and dream of future years and bigger cotton gardens which would give him money to buy bicycles and other wonderful things.

In Memoriam

J. M. McKEE, 82, died April 25 at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Quinter Neff, near Huntington, Ind. He had been in failing health for two years and seriously ill for one week.

Mr. McKee was born May 17, 1872, near Varey, Ohio, to Samuel and Catherine McKee. He was married to Lora Thomas on September 24, 1893. They moved to North Manchester, Ind., in 1910. He was a farmer most of his active life. He was a member of the Sidney (Ind.) Brethren Church.—John Evan, pastor.

MRS. ELIZABETH FIRESTONE, 75, a faithful member of the First Brethren Church, Uniontown, Pa., since 1934, went to be with the Lord on March 22, 1955. Born in Fayette County, Pa., September 19, 1880, she was a resident of Uniontown and vicinity most of her life. At the time of her death she resided with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Gleason, Chalk Hill, Pa. Services were conducted March 22.—Clyde Landrum, pastor.

MRS. H. M. LICHTY, 94, whose funeral was recently held at the First Brethren Church of Sunnyside, Wash., was born Ida Belle Cook in Pennsylvania on the Mason-Dixon Line, September 26, 1860, during President Lincoln's administration. With her parents she later moved to Ohio, where she met and married Harvey M. Lichty, who held a chair in mathematics in Ashland College. They moved to Sunnyside in 1898. She was the only surviving member of the group of three men and their wives who founded Sunnyside as the Christian Cooperative Colony. See April 23 issue of the Missionary Herald, page 275.—Harold Painter, pastor.

MRS. SADIE ELLEN MILLER, 92, oldest member of First Brethren Church of Inglewood, Calif., slipped into the presence of her Lord February 17, 1955. She was known as "Auntie" and loved by all.

Born on Christmas Day, 1862, in Pennsylvania, she accepted Christ as Saviour at an early age. Surrendering her life to Him, she attended church regularly, and served her Lord faithfully until the time of her death. For many years she held the office of deaconess in the Brethren Church and carried on the work of the home department, visiting the shut-ins.

It was after coming to California that she and Allen Miller were married. This service was solemnized in Washington State and brought into her family Evangelist R. Paul Miller as a stepson.—Glenn O'Neal, pastor.

REV. SYLVESTER LOWMAN, 85, went to be with the Lord Jesus on Thursday, April 28, the result of a heart attack. He had faithfully served the Lord in the Brethren ministry for nearly 40 years, having been ordained to the eldership at the National Conference of 1917 at Winona Lake, Ind. During his long ministry he served as pastor of the Brethren churches at Fillmore, Calif.; Oakville, Ind.; Pleasant Hill, Ohio; Portis, Kans.; Camden, Ohio; and concluded his ministry at Sampleville, Ohio, where he retired from the active ministry several years ago. During his ministry he brought nearly 800 people into the Brethren Church.

By trade, Brother Lowman was a carpenter, which skill he followed until he entered the ministry at the age of 40. Even after entering the ministry, he used his knowledge of building in the erection of churches. He was responsible for the organization of three Brethren churches, one of which was located at Camden, Ohio, where he served as pastor for 15½ years. He started this church with two members, and eight months later there was a membership of 85.

In 1930 Brother Lowman made a four-months tour of Palestine, Egypt, and seven other countries. His wife preceded him in death on October 22, 1952. (See Missionary Herald, Nov. 8, 1952.)

All who knew Brother Lowman would agree that He loved the Lord Jesus dearly, and had a real passion for the souls of men. Funeral services were conducted at Camden, Ohio, on April 30, with the ministers of the Southern Ohio District acting as honorary pallbearers.

Certainly it could be said of our departed friend in Christ, that he fought a good fight, and he kept the faith.—The Editor.

CONCERNING THE TITHE

(Apologies to Shakespeare)

"To tithe or not to tithe, that is the question. Whether it is nobler in a man to gather the church's blessings free and leave the others to foot the bills and spread the gospel tidings, or take one's place and tithe as a Christian, and share the cost. To write—to sign—to tithe—surely to tithe! Ay, that is the test!"—Fifth and Cherry Light.

Why Build Churches?

Occasionally we meet an individual who seriously questions the advisability of building church houses where the children of God congregate in the service of Christ. One such person suggested that much money could be saved and used for missions if we would just meet in small groups in various homes. There would always be hospitable believers who would be happy to open their homes for such assemblies.

On the surface such reasoning may sound perfectly plausible. But it is neither Biblical nor practical. If we cannot find a basis for our practice of building attractive church houses, then we should go out of business. If we can find support in God's Word for this practice, then we have a right to place supreme stress on the need and appeal for the help of God's children.

House of Worship

Above all things God deserves and desires the worship of His children. The First Commandment indicates this. "Thou shalt have no others gods before me" (Exod. 20:3). Other Scriptures emphasize this fact. "For thou shalt worship no other god: for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God" (Exod. 34:14). "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve" (Matt. 4:10). "But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth: for the Father seeketh such to worship him" (John 4:23). It is clear that God above all things desires the worship of His followers.

In Old Testament days this worship was accomplished in the temples and the tabernacle. As the Jews moved from place to place through the wilderness they transported the tabernacle with them. This was God's will and command. Even in New Testament days the temple still stood and Jesus purged that temple, calling it His Father's house and a house of prayer (Matt. 21:12-13). The synagogues built by the Jews where the apostles set forth the grace of Christ, and into which even Jesus entered to minister the truth, prove that God's blessing is on the construction and sanctifying of certain places of worship where He meets His people in a special way.

In all the Scripture there is not a single passage of censure from God for ambition and plans among His children to build houses of worship. Through Prophet Haggai He did severely reprove His chosen people for failing to complete His house. "Is it time for you, O ye, to dwell in your cieled houses, and this house lie waste?" (1:4). He even told them what material to use in building the house and where to secure it. When the Jews failed, God sent a drought upon the land and the hot desert wind dried up their crops and vineyards. When they looked for much, they had little because they failed to finish the house of God.

House of Service

The church building is the Christian's workshop. Most of our united service for Christ finds it source there.

Fellowship in service is encouraged by having a place for planning, working out various programs and ideas. This fellowship in service is strengthening to God's servants. It fulfills Paul's statement in II Corinthians 6:1, where he speaks of "workers together," or fellow workmen. This unity produces strength spiritually and numerically.

In starting and developing new churches the need of a church building is supremely emphasized. Meeting in a home, a hall, a former grocery store, etc., is a poor excuse for a church building adapted for the needs of the congregation and the Sunday school. Often when a new congregation is transplanted from a temporary meeting place into a new church it will double in size in just a few weeks. There are at least two reasons for this. First: the group is able to work more efficiently. Second: the bulding attracts people to attend services when they would not attend in a hall or store building.

Monument to the Grace of God

God lives forever! He needs no memorial. But Brethren home-mission church houses are monuments to His grace. Scores of new church buildings have been constructed over America and many are under construction now because of the help of Brethren people through the Brethren Home Missions Council. Each one of these churches is a place where God and His Word are honored and exalted above all else. Jesus Christ, crucified and risen, is the message from the pulpit by faithful preachers who know God's Word. The church house is built to honor God and His Christ.

No sales or suppers disgrace this Brethren house of prayer and worship. No merchandising is done in God's temple. No bazaars or bingo parties seek the filthy lucre of the world. No smokers are held in Brethren church basements. The house of God is revered as the place where the Lord meets His own in a special way at the stated services and planned programs of the church.

Souls find Christ precious as their Saviour in Brethren churches. The Gospel is the power of God unto salvation to everyone who believes. Its powerful ministry is seen in redeemed souls and the walls of God's house ring with praises because new trophies of grace are won.

The saints of God are edified and grow in grace in Brethren churches. Just a few weeks ago a man said to this editor: "I have learned more about the Bible in this Brethren church in three months than I did in my former church in 17 years." This is not an unusual thing to hear. It is repeated over and over again.

RIVERSIDE BREAKS GROUND FOR NEW CHURCH

Architect's sketch of the new Riverside Brethren Church, Johnstown, Pa.

By Ralph C. Hall, Pastor

The Riverside Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa., broke ground for their new church on Sunday, April 3, 1955. At 2:30 approximately 150 had gathered to take part in the service and hear the ground-breaking message by Rev. Harold H. Etling, national Sunday school director, of Winona Lake, Ind.

The pastor, Ralph C. Hall, led the group singing and Rev. Clair Gartland, of the Pike Brethren Church, gave the invocation. Rev. Lester E. Pifer, assistant field secretary, brought greetings from the Brethren Home Missions Council. The East District ministerium was represented by its vice president, Rev. Victor Rogers, pastor at Jenners, Pa. Dr. W. A. Ogden, from the First Brethren Church, Johnstown, spoke on behalf of the church that gave up members to start the new Riverside church. A male quartet composed of Don Rager, Charles Matula, Boyd Peer, and Pastor Hall provided the special music for the occasion. Rev. Homer Lingenfelter, of Everett, Pa., pronounced the benediction.

Following the message, the building committee, composed of Thomas G. Watkins, Jr., Don K. Rager, Charles E. Matula, Harold W. Hammers, Fred S. Bentz, and Thomas E. Johnson, Pastor Hall, and Joseph P. Wentz each took their turn with the shovel and moved a portion of the dirt. The contractor is to move in within a few days and finish the excavation job started with the ground-breaking ceremony. The church is to be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1955.

A special offering was taken at the service and $425 was received toward the building fund. A local bank has agreed to loan a large portion of the funds needed, and with the help of our local people and the Brethren Home Missions Council, we will be able to finance the entire building program. We praise the Lord for providing the financing for us.

The Riverside Brethren Church was organized on July 15, 1951, by a group of laymen from the First Brethren Church of Johnstown. The group has been meeting in temporary quarters at 721 Liberty Avenue and the new church will be erected within a short distance of this location on the same street.

The new church is to be 38 x 63 feet and of brick construction. It will be the first unit of an L-shaped structure and seat approximately 175 people. A basement will provide a number of the Sunday-school classrooms.

GROUND BROKEN FOR HOME-MISSION CHURCH

Pastor Lester Smitley announces that ground was broken on Sunday, May 1, for the new Grace Brethren Church, Parkersburg, W. Va. Three members of the Brethren Construction Company were on hand for the events. The Brethren Construction Company crew has divided into two units and will have two buildings under construction at the same time. Read next month's Home Mission Number for more details. The picture at the right shows the congregation at a recent service.

Home-Mission Churches Are Setting the Pace

By Harold H. Etling, National Sunday School Director

Have you been following the results of the National Sunday School Contest among Brethren churches? Have you noticed how often the contest has been won in various divisions by home-mission churches, or those that have been home-mission churches until recently? It has been a repeated thrill month after month to see these home-mission churches actually setting the pace for the contest. The results have been nothing short of phenomenal in some instances. Just one example will suffice—even during the last month. Denver, Colo., reported an increase of 272 percent from 1953 average attendance until April average. Frankly, we do not know where they are putting all the people, but they are coming. Each month as we send out new report blanks, we are asking, "Will they be able to do it this month?" And then shortly back comes the answer, "We did it again," and of course always the credit is given to the Lord.

What are the secrets of the success of these home-mission Sunday schools? I do not claim to have all the answers, but from the lips of some of the pastors, let me pass along to you a few of their secrets.

First, I discovered that these pastors and their people actually believe in SUNDAY SCHOOL. They have a Sunday-school consciousness, and believe in the worthwhileness of the school. They do not consider it "Dinkey Business" or a "Side Issue." These pastors and their people see the Sunday school as an opportunity—a big opportunity—to win men and women and boys and girls to Christ and to His church. As a matter of fact, several of them have expressed themselves to me that they do not see much hope of building a great church without a great Sunday school. Has it ever occurred to you that about 85 percent of all the members of every church come out of the Sunday school of your church? The home-mission churches that have won contests are not playing at the matter of building a church. With them it is a big business to make Christ known throughout the city in which they are located. They have gone at it in big-business fashion. Here is a quote from one bulletin: "FIRST PLACE AGAIN IN APRIL! This is the goal of our Sunday school. We were way down to NINTH place for February. So far for March our average is 115. We want 135 for April! Can we count on You? We have to have you to win!"

Then I discovered that these pastors and their people are Sunday-school enthusiasts. You will not talk with them long, nor read far into their letters until you will discover they want to tell you about their Sunday school. They want to tell you in glowing terms of what is happening in their church. They want to tell you about the new records that are being set. They want to tell you about the conversions that are coming week after week. And why shouldn't every Sunday-school scholar and pastor be enthusiastic about his Sunday school? We have the greatest product in the world to carry to a lost world—the Gospel of Jesus Christ which alone can transform from death unto life. We have the greatest constituency of any organization among men, for Jesus commanded us to carry the Gospel to the whole world. We have the greatest results known to man, for men are transformed from darkness to light, from sinners to saints.

I discovered a third secret in talking with these home-mission pastors and their people. They work. I mean they put in hours and hours actually contacting people. They get their people to work. I have been in some of these home-mission Sunday schools, and have seen their people working. One man recently brought in 40 visitors that had not been in the Sunday school before. How did he do it? He went to work upon them. A salesman said recently that after all the advertising, radio announcements, newspaper ads, direct mail, and the like, the greatest words in his language were, "Go . . . See." These home-mission pastors and people who are winning the contest regularly believe there is no better way to build their Sunday schools than by just plain everyday, everlastingly-at-it HARD WORK.

How shall we get the people to work? One home-mission pastor puts items like this in his bulletin every Sunday: "A St. Louis restaurant discovered that 57 percent of its customers were recommended by friends; 14 percent came through recommendation of Duncan Hines; 8 percent by the appearance of the building; 9 percent through AAA; 9 percent by newspaper ads; and 3 percent by billboards. NO FORM OF ADVERTISING IS AS EFFECTIVE AS A PERSONAL INVITATION! Let's really get busy with our visitation and invitation work, and GROW!" This kind of a note cannot help but call attention of Sunday-school scholars to the importance of their sharing in the work. The trouble in many Sunday schools is that there are just not enough contacts made through the week.

THE NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONTEST IS NOT BEING WON BY HOME-MISSION CHURCHES IN AN EASY FASHION. IT DOES NOT JUST HAPPEN THAT THEY ARE HAVING INCREASES. They are envisioning what can happen, they are planning that it will happen, they are working to make it happen.

The same thing can happen—and will happen—in your church and your Sunday school when pastor and people begin to think and pray and plan and work that your Sunday school may fulfill the Great Commission.

THANK GOD FOR HOME-MISSION PASTORS AND SUNDAY SCHOOLS WHO ARE SETTING THE PACE!

POINTERS ON

Unanswered Prayer

By Lester E. Pifer

The Word of God tells us that God cannot answer prayer at times. Even though God has promised to give His children whatever they ask, sometimes reasons mount in the believer's life that will hinder God in His work of answering prayer.

God does not set a time limit on answered prayer. Some prayers which seem to go unanswered may be cared for in His own time and season. God will answer in His own manner, far different than the believer may anticipate.

However, there may be legitimate reasons why God cannot hear the cry of the child of God, reasons which may prevent the answer from heaven. These we want to deal with in this article.

The Wrong Manner

The believer is taught in the Word of God to pray in the name of Christ. John 16:23—"Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you." This is the proper approach to the throne of grace.

The children of God are instructed to pray in a spirit of gratefulness and thanksgiving to God (Col. 3:17). In so doing they shall pray in a manner so as to bring glory to God (I Cor. 10:31).

The child of God is to pray according to God's revealed will (I John 5:14). He is to pray as the Spirit directs (Rom. 8:26), and in harmony with the Lord's leading.

However, it could be true that the believer's prayer may not be answered because of ignorance of these truths. Let us not forget that God is a God of grace. He may or may not answer prayer. He is not limited to the letter of the Word. We must build our confidence on what He says in the Bible.

It is certain that God desires glory from His creation. He desires that His Word will be adhered to. Finally, He has decreed that His Son shall be honored and His name exalted (Phil. 2:9-11).

The Wrong Spirit

In the Book of James we are warned against praying in a selfish spirit. "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts" (Jas. 4:3). It is possible for the children of God to pray for needs that are in perfect harmony with God's revealed will and receive no answer from heaven, simply because they are asking selfishly for their own desires. For example, suppose you have a loved one who is in deep sin. You pray fervently for that person's salvation but only that you desire that they be delivered from sin and no longer live in it. God desires that the salvation of all men bring glory to Him and to His Son. We must pray for that lost soul so that the saving of the soul will bring glory to God and not merely to meet the selfish desire of our own hearts.

The Lord Jesus instructs us to have a forgiving spirit in our praying (Mark 11:25-26). We are told not to let the sun go down upon our wrath, to forgive others as God has forgiven us. God may be hindered in answering our petitions on the basis of the fact that we have failed in forgiving others. An unforgiving spirit may hinder prayer in your life.

In the Book of Proverbs we glean another truth. "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry himself, but shall not be heard" (Prov. 21:13). A lack of sharing the responsibility of others, "shutting up the ears to the cry of the poor," may result in God not answering our cries. The call of the Lord for needed funds in missionary activity, proper support for the local church, or the common genial relationship of the neighborhood give the child of God an excellent opportunity to express Christian love and generosity. Paul is a classic example: "I am a debtor to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians" (Rom. 1:14a).

The Wrong Condition

The Apostle Peter describes the proper relationship between the husband and the wife in the Lord. Such relationship is necessary for proper growth in grace, effectiveness in Christian testimony, and blessing in the home. The apostle warns that a breach in the domestic relationship will hinder our prayer life, "that your prayers be not hindered" (I Pet. 3:7).

This may be one of the reasons for a lack of effective family altars in many Christians homes. This warning ought to be sufficient to cause all to have a happy family relationship in the Lord.

Many times by precept and example God has shown us that He is a jealous God. A warning appears in Ezekiel 14:3 regarding the answer of prayer. God's people had placed their affection upon idols. God calls these

WHEATON TO DEDICATE NEW CHURCH

SUNDAY, JUNE 5, 1955, HAS BEEN SET AS THE DEDICATION DAY FOR THE NEW GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH, WHEATON, ILL. A COMPLETE REPORT WILL BE APPEARING IN A FUTURE ISSUE OF THE HERALD. YOU ARE INVITED TO ATTEND THE SERVICE IN PERSON, AND IF THIS IS NOT POSSIBLE, READ ABOUT IT IN YOUR BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD.

"stumbling blocks of iniquity." Anything which takes away the affection and devotion rightly deserved of God can become an idol of the heart. Should this be true, the Lord through the voice of the prophet cries out, "Should I be enquired of at all by them?"

In this day of abundance of material things and pleasures of the world, the Christian ought to exercise extreme care that none of these take away that devotion which belongs to our wonderful Lord.

Sin is a deterring factor in unanswered prayer. Our Lord warned the people of Israel, through the ministry of the Prophet Isaiah, that their iniquities had separated them from God so that He would not hear their prayers (Isa. 59:1-2). The psalmist declares the same in Psalm 66:18: "If I regard iniquity in my heart, the Lord will not hear me." Hidden or unconfessed sin in the life of the believer will hinder the Lord from answering prayer.

Perhaps unbelief is the greatest hindrance to answered prayer. The Lord Jesus carefully pointed out to the disciples that belief was vital in seeing prayer answered (Mark 11:22-24). Many have been the children of God who prayed but never believed that God could answer the prayer they uttered. Not that God was not able, for He owns the cattle on a thousand hills, the silver and gold are his, his coffers are full and overflowing, but men fail to believe that God can do what they ask. To be guilty of unbelief may be a reason for unanswered prayer in our lives. God wants implicit trust and faith from His children.

The unbeliever cannot expect to see prayer answered in the same respect as the child of God. God may answer their cry, but He has not promised to do so. If in the reading of this article you have realized your need of Christ, call upon Him to come into your heart and save you from your sin, and your prayer will be answered.

FORT WAYNE HELPS HOME MISSIONS

Top—Ladies of the Fort Wayne church. Bottom—Pastors and wives enjoying lunch.

The First Brethren Church, Fort Wayne, Ind., was host to the Home Mission Workshop held for pastors and wives in the eastern section of the United States. During the three-day period the lunch and dinner meals were provided by the ladies of the church. Rooms were also arranged and provided by the host church and Pastor Mark Malles. We feel that the church contributed upward of $500 through their assistance in this way, and the Brethren Home Missions Council is deeply appreciative for the help.

The Fort Wayne church has always been a missionary church, and this contribution for Brethren home missions should certainly merit additional blessings from our Lord.

NAVAHOS PRESENT EASTER PROGRAM

The above picture was taken on Easter Sunday at the Brethren Navaho Mission. The boys and girls portrayed the resurrection story of Christ in a very effective manner. A large number of those shown here have experienced the meaning of the resurrection in their own lives. Pray that all might realize the true meaning of Easter.

SEATTLE, WASH. (Thomas Hammers)—

Yesterday we received the bids on our church from three contractors, two dropping out at the last minute. We did some figuring last night and here is what we find: It will cost $51,459 to build, using the lowest bidder. We have $16,441.53 in loans and in our building fund. As I see it, we need approximately $35,000 more. We have 30 days in which to accept or reject the bid. It is imperative that we get the building started at the earliest possible date. Our work is suffering due to the lack of a building, and any further delays will be detrimental.

ARROYO HONDA, N. MEX. (Jacob Maestas, Jr.)—

We give thanks to God for the opportunity of having Dr. Stephan M. Corradi, a former Catholic bishop, with us for a meeting. The meetings were inspirational and educational. We had a good attendance, with a record of 120 on the first night. The local priest then began exerting pressure on the people to stay away, and as a result the attendance became less. Often the meetings were disturbed by stoning the church and by cars driving back and forth blowing their horns. Brethren, pray for these people who are in darkness that they may have courage to break away from the religion that has enslaved them.

FINDLAY, OHIO (Forest F. Lance)—

We are continually encouraged by the manner of the Lord's blessing upon our little church here in Findlay. Our average for Sunday school was 120 and for church 117 during April. New families are showing interest week after week. Two new families were present last Sunday morning and another in the evening. So far this year we have had 23 first-time decisions, many of which are children.

JOHNSTOWN, PA. (Ralph C. Hall)—

We really went over the top Sunday in our attendance. I think we broke about every record with 59 for the sunrise service, 157 for Sunday school, 103 for morning worship, and 61 for the evening. We couldn't get everyone in for the Sunday-school opening, but did manage to crowd them into rooms for classes. The excavation is finished, the footers are being poured, and the walls will be going up next week. (We certainly could have used that new building Sunday.)

CHICO, CALIF. (Phillip J. Simmons)—

The Lord has been blessing. We had a fine evangelistic meeting, with 25 decisions in the evenings services and 21 in the Happy Hour. I have received eight adults into membership and have another waiting. Our Sunday school is up 60 percent over last year and the morning worship 70 percent. We have crowded out the only available space for my Sunday-school class for young Christians. It is for those who have made a decision, and I have about 20 of them. We are using a six-month cycle, and these will then go out into other classes. Two weeks ago we were presented with an Organsonic organ as a gift, and we are very appreciative for it.

SNOW SLOWS ACTIVITIES IN CHEYENNE

Top—Snowbound Cheyenne. Bottom—New church sign.

On Tuesday following Easter Sunday a snowstorm hit Cheyenne, Wyo., and almost buried the city. Pastor Russell Williams reported drifts within the church area that were 10 feet deep. Transportation was at a standstill for some time, and it was four days before the pastor could use his car. Even with this snowstorm the First Brethren Sunday School finished second in the National Sunday School Contest for April.

A new church location has been secured in Cheyenne, and present plans call for relocating the church. Pray for the many details involved in relocation and for a needed building program.

INVEST FOR ETERNITY IN BRETHREN HOME-MISSION CHURCHES

ARE YOUR INVESTMENTS WORKING FOR CHRIST AND HIS CHURCH?

We have an immediate need for $300,000 to buy lots, finance, and for building construction in the following places:

—Davenport, Iowa	—Columbus, Ohio	—Cheyenne, Wyo.
—Fort Lauderdale, Fla.	—Elyria, Ohio	—Goshen, Ind.

VACATION BEGINS--FOR SCHOOLCHILDREN ONLY

Officially the Brethren Navaho Mission Boarding School ended on Friday, April 22, 1955, and vacation began for the participating students. Some of the students will be living near the mission while others will return to their distant hogans. Miss Angie Garber, the teacher, plans to do some special work with the advanced students in preparation for them to enter the sixth grade next fall.

Vacation for the schoolchildren did not bring with it a vacation for the mission workers. Three building programs have been started and none of them finished for lack of time. First, the mission residence was not completed until the schoolbuilding was started, and then before either of these were finished, two government surplus buildings were given to the mission and moved on the property. Each of these building programs should be completed during the "vacation time" for the schoolchildren so they will be ready when the new school year starts in September.

The second Navaho Bible Conference will be held from May 22 to 31. Following this will be the camp, district conference, and national conference, and then time to start another school term. The workers at the mission will find the summer much too short to finish all the unfinished tasks.

When your vacation begins, remember the Navaho Mission could use you if you can do construction work.

Brethren church houses are monuments to the grace of God.

If you have helped to build a Brethren church house by your prayers or gifts, you have done a good work. The result will be glory to God and rewards to you. This is a tangible and practical way to make your influence felt for God.

The Brethren Home Missions Council is facing a tremendous challenge in building new Brethren church houses now and investment funds are desperately needed. Soon news on the Brethren Investment Foundation will be released. This will be a corporation for Brethren investors who want to make their money work for God. Heavenly security is the best on earth. Help build Brethren churches by investing your money through the Brethren Home Missions Council and Investment Foundation.

ISRAEL CALLS!

REFUGEES—AND THE GOSPEL

By Isobel Fraser

As one speaks to the Jewish people about their relationship to God, the question, "If there is a God, why did He permit six million Jews to be killed in Germany?" is frequently hurled at us. There is hardly a Jewish family that has not been touched by this tragedy. Your heart aches with them as they tell of entire families being wiped out—sometimes forty, fifty, even seventy-five relatives. "Why?" they ask. "Why?"

The answer we know only too well. Disobedience! Rejection of the Messiah! How can we tell them with hearts of love so that it might not be like rubbing salt into open wounds and at the same time the truth of the Word of God be not denied?

Yet even more difficult is it to speak with those who are refugees, those who have endured the horrors of the concentration camp and have even seen loved ones led to chambers of death. Some this tragedy has made bitter; others, as several Jewesses have informed me, are drawn closer to their faith. But Christian kindness and love are still mighty weapons in the hand of God to break down the barriers. I would like to tell you of several contacts with those who have survived the terrors of the concentration camp.

Mrs. M. was contacted about a year ago. She, her husband, and small boy have been in America only a few years. As is usually the case, relatives here have helped them to come. Previous to coming to Los Angeles they lived in Chicago. Since coming here Mrs. M. has been quite lonely and in her loneliness was glad to find someone who was sympathetic. She was quite open from the beginning when I spoke to her about the Old Testament and even the claims of Jesus. Because of her interest I invited her to attend our evening discussion class and made arrangements to phone her the day of the meeting regarding transportation. But when I called I received no answer. Calling in the home later she told me that she could not come (I imagine her husband objected) and was afraid that I would be angry with her. Quickly she was reassured that this would not be the case, and she said that she still wanted me to be her friend. At least once every few weeks I call in the home. Through one of our discussions she accepted a Bible. Calling upon her once I found her curled up on the davenport reading it, and it is usually somewhere in plain sight. The last time I checked with her she was reading in the Book of I Samuel. We can stand on that promise, "So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17).

Then several months ago, upon returning home from Sunday-evening service, I found a man knocking on my apartment door. He said he would like to come in and talk with me. I replied that I wasn't in the habit of inviting men into my apartment. Then he explained that he was Mrs. M.'s husband and that he had been trying all evening to contact me. His wife had told him about me, and he wanted to meet and talk with me. He seemed to be quite disturbed about something, so, committing the situation into the Lord's hands, I invited him in.

We spent several hours in conversation, and I had the joy of witnessing to him regarding the claims of Jesus. He told me a little of his life and that today if it were not for his family he would have nothing for which to live. Again I told him that Christ could give him a new hope and a new outlook on life. Finally he said: "Sometime I want to help you people in your work." I tried then to press him for a decision, but he said that he was not ready. Regarding his son, he said that he was going to let him make his own choice of religion. I told Mr. M. that he should find the truth and then lead his son in the right path. Pray that the Holy Spirit will work in great convicting power in his life.

Several weeks ago I met another young Jewess who had not only been in a concentration camp but also had seen her parents taken to the gas chamber. It was Friday morning and she was preparing her Sabbath meal. Fearing it would burn, she invited me into her kitchen to talk. In our minsitry we must also be good listeners as well as talkers, and so I listened as she told me some of her past life. She spoke of discrimination, not only in Europe but even here in America. This gave opportunity to tell her that the cause of all this trouble is that man—Jew and gentile alike—is not subject to the Word of God. She then asked the inevitable question, "Who killed Christ?" The guilt of Jew, gentile, and of ourselves was shown to her from the Scriptures. In speaking of man's relationship to God we discussed the creation of Adam and Eve. She mentioned that her mother had told her the same things, but her facts were mixed up. Therefore, I turned to Genesis and read the account to her. Whereupon she remarked that she would like to be able to read it for herself. So I offered to bring her a Bible providing she would read it. This she promised to do, and the following Monday I took the Bible to her. May the Lord bless the reading of His Word and give us wisdom as we contact her in the near future.

As one thinks of these Jews and their experiences, these Scriptures from Jeremiah 50:6-7 come to mind: "My people hath been lost sheep: their shepherds have caused them to go astray, they have turned them away on the mountains: they have gone from mountain to hill, they have forgotten their resting place. All that found them have devoured them: and their adversaries said, We offend not, because they have sinned against the Lord, the habitation of justice, even the Lord, the hope of their fathers." Pray for this weary, restless people that they might return to Him who is their resting place.

ALTOONA, PA. Rev. Ralph Burns and family were tendered a reception by the congregation of the First Brethren Church on April 30.

LEAMERSVILLE, PA. Mr. and Mrs. Ross Benton, members of the Leamersville Brethren Church, of which Robert Crees is pastor, celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary March 18.

CLAY CITY, IND. Russell Konves has accepted the call of the First Brethren Church to become its pastor. He graduated from Grace Seminary in the 1955 class and will shortly assume his pastorate.

WOOSTER, OHIO. The church and parsonage telephone numbers of the First Brethren Church, Kenneth Ashman, pastor, have been changed to (church) 3-3646 and (parsonage) 3-7545. Please change Annual.

PHOENIX, ARIZ. J. C. McKillen, pastor of the First Brethren Church, has announced his resignation as pastor of that congregation, effective July 1.

NEWS BRIEFS

LONG BEACH, CALIF. The California District Brethren Conference will be held at the First Brethren Church June 1-4. Evening sessions will be divided into two periods: a time for conference business and a time for a missionary and Bible conference.

ADDRESS CHANGE. The furlough address of Rev. and Mrs. P. Fredrick Fogle after June 15 will be 2226 Randolph St. NE., Washington 18, D. C. Please change Annual.

SOUTH GATE, CALIF. Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Collins celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Apr. 24 with relatives in Oklahoma City, Okla. Mr. and Mrs. Collins are members of the First Brethren Church here.

JOHNSTOWN, PA. Clyde Caes, who graduated from Grace Seminary May 20, has been called to be assistant pastor of the First Brethren Church, Dr. W. A. Ogden, pastor. He will assume his new duties about June 1.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. The first services in the new building of the Grace Brethren Church were conducted on May 15. Lyle Marvin is pastor.

SEATTLE, WASH. Thomas Hammers, pastor of the View Ridge Brethren Church, and Don Farner, pastor of the Brethren church, Harrah, Wash., will exchange pulpits on May 29.

NEW YORK, N. Y. (E/P). Ever since the announcement was made that Oxford University Press had named a board of evangelical scholars to revise the Scofield Reference Bible, members of the committee have been receiving a variety of suggestions, denunciations, allegations, indictments, complaints, and even threats. "The committee members," says Dr. E. Schuyler English, chairman of the revision committee, "have been called 'Quislings' and 'Modernists.' Some of the members have been accused of thinking too highly of themselves in assuming that they could compare in spiritual stature with Dr. Scofield and his editors." [Editor: Absolute confidence can be vested in the committee and we are certain the work they produce will be found acceptable and profitable. We need remember that as the Holy Spirit used Dr. Scofield, He can also use the new committee. Remember the committee in prayer.] Dr. Alva J. McClain, president of Grace Seminary, is on this committee.

INGLEWOOD, CALIF. Junior Christian Endeavor members of the First Brethren Church won first place in the county contest for group singing. Each received a silver pin, and they will compete at the state convention to be held in Pasadena, Calif., in June.

Many churches are assisting their pastors in their expenses to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches Aug. 10-17 at Portland. If your church has not yet given consideration to this important matter, it should be done soon. Every church should see that her pastor is at Portland!

SOUTHEAST DISTRICT NOTES

The quarterly meeting of the Southeast District laymen was held February 4, 1955, at the First Brethren Church, Buena Vista, Va.

Our speaker of the evening was Rev. K. E. Richardson, who spoke on the subject of "Some Questions God Asked Different People." Scripture was taken from Genesis 3.

Mr. S. M. Coffey, district president, then called for the reports from the different laymen's groups.

Buena Vista reported 34 services held at the prison camps and jails. Their project of helping to purchase a refrigerator for the church has been completed.

Covington's pastor, Rev. Mohler, reported having a fellowship with their laymen with 20 men present. Radford reported an average of six men in their regular monthly meetings. Clearbrook laymen have had charge of the Roanoke Rescue Mission work and still have visitation twice a month.

Boones Chapel have held their regular meetings and cottage prayer meetings. The men have installed a directional sign to the church. Riner reported that their laymen are helping with the boys club, which now has a membership of 23.

Washington Heights men have been holding their regular monthly meetings with an average of six present. The laymen have been helping Pastor Miller with the services at the Roanoke Rescue Mission, as well as the junior and senior boys clubs. Hollins had two laymen present for the rally.

Limestone gave a report of a fellowship with 24 men. They plan to start a boys club and have installed a sign giving directions to the church. Ghent reported starting a Bible class in Roanoke and sponsoring a radio program.

A group of men were present with us from Brookhill, who reported continued work with Mr. Mason Cooper in visitation work, work in jails and sanitoriums.

Rev. Edward Lewis reported a new work being started in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., which would be in our district when organized. He read portions of a letter received from Rev. Ralph Colburn, pastor there, telling of the work. Rev. Lewis suggested that our secretary write a letter to Rev. Colburn and his men, extending our fellowship and asking if possible to have him and a group of his men meet with us at our next meeting. This suggestion was made a motion and passed.

The nominating committee gave their report of nominees for new officers, which was voted upon, and the results were as follows: S. M. Coffey, president; Harry M. Ballard, vice president; Frank W. Campbell, secretary-treasurer; and W. C. Fisher, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Our national president, Mr. Mason Cooper, encouraged the laymen to use the new envelope system and encouraged the supporting of the laymen's national projects. He also passed out mimeographed letters telling us of the great need of these projects.

The offering taken amounted to $64.39, which was voted upon and passed to be sent in for the support of the Board of Evangelism.

An invitation was extended by the laymen from Limestone, Tenn., for the May meeting. This invitation was accepted.

After adjournment we were given refreshments in the basement of the church by our host church.

Respectfully submitted,
Frank W. Campbell,
Secretary-Treasurer.

A PERSONAL MESSAGE TO EACH AND EVERY LAYMAN

[Editor's Note: Brother Don's letter is inserted here for those who did not get it in the mail.]

This letter was supposed to be in your hands by Easter, but it has turned out to be like a lot of Christmas cards, lost in the rush of things. The reason: we have been busy finishing our new church. There is so much that needs to be done on it! And yet if we need so much here, how much more needs to be done over the brotherhood as a whole. We were out doing visitation work the other Sunday, and it is amazing the need for evangelism. And if the need is great in Wheaton, how much greater the need all over the brotherhood.

I ask you in the words of Pilate, "What will you do with Jesus?" I know you have accepted Him as your Saviour, but what about His command, "Go ye"? "Go ye" into your own neighborhood—"Go ye" into the shop where you work—"Go ye" into your own city, town, or countryside. There is another "Go ye" and that is to send through your prayers and means others who are qualified and free to go into full-time evangelistic and missionary service. We have two evangelistic teams in the field who need our support, and can't remain in the field unless they receive our support.

Christ gave His all on Calvary. Can't we give of what God has given us, that our evangelists may continue to gather souls for the kingdom? Our goal of $12,000 for the Crusade is not half reached yet.

Keep looking up.

Don Spangler, secretary.
Nat. Fellowship, Brethren Laymen.

P. S.—Have you been planning to go to Portland August 10 to 17? If not, better start now, because I hope to see you there. Remember, the Missionary Herald will arrange train transportation if enough write that they are interested. And it would be so much fun and pleasure if we could have enough for a whole car to ourselves.—Don.

Two National Camp Bethanys This Year

Portland, Oreg.—August 10-17—

"Salem Inn" will be the dormitory, and "Mizpah Memorial" will be the chief meeting place of Bethany Camp at Jennings Lodge next August. It won't be luxury (are camps supposed to be?) but it will be fun, meeting out under the great pines of the Pacific Northwest.

Cost of Portland Bethany is not yet determined, but it will be somewhat higher than the usual $20 at Winona Lake. We'll let you know on this as soon as we can.

Winona Lake, Ind.—August 22-29—

If you can't go to Portland, be sure to come to Winona Lake! Transportation may be a problem, but maybe your parents, or your pastor, could be talked into spending a week's vacation at Winona and enjoying the regular Bible conference there while you are enjoying camp!

Entrance to Winona Bethany

Cost will be $20, if you are preregistered. Registration blanks for both Bethanys will be mailed soon.

DISTRICT CAMPS ANTICIPATE BIG YEAR

Since our attention is already focused on National Conference at Portland, let's begin our district camp descriptions with—

Northwest District's Camp Clearlake—

Camp Clearlake is located about 50 miles west of Yakima, in beautiful virgin forests where the Tieton River and Clear Creek meet to form Clear Lake. Tent dorms serve as bunkhouses for the campers, and there is a lovely dining hall.

Boys 9-14 will camp July 18-23, and girls 9-14 will camp July 25-30. Cost for either week will be $10.50. Senior camp will be at Portland with Camp Bethany. Camp will accommodate about 60 each week.

California District's Tahquitz Pines—

Serving nearly 30 southern California and Arizona churches, Tahquitz Pines will be a Brethren camp for three weeks again this summer. Located over a mile high in the San Jacinto Mountains, this camp can accommodate about 250 per week.

Senior high camp will be held June 18-25, and Ward Miller is camp director. Cost for that week is $18.

Junior highs will be directed by Alf Dodds, June 25-July 2, also $18.

Junior camp is $17.50, and meets July 2-9, with Isobel Fraser directing.

Northern California's Meteor Ranch—

Located on state highway 20, midway between Nice and Upper Lake is Meteor Ranch, overlooking beautiful Clear Lake. Junior and senior camp dates are July 24-30 for nine-years-olds and up. Cost, $14.50. Phillip Simmons is director.

Midwest's Camp Id-Ra-Ha-Je—

Located over 8,000 feet high in the mountains, 42 miles southwest of Denver near Pine, Colo., beautiful Camp Id-Ra-Ha-Je (I'd Rather Have Jesus) can accommodate as many as 125 campers per week. Their camp this year, which includes Navahos, Spanish-Americans, and we Anglos, will be held June 11-18, for those nine years old through high school. The $11 fee includes a doctor's exam and insurance. Raymond Kettell is camp director.

Iowa's Camps Iowana and Hawkeye—

Like other smaller districts, Iowa combines a junior and senior camp into one week, but with separate programs for the groups. The camp they are now using is a Regular Baptist Bible campground on Clear Lake, at Ventura, Iowa. Junior camp is called Camp Hawkeye, and senior camp, Camp Iowana. Both will be held July 18-24, and True Hunt is camp director. Cost is not yet determined for sure, but last year it was $13 per camper. Up to 200 can be accommodated on the grounds.

Indiana-Southern Ohio's Camp Indisinewa—

Crystal Lake, about 12 miles west of Winona Lake, will be the scene of these two district's camps again this year, with the 9-12-year-olds meeting June 20-25, and the seniors, 13 and up, meeting June 27-July 2. Ord Gehman and Russ Ogden are the camp directors for the two respective weeks, and $13.50 per camper is the price. About 100 can be accommodated each week.

Michigan's Camp Christigan—

June 19-25 is the date for Michigan's camp, for all campers from 10 to 17 years of age. Camp Director Earl Funderburg announces a new site this year, the Muskegon Group Camp, R. R. 2, Muskegon, Mich. Only 80 can be accommodated, so get your registration in early!

East District's Camp Keystone—

Laurel Hill State Park, R. R. 4, Somerset, Pa., continues to be the site of East District's camp. Juniors from 9 to 12 will meet June 26-July 2, and seniors, 13 and up, will meet July 3-9. Gerald Teeter and Robert Crees will be directors for those two weeks. Camp will accommodate more than 150 per week, and cost is only $12 per week.

Enjoy "Quiet Time" in Camp

Atlantic-Southeast District's Camp Grace—

Located 35 miles south of Winchester, Va., near Seven Fountains, Va., Camp Grace meets the needs of two districts. Enrollment has filled the camp the last couple years, and capacity including staff is 175 per week.

Juniors, 9-12, will meet July 18-24, and seniors, 13 and up, will meet July 24-30. The cost is $13 if the camper is registered by July 5; $14 after that. Paul Dick is business manager for the camps, and James Dixon and Gerald Polman are directors for the two weeks.

ALL BRETHREN CAMPS INCLUDE SICKNESS AND ACCIDENT INSURANCE IN THE FEE.

GET THE JUMP ON SUMMER SLUMP!

We have been challenged on several occasions in recent days with the statement: "But wait until the summer slump hits your Sunday schools. Watch them hit the skids." Surely we recognize that summertime is a more difficult time than some other seasons, for it is vacation time. Vacation time is an American institution, and almost everyone goes on a vacation. That means our Sunday-school members of the Brethren Church are going to be traveling. But has it ever occurred to you that there may be just as many folks coming your way as leave to go other places? The "summer slump" has too often been an excuse for our failure to keep Christ first through 365 days per year. How shall we get the jump on the summer slump?

EVERY BRETHREN SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLAR should remember to go to Sunday school every Sunday. Just because we go on vacation does not mean that we fail to carry on the normal routines of life. We continue to eat three meals per day; we sleep the normal amount of time, or perhaps even a bit more; we continue to breathe through 24 hours each day. Why then should Brethren neglect the things of God that are to be found in our Sunday schools and churches? If you are planning a vacation, why not plan it so that you visit some of our Brethren Sunday schools this summer?

EVERY BRETHREN SUNDAY-SCHOOL SCHOLAR should be in regular attendance at his own Sunday school every Sunday he is at home, even though company is coming or has come to be with you for the day. Bring your company along to Sunday school and church. Show them that there is real joy in worshiping the Lord Jesus. If they refuse to go with you, then you go to Sunday school and remain for the morning worship hour without them. You say they may be insulted. Would they be insulted if you were to go to your regular place of employment on Monday morning without them?

EVERY BRETHREN SUNDAY SCHOOL must be made doubly attractive through the summer months. Just a few things that we must be sure to watch even more closely because of the summertime:

Keep your Sunday-school opening worship services at their best. Make sure that they are well planned, and include the finest in the way of special features.

Make sure every class is provided for every Sunday with a well-prepared and capable teacher. So often teachers go on vacation, and we take the easiest way out and combine classes, disregarding age groupings and even departmental lines. Often even the regular members do not know from Sunday to Sunday where they will be meeting. This ought not to be.

FROM A PASTOR

We are happy to share this month from the pen of one of our Brethren pastors some things that we think ought to set us all thinking. The question is, "To go or not to go."

"Among those who go and those who could go to Sunday school there are four groups of people. Two groups were in Sunday school last Sunday, and two were not. While searching for words to briefly express the thought for the church bulletin, these words flowed through my mind to a piece of scratch paper:

Some were glad to come,
No thought of missing.
Some just barely came,
Almost resisting.

Others almost came;
They gave it a thought.
Millions dead to God,
Other interests sought.

"Did you find your place? You are included in one of these four groups, unless you are absolutely incapable of going. And if you do not fit into the first two lines, you need to bow before God, and let Him point out to you the spiritual need of your heart.

"Every believer should be as the 'blessed man' in Psalm 1. 'His delight is in the law of the Lord.' Do you delight in reading, studying, and hearing the Word of God? If not, you would do well to check up and see what is wrong. Job said, 'I have esteemed the words of his mouth more than my necessary food.' Is this your testimony?" (G. Welborn).

The Moderator's Address—Northern Ohio District Fellowship of Brethren Churches—Wooster, Ohio—April 19, 1955

By KENNETH B. ASHMAN

Introduction—

Kadesh Barnea is the everlasting symbol of a lost opportunity; it marks the tragedy of a missed opportunity: it began the unenviable history of the downward march of a potentially great people. Their unbelief and lack of devotion robbed them of the immediate victory. Someone has written: "On the plains of hesitation bleach the bones of countless millions who, at the dawn of victory, sat down to wait—and waiting, died!" Surely that's what happened to the Hebrews—about two million of them—when they hesitated at the borders of Canaan, a land which the Lord was ready to give unto them.

D e l a y became discouragement, discouragement became disobedience, disobedience became defeat, defeat became defilement, and defilement became death. They missed what God had for them—the land of plenty; they got what Satan offered them—the place of want.

The constant prayer of the Christian is that he might always attain unto the full possession of what God has for him. The collective prayers of our people should be that we, as a denomination, shall have no Kadesh Barnea stopovers. Let there never be delays when there are doors open before us.

This past week I picked up an exchange bulletin from one of our northwest churches. I noted a brief item which read: "Due to the decrease in the Thanksgiving offering, the Brethren Home Missions Council has informed us that our building appropriation for this year will be $1,000 instead of the $1,500 originally promised." What happened? We had a Kadesh Barnea about Thanksgivingtime—we failed to enter in where the Lord was leading. We lost an opportunity that can never be reclaimed.

Currently we are presenting our offering for foreign missions. Doors are open around the world. Surely there are giants of superstition, unbelief, opposition, and disease in these lands. But there are souls—millions of them—potential trophies of His grace. Pray with me, fervently, that we do not experience another Kadesh Barnea in the field of foreign missions. Let there be no delays at the college and seminary, in our publishing house, in our Sunday-school and youth works. Let there be no times of indecision and defeat in any branch of our beloved denominational endeavors.

Never before has God opened such wide doors of opportunity before a denomination the size of our own. I repeat—never has such wide-open opportunity faced us. We have an expanding publishing company ready to produce the literature we write and buy. We have a thriving and growing college and seminary ready to train the students we will send and support. We have two of the finest mission boards, home and foreign, that are found anywhere today. The potential among our young people is unlimited. Our ladies' groups are doing a most commendable ministry. Our laymen, though not producing nearly their potential, could be molded into a powerful arm of the church. Our Sunday-school department is up and coming. The doors are wide open. We have the necessary personnel, we have the know-how. Now we must produce the will and the way to enter into the victory with the Lord. Let's follow our Joshuas and Calebs unto the possession of the lands.

There has not been the forward progress desired in the past several years. Our national reports indicate that we had a net gain last year of only 349 members. That's far from commendable, no matter how you try to explain the number. In our own district, Northern Ohio, we added only 47 members in 18 congregations. This too is far below possibilities. No; numbers are not the final indication of progress. And there may be roll revisions, dismissals, and other factors to cut the net figures down. But, Brethren, you don't have what you can't count. And, frankly, we're not in position to be counting too highly on the basis of the reports we have been receiving.

Why do these conditions exist? Well, we might blame it all on world troubles—and they are pretty bad. We might blame it all on home troubles—and they are quite perplexing. We might blame it on church troubles—and they seemingly are very numerous. Or we might blame it all on heart troubles—then we would be putting the blame where it belongs. As individuals we have been slipping into those conditions of spiritual lethargy that have marked the stagnation and decline of the church in every age in which they have appeared. We've read about these times in church history. We've seen them in our own denomination. We've experienced them in our own churches. We've been to blame in our own lives! This is not a new thing. Someone has said: "When a man falls into a manhole once, that's accident. When he falls in twice, thats' coincidence. But when he falls in thrice, that's inexcusable!" The Good Book declares: "Thou art inexcusable, O man of God" if you fall oft into the same pitfalls!

The Text—

Peter, the rock, writing in his first epistle, chapter 4, verse 17, presents a statement with two elements of fact included: (1) There is the element of time; and, (2) there is the element of action. Basically, these are the two elements with which we are always concerned. The time element determines whether it is past, present, or future. The action element determines the underlying beliefs, the heart desires, and the conquences expected, or ascertained. Now let's look at the verse and see how these elements fit into this discussion. "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God."

Context—

The context involved is one pertaining to suffering. It is an irrevocable law of God that righteousness comes through suffering: our identification in the suffering of Christ, through faith, and our own personal suffering in perseverance in righteousness. The child of God, possessing the mind of Christ, will gladly thus suffer with the Son of God. This suffering, which is not so much bodily pain as it is spiritual perseverance, is prompted in us because we have been yielded unto Christ. The end result is not shame but glory and honor (see II Tim. 1:8, 12).

We need "sufferers" in our churches today. We need those who are willing to pay the cost to be true disciples. One of our glaring faults is that we welcome "joiners" in our congregations. The rich young ruler would be well accepted in many of our churches. He had money, morals, and manners. But there is more to discipleship than these. Our salvation cost everything that Christ had; He gave it all for us. In like manner, our consecration costs everything we have; we give it all to Him. To us is an all-out redemption. To Him must be an all-out dedication. Remember, Jesus lost the rich young ruler. He could have taken him on milder terms, but He would not. We are too many times afraid of losing someone, or something. Therefore, we have a tendency to make the terms of discipleship milder. The end result will be the loss of all that we had hoped to gain, and more besides.

It is to be remembered that the Redeemer began the judgment (suffering) that resulted in our salvation in himself. Even so, we must begin the judgment (suffering) resulting in our discipleship in ourselves. The beginning is here: in this denomination, in this conference, in this congregation, in this heart of mine!

The Time Element—

The time to begin is NOW! "For the time is come." "Time marches on!" One of the oldest portions of Scripture is the 90th Psalm. It is also one of the most beautiful and most profound. One of the first petitions of the psalmist is, "Teach us to number our days." This numbering is not one of numerics but of moral values. Life is not totaled in the number of years we have sojourned upon the earth, but in what we have accomplished in those years, however many or few they might be. Another has pointed out that the psalmist's petition for wisdom to number his days was for three reasons:

1. Because of the shortness of time. Life is so short that we dare not squander one moment of it. God's time for each one is always here—present, now!

2. Because of the sacredness of time. God has given to each of us the stewardship of so many years, composed of so many days, and so many hours. This is a sacred trust and must be expended with accounting day in constant focus.

3. Because of the service of time. God ordained time to serve His purposes. It is during "this time" that He is busily engaged in redeeming the lost unto himself. And it is during "our time" that we fit into His over-all program and are used for His glory.

The time to begin is here. Now is the moment of decision and determination. The "time is come," says Peter, and there will never be another moment like this one for each of us. "Behold, NOW is the time." You'll remember the experience of that man who, when seated in the barber chair, noticed a sign on the wall with three simple letters: "NOW." The significance of the sign didn't come to him until he was turned around in the chair and saw the same sign in the barber's mirror. It now reflected back to him: "WON." Brethren, if we do it in the present NOW, eternity will reflect back the glorious proclamation of victory WON!

The Action Element—

"Judgment must begin at the house of the Lord. The judgment here required is not in the nature of condemnation. It is rather a personal self-appraisal that results in separation from the world and dedication to the Lord. We notice the urgency and necessity of this action—"must." We note also the place of this action —"the house of the Lord." God's house is composed of God's children, and so this action must begin in you, in me. Here are four definite actions necessary if we are to prepare ourselves for, and put ourselves into, the position of entering the open doors before us. There must be these changes in our attitudes:

1. Our attitude toward the Word of God must change. We have become the victims of a dead textualism. We know the doctrines, the mysteries, the prophecies, and the teachings of the Bible. But we have lost the Spirit of the Word. The letter of the law will never save us, nor others. But the Spirit of the Word will do both. It is not enough to know that God demands, "Love me with all thy heart." We must love Him just that way! It is not enough to quote, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." We must love him in no other way. It is not enough to know that the Bible declares, "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves together." We must be there faithfully. It is not enough to know that Paul writes: "All have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." We must "go or send a substitute" to tell the "all" that Jesus saves sinners. It is not enough to know that He is coming again. We must live "with eternity's values in view."

2. Our attitude toward the world around us must change. The church today is trying desperately hard to imitate the world. Our journalism, our singing, our advertising, our programming are fast becoming reflections of worldly methods. And, to say the very best, they are poor reflections at that. This is not a plea against modern methods. It is a warning, however, against shallow methods. Things have been happening to God's people. Their attitudes are rapidly becoming worldly. It has to be like Satan's efforts or there is a limited response. Let me illustrate: Recently we presented a well-known gospel film in this church. The attendance was over 400. At about the same time we conducted a revival meeting. The highest attendance we could muster was just over 300. Note: we could get a larger crowd to see some actors go through a fictitious plot than we could to listen to the preaching of the true Word of God. Yes; there is more interest in our churches in personal entertainment than there is in personal evangelism. And this in spite of the fact that nowhere in the Word of God do we read, "Entertain yourselves." But everywhere it is written: "Seek and save that which is lost." My point should be clear. If it's like the world, we like it and we respond. If it's like the Word, we're not so sure. Our attitude on this score needs changing drastically, and "now is the time."

3. Our attitude toward the Christ must change. We are all too willing to accept Jesus as Saviour, but all too reluctant to allow Him to come into our lives as Lord. His Saviourship and Lordship must not be divided. Remember the Great Commission: "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel"—that's offering Christ as Saviour; "making disciples of all nations"—that's offering Christ as Lord. Note that the text is not divided, nor do we dare to assume the privilege of dividing the ministry of the Lord in our hearts. The Brethren Church will be ready when, and only when, each one of us allows the Lord INTO our hearts, being completely yielded unto His power and control. We claim that we have been "crucified with Christ." Yes; but we have been all too willing to let Him bear the cross alone. There must not only be the legal accomplishment of Calvary—our redemption; there must also be the spiritual accomplishment of Calvary —our consecration.

4. Our attitude toward the Holy Spirit must change. We have developed a strange Spirit-phobia. We seem to be altogether afraid to let Him work in our lives and churches. This attitude has manifest itself in several ways:

a. Our pastors, teachers, and officers are selected on the basis of popularity, evident success, and ability to "put the program across." We are afraid to serve under the leadership of Spirit-filled called ones of God; we don't want to be led "that far" into devotion.

b. Our revivals, conferences, and weekly worship services are planned to appeal to the eye, the ear, the body. We seem reluctant to get on our knees, open our hearts, and let the Holy Spirit send upon us such seasons of refreshing as we have never known before. We are afraid of "that kind" of reviving. We want to worship in body and form, not "in spirit and in truth."

c. Our private lives are screened off from the Holy Spirit. We live in the energy of the flesh. we trust in our own righteousness; we are proudly trying to "paddle our own canoes." We are afraid that if we turned our persons over to the Holy Spirit He would make us that "unique, different, royal priesthood" we are supposed to be. In every child of God there abideth the Holy Spirit. In too many lives, however, He never has an opportunity to do His powerful works. We are all like artesian wells. Some, however, have an obstruction of self that keeps the refreshing waters from springing forth. These obstructions are pride, hurt feelings, misunderstandings, jealousies, selfishness, prayerlessness, unfaithfulness, indifference, and negligence. "Now is the time" to administer self-judgment, allowing the Holy Spirit to gush forth in acceptable service to God and before men.

Conclusion—

Go with me to David's writings for several summary and concluding thoughts. Either we will bring self-judgment unto greater service, or God will administer the judgment, beginning at the house of the Lord. In Psalm 143, David makes five pleas to the Lord, each of which is designed to clear him before God and send him forth to do Jehovah's will. Note these petitions:

1. "Hear me speedily, O Lord" (vs. 7). David prayed for God's forgiveness and favor upon himself.

2. "Cause me to hear" (vs. 8). David turned his ear to the Lord to "know the way wherein he should walk."

3. "Deliver me from mine enemies" (vs. 9). David sought freedom from the persons and the things that destroyed his spiritual joy and strength.

4. "Teach me to do thy will" (vs. 10). David asked for wisdom to know, and dedication to accomplish, God's will in His life.

5. "Quicken me, O Lord" (vs. 11). David desired to be usable in the service of the Lord, asking divine power to make it so.

David's petitions must be ours if we are to remedy the stagnation conditions that seemingly have gripped our hearts and churches. "For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of the Lord." "Beginning here" we can experience a victorious march into the land of promise! Or "beginning here" we can experience another Kadesh Barnea! Which will it be? The answer lies in your heart and mine.

EDITORIALS

By Paul R. Bauman, Vice President

May I Have a Few Minutes?

May I have a little heart-to-heart talk with you for a few minutes? If you have been following the financial reports of Grace Seminary from month to month, you will immediately observe, upon reading the record of April gifts, found elsewhere in this magazine, that it was "a good month for the school." The offerings amounted to more than $2,000 over the $6,000 monthly need of gifts for operating expenses. For this provision all of us at Grace have been sincerely offering praise to the Lord.

In considering this report and the school's financial situation, however, two facts should be kept in mind. What would the April record have shown had it not been for one single offering that amounted to more than half the total amount? Let us remember also that this fine offering of $3,102.34, as good as it is, doesn't make up for the times during the past few months that gifts to the school fell far short of the $6,000 mark. Frankly, the school's general fund is still "in the red."

As we face the summer vacation period let us prayerfully consider the school's needs which continue through the summer months. If you plan to be away from your home and church, drop those little Monthly Plan envelopes into the basket before you leave. Care for your current obligations to the Lord just as you would your other obligations. You will enjoy your summer activities more, and you will also lighten the load for some of us upon whose shoulders the administration of the school rests heavily. I know you will not fail us. Do it now!

New Opportunities for Christian Young People

The Educational Number of the Herald this month is devoted almost exclusively to the newly established program for the training of teachers. Many will undoubtedly be pleasantly surprised to learn of the developments in the Department of Education at Grace and of the work already being done by the school in this field. The series of articles and pictures telling about the work of the Christian day schools now being operated by several of our churches in southern California will be continued in the June 4 and June 11 issues of the Herald. This series of articles will undoubtedly prove to be an eye-opener to most of our readers, even as they have to the editor. There are many young people who do not feel called to go into a pastorate or to some foreign field, but who, nevertheless, desire to serve the Lord in some special field of activity. Such young people should seriously consider the opportunities opening up, not only in the United States, but also on foreign fields, for Christian day-school teaching. They should also consider the opportunities for service in the public schools, where Christian teachers are needed as never before.

A recent letter from California informs us that at least 20 teachers are needed for the Brethren schools next September, and the question is asked: "Do you have any young people yet who can help to meet this need?" The schools are growing so rapidly that those in charge do not know where to turn for properly trained teachers. The attention of young people should be called to these three issues of the Herald. Grace College is pledged to do everything within its power to prepare young men and women for teaching that is worthy of the name Christian.

Good News From the State Department of Education

Many who have known that application had been made by Grace College with the Department of Public Instruction of the State of Indiana for accreditation as a school for the training of teachers, will rejoice to know that our Department of Education has been accredited on a provisional basis. The State Department of Public Instruction has outlined a series of requirements to be met by September 1956, and none of these are beyond the possibility of being realized. The committee from Indianapolis which visited our campus recently was favorably impressed both by the physical equipment of the school and by the quality of its teaching. With reference to the student body, the report reads as follows:

THE PRESENT PROGRAM FOR TEACHER PREPARATION AT GRACE

By NORMAN H. UPHOUSE, B.D., Ed.D.

Professor of Education

Teaching is generally regarded by men as a worthy profession. There have been times when its importance has not been fully recognized or appreciated and other things have been permitted to eclipse it. Today, however, teaching is coming into its own rights and a great amount of attention is given to this profession. More and more money is being invested in education in this country. More and more people are becoming involved in the teaching program. Many of us have children in some school, or we have neighbors who have children in school. Education is a business that touches nearly everybody.

EDUCATION NOT LIMITED TO CLASSROOM

Education is not limited to the four walls of a school classroom. Learning goes on at home, in the church, and in the community. It is not limited to the efforts of specialists; parents are teachers too. Preachers are teachers. A preacher should be "apt to teach" (I Tim. 3:2). This means that he should be competent to instruct others also (II Tim. 2:2). Teaching is encouraged throughout the Bible. The exhortation to teach is in the Great Commission as recorded in Matthew 28:19-20: "Teach all nations . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

THE MINISTRY OF TEACHING

The belief in the great ministry of teaching has led to the development of a teacher preparation program at Grace College. We aim to have sufficient courses of study available to the students in a variety of areas to lead to certification. We aim to meet the specific Indiana requirements for teaching first, and then to meet other state requirements generally (there is considerable overlapping and reciprocity among the various states). In the development of the program at Grace, we have had several objectives or purposes before us.

1. There is the purpose to encourage young people to take up teaching as a career.

a. To teach in Christian day schools with a Christian point of view. It is not enough to have academic fitness alone. We encourage a sound Christian philosophy and passion to make Christ known.

b. To teach in the public school where the individual feels led of the Lord. It is possible to make an impact for Christ wherever He calls His servants to work. One is likely to find serious limitations and restrictions on Biblical matters in the public schools, but often a Christian teacher can have a powerful influence for good in most school activities.

c. To teach in the church. There is a great need for experienced or properly prepared teachers for the Bible school, child evangelism, vacation Bible school, summer camps, youth organizations, and many other places. Unfortunately, church groups have not used some of the better methods of teaching which promise to improve instruction. Sometimes we settle for mediocre instruction when a better program could be implemented.

d. To teach on mission fields. There exists a real problem of teaching others to take leadership positions. Before this can be done, it seems the Christian missionary must do some supervisory and administrative work in setting up a program or system.

There is an additional purpose to our teacher preparation program. We desire to have others see the tremendous opportunities in teaching even though they do not make a career out of it. Parents may have other activities in the main, but the principles and methods of education will certainly be a help in understanding children and in directing them. Modern studies in psychology point up the importance of early home training. These studies indicate that early impressions are lasting and are basic in the unfolding of personality. Problems that show up in schoolchildren often are traced to the home for their beginning.

Pastors need to be concerned about a teaching program in the church. We encourage pastors to show interest in the teaching phase of their work. Clarence Benson once said that any preacher who neglected the teaching phase of the church sabotaged his own work. It is believed that a well-taught congregation is more stable than one built upon some other program.

EDUCATIONAL COURSES AT GRACE

The courses at Grace are designed to develop understandings and appreciations in the whole field of learning. Much time is given to the historical development and background material in education. From an orientation course we move into general subjects, such as philosophy, principles, and methods in education. Later we enter into specific methodology with seminar discussion groups. Finally, the student is given practice in the public schools in and around Warsaw and Winona Lake. We call this experience student teaching because it is more than practicing on children. The student teachers actually teach as any other teacher would.

WHAT ABOUT RECOGNITION?

The question frequently asked is, Are we qualified or recognized by the state to do all this work? Or perhaps the question simply asks if the work will lead to a certificate. The answer is that we have just started the expanded program and have progressed far enough to request the state department of education to visit the school to evaluate our work. A visit has been made by a division of the board known as the Commission on Teacher Training and Licensing in Indiana, and the Department of Public Instruction has approved the school on a provisional basis (see article on editorial page). We aim to continue to strengthen the program where we can and to meet the demands of our young people coming from our churches and planning to serve our churches.

THE CHRISTIAN TEACHER AND CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

By JESSE D. HUMBERD, M.A., B.D.
Assistant Professor of Science and Mathematics

Note—Mr. Humberd was a teacher in science and mathematics in the Ohio public schools for four years and was also formerly an instructor in mathematics and physics in Wittenberg College.

A growing need for directors of Christian education, teachers of the Bible in public schools, leaders of child and youth organizations, church secretaries, religious journalists, to say nothing of the many other departments of Christian endeavor which require professional training, justify the existence of such a department in a Christian college. In addition to these needs, there is the growing development of the Christian day schools in the Brethren Church and other denominations, and they are asking for qualified teachers who have added specialized Christian education work to a college education program.

Many young people who feel called to serve the Lord do not feel the call to mission field or ministry. The Christian day schools open a wide new door of real service. Consider for a moment the large part which a teacher plays in the life of a child. Everyone in our country is required to attend school somewhere for about 12 years, 6 hours a day, 180 days of the year. The teacher has the opportunity and the responsibility of the child during these hours. In contrast, the doctor sees only those who are sick, the lawyer only those who are in trouble, and the minister those who come to church or are in special need. Do we conclude that the teacher's preparation dare be any less than that of people in these other professions. The teacher needs the best education possible leading to state certification and licensing, plus a firm foundation in professional Christian education.

At Grace, Christian education courses are offered in the graduate seminary division only. At the present time there are no Christian education courses on the college level. There are several reasons for this. First, the college does offer courses in English Bible and practical work. Second, the college purposes to educate teachers who will meet state requirements for certification to teach in the public schools, and this is a full four-year program. Third, experience has shown that many who take Christian education courses in college later wish to qualify to teach in public schools, only to find that the Christian education courses are not acceptable for certification. And fourth, since the teachers in Grace College are Christians and the students are Christians, all the instruction is in a sense Christian education.

In a Christian college, the line between the sacred and the secular in education should not be drawn. As a result, the line between so-called "full-time Christian service" and other so-called "secular" professions entered into by Christians should likewise not be drawn. The public-school teacher and the Christian-day-school teacher alike are or can be conscientiously doing a thorough job for the Lord.

The ideal Christian teacher, whether in the public school or in the Christian day school, would be one who would take the profession as seriously as a ministerial student who faces four years of college and three of seminary. This teacher would expect to take four years of college, specializing in education, and working toward state certification in some field of specialization in secondary-school teaching, or in the elementary field. This preparation would be followed by a two-year seminary course leading to the M.R.E. (Master of Religious Education) degree. At Grace Seminary, about two-thirds of this work would be taken in the standard theological curriculum, and would be selected by the student from the usual courses in theology, English Bible, church history, etc. The remaining one-third would include the special courses offered by the Department of Christian Education. Requirements for the degree include, in addition to the two years study, the submission of an acceptable thesis on some theme or phase relating to the field of Christian education.

Courses in the department include introduction to Christian education, history, psychology, philosophy, curriculum, and the teaching of Christian education, Christian education in the local church, the Christian day school, and seminar in Christian education. The student is led to become acquainted with the literature in the related fields. Although the material available in Christian education is rather limited, new books are at last being written, and the students this year have been able to survey some twenty or thirty books, both old and new, in the specific area of Christian education.

The focal point of the evangelical Christian school movement today is the National Association of Christian Schools, 10201 S. State St., Chicago 28, Ill. The director, Dr. Mark Fakkema, and his staff stand ready at all times to offer what assistance or information they may to help parents or communities plan and operate Christian day schools. They have prepared considerable literature especially designed to acquaint people with the independent school movement. The office of the association also maintains a teacher placement bureau serving both teachers and school alike in the important business of locating teachers where they may be needed.

The Brethren Christian day school movement in California has been called the most significant development in the Brethren Church in recent years. Grace College and Seminary expect to do their part in the movement by helping provide the opportunities in the field of education which will supply the qualified Christian teachers who will be needed in ever-increasing numbers.

Able to Teach Others Also

By Dr. R. D. Barnard
Secretary, Foreign Missionary Society

Twin themes were in the mind of St. Paul when he wrote to Timothy, his son in the ministry. These were: "Preach the Word" (II Tim. 4:2), and "Apt to Teach" (I Tim. 3:2). It is the privilege and responsibility of our foreign missionaries to do both of these—"preach" and "teach." We must teach those led to Christ, that they may teach others also.

"Able to teach others also" (II Tim. 2:2) to me includes all that is today thought of as a part of education, especially of Christian education. There are studies in the principles of teaching, child psychology, school administration, and other associated subjects. These are needed by every missionary if he is to do the very best job on the field. In our foreign missionary program we not only have Christian day schools but in all of our fields we have Bible classes for all ages and, in most fields, Bible institutes of one type or another.

Ability to teach others how to teach is much more necessary for the foreign missionary than for the pastor here in the homeland. Why, you ask? Well, in the homeland if a pastor fails to have any great ability in the matter of teaching others how to teach, his people will have available to them leadership training classes, community Bible classes, and even Bible institutes, colleges, and seminaries. Folk will still be taught in the business of teaching others. But with the foreign missionary there is usually no other person available who can do this teaching job. If it is ever done on the foreign field, it must be done by the missionary. No other person who will teach with a Christian emphasis is available.

It is not our purpose, as we now see it, to send missionaries to the various fields to do the actual work of teaching in the Christian day schools other than is necessary in demonstration classes. Neither is it the purpose of the missionary to do all the other teaching himself. But it is our purpose to teach native and national believers in the various lands how to teach their own people. Therefore, our missionaries stand rather in the position of instructors in relation to these who are to be the actual teachers.

We appreciate all that Grace College is now doing through its Department of Education in this respect. We believe it is a great stride in the right direction.

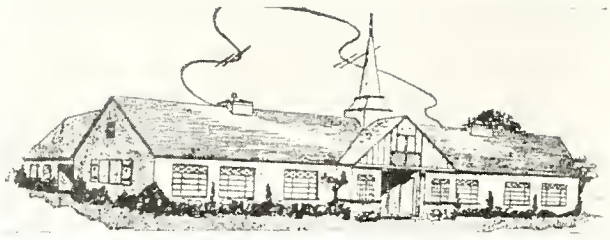
THE CHRISTIAN DAY SCHOOL AND HOME MISSIONS

By Rev. Lester Pifer
Assistant Secretary, Brethren Home Missions Council

The Christian these days faces a hostile world with respect to the message and claims of Christ. America is beginning to reap the harvest from the seeds of unbelief which have been sown in recent years. Our young people and children face a difficult task in holding the faith.

The need for Christian training and education is becoming more necessary than ever before. To effectively serve in any phase of life a Christian viewpoint must be adhered to and Christian standards must be maintained.

In building home-mission churches we see more and more the need for properly trained men and women in every bracket of church life. The pastor, his wife, our teachers, our laymen, and our children need the finest of Christian training possible. For this reason, in many of our home-mission points, sufficient land is purchased that Christian schools may be built if the situation warrants.



Home-mission parents are concerned about this and are encouraging their children to attend a Christian day school, Christian high schools, and finally a Christian college. This we believe will help us reach America and the other mission fields of the world for Christ and see our people built up in the faith once for all delivered unto the saints.

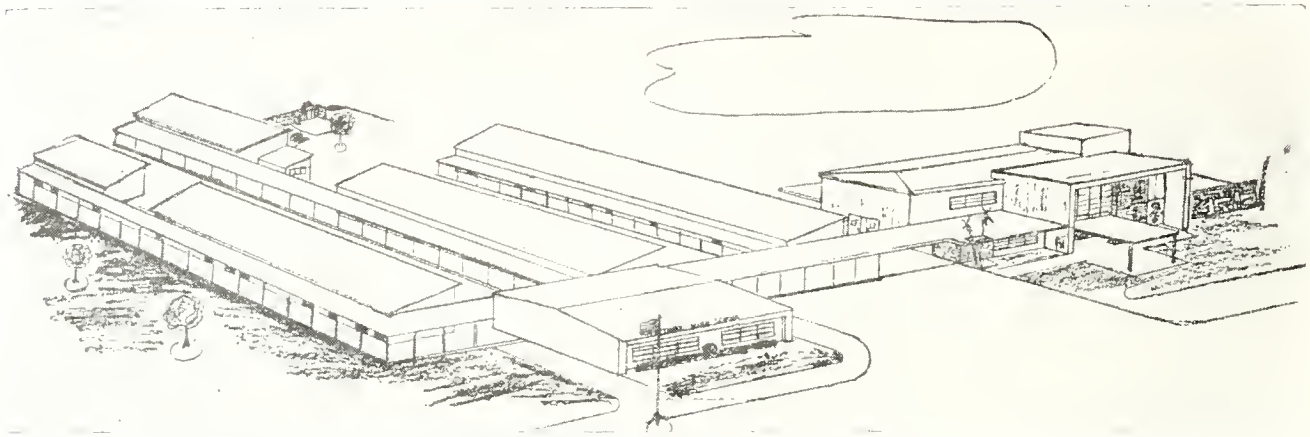
THE ORIGIN AND GROWTH OF BRETHREN SCHOOLS IN CALIFORNIA

By Rev. John W. Mayes
Pastor, Paramount (Calif.) Brethren Church

Brethren Elementary School, 60th and Orange Avenue, in Long Beach.

In the fall of 1947, the Brethren Elementary School opened its first session in the Seal Beach Brethren Church. The plan for the schools was originally conceived by the late Dr. Louis S. Bauman, founder of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach and pastor for 33 years. This was a new venture for the Long Beach congregation and for the Brethren Church as a denomination. Our church had for many years been interested in higher education, but had never felt the compulsion to provide educational facilities for her boys and girls from the first grade and up.

We should realize that many things contributed to this undertaking. Christian schools were not new in our land. Some church groups had operated their own schools for many years. Others were taking up the challenge. In the last seven years alone (since we began), over 400 Christian schools, mostly in the lower grades, have arisen. Perhaps most people seeing this would assume that the reason is found in parental dissatisfaction with the public schools and their educational achievement. This is not correct. We do not exist just for educational purposes alone. We have been forced into the school field because the public schools which once were definitely Christian in their outlook have now become un-Christian. Textbooks are full of subtilities and misleadings deliberately designed by non-Christian writers to secularize the thinking of our students. It is in this area of the psychology of education that we must take the offensive. Our schools are not an ordinary secular school with a Bible course tacked onto the curriculum, but our schools impart a whole way of life, a new approach to learning with the true God as the fountainhead of every academic subject. This is the task laid before us by our God and no non-Christian teacher can ever impart this view of education to our boys and girls.



Understanding these reasons for our beginning, it is easy to see how and why this school movement has grown. After that first year in Seal Beach, the school was relocated to 60th and Orange in new buildings built for that purpose and owned by the North Long Beach Brethren Church. Some did not dare to think that we would expand beyond that. However, in 1949, the need of a high school was made emphatic by the necessity for the youth who had been with us in the grades to return to the secular high schools. Our high school began in new buildings constructed for that purpose at the location in Paramount, corner of Orange and Olive. This is two miles farther out beyond the elementary school, making a total of nine miles from the parent church. The location makes it possible for churches in the area to take advantage of our school for their young people.

This school movement has spread until there are now six Brethren schools in California, and two more to start this fall. Three of these—Brethren High School at Paramount, Brethren Elementary School at 60th and Orange in Long Beach, and Brethren Elementary on Stearns Street—are all operated by the First Brethren Church of Long Beach. In these three schools there are 510 boys and girls through all 12 grades, with 33 to be graduated from high school in the spring of 1955. There are 27 teachers on the staff.

The Temple City Brethren Church operates kindergarten through the eighth grade, with 96 pupils and 5 teachers. Washington Boulevard Brethren Church in South Whittier operates kindergarten through the sixth grade, with 129 pupils and 5 teachers.

First Brethren Church of Inglewood operates kindergarten through fifth grade, with 67 pupils and 4 teachers.

The total enrollment for Brethren schools outside the Long Beach system is 292. With the schools under the Long Beach system, this makes a grand total of 802 pupils and 41 teachers. With the normal expansion and customary changes, Brethren schools in California will probably need 20 more teachers for the year 1955-56.

THE LONG BEACH BRETHREN SCHOOLS

By Rev. Albert L. Flory
Superintendent, Brethren Schools, Long Beach, Calif.

The Brethren Schools of Long Beach, now closing their eighth year, are a distinct testimony to the goodness of God. Beginning with a little more than a dream in the mind of the late Dr. Louis S. Bauman, then pastor of the First Brethren Church, the schools in Long Beach alone now have a total enrollment of 510 in the 12 grades; there are 27 members on the teaching staff; and the graduating class of 1955 is made up of 32 young people. Thus, the schools stand today as a monument and reward for the faith that brought them into existence.

Brethren Schools are owned by the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, of which Dr. Charles W. Mayes is pastor. A board of 10 persons elected by the First Brethren Church with approved representation from the North Long Beach Brethren Church, Stearns Street Brethren Church, and the Paramount Brethren Church, controls the schools. Albert L. Flory is the superintendent of all three schools and principal of the high school. Miss Mary Mulloy is principal of the elementary school in North Long Beach, and Miss Jeanette De Puis is principal of the new school at Stearns Street.

The elementary schools include the first six grades and meet at two locations. The one building and playground is owned by the North Long Beach Brethren Church, where Rev. George Peek is pastor, and the other is owned by the Stearns Street Brethren Church, where Rev. Charles Underwood is pastor. These two elementary schools have about 7,000 square feet of floor space besides ample room for playgrounds.

The high-school buildings are located on 10 acres of land. With the completion of the new chapel this school will have a total of about 20,000 square feet of floor space. There will then be 16 classrooms, including library, chemistry and physics laboratory, woodshop, autoshop, printing press room, photographic room and an auditorium seating over 600. Kitchen facilities are included for a cafeteria and general banquet hall.

About 10 Brethren churches are close enough to Brethren High School to be able to send students. Brethren churches furnish about 55 percent of the student body.

A unique arrangement exists between Brethren High School and the Paramount Brethren Church, of which Rev. John Mayes is pastor. The church shares the facilities of the high school and will soon move into the new chapel building for a church home. The church shares its pastor as Bible teacher and has about one-fourth of its membership enrolled in Brethren schools. The Paramount church furnishes a school bus to the school free of charge.

After June of this year 87 young people will have been graduated from the Brethren High School. These graduates have been well received at Wheaton College, Bob Jones University, Bryan University, John Brown University, Westmont College, Bible Institute of Los Angeles, Stanford University, Long Beach City College, and Long Beach State College. Several young people have become honor students.

Besides the regular academic subjects necessary for TEACHING

Is a Threefold Process

By MISS AVA SCHNITTJER, M.A., Assistant Professor in English and Speech

Note—Miss Schnittjer came to Grace College from a highly successful career of 19 years as a teacher in secondary schools.—Ed.

As Miss Jones, first-grade teacher, initiates 30 eager pupils into the mystery of 2 plus 2 equals 4, she may be unaware of the complex nature of the activity in which she is engaged.

From one point of view, teaching is a physical process. Teachers make us of schoolrooms, books, blackboards, lighting and heating facilities, interior and exterior decorating. Realizing that the "little red schoolhouse" is out of date, school boards are getting busy, using the skill of the best architects, artists, and educators in an effort to make school plants modern and up to date. Across the nation hundreds of new schools are being erected which are as beautiful and comfortable as art and skill can make them. Special kinds of equipment are available for students with special problems. More and more, the physical plant of the school mirrors the tremendous growth in science and technology.

Though she may not understand all the complexities of the learning process, Miss Jones does know that equipment isn't enough. She knows that teaching is also an intellectual process in which she holds the key to open books to the minds of students. Emphasis is laid on the accumulating of knowledge and on developing skills and the ability to think. To determine the success of the teaching process, periodically she gives tests. If the student can recall the information which has been imparted to him, if he can work out a new problem on the basis of methods he has learned, then the teacher has been successful, and this student has been educated.

You are probably aware that we do have well-trained teachers, that requirements for certification are constantly being raised, perhaps with the hope that better-trained teachers will be able to curb the rising tide of juvenile delinquency, crime, and war.

Miss Jones may or may not realize it, but teaching, in addition to the intellectual process, is also a personal process, personal morally and spiritually, for the teacher is an influential person, good or bad, and the pupils are susceptible persons. Elusive, intangible it may be, but there is an interchange of personality, as well as a transfer of ideas between the teacher and the taught.

For the teacher's influence to be positive, he must be well adjusted himself, emotionally mature, one who, having achieved identity himself, knows who he is as separate from others, and who he is in relation to others. An immature person is blind, blind to his impact on others, and deaf to their responses to his impact. He walks through lives leaving havoc in his path, damaging the dignity and personality of others, making the same mistakes over and over again. Not properly knowing himself, he can't properly respect others, and he has little love and little faith.

An immature person in the position of a teacher may teach his students science or history, but a mature person may, in addition to these, provide his students with a friend and an example of one who sees into life with understanding, who can trust and be trusted, who can do the chores or the honors with equal thoroughness, who doesn't reject his responsibilities; one who is sensitive to differences in points of view and to the rights of others, but not too dependent on approval or the lack of it—in short, the one who could best fill the requirement of a good teacher is a Christian whose life has achieved a balance because it is centered in the Lord.

Intellectual attainment alone will never solve our problems. But if we could pour into our public schools hundreds of Christian teachers, the impact would be incalculable.

Young people, have you considered the call, the tremendous challenge of teaching in the public schools?

WE ARE DEPENDING ON GRACE SEMINARY

By DR. CHARLES W. MAYES, Pastor, First Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif.

With the increased emphasis on Christian day schools in our country today a new responsibility has been added to Christian colleges which are training teachers. These responsibilities may be set forth as follows:

1. Christian colleges are needed to train students that they may secure state certificates.

2. Christian colleges are needed to give a Christian philosophy to all teaching since our Christian education goes beyond the realm of the mere academic.

3. Christian colleges are needed to prepare young people for the teaching profession and at the same time instill in their hearts the missionary zeal and passion that is necessary to win others to Christ.

It is a tragedy when Christian schools are Christian merely in name. Christian schools must integrate all truth—spiritual truth and scientific truth alike—into one viewpoint which is Christ-centered.

General education in America has been largely centered around either the student or the curriculum. Each of these aims may have something in its favor, but above and beyond there must be a viewpoint and a subject matter which pleases the Lord Jesus Christ and upholds His Word in its entirety.

We cannot expect to get such teachers from state institutions, except perhaps in rare instances. Therefore, with the great increase in Christian elementary and high schools, there is an added responsibility on such institutions as Grace Seminary and Grace College. Only from such schools will students come forth who understand and defend the Christ-centered viewpoint of education.

Announcement concerning new staff members and additional courses to be offered in September at Grace will appear in the June Educational Number of the Herald.

Tape Recordings for Radio Broadcasts

Grace Seminary and College is pleased to announce a new and valuable service which it is now prepared to extend to all Brethren churches conducting radio broadcasts. Most pastors find it exceedingly difficult to secure the necessary "live" music for their radio broadcasts, and they do not have the necessary equipment to make recordings at their churches. So many requests have come for tape recordings of the school's array of musical talent that we have finally decided to do something about it.

A library of tape recordings in broadcast quality is now being prepared at the school. These will feature such talent as the Grace College Choir, the Ambassadors of Grace (male quartet), Women's Trio, Grace Trumpeters, Messner Brothers (trumpet and trombone), David Halvorsen (piano solos), Alva Steffler (solos on the concert Baldwin organ), James Sweeton (violin solos), and a variety of brilliant vocal soloists.

In order to make such a service possible without unduly burdening the school financially, each church desiring the recordings should forward two or more new rolls of tape, or, better yet, $3.30—their actual cost. Used tapes must not be sent in. One tape will provide sufficient music for several broadcasts. Once used, they may be returned to the school in exchange for others. If so desired, arrangements can be made for churches to retain the recordings permanently.

In a few months, complete 15-minute or half-hour programs including a message will also be available. Pastors interested should write for further details.

college entrance, Brethren Schools feature one period of Bible every day for all 12 grades. Other subjects are included, such as woodshop, autoshop, printing, music, typing, shorthand, bookkeeping, domestic arts, and physical education.

The high school in Long Beach now participates in a well-developed athletic program. Boys play baseball, basketball, and football in the league known as the CIF. Girs play basketball and softball in a league.

The Long Beach Brethren schools may be proud of their teachers who are all fundamental believers who approve the Message of the Brethren Ministry. The fellowship among these teachers is superb. Teachers of academic subjects are asked to present credentials from some state, preferably California. Interested teachers from the East should feel free to write Brethren Schools, Box 506, Paramount, Calif.

The schools cooperate with hundreds of other such Christain institutions in California which are connected with the California Association of Christian Schools. There is also close cooperation with three other Brethren schools in southern California: Temple City, Inglewood, and South Whittier. Two other schools are expected to open this fall.

Most enthusiastic about the Brethren school program are the students themselves. Scores of testimonies like the following could be supplied:

"The eight years I have been a student at Brethren Schools have been a blessing to me spiritually, academically, and athletically. The friends I have made are the young people who have the same standards as I. The teachers have given me more than book learning. They have been examples of fine Christian character, and I am grateful for their influence on my life. If the Lord tarries I know I shall be increasingly thankful for the Christ-centered education I have received at Brethren."

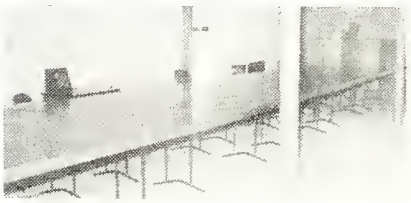
SOUTH PASADENA, CALIF. Dr. Charles H. Ashman has announced his resignation as pastor of the Fremont Avenue Brethren Church, effective June 30, and will assume the pastorate of the West Covina Brethren Church, Covina, Calif., on July 1.



SAN DIEGO, CALIF. Five acres of land on the Kearney Mesa have been purchased by the First Brethren Church, Archer Baum, pastor, as the new location for the church. This is in a needy and growing section of the city.

MARTINSBURG, W. VA. Earle Peer, pastor of the Rosemont Brethren Church, was ordained to the Christian ministry May 10 during the Atlantic District Conference. Dr. Paul Bauman, of Grace Seminary, was the speaker.

COVINGTON, VA. Homecoming and dedication of the new parsonage was conducted on May 15 at the First Brethren Church. The dedication speaker was Dr. Bernard N. Schneider, the first pastor of the church, and also present was Evangelist R. Paul Miller, who conducted the first evangelistic campaign in the church. Paul Mohler is pastor.

CHICAGO, ILL. The National Sunday School Association plans to hold its third annual Labor Day weekend Sunday-school conference at Taylor University, Upland, Ind., Sept. 2-5.

RITTMAN, OHIO. The laymen of the first Brethren Church built 16 tables (pictured above) made of tempered masonite tops and folding welded steel legs. The actual cost was $15, which resulted in a saving of about one-third. Charles Ashman, Jr., is pastor.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. (E/P). A bill aimed at the disestablishment of the Roman Catholic Church from the state has been introduced in the Argentine Congress by Peronist labor members. A two-thirds majority is required for passage of the bill calling for an election to choose representatives for a constitutional convention within six months.

ROANOKE, VA. W. Carl Miller will terminate his ministry as pastor of the Washington Heights Brethren Church on June 30. He plans to enter Grace Seminary next fall.

PARIS, FRANCE. Dr. Billy Graham, evangelist, will conduct meetings here June 5-9 in the Vedodrome d'Hiver, in his first continental visit after London. From Paris Mr. Graham and his team will have meetings in Zurich, Switzerland, June 18; Mannheim, Germany, June 23; Stuttgart, Germany, June 25; Nuremberg, Germany, June 26; Dortmund, Germany, June 28; Rotterdam, Holland, June 30; Oslo, Norway, July 3.

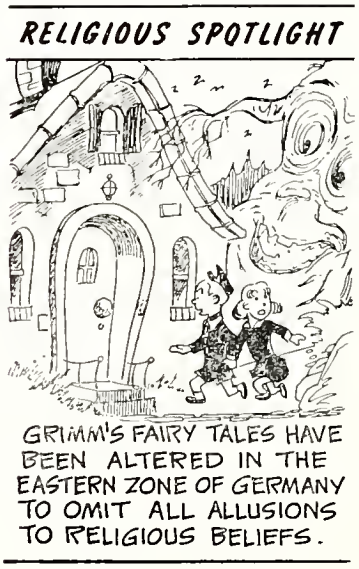
DENVER, COLO. Grace Brethren Church Sunday School set a new attendance record on May 15 when 140 were present. Thomas Inman is pastor.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Jesse T. Deloe, 77, father of Bro. Jesse Deloe, printer at the Missionary Herald, departed from this life on May 11 in Washington, D. C. Funeral services were conducted on May 14. Christian sympathy is extended to the Deloe family.

UNIONTOWN, PA. Paul Miller, Jr., will deliver his first sermon as pastor of the First Brethren Church on June 12.

BASSAI, F. E. AFRICA. Kathleen Lois was born May 9 to Rev. and Mrs. Charles Taber.

ALLENTOWN, PA. John Neely, pastor, and Elmer Fehnel, of the First Brethren Church, were recently appointed to the board of directors of the Allentown Rescue Mission.



WASHINGTON, D. C. (E/P). A bill to simplify the procedure governing second-class mailing privileges for parish bulletins and official church publications has been approved by a House Post Office subcommittee in Washington. The bill eliminates a requirement that a religious group must obtain a signed statement from each member or contributor designating a portion of their gifts as a subscription payment. The bill does not affect publications which carry advertising or those for which a subscription charge is made.

CONEMAUGH, PA. The East Fellowship of Brethren Churches will convene here July 18-21. Stanley Hauser will be host pastor.

IRONTON, OHIO (E/P). "The absence of prayer in the home is more damaging than the absence of prayer in the church." So said Dr. Charles Holzer, one of southern Ohio's best-known surgeons and physicians, in an address to the Ironton Presby-Wed Club. The doctor, who operates a hospital in Gallipolis, emphasized that "religious home life is the best medicine on the shelf" and declared that the family that was really a unit could eliminate many of the worries that bring many to the need of the doctor's prescription.

WINONA LAKE, IND. Rev. and Mrs. James Marshall and family arrived May 11 on furlough from Argentina, S. A. They are making their home with Mrs. Marshall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Moore, at New Vienna, Ohio.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIF. Chaplain Wayne Flory arrived in Seattle, Wash., May 10 from Korea, en route home to California and, the Lord willing, back into the pastorate. He is a member of the Whittier Community Brethren Church, Ward Miller, pastor.

Let Us Remember Today

By Chaplain Charles L. Jenkins, Lt. (jg), USNR

Consider this a report from one of our mission fields. The people who are concerned in the report are young men. What I have to say might not be to your liking because you might be the person in question. All I ask is that you remember that these things are said because of a heartfelt sense of real need. This need is as great as any need you might find on any mission field. The young men, though, belong to this great country of ours. The need comes because too many have failed to keep the faith that has been committed unto them.

As a chaplain, I am in the midst of the military. I am surrounded by it 24 hours a day. Everything I do is geared to the possibility of an open conflict with an enemy that would try to destroy us. Yet, in my association with the all-out efforts of warfare, I am one of the few men in the military who is least concerned with its efforts. My job in the military is to keep the spiritual side of the man intact, not to let him become warped in his thinking, but make him keep a right set of values. So you see that every sermon preached in the presence of these men is given with the idea that I must help him today, for tomorrow he might be gone. From the ministry that I give, I am the link between the ever-present threat of war and the ever-present hope of peace that would give all men rest.

This is the season of remembering the dead of past wars, giving honor to those who have given their last full measure of devotion. This devotion has come from the bitter cold of Valley Forge, the conflict of brother against brother at Gettysburg, the twice-torn battlefields of Europe, the unknown atolls of the Pacific, and the bleak, wind-swept hills of Korea. On Memorial Day you will listen as some speaker recounts the deeds of the past and gives voice to the hope that next year will bring us close to the peace that all desire. As you stand there, I ask you to remember that there will be men in that crowd who will remember more than any speaker can say. They will remember the horror of battle. Their bodies will be twisted by its effect, and never will they be able to erase the agony of pain from their eyes. From the remembrance of these, I too will stand and listen, but my thoughts will be on the men, young in body and in mind, who now serve. How best, from the past, can we give them remembrance now. This is the memorial in which I am most interested.

Since there has been little letup in the number of men who have been called in for the different branches of the service, this, then, is the subject that ought to interest us. Today the draft is supplying the Army with a nucleus of fine young men. The other branches of service that depend on enlistments are likewise finding men that are of high caliber to fill their ranks. Yet, out of all this there comes the cry that we are doing an injustice to all young men by bringing them in contact with all the arts of destruction, and that we send them back as a ruined generation. We do not deny that we have disciplinary problems, and that many are of grave nature. Anyone who has lived in or around where troops are stationed will tell you that there are some of a rough nature, with little respect for anyone.

Because of the few who cause the trouble the entire military has been stigmatized as outcasts. I am not beating the drum for an acceptance of the military, but since we have it to contend with, an answer that might gain for all who serve their country a respect and a feeling that is honorable is called for.

The question today is not about the service but about the type of man who serves. From the individual soldier comes the mark of the man. Out of his actions come the impression on others—on all of us. He is to blame for the failure or to be praised for the success of the remembrance which he leaves both in the United States or in a foreign country, wherever he serves. Yet, too many times the blame that comes, often because he deserves it, should be placed not on him but on

Memorial Day 1955

By Chaplain Floyd Shiery
USA

Memorial Day in our country had its origin in the southland where, during the Civil War, many communities decorated the graves of their fallen heroes. Three years after the war, Gen. John A. Logan, commander of the G. A. R., issued an order on May 5, 1868, "that May 30, 1868, should be observed in honor of the heroes of the great war of the rebellion, for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country." May 30 seems to have been chosen because on that day the last Union volunteer was honorably discharged. The custom, started so long ago, is now observed at one time or another by all our States.

The custom of decorating the graves of loved ones and heroes is very old and practically universal. The peoples of China, the ancient Egyptians, Greeks, Romans, and even the Druids of England, all had a special day for remembering their dead. Today in almost every country of the world a special memorial day is observed. Inseparably linked with its observance has always been a definite testimony to man's belief in the future life. Among many peoples there were expressions of confidence in the resurrection of the body.

Memorial Day is a day of poignant memories as we recall "those we have loved and lost awhile." The memory of the just challenges us to be faithful to our sacred privilege from God and country. It also encourages us to "fight the good fight of faith" and bear a vigorous testimony to the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. His Gospel brings us hope as we face the grave, comforts the sorrowing heart, and relieves the bitter tears of grief. From the Saviour we receive the assurance that we shall meet again in a better land. "We sorrow not as those who have no hope."

It is actually a good thing to exercise the memory. We are frequently enjoined to do so by the Holy Scriptures. Moses said: "Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life." Our Lord said, "Do this in remembrance of me." The Apostle Paul said: "I put thee in remembrance that thou stir up the gift of God, which is in thee."

Memorial Day is, by its very nature, a pertinent reminder of one of the unique characteristics of man—his power of memory. Here is an ability that forces thoughtful people to consider the exalted position, value, dignity, and importance of the individual. We must insist on the recognition of man's true estate because it is the truth of God. The materialism and naturalism of these days relegate man to the animal kingdom. They say, "Man is the product of natural processes." God says, "We are fearfully and wonderfully made." They say, "Man is just a little higher than the monkeys." God says: "A little lower than the angels, and crowned with glory and honor." They say: "Man is a creature produced by his own ambitions and strivings." But God says: "Man is made in the image and glory of God."

Memorial Day is a plenary revelation of one of man's most tragic, humiliating, and degrading characteristics—his sin. It is not pleasant to contemplate, but it is a fact we dare not ignore—man is a sinful being. "The heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked." Man possesses a sinful nature, lives under the power of sin, and continually sins in thought, word, and deed. The consequences of these truths are ever before us in the awareness of ourselves, the wickedness of the world, death, war, destruction, and man's inhumanity to his fellow man.

The conquests of science over many of our enemies rightfully cause us to rejoice. But let us note that man has never produced one effective antidote for sin. On the other hand, many of our most remarkable discoveries of the secrets of nature have been made, utilized, and are dedicated to the cause of war. They may indeed prove to be civilization's destruction. What is our progress record in the realm of the moral and spiritual?

How refreshing, dear reader, to find our answer, not in the wisdom of man, but in God's message of grace as revealed in the Word of God. "But where sin abounded, grace did much more abound: that as sin hath reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord" (Rom. 5:20-21).

Memorial Day should encourage us to turn to God. The experiences of life enforce upon us the futility of placing our confidence in man. They truly teach us that Christ alone, His life, His wisdom, and His Word, provide the complete answer for our sins, our questions, and our deepest needs.

THE FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

The Declaration of Independence concludes with this sentence:

"And for the support of this Declaration; with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

It is well to remember that the founders of the Republic were men of strong religious convictions; that they had faith in God, and that they put "a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence."

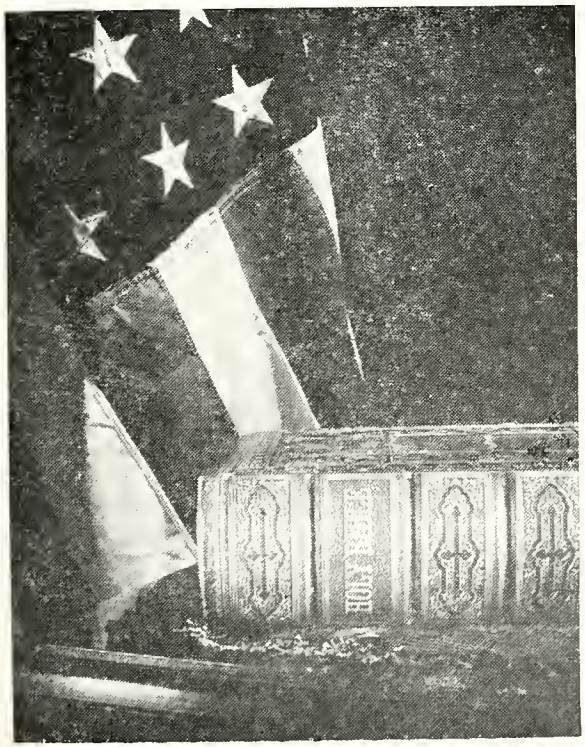
REMEMBER

THE LIVING

BY CHAPLAIN WAYNE FLORY
1st Lt., USA

THE purpose of the Memorial Day holiday is to remember and honor the dead of America's wars, which were fought for the preservation of our precious freedom and for the extension of liberty and justice for all.

However, the holiday means different things to different people. To some it means a long weekend, and to others a lost weekend. To still others it is an opportunity to rest, to complete an unfinished domestic task, or to visit relatives. There are those who will go to the beach, the mountains, or the desert in order to fish, swim, hunt, or simply to satisfy the urge for travel. Then there is that numberless host to whom it means making a quiet visit to the cemetery where lie the remains of a husband, a father, or a son who gave that "last full measure of devotion" on some foreign shore that we might not be called upon to lay down our lives here in our own land.



In the military sphere, Memorial Day means the precision and polish of parades, the placing of wreaths amid the martial music of the band, the crash of cannon, the firing of rifle volleys, and the thin, clear, measured tones of the bugle sounding taps. All this is in memory of comrades-in-arms who have fallen on the field of battle.

These men were not mere automatons who carried weapons and walked on into oblivion. They were individuals, men from the home across the street, perhaps from your own home. A man does not stop being an individual when he puts on the uniform worn by a million other men. Nor, for that matter, does his uniform affect his spiritual condition one way or the other. Some seem to feel that a uniform provides an automatic entrance into heaven if the soldier falls in battle, but such is far from the truth.

On Memorial Day, when we remember our soldier dead by placing flowers, the symbol of resurrection, on their graves, let's resolve to do our part in seeing to it that the living soldier is remembered, and that he knows about the resurrection, as well as knowing the One who was raised from the dead, before it is necessary to put flowers on his grave too. This may involve a little effort, such as going out of one's way to be friendly to a man in uniform, or even inviting him to your home for dinner, but it was effort of this type that gave the church of Christ its Simon Peter.

It appears that the armed forces will be with us in strength for a long time. Most of our sons will put in their two-year term of service, so let's be sure that they are spiritually prepared for such service before they enter into it, for in spite of all that Gospel-preaching chaplains and Christ-loving soldiers can do, it is the minority who find Christ in the service, not the majority. The siren voice of sinful pleasure, the subtle temptation to be like the crowd, and the desire for acceptance in the group will exert a powerful call upon them—a call that can only be overcome by exercise of the spiritual resources already gained from personal knowledge of Christ as Saviour and Lord of life, and by the personal experience of walking with Him, learned early in life and practiced in the family circle. Added to this must be the prevailing, persevering prayer of family, pastor, and Christian people, that these young men will live lives that are pleasing to their Lord, and that they will be given grace to speak as ambassadors for Christ.

As our minds turn this Memorial Day to those who died on the battlefield, and we consider that perhaps our sons will be called upon to do the same in the near or distant future, let's endeavor under God to be faithful in life, in word, in guidance, and in prayer that they may know Him, whom to know is life eternal, and thus be prepared to meet Him. Let us also pray that they may be used of God in that greatest of all work, the leading of the lost to Him who loved us and gave himself for us.

ALL THE WAY

The young paratrooper trainee learns many things that are intended to make him a qualified parachutist and a member of one of the United States Army's crack airborne units. However, one of the first and most important items learned is that he is "airborne—all the way." The jump school instructor calls out, "What are you men?" and the answer comes ringing back from the trainees, "Airborne!" The instructor again calls, "How far?" and the shouted answer is, "All the way." These men are saying: "We will not only undergo intensive and rugged training, but we will jump from the aircraft without quitting and, if the time comes, jump into battle behind enemy lines, or wherever needed, regardless of what it might cost."

He early learns what this committal means when he stands in the door of the aircraft and the jumpmaster tells him to "Go."

Since it is my privilege to minister the Word of Life to these high-spirited young men, and to jump with them too, I often ponder the words, "all the way," in regard to our Saviour and our Christian experience.

Our Saviour went all the way for us. He put aside His glory and came to walk among men. He suffered severe testings, was hated, and, finally, went all the way to the cross for you and me. As we think on this, we sing "Amazing Grace" and "Why Should He Love Me So?" There was no drawing back, no halfway to Calvary; He set His face as a flint to go to Golgotha. He could have saved himself. When one came to Him with news of Lazarus' death, His disciples tried to dissuade Him from going to Bethany, to save himself. Certain Greeks came to Him during the last Passover and seemingly provided Him an opportunity to slip out of the picture inconspicuously, to save himself. In Gethsemane His decision was the same, and on the cross He refused to come down in order to save himself.

He offers no halfway salvation to those who put their faith in Him today. We can know that our sins are washed away, and that we stand complete in our Lord's righteousness. Heaven is most assuredly ours and the confidence of the dying Samuel Rutherford can be ours too. As he approached his homegoing, he wrote:

"The sands of time are sinking,
The dawn of heaven breaks,
The summer morn I've sighed for—
The fair, sweet morn awakes.
Dark, dark hath been the midnight,
But day-spring is at hand,
And glory—glory dwelleth,
In Immanuel's Land."

As we serve the living God and wait for His Son from heaven, how sweet it is to know that "all the way our Saviour leads." What have we to ask beside?

We, as Christians, must be willing to "go all the way," too. The heart of the beloved apostle to the gentiles is revealed in this matter in Acts 20:24. Paul, addressing the Ephesian elders, recounts his work among them and lays bare his heart. He had been faithful in that he had held nothing back; he had preached the whole counsel of God. His life was one of toil, sacrifice, and suffering. However, the striking thing to me is that he not only could tell of past experiences, but that he still had the same spirit of going all the way for the Lord Jesus. As he spoke of not knowing what the future held in the way of further suffering for Christ, he said: "But none of these things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God" (Acts 20:24).

The Christian life is not a once-for-all dedication of life at some given point or at a meeting where we sing, "All to Jesus I Surrender," or, "My All on the Altar Is Laid," but it is and must be a day-by-day decision to be completely yielded to Him. How difficult it is! How our souls draw back and shrink at times! Do we go all the way with our time, our talents, our testimony, our money?

Many of other days have known what it means to go all the way for our Saviour. William Carey had his heart set to go to India with the blessed gospel message. However, the obstacles were so great that it would have been far easier, and, some would say wiser, to simply call the door closed and forget the call of God to that needy land. The governmental policy was contrary to his desires. There was the financial need, the unsympathetic Christians, and, perhaps worst of all, an expectant wife with three little children who at first flatly refused to venture forth. How could she go—leave home and take these little ones into the vast unknown? How could she brave the ocean to live among strangers in a distant land. The children, shedding tears no doubt joined the scene and clung to their father.

Eventually, however, Mrs. Carey did go with her husband, but she paid the price of 12 years of mental affliction for embarking on this missionary adventure. Despite all, Carey wrote to his father that he must leave for India as "I have set my hand to the plough."

Once in India, conditions were no better; he wrote: "I am much dejected . . . I am in a strange land, alone, no Christian friends, a large family, and nothing to supply their wants . . . I am dejected." Again he wrote: ". . . very much dejected all day. Have no relish for anything of the world, yet am swallowed up in its cares. Towards evening had a pleasant view of the all-sufficiency of God, and the stability of His promises, which much relieved my

The Spirit of

SACRIFICE

By 1st Lt. Harold F. Morr, USAF
Hospital Chaplain

The word "sacrifice" is familiar to all of us. Even in baseball, when a batter makes an intentional out so that his teammate may advance another base, we call that a sacrifice. Sacrifice is necessary in every department of this complex life. What we primarily mean by sacrifice is the giving up of something for a purpose or a cause that seems worthwhile. Sacrifice is "giving." This is the opposite of selfishness, which is "getting."

The battlefield is often the scene of great sacrifice. The struggle for independence demanded that great sacrifices be made for the cause of freedom. Freedom-loving colonists risked capture, imprisonment, and death. They fought with their fortunes. They worked extra hard to produce for the revolution. Their only desire was to sacrifice to be free.

The war between the North and the South showed a great spirit of sacrifice. Both sides were willing to sacrifice for the good of their cause. All these sacrifices were for the good of the group without thought of personal profit.

Our fathers crossed the ocean wild to sacrifice their health, their wealth, and their lives to stop the aggression of a demonic leader causing World War I.

Some of our closest friends were called upon to endure the blazing sun of North Africa, to risk their lives to land on Italy; they braved the bullets and fought for the Normandy beachhead with a sacrifice of thousands of lives. This sacrifice was for freedom, for protection from the satanic rulers of aggression.

Our brothers crossed the Pacific to quiet the storming fanatics of the "Rising Sun." They pushed through infested jungles, contacting deadly diseases, crossing sticky swamps, on to the height of Iwo Jima and then to the mainland of Japan. In their trail they left behind a human chain of broken limbs, diseased and dead bodies. These are the men who truly know the price of victory—the spirit of sacrifice.

But we also fought a people who were willing to sacrifice. Remember the suicide planes with their misguided pilots believing it an honor to die for their country. Thus one must examine his motives and have the proper goal in order to make the right sacrifice. The spirit of sacrifice is dangerous when blindly guided people sacrifice for an improper cause.

The Communist ideology and philosophy is constantly employing the spirit of sacrifice as a tool to carve out their desired objectives. Red officials are sacrificing their pleasures to speedily advance their program of aggression. The Communists sacrifice for their cause night after night, week after week, going to meetings, distributing literature, enduring ridicule. They risk losing their jobs, going to jail, and sacrifice life itself for this atheistic philosophy.

The Reds are sacrificing for a way of life diametrically opposed to our way.

Charles Malik, the Lebanese representative to the United Nations, is a professing Christian. As quoted by the Lutheran Messenger, Mr. Malik rebukes Americans as follows:

"You can never defeat the Russians on their own ground. I know Communist leaders. Most of them do not smoke. They do not drink. They work 16 hours a day. However misguided, they are utterly devoted to their cause. That is not true of most Christians that I know.

"Why do you in America not pay the price? Why do you not press the battle to victory with the weapon that God has given you to win: the heritage of the Christian faith?"

The best sacrifice our citizens can make for our country is to inculcate the Christian message into every youth. By doing this, the tremendous sacrifices of the past will not have been in vain.

As one views the white crosses that are neatly planted row upon row, mile upon mile, each representing the supreme sacrifice of one of our fellow men, he realizes that freedom cost a tremendous price. In comparison to this one sees only a few who have laid down their life for the cause of freedom from sin. A wreath will be placed upon the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, giving honor to all who gave their lives. May we also take off our hats to those who have made great sacrifices for the cause of Christ.

We must not forget Argonne Forest and Belleau Wood, nor Corregidor, Iwo Jima, and Heartbreak Ridge. We must still recruit many to protect these costly victories.

Let us also not forget the unsung heroes who gave their lives to take the Gospel of peace to the dark regions. Let us give honor to the great spiritual leaders of our early church who feared not man or beast and bravely died for our spiritual heritage.

Then the ultimate apex of all suffering draws our attention to the cross of Christ. This is more wonderful than man dying for his country. It is greater than man dying for God. This is God experiencing death for man.

Memorial Day is a time for remembering. As we remember, may we accept the spirit of sacrifice—not only for our country but also for our Christ.

the parents and home that he comes from. No one realizes the effect of the home on a man until he sees him away from that home. He can stand or fall because of it.

When a young man has had the benefit of the proper home training, a personal interest given to him by parents, then in most cases you see a young man that stands as a credit to his country. When this is lacking, you often see one who turns the credit to discredit for us all. This Memorial Day remember also our young men who now serve. Let us point them to a nation that will stand because its young men and women are ready to face anything, for they have been taught the truth. This truth is found in many ways, but the most important way is through the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ. In Christ we have a memorial written in His own blood so that men might live in truth and freedom.

Parents, if you could be the silent visitor in my office for one day, you would leave with hearts that are broken. I see those men that have come to their wits' end before they turn to the hope of God through Christ. The startling fact is that those young men have come from a home where church attendance has been encouraged, where the name of God and Christ is not a stranger, where a Bible rests and sometimes is used. Then what is the reason that from the files of the courts-martial come the staggering facts that many men who have come from homes which have been called Christian are the ones that find themselves in the brigs and military jails of our land?

There is only one answer: the things that they were taught they accepted without conviction, or saw no living example set for them in the parents. The very faith that the parents encouraged their child to embrace, they themselves did not. The hope of Christ that they held out to the child was something strange to them. I can hear you say that this is not true in my home; yet there have been some of you that have given the faith to your children without love and compassion.

A young marine came into my office and said that he could not be a Christian and be a marine. When I asked him why, the answer was that his parents had told him so. They had disowned him because he left home to join the service. Parents! We understand that no one wants their own flesh and blood to be put in a position of danger, the place where military men find themselves, but you are lacking in love and depth of faith when you send off your sons with this type of feeling.

After our talk the young man left. I had given him the plan of salvation, the same one that his parents had given. The only difference was that this time he heard it in love rather than the vindictive manner of the parents. He knows now that the only way that you cannot be a Christian is to reject the gift of God's grace, Jesus Christ. The same marine came back the other day and said: "Chaplain, I have accepted Christ as my Saviour." Now he knows that he can serve both God and country. Parents! Give to your young man that hope that will make him stand in the face of all temptations that he will face, but give it to him in the attitude of love.

On this Memorial Day, may we all give ourselves over to the business of seeking the truth concerning God's grace. When your boy has to go, send him with the armor of God fitted by the love of trusting parents. Make a nation full of Christ-saved parents and we shall have a nation that is full of spiritually correct men.

mind; and as I walked home in the night, was enabled to roll my soul and all my cares in some measure on God. . . . What a mercy it is to have a God!"

More was to come—untrue friends and the death of loved ones—but Carey stayed—went all the way for Christ. May we have the same heart.

May our blessed Saviour be more than life to each one of us. If He is, we will say with the same Rutherford:

"Oh, Christ, He is the fountain—
The deep, sweet well of love!
The streams on earth I've tasted,
More deep I'll drink above.
There, to an ocean fulness,
His mercy doth expand,
And glory—glory dwelleth,
In Immanuel's Land.

The bride eyes not her garment,
But her dear bridegroom's face:
I will not gaze at glory,
But on the King of Grace;
Not at the crown He giveth,
But on His pierced hand—
The Lamb is all the glory

HONOR ROLL

Is your church listed below? If not, the person who sends in the Sunday-school order from your church failed to send the order in on time. Note, please, that three-fourths of our churches have or will have sent in late orders. This makes for a real problem for your Herald staff, for when this number of orders come in within one month of the time when the new quarter will begin, it overburdens the secretaries and results in late deliveries.

The aim of the Missionary Herald is to deliver to your church the next quarter's Sunday-school material six weeks to one month in advance of the new quarter. The National Sunday School Board recommends that teachers should have their quarterlies one month in advance of the new quarter, and the Missionary Herald is giving this kind of service. However, late orders stymie this program. Remember, it is just about six weeks until the October-December orders should start coming in, and three-fourths of the churches have not even sent in for the July-September quarter. Pastors and secretaries, please send your orders in the first few weeks of each new quarter for the next quarter.

We honor the pastors and secretaries of the following churches who are assisting us in the missionary work we are doing for the Lord Jesus.

GROWING PAINS

Whether or not there are such pains scientifically seems to be a matter of debate, but I had them as a boy. Our entire National Fellowship of Brethren Churches and all the affiliated groups have them. In my humble judgment we have grown rapidly in every expanse of our work, and when there is rapid growth, there are the associated challenges. Stated in another way, "Success is our greatest problem."

No one anticipated such rapid growth in Grace Seminary and College. Who would have guessed a few years ago that we would have so many home-mission churches across America? It's been a joy to us to see the strides being made by the Brethren Missionary Herald Company. Then in the Sunday school, youth work, Sisterhood of Mary and Martha, Boys Clubs, Women's Missionary Council, and laymen's groups we see those happy evidences of rapid growth. Growing pains? Yes; they are sure to come. As I see the Brethren churches in the United States expanding their programs and with new buildings standing everywhere—we do have growing pains.

What about our activities in foreign lands? With the national church in Argentina making such a determined effort at full self-support, with the church in Brazil now planning to supply her own church buildings, with the church in Hawaii fully supplying her own needs, with the concentrated effort on the part of our Mexican Mission to supply her own national ministry, with our one testimony in France dedicated to growing in a very indifferent land, and with our church in Africa making strides and having needs that stagger us—we have growing pains.

Growing pains are not fatal, neither do they give any injury—not the kind I am talking about. They are really good for us; they tell us we are growing and that the growth is rapid.

As members and affiliates of our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches we must stand or fall together. All of our needs are common needs. To meet these needs all of us will need to do all we can to help all the others of us.

Let's all pray for all of us. I'm confirmed in the belief that faithful, believing prayer is our greatest need. It is trite to say, "Pray for us," but it is terribly urgent.

Let's all pay for all of us. I'm sure the present needs evidenced by these growing pains cannot be met by our present scale of paying to the Lord's work. As much as a tithe would do it, but we are not all tithing. Consistent, faithful, sacrificial giving will do it, but we are not all doing consistently and faithfully this sacrificial giving. Drives and financial promotional plans may help, at least in the case of the spasmodic giver, but our needs will only be met when all of us demonstrate a new dedication to Bibical support of the Lord's work.

Let's all speak good of all of us. I am sure we have a minimum of speaking ill of our brethren, but are we speaking good? At a time when we are all having these aching growing pains, there is grave danger that in promoting our special interest we shall speak ill, at least think ill, of our fellow laborers in our closely affiliated organizations. It would not be impossible for us to have sometimes just a little of jealousy and envy. The Scripture speaks so clearly of this in Philippians 2:4: "Look not every man on his own things [selfishly], but every man also on the things of others [unselfishly]." Let's rejoice in those things committed to our care, but rejoice also in those things which are committed to others.

Our growing pains are a blessing. They speak of the urgent needs in our expansion and these urgent needs can only be met by all of us. We can all do much more than we are doing. We will meet these needs if we all do the very limit of our responsibilities as the Lord reveals them to us. As we experience these growing pains, let's be extremely careful that we don't let envy, jealousy, or any root of bitterness take hold in us. Then our growing pains will yield a greater blessing.

MAY WE SAY "THANK YOU"

The missionary rallies—our newest plan of missionary visitation during the four-month period especially given to foreign-mission emphasis—have come to a successful close. We desire to take this opportunity to express our sincere thanks to all who had a part—to each district of our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, to each pastor and the members of his congregation, to each one who had a part in the entertainment of the speakers, to each rally speaker. This series of rallies began in southern California on February 6 and continued through all districts, finishing on May 30 in the Midwest District. The rallies were so well received and brought such blessing to each district that the plan will be followed in future years. The details for next year will be ready for announcement very soon.

MRS. FOSTER IMPROVES

We are very happy to report to you that there is a decided improvement in the health condition of Mrs. Rose Foster, who resides in the Brethren Missionary Residence at Winona Lake, Ind. For several months Mrs. Foster had not been feeling well; the crisis came in early March when it was necessary for her to spend about four weeks in the hospital. Following her return home the improvement was very slow. In the last few days we note remarkable progress. She is now able to be out to the table again for meals. We know that thousands of friends will join with us in prayer that she may very quickly be restored to the health and strength which will make it possible for her to be among us in her greatly appreciated ministry.

TO SAO PAULO AND HOME AGAIN

(Editor's Note—Two of our missionaries in Brazil, John Zielasko from Icoraci, and Edward Miller from Macapa, attended the sessions of the Seventh World Congress on Evangelism sponsored by Youth for Christ International at Sao Paulo, Brazil, from April 17 to 24. Both men have reported concerning the real spiritual feast which was their experience, as well as the opportunities for witnessing. Following their return to Icoraci and Macapa, respectively, accompanied by one of the Youth for Christ evangelists, the Lord granted an extension of the Sao Paulo blessings upon both of these areas of our work. We are happy to share with you the news which came to us from Brother Zielasko.)

It Was Great!

We truly enjoyed a real spiritual feast at the Youth for Christ Congress. Words will never be able to express the gratitude of my heart for the privilege and the glorious opportunity that our Board gave to Eddie and me of being in on the miracle that took place in Sao Paulo. We have been spiritually refreshed and have returned to our work with a clearer vision of this great but needy land. I feel confident that Brazil is the missionary opportunity of today.

Eddie and I flew down the coast and we stopped in Fortaleza, Recife, and Rio de Janeiro. Thus we had the opportunity to visit other missions, publishing houses, bookstores, and become better acquainted with Brazil itself.

Street Meetings

The congress was successful in spite of attempts by Catholic leaders to hinder the meetings—they even held a Catholic congress the same week. People came to Christ during the week of the congress; in every meeting souls were saved. I was impressed with the street meetings. Every night thousands would gather about 9:30 in front of a theater in the heart of Sao Paulo and they would listen to music and the Gospel. The meetings continued until midnight some nights, with the crowds changing slowly as different evangelists preached. Every night hundreds of men stepped forward to receive Jesus Christ. It was one of the most thrilling and most amazing sights I have ever seen.

Incidents from one meeting will help to explain what I mean. On Tuesday night there was a choir of about 100 voices and other special music present for the street meeting. Following the message by the Youth for Christ director from Dayton, Ohio, at least 30 men stepped forward to accept Christ as personal Saviour when the invitation was given. They were taken aside and dealt with. Just about that time more special music arrived and Dr. Mervin Rosell preached. The corner was packed with people and I never saw a crowd of people pay such close attention to a street meeting. At the invitation scores of men moved forward and they meant business with the Lord. Among them were a university professor and a student. Each gave a public confession over the loudspeaker. Dr. Rosell had used an illustration about professors and students finding Christ, and right before our eyes we say that Christ was the answer for the hungry hearts of Brazilian professors and students also.

We Had a Part

Eddie was interpreter for Hal Webb, from the Philadelphia Youth for Christ, and I preached every night in a little church in the suburbs of the city. God blessed, souls were saved, and churches were revived. The people are receiving with open hearts the message of salvation by grace through faith, but it won't last forever and I am so happy that the Brethren Church is having a part in the harvest of souls—in Macapa, in Icoraci, and for the short time in Sao Paulo. Would to God that more were ready to come.

Back Home

Bro. Hal Webb returned with us to the Amazon Valley for meetings in Icoraci and then in Macapa. We didn't have time to prepare for the meetings, but God has wonderfully blessed. Our people are just so thrilled and happy as a result of the services that they can't wait until it will be possible to hold another evangelistic campaign. We held six nightly services with an average attendance of 130 each night. We started out with 62 the first night and went up to 200 on the last night. The church just won't hold any more, so any future campaigns will have to be held elsewhere.

Were there any decisions? Yes; praise the Lord! There were 30 first-time decisions and four rededications—about half were boys and girls, but many adults were under deep conviction and if it had been possible to extend the meetings I feel sure others would have decided for Christ. The evangelist won the hearts of our people and has been a spiritual tonic for the work here in Icoraci. Working through an interpreter can be difficult, but it didn't seem to hinder the spirit of our meetings at all.

Brother Webb has now gone to Macapa for a week of meetings with Bro. Eddie Miller. I am sure that blessings are bound to fall upon the Macapa church as a result of these services, just as we here in Icoraci have been blessed.

A Postscript

After the week of meetings in Macapa, one more service with the evangelist was held in Icoraci before his departure from the Amazon Valley. It was in the nature of a farewell for him with a special program planned by the young people. At the close of the service we had the joy of seeing five come forward—three first-time decisions and two rededications—to bring the total to 39. Praise the Lord for these meetings!

Missionary Movements

Samarins to Take Early Furlough—

The William Samarin family, now in their first term of service in French Equatorial Africa, had planned to return to the States on furlough in August of this year. A cable just received from the field, however, recommends an early furlough for the Samarins because of a health problem on the part of Mrs. Samarin. The authorization has been granted and the Samarins will fly from Africa to Los Angeles, Calif., as soon as the bookings can be verified. It is very probable that they may be in the States very shortly after you receive this issue of the Herald. There is a possibility that they will leave Bangui, Africa, in the early morning of June 5 and arrive in Los Angeles in the evening of June 8, having changed planes only in Paris, France, and New York City. The Samarins will have residence while on furlough at Berkeley, Calif., near the parents of Mrs. Samarin. Pray for the family, especially for the healing of Mrs. Samarin.

Goodmans to Return to Africa—

There is reason for great thanksgiving to God in the fact that little Anne Goodman has so recovered her health that her attending doctor recommends that she may return to Africa. This is a joy to all of us, especially to the thousands who have remembered her in prayer, but to none is the joy greater than to her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Marvin L. Goodman, Jr. The Goodmans are very anxious to return to Africa for their third term of service. Our Board of Trustees has approved their return pending the usual physical examinations for all members of the family. Applications have been made to the French government for permission to reenter French Equatorial Africa. The Goodmans did have this permission extended to them for a period of 18 months, but that period of time elapsed before there was clearance for their return. We doubt that there will be any difficulty in securing this permission again, but we ask that you pray earnestly with us that all problems related to their return to Africa may be quickly solved.

It will be remembered that little Anne Goodman, at the age of three, was stricken with polio while on the field in Africa. The family flew to the United States, where careful and efficient medical and surgical care have been given. The attending specialist now says: "I feel that it will be perfectly safe for her to go away to Africa and be away from three to five years." The three to five years would be the approximate time before the next furlough period, hence any further care which is needed may be given during the furlough year.

Sheldon Return Delayed—

Rev. and Mrs. C. B. Sheldon, now completing their year of furlough in the United States, probably will be delayed in returning to their field of service in French Equatorial Africa. It may be late summer or early fall before they return.

The Sheldons have served well in Africa for many years, Brother Sheldon having begun his missionary service in 1922 and Mrs. Sheldon in 1924. They were married in Africa in 1926. For many years their field of service has been in the Bellevue area, where Brother Sheldon had the spiritual care of some 75,000 people. He was, of course, assisted in this by national leadership and by missionaries living in that district who had other primary responsibilities. Will you please pray with us that they may soon return to Africa, the place that is "home, sweet home" to them?

Munn Return Delayed—

Some months ago Miss Marybeth Munn completed her year of furlough in the United States. She purposes to return to the field to which God has called her in French Equatorial Africa, but her return will be delayed—possibly until fall. Miss Munn has completed one term of service in our field and has been used very largely in a physical and spiritual ministry to the 20,000 lepers in our section of Africa. Please pray with us and with Miss Munn that she may soon return to her work in Africa where she is so greatly needed.

Marshalls on First Furlough—

Rev. and Mrs. James Marshall and three sons arrived in New York on May 11 for their first furlough, having spent five years in missionary service in Argentina. Their trip was by plane from Buenos Aires to New York and they report a pleasant trip. During furlough the Marshalls will have their residence in the community of New Vienna, Ohio, where Mrs. Marshall's parents reside. Rev. and Mrs. Donald Bishop and family have assumed the responsibilities left by the Marshalls at Corral de Bustos, Argentina.

Missionary Furlough Schedule—

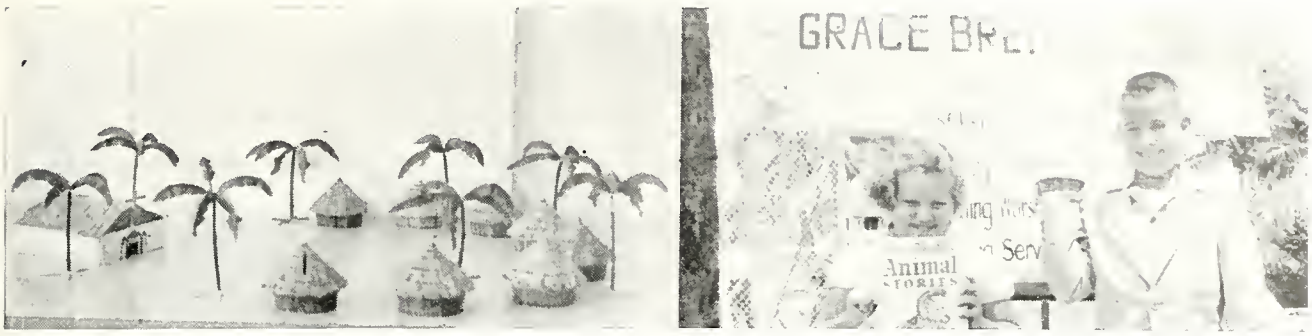
According to present plans, the following missionary families will be due in the United States on furlough during the coming months:

Misses Ruth Kent and Marie Mishler are due to arrive June 21 from Africa.

Rev. and Mrs. Harold Dunning and family are due to arrive July 5 from Africa.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred Fogle and family are due to arrive July 5 from France.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Hill and family are due to arrive August 30 from Africa.



Rev. and Mrs. Donald Miller and family are due to arrive August 30 from Africa.

Rev. and Mrs. John Zielasko and family are due to arrive in late August from Brazil.

James Paul Dowdy, Jr., is due to arrive in late August from Argentina in time to get settled before entering Grace College as a student in September. Rev. and Mrs. J. Paul Dowdy and the two younger sons expect to arrive on furlough from Argentina in December.

MISSION HUTS GET RESULTS!

By Ralph Colburn, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

It is a brandnew church. This was our first missionary offering. We didn't know what to expect, but we distributed missionary hut banks in February and encouraged the boys and girls and families to fill them up.

We offered a small prize to the first boy or girl who brought back a bank that was chuck full of money. Eddie and Linda Yoder brought that one in, about the end of March. It weighed four and one-half pounds and contained $5.83, over $4.50 of which was in pennies!

On Easter Sunday many more banks were brought in and we built a hut village, complete with a little chapel constructed by one of the boys. When we counted the total from the banks up through that day, it was $52.69! In the next few weeks more huts came back, one of them containing $17.46, all in coins. So far the huts alone have brought in over $76 and some of them are being refilled! We expect the hut total to come close to $100 and our entire foreign-mission offering to top $750. Yes; those hut banks helped a lot! They made giving more fun for the boys and girls, too!

OFFERING REPORTS

The so-called Easter offering reports to be counted as a part of the Easter offering must be received in our office not later than June 30, 1955. Financial report blanks for use in reporting have been sent to all pastors and churches. Be sure to contact our foreign-mission office if you did not receive your supply.

Send all reports to the foreign-mission office, addressing them as follows: Miss Ruth E. Reddick, P. O. Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind. Please make all checks, money orders, etc., payable to The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church.

Since our Foreign Missionary Society is a corporation we must maintain a list of the names and addresses of the members of our Society. Annual membership in our Society for the year 1956 will be based upon the gifts made by our Brethren people during the year 1955. Therefore, for an individual to be entitled to such membership in our Society for 1956, we must receive his gift of $5 or more before the close of the calendar year—that is, by or before December 31, 1955.

Each year we face some problems with respect to membership in our Society on the part of individuals who made gifts through their local church during the current year, but for some reason the local church failed to send such a report to our office until after that current year. Therefore, we must emphasize that membership for any one year is based on the gifts given to our Society and received in our office during the former calendar year.

It is too early as yet to make any estimates as to our total offering for this Easter season which has just closed. We have had some very excellent reports from congregations where there has been from a 100-percent to a 300-percent increase in foreign-mission giving. We are conscious of the fact that there will be some congregations where there have been losses. We believe that God will supply all of our needs. He may not supply all of those things which we believe to be our needs. We will need to tailor our expenditures to meet our income, since we have no general fund reserves sufficient to underwrite any extensive losses. Have we done all that God would have us do this year for foreign missions?

OPERATION DODGE

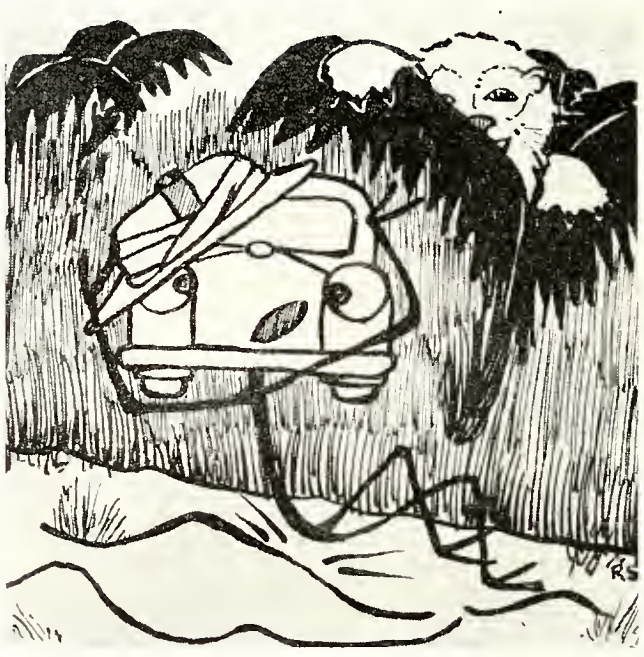
Oh, me! Oh, me! Won't they ever let me rest a minute to rub my bumps? Pounding on! Pounding on! Over these things they call roads. The only relief from the everlasting monotony of the bumps is when you hit a harder bump.

Ouch! That was the worst one yet. And they tell me we are just getting started toward Oubangui-Chari. If this is a sample—ouch! Oh, take me back to the good old U. S. A., and I'll never again have a hankering for the romance of Africa.

AT LAST—YALOKE—HOME!



See them crowding around to admire me! Listen to their remarks!

"That one is surely built to take it!" "One-ton chassis cut to three-quarter-ton length." "Heavy duty springs." "Seven-fifty heavy-duty tires all around." "Big-truck transmission with creeper gear for going onto the barges." "That pickup will take African roads all right."

Yes, sir! We don't let anything stop us—water across the road for several kilometers with no way to know where the ruts and the mudholes were, but we just kept coming right along; ruts over a foot deep; rocks in the middle of the road and one of them got in the way and bent my tie rod, but we just kept coming right along; two bridges out and not a way to get across, so we took the long road around and just kept coming right along.

Look at all the children; Oh, so this is where the school is located for the children of missionaries! Just wait until I get a chance to take them for a ride. We'll have loads of fun. Kids appreciate a he-man truck with lots of zip.

Oh, so that one is my boss! I guess he must like me, for they say he went to a lot of work to clear all the luggage out of the stall in the garage to make a place for me. But he made one remark that cut deep. Before we were even well-acquainted he called attention to the one thing that is lacking about me—a rear bumper. I was already self-conscious about it, and after his remark my tailpipe hung between my wheels all the way to the garage.

—Drawn by Mrs. William (Ruth) Samarin.

I am not sure I am going to like him, but it is my appointed job to carry him on his medical trips in our African mission. From all I hear he has a great big job. After all, the important part is not whether I like him or not; it is to do my part faithfully to help him do his duty as a medical missionary.

I am going to do my bit to make this mission GO. And perhaps I may be able to put some pep into the old codger.

Yours faithfully,
OPERATION DODGE.

BADI'S VICTORY

By Mrs. William Samarin, Bellevue, Africa

Badi stood outside the office waiting to buy a primer. My first thought as I looked at his twisted body was, "Oh, what a shame!" Born with physical deformities and ill with an incurable disease that made him periodically senseless, he was a most pitiful creature. Those of his family were not cruel to him, but, as in most cases like this, he was ignored. Only his mother seemed to care if he was housed or fed. His hair was never cut and soap never touched his body or loincloth.

But Badi had a bright mind. He attended the men's reading class and was doing well. He was a Christian! He had found One—the Lord Jesus Christ—who loved and cared for him.

Early in November he fell into the little cooking fire while he was ill. Not realizing the danger, his mother nursed him. When they brought him to the dispensary, his burns were infected and his jaws soon closed tight with lockjaw. Early the next morning Badi left this body of illness and went on to eternal perfection.

When they brought word that he was gone, my heart was filled with awe. Badi, the imperfect, was now perfect. Badi, who had never worn clothes, was now clothed in glory. Badi, the unloved, was now with his Saviour.

Very few came to the funeral. His grave was shallow; only his mother wept. Yet, as his black pastor wisely said: "It is the end of sorrow and the beginning of joy for Badi."

"O death, where is thy sting?
O grave, where is thy victory?"

Jottings From Bangui

We praise the Lord for His many blessings to us! "Great is thy faithfulness."

The Easter morning sunrise service was held on the site where our new chapel will be located on the outskirts of Bangui. The Lord stayed the rain until after the service. Hundreds were there to praise our risen Lord and Saviour. The message from I Corinthians 15 made us realize anew how much the resurrection of Jesus Christ means to the Christians.

At 10:30 on Easter morning Mr. Jobson conducted the service in the French church in Bangui. Most of the Europeans were present and many of the French-educated Africans. We are happy for this additional avenue of service. Pray that our testimony for the Lord will be effective as we grasp the many opportunities in this city.

We praise the Lord for the two women who are baptized Roman Catholics, but who recently made a public confession of the Lord as Saviour. They are now enrolled in the pre-baptismal class.

There is a great need in Bangui for a worker among the young people. There are 20 Protestant boys in the college for whom we should do something. Also there is a growing community of young Europeans. Pray that the Lord will raise up a consecrated young man for this needy work.

Several of the Christian young men are now enrolled in the elementary Bible school being taught by Mr. Jobson and Pastor Noel. Pray that some of these may be able to continue their training at the Bible Institute next year.

Classes for smaller boys and girls are being held daily in the garage, for as yet we do not have any classrooms. In one of the devotional services for these boys and girls I gave the invitation and 12 of them accepted the Lord for the first time. Most of these children attend the junior church on Sunday.

Two young men are now in training at Yaloke from the Bangui church. They are attending the school preparing to be teachers of children's classes in the Bangui church. Pray for these young men, that they will be faithful and return to us for these classes.

The members of the WMC hold their meetings in the French church in the city. There are some very good leaders in the group, and these women are now starting classes for women in their own villages. We also have a Bible class for these leaders every Wednesday and at the present we are teaching from the Book of Genesis. Continue to pray for the work among the women. Mrs. Balzer is again teaching one of the women's pre-baptismal classes.

Pray for Pastor Noel and the eight leaders in the villages. Services are held morning and evening for the believers. Pray that the Christians may have a greater desire to pray and read God's Word, also that they may continue to memorize the Bible verses.

The bookstore was opened the middle of March and there have been many opportunities to witness for the Lord to Mohammedans, Roman Catholics, and pagans. We sell the Scriptures in French, in the local languages, and in Sango, the trade language. The records being furnished by Gospel Recordings are much in demand.

Pray that we your servants for Christ's sake may be faithful to our ministry.—Mrs. Orville D. Jobson.

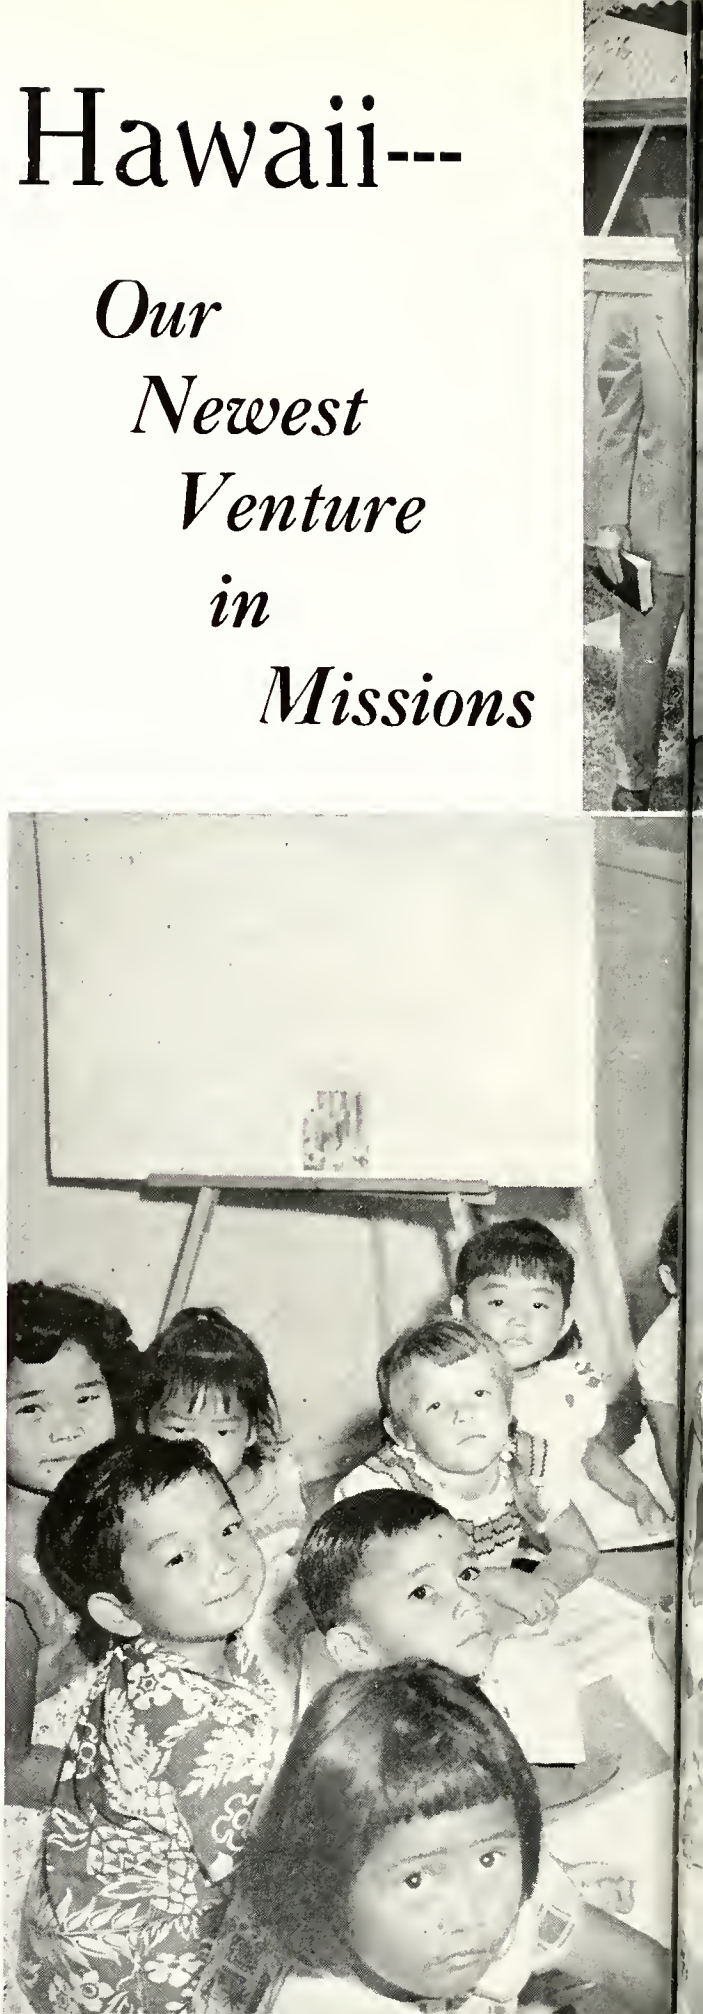
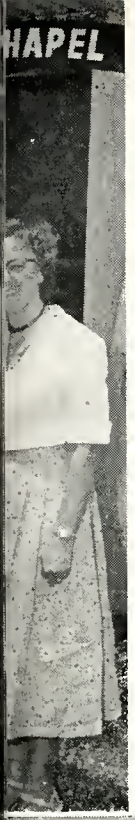
Hawaii---

Our Newest Venture in Missions

HAWAII has been probably thought of by the most of us as a paradise—a Garden of Eden—a beautiful vacation land for the very rich. With the bombings at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, the Hawaiian Islands leaped into prominence. During the war and during the years which have followed, great numbers of United States service personnel have been stationed in the Islands, especially in the Honolulu area.



Our gospel testimony in Honolulu was established by one of these servicemen and his wife. These were T/Sgt. and Mrs. Edwin J. Jones, who had only a short time before come to know the Lord through the ministry of our Seal Beach, Calif., church. Upon their arrival in the Islands they began to talk to those they met about the Lord. Bible classes and then a Sunday school were the results. It was about this time that they sent a letter to the Brethren Missionary Herald Company, asking for literature and pleading for assistance, as far as a preaching ministry was concerned, in relation to the work they were establishing. The Joneses would naturally, under military direction, be moved from the Islands in the not far distant future and they were anxious that other leaders be found for the work. This letter was given to our Brethren foreign-mission office and, following that, events moved rapidly. A first group was baptized by Brother Jones before his work there was completed, and many effective contacts were made.



Rev. and Mrs. Foster Tresise answered the appeal which was made by the Foreign Missionary Society for workers who would be willing to go to Honolulu and undertake the further development of the testimony in the Islands. It was on May 8, 1953, that they flew from Los Angeles to Honolulu. After the Tresises had been there for just a few weeks, Uncle Sam called the Joneses to other responsibilities and Brother and Sister Tresise came into full leadership of our work in Honolulu. The blessing of the Lord has been very evident from the first. Quite a large number have accepted Christ and a group of them have followed the Lord in Christian baptism by triune immersion.

A church has been organized which has been self-supporting from the very beginning. This church carries on a full schedule of services similiar to those of our churches in the homeland and the attendance is most commendable. Brother and Sister Tresise have also undertaken their responsibilities on a self-support basis and the Lord has very graciously supplied regular employment for Brother Tresise. Our work in Honolulu, therefore, has been thus far established and is being maintained at a very minimum cost as far as foreign-mission funds are concerned. It is our purpose to continue the work in Honolulu on this basis insofar as possible, standing with and by the believers there and in every way assisting them to help themselves in the further development of the program of evangelization which they have undertaken.

Our work here is actually located some eight or ten miles from downtown Honolulu in that which was a military housing area, called the "Red Hill" district, overlooking Pearl Harbor. Those in the Islands desiring to attend services at Grace Chapel should contact Rev. Foster Tresise, 2377 E. Manoa Rd., Honolulu, T. H., for instructions as to how to find the location. Brother and Sister Tresise are most anxious for the assistance of any folks interested even if they will be living only temporarily in the Honolulu area.

We do not know how rapidly expansion can come in this field, especially if it is maintained on a self-support

Pictures—We are greatly indebted to Lt. Comdr. Galen Richardson, a member of our Washington, D. C., church, for these pictures of our work in Honolulu.

basis. Economic conditions on the Islands fluctuate very greatly and we do not want to send additional families there until there seems to be some stabilization of the employment possibilities. Of one thing we are sure, however, and that is there is a great field of opportunity. There are about 225,000 people living in the Honolulu area and a total of about 400,000 permanent residents in the Islands. In addition to all of these are the large number of United States military personnel living in the Islands, usually for rather short periods of time. There are other fine evangelical testimonies in the Hawaiian Islands, and we are cooperating fully with them. But, with all that all of us can do, there is still not sufficient true evangelical testimony to complete the job in this great center of population. Our testimony in Honolulu especially needs your prayer support, that the Lord will enable them to help themselves in expanding the program of witness and testimony in many other areas.

Just as we were preparing this material as the fourth in a series of historical sketches of our six mission fields, we received an up-to-date report of activities from Brother Tresise which we want to share with you in the following paragraphs.

"Sunday a week ago (May 1) we broke our record in Sunday school with an attendance of 71 and last Sunday (May 8), when the classes were dismissed for study, we had tied the former attendance. Then, with five who came in late, we had a total attendance of 76. In today's service (May 15) we saw another record broken with an attendance of 45 in the morning worship service. With this we have a wonderful spirit of unity and fellowship that is glorious to behold.

"Almost weekly we are seeing salvation, but this is wholly by personal work as we visit in the homes. We see few public decisions in the regular services, but God is giving us converts who are publicly confessing Christ by witnessing to others, which to me is more to be desired. God is good in that He is allowing us to see a greater response on the part of the people here.

"God thrills my heart as I see families traveling quite a distance week after week to worship with us regularly, considering this their church home. Some make great sacrifice in attending every service, bringing their children with them and in the evening putting them to bed on the floor while they feed upon the Word of God for their own souls.

"God has given us some real converts. I always make it a point not to talk about any other group, but only to present the Word of God and the claims of Christ. God has led certain to forsake the emptiness of the former and to subscribe to the things of Christ and reality. The thing that characterizes our people here is, I believe, their faith in the Word—accepting and believing the things of God. In this we are seeing the power of God of Romans 1:16 experienced in their lives.

"Pray that the Lord will keep us in the place of complete yieldedness and dependence upon Him. Pray that the ministry of the Word might be in the power of the Spirit, and that the Word might be life and light in our midst. Pray for the salvation of the male element of certain families. Pray for the future of our work, that new families may be added and that a more permanent constituency may be effected. Praise God for what He is doing. Pray for His continued blessing upon the work. Pray that we may have strength, knowledge, wisdom, and stamina to carry on the work—the flesh does get tired and the work is demanding."

BAGDAD, IRAQ. The following letter was received at Winona Lake from Dr. Herman Hoyt on the day of seminary graduation.

"Dear Dr. Kent:

"As the month of May moves swiftly on, two professors [Herman Hoyt and John Rea], lately turned travelers and archeologists, not to mention many other things that might make the characterization more complete, are reminded that the commencement season is at hand. Following a habit into which we have fallen, we desire to turn in our term paper.

"Swiftly we were borne to our first appointment in Egypt. Landing in the dark at 4:30 a. m., we smelled the land. Amid men arrayed in nightgowns and wearing turbans through streets filled with the braying of donkeys, rickety carts, cars, and conveyances of every description, we set about our duties.

"From the ancient tombs of the Pharaohs near Cairo, we took our first journey. We traveled with the Israelites out of Egypt that dark night long ago to the Red Sea, down across the desert and the wilderness to Gebel Musa. There, after receiving the law from the lofty heights of that steep mountain, the junior member of our party was aptly named "Musa El Nabi," which means by interpretation, "Moses the Prophet." From that point on he led the expedition and judgment was given at his hands.

"By way of Cairo, Musa led his expedition into the treasures of Egypt hidden along the Nile between 400 and 500 miles south of Cairo. With courage the prophet led his party into the valley of the kings into the city of the dead, to the ancient temples of Karnak and Ramses now crumbling in ruins. There before our eyes lay the splendor that was once Egypt.

"With new courage Musa led his party to the airport, and we were borne on eagle wings to Beirut, Lebanon. From Dog River, where ancient kings, and modern, have inscribed on the cliff the record of their triumphs, Musa moved south to the site of an ancient city long lost in oblivion, the city of Tyre. Rising up from the ruins there came a name for the senior member of the party, Hiram El Melek.

"Musa and Hiram have had many strange experiences. Both have learned to treat their microscopic friends with great respect. Though both members of this party are stalwart men, each has had to develop callouses on the end of his olfactory nerves as a means of self-protection. The sights and odors and tastes and smells and stimuli of these lands have been giving unusual exercises to the five senses.

"From Beirut through Aleppo and Mosul, Nineveh, Calah, and Khorsabad, we have finally arrived in Bagdad. On the way we ascended the citadel of ancient Aleppo, visited Antioch—once a flourishing city of 800,000 in the days of Paul, but now dwindled to a miserable village of 35,000.

"Musa and Hiram have invaded the ancient empires of Assyria. No sleeping monarch arose to challenge us. If any had, Nabi would have brandished the rod of his power and Hiram would have shot him with a battery of three cameras.

"Thus endeth our term paper. (Musa hopes we get at least a passing grade). But the end is not yet."

Musa El Nabi.
Hiram El Melek.

A New Denominational Office Building Is Needed Because—

WE NEED SPACE

By DR. W. A. OGDEN
President, Board of Trustees
Grace Seminary

DR. OGDEN

"We" is Grace Seminary and Grace College. "The space" is the two suites of rooms in the seminary building now occupied by two of our denominational boards. "Need" describes the situation in which we now find curselves as a school with respect to these rooms.

This is not an order from the seminary board to vacate these rooms. It is an attempt to evaluate the future against the past goodness of our wonderful Lord in the matter of the trust He has given us in the field of Christian education. The number of students in the graduate school, the seminary, continues to run at an all-time high. This year's enrollment in the college was just about double that of last year. We believe that this rate of increase will continue for a number of years. The most effective publicity the school has ever had has been put out this year. This includes direct mail, faculty propaganda missions in most churches east of the Rocky Mountains, a well-planned tour of the basketball squad into eastern schools, and the tour of the college choir during the Easter season into some 20 or more Brethren churches.

The Bible Institute of Los Angeles is in the process of building a new campus on a 50-acre tract to accommodate its growing student body. In its last brochure, attention is called to the fact that in the United States the number of births has almost doubled in the last 20 years, reaching nearly 4,000,000 in 1953. Government figures from many sources tell us that by 1960 there will be more students knocking at the doors of American colleges than can possibly be admitted. Now is the time for us to plan wisely and carefully for our own young people who will be looking to us for the kind of Christian education that will prepare them for their place in the complex world of tomorrow. Needless to say, we are in the business of offering a Christian education—a commodity not too plentiful across the land and around the world.

If we plan to educate no more than our own Brethren young people, we will have to greatly expand our facilities to make room for them. Our growing home-missionary program and a growing church is producing a Brethren youth group that is rapidly outstripping our facilities to offer them an education such as they must have if our fellowship is to live and continue to "contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints." Other schools are planning now for as much as 200 percent in increased enrollment. Grace can expect a similar increase, and now is the time to get ready for these young folk from all across America.

Now, about the room we need. Our present building was erected for the seminary, with the plans of including some two-year college students who were looking forward to taking the seminary course. Now, however, we are running a full four-year college, along with the three-year graduate school. Our building will not house this growing student body another year without loss of efficiency unless we have access to the offices mentioned above. At present, classes begin at 7:30 a. m. in order to accommodate all of them. Faculty members are overcrowded in the few offices available. We appreciate the patience of both faculty and students in making the best of this situation.

On the top floor of our building we have two very lovely suites of rooms which are occupied by the Brethren foreign-mission and the Brethren home-mission offices. We have been very happy to have these offices, and the good folk who have occupied them, in the building. It is with deepest regret that we must now suggest that time is running out, and this happy relationship will have to be dissolved. These suites are almost identical in arrangement and size. When they are vacated, the seminary will have two more splendid classrooms and four more offices for faculty members. I would estimate that perhaps an additional 50 or more students can be accommodated by using these rooms. Incidentally, 12 or 15 students will more than compensate for the loss of income now being received for this space.

It is with a great deal of interest that the board and the faculty of Grace Seminary and College has learned of the proposed new building to be built near the campus by the Brethren Missionary Herald Company, which building will provide office space for the foreign and home boards. It is our understanding that the amount of space to be provided will be much greater than what these boards have now. That will be a great asset, for they are somewhat crowded in their present quarters, and have been trying to find a way to enlarge their facilities. It is a very pleasing thing for us to know that these changes are taking place with the best of good will and hearty cooperation on the part of all concerned.

We commend the Herald board on its decision to build, and it is our desire that the brotherhood will back this forward movement with 100-percent support and cooperation. We are not trying to hurry you, but we do need the room.

THE SCHOOL THE LORD GAVE US

BY REV. WARD MILLER
Pastor, Community Brethren Church, Whittier, California

In 1950 a group of men in the First Brethren Church of Whittier, Calif., felt led of the Lord to start a Brethren church in a new section of the city called Whittier Downs.

From the beginning it was planned to have a Christian day school in connection with the church. The building was constructed so that Sunday-school rooms would meet California requirements for elementary-school classrooms. A school board was elected, composed of Glenn Miller, John Richardson, and Roland Holmer.

After arriving on the field in July 1953, we prayed as a congregation that the Lord would provide the personnel and finances for the opening of the school in September. Beyond our fondest expectations He provided both. Miss Phyllis Schumacher, of Osceola, Ind., came to teach a combined third and fourth grade, and Miss Janice Taylor, of Kokomo, Ind., came to teach a combined first- and second-grade class.

The school opened September 14, with these two teachers and 28 pupils in the four grades. Pressure was soon placed upon the school board to begin a kindergarten. In November, Mrs. Lucille Miller became teacher of the kindergarten with 12 pupils enrolled. During the year there were additional enrollments in all grades so that 58 students were in classes at the close of the first year.

With only word-of-mouth advertising, new applications poured into the school office during the summer of 1954. By the time school opened, approximately 130 students had enrolled in six grades and kindergarten. Only the Lord could have brought about such tremendous growth! Our staff now consists of five teachers, office secretary, and a faithful janitor and bus driver.

The way in which the Lord provided equipment and finances was almost unbelievable. In these two years $2,000 worth of new school furniture, a new $5,000 school bus, a complete clock and bell system, a playground of swings, teeter-totters, three tetherball courts, two volleyball courts, and two outside basketball courts have been dedicated to the Lord free of debt. The entire school budget will approximate $20,000 for 1955-56.

When such a great undertaking is proposed, many questions arise. This was true in our situation. Will the school pay for itself? Can we expect it to build up our church? What about parents in the church who are financially unable to send their children? Will the school divert the church from its first obligation of preaching the Gospel and edifying the saints? All of these interrogations faced us and are too lengthy to answer in this article. However, we did find that the grace of God, coupled with sacrifice, have carried us through the most trying times.

Despite all the pains which accompany the birth and growth of a new venture, there is not a parent who would willingly return to the public schools. The constant stream of commendation from pleased parents is a great joy to all who are serving in the school.

As pastor of the Community Brethren Church, I praise the Lord for the blessings our Brethren Elementary School has brought to the entire life of the church family.

Mrs. Mary Murrow (l.), kindergarten, and Mrs. Betty Geftakys (r., 3d row), fifth- and sixth-grade classes.

MISSIONARY HERALD—

1. Pray that construction of the new denominational office building might be started just as soon as possible.

2. Pray for the editor as a heavy schedule is filled during June and July.

3. Pray for the offering being received during June and July for the Missionary Herald.

4. Pray for the entire staff as they faithfully and tirelessly serve the Lord in this missionary work of publishing the Gospel.

FOREIGN MISSIONS—

1. Bro. Albert Emmert, father of our prayer editor, Miss Mary Emmert, has an injured hip. Pray for him during these days and for Miss Emmert as she ministers to him.

2. Pray for the many missionaries traveling the thousands of miles for and during furlough and to National Fellowship in Portland, Oreg. (See the list on page 360.)

3. Pray for those who are ill—especially for Mrs. William Samarin as she returns with her family for medical care in the States. Continue to pray also for Mrs. Rose Foster.

4. Pray for our work in France as the Fogles return to the States for furlough and as Bro. George Cone, Jr., assumes the responsibility, aided by our national French evangelist, Bro. Andre Kasak.

5. Pray for Rev. and Mrs. Don Bishop as they assume the responsibilities in the leadership of our work in Corral de Bustos, Argentina.

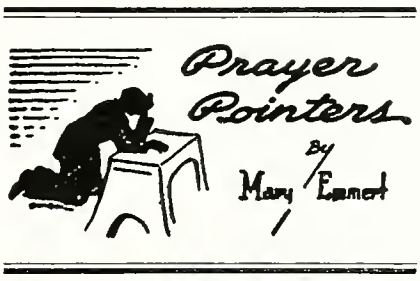
6. Pray for spiritual protection and growth on the part of the large number who have recently accepted Christ on our various mission fields.

7. Pray for more missionaries. Acute needs in our various fields call for from 12 to 20 more just as quickly as we can send them and have the funds to support them.

8. Pray for national and native leaders in our various fields. Pray that we may have large increases in this leadership, especially in France, Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico.

9. Pray for wisdom for our native believers in Bangui, Africa, as they locate and build their large church building.

10. Pray for the solution of the problem of "more room" for our rapidly growing work in Honolulu.



11. Pray for Rev. Clyde K. Landrum as he assumed responsibility as assistant to the general secretary in our foreign-mission office on June 1.

HOME MISSIONS—

1. Pray for the calling program being organized by the Grace Brethren Church of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to reach the community even before the new church building is erected.

2. Pray that wisdom will be given the members of the Second Grace Brethren Church, Mansfield, Ohio, as the city is searched for their permanent location.

3. Pray for the financial need resulting from the purchase of necessary church equipment at the Washington Heights Brethren Church of Roanoke.

4. Pray that more people of the Grace Brethren Church of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, will feel the responsibility and need for attending the midweek service.

5. Pray for the Brethren Construction Company as it is divided into two groups, with churches being built in Goshen, Ind., and Parkersburg, W. Va., at the same time.

6. Pray for the work of vacation Bible schools in many home-mission churches, that workers will be provided and contacts made that will bear fruit for Christ.

GRACE SEMINARY—

1. Pray that the members of the 1955 graduating class who have been called to places of service may be given wisdom for their new ministries.

2. Pray for the graduates still seeking the Lord's will concerning a place of service.

3. Pray for college graduates who are now considering the choice of a school for their seminary training.

4. Pray for high-school graduates who are considering where they should attend college.

5. Pray for all members of the student body and faculty who will be engaged in various kinds of ministries throughout the summer.

EVANGELISTIC CRUSADE—

1. Praise the Lord for a great number of decisions for Christ in Crusade meetings in the past few months.

2. Pray that God will supply our needs for our expenses so that we shall come into the fall ready to carry out the schedule that He is building up.

WMC—

(Supplied by Michigan District.)

1. Pray that the new councils may grow spiritually and in number.

2. Pray that our churches may become more missionary minded and realize their privilege in sending missionaries into the harvest fields.

3. Pray for the cities in Michigan that are wide open for the Gospel, that Brethren testimonies might be established there.

SMM—

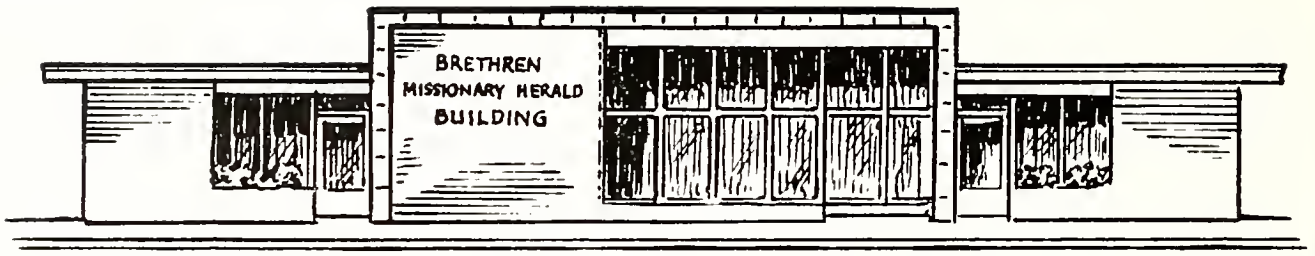
1. Pray for national officers as they plan for national conference.

2. Pray that many girls may be able to attend the conference in Portland and the SMM sessions.

3. Pray that all our girls may strive to accomplish their goals for this year.

BYF—

1. Pray for the selection of a national youth director.



2. Pray for a good response from our young people for two Bethany Camps: Portland, Aug. 10-17, and Winona Lake, Aug. 22-29.

3. Seek the Lord's will as the National Youth Council prepares to operate these widely separated national camps.

4. Ask for divine guidance as district committees prepare local camp programs.

5. Praise the Lord for a successful year for many of our consecrated young people at various schools across the country.

6. Continue to seek the Lord's grace to accompany our many young men who are facing military service, or are already serving.

THE FAITH OF OUR FATHERS

The Declaration of Independence concludes with this sentence: "And for the support of this Declaration; with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." It is well to remember that the founders of the Republic were men of strong religious convictions; that they had faith in God, and that they put "a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence."—Selected.

OUR DAILY WALK IN FELLOWSHIP

By MRS. SCOTT WEAVER

Remember the little fellow that nestled close to his father, who asked, "What do you want now?" The little one's reply was, "Just to be near you, Daddy." There are two ties of fellowship that are blessed to the child of God: the tie of fellowship with the sons (of God), and the tie of fellowship with the Son.

As we tread the narrow way,
Together we sing, together we pray.
What is sweeter here below
Than the fellowship we know?

Comfort for the hearts that bleed,
Sympathy in hours of need,
Kindly things that others say,
Brighten up the dreary day.

Friendship, fellowship, and love,
Blessed gifts from heaven above.
Glad am I that in God's plan
There was fellowship for man.

Paul thanked God for the Philippian believers' "fellowship in the gospel from the first day until now" (Phil. 1:5). A real warmth comes to us as we meet believers of other congregations, sons of God, who are winning souls for Jesus. There is such a nearness as we share our experiences of witnessing to and winning the lost.

As we sing together, "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart," "When the Rolled Is Called Up Yonder," "Jesus Saves"; then follow up with the invitation to the lost ones about us to "Only Trust Him," for "Jesus Is Tenderly Calling Thee Home," oh, what fellowship we share! Even as the songwriter says, "The fellowship of kindred minds is like to that above."

Then there is the fellowship of prayer as we pour out our hearts together before the throne of grace for our mutual hopes, fears, and burdens. In Galatians 6:2, Paul says: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." Real blessing and joy comes to the one who listens to the burdens and problems of his brother or sister. "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves" (Rom. 15:1). The next verse reads: "Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good to edification." We ought to build up our brethren. "Let him that is taught in the word communicate [or share] unto him that teacheth in all good things" (Gal. 6:6). "Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another according to Christ Jesus" (Rom. 15:5). So we are to be to each other just like Jesus, who is the great God of patience and consolation, the Bible says. We are to "rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep" (Rom. 12:15).

What is the result of this fellowship one with another? This fellowship in the Gospel in song, in prayer, and burden-bearing results in real Christian love—the kind of love that is deeper many times than even family ties. Few loves compare with the fullness of our love for the brethren.

Secondly, in our daily walk we have fellowship with the Son. "God is faithful, by whom ye are called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord" (I Cor. 1:9). Jesus said in John 15:15: "Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." A friend is one to whom you can tell everything without reserve. In fellowshiping with the Son He tells us all about the Father's ways. How precious! "My son, give me thine heart, and let thine eyes observe my ways" (Prov. 23:26). He teaches us the wisdom, knowledge, and discretion of God, how to ask and receive of Him, patience in tribulation, mercy instead of criticism, humility for pride, the fear of the Lord, and the ways of the Lord. In short, He teaches us all things through the Holy Spirit that dwells within us (John 14:26). There is no end to this fellowship with our Friend who makes known unto us all that He has heard of the Father

There is even a closer intimacy that we can experience as we fellowship with Him. He is the Vine, we are the branches,. Here is fellowship through abiding in Him and He in us. This closeness to His holiness results in our purging. We rid ourselves of sinful habits, desire to fellowship with Christians, and love to read His Word; thus He purges, cleanses, and helps us to walk in paths of righteousness as we abide in Him.

Then there is yet a fellowship that some of His children experience beyond this. Paul said in Philippians 3:10: "That I may know him . . . and the fellowship of his sufferings." He suffered pain, thirst, weariness of body, and false accusations. When we suffer and cry out to Him we find Him to be the great God of comfort and mercy. Without suffering we could never fully know Him thus. How precious and near our Comforter becomes as He abides with us.

Entered as second-class matter April 16, 1943, at the post office at Winona Lake, Ind., under the act of March 3, 1879. Issued weekly by the Brethren Missionary Herald Co., Winona Lake, Ind. Subscription price, $2.00 a year; 100-percent churches, $1.50; foreign, $3.00. Board of Directors: Robert Crees, president; Herman A. Hoyt, vice president; William Schaffer, secretary; Ord Gehman, treasurer; Bryson Fetters, member-at-large to Executive Committee; Walter Lepp, S. W. Link, Mark Malles, Robert E. A. Miller, True Hunt, Lyle W. Marvin; Arnold R. Kriegbaum, ex officio.

As we suffer we learn, as Paul did in I Corinthians 1:9, that "we had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in God who raiseth the dead." Then we can fully trust Him as the Resurrection and the Life.

Two things happen to the believer as he fellowships with the Son through suffering: both the spirit of glory (I Pet. 4:14) and the power of Christ (II Cor. 12:9) rests upon him. Have you seen a godly person suffer? Those who commit their suffering to His perfect will always take on a bit of the glory of the Lord Jesus. In I Peter 5:1 Peter said that he was a partaker of this glory! Paul also experienced the power of Christ resting upon him as a result of suffering from his thorn in the flesh. When he was weak, then he became strong (or powerful)—in Jesus; even as our Lord was crucified through weakness, yet He liveth by the power of God (II Cor. 13:4). Here Paul experienced knowing Him, and the fellowship of His suffering.

Just as we act like our friends and associates, take on their ways, and as husband and wife begin to look alike in their features through the years together; even so our faithful Lord is ever molding and making us into the image of His beloved Son as we fellowship with Him. He makes known all things of the Father unto us, He purges us from our sins, and through suffering the glory and the power of Christ rest upon us!

What a fellowship, what a joy divine,
Leaning on the everlasting arms;
What a blessedness, what a peace is mine,
Leaning on the everlasting arms.

As the little boy nestled close, just to be near his daddy, so our hearts cry out for close fellowship with other sons of God, as well as the Son himself.

DESERTED

By Angie Garber

It is Monday, and the morning sun shines bright on the desert. It is 9 o'clock, but there is no rush to have chapel and begin a new school week. No laughing children opened the dorm doors, no splashing water was heard in the washrooms, and no breakfast was served to 26 hungry Navahos.

The schoolroom has been emptied of its desks, and stands forsaken and silent. The dorms are quiet, and every little bunk is deserted. Something happened last Friday—school was out.

But oh, what happy memories for all of us! Eight months of hard work, difficult problems, and blessed fellowship. We can only thank the Lord for His faithfulness in giving us guidance, wisdom, and strength. His are the victories, ours the failures. How very much your prayers accomplished only eternity can reveal, but we know they sustained us, and we want you to rejoice with us and share in the blessings.

Let us dream of the future. Can you see the old school filled with tables and transformed into a convenient dining room? the new school with two rooms and two teachers? more children being brought in and more dorm space provided? more workers to help and more faithful Christians to pray? Perhaps if you dream with us, we will see the realization of those dreams more quickly.

Don't let us be deserted by you in these summer months, but keep us before the Lord that even more may be accomplished for His glory until our blessed Saviour returns to call Navahos, as well as others, unto himself.

WHY I CAME TO SCHOOL

By Navaho Children

Kee—My mother put me in school to learn many things.

Raymond—Because I like to learn. . . . I can learn the Word of God then some day I will go with the Lord in to heaven.

Mary—I am so glad I came to learn English and read. . . . I thank the Lord for our teacher too. . . . When I get older I am not just going to shook my head to the white people. Some of the people do that way.

Lucy—I am glad so to be in school . . . to wash the dishes . . . it help me a lot all the year in school. . . . We are come to school to learn everything teacher say to us.

Saline—My mother and father want me to go to school. . . . My mother and father tell me do not run away from the school.

Annie—We like to learn to help other people. We learned to eat on the desk. And we will learned speak.

Larry—If I want to get a book to read I can get any book I want. . . . Last year . . . when the school began I was not here that time. We came in December on Monday afternoon. The reason why I didn't learned much things. . . . They tell us about the Christ die for our sins. We can read the Bible too.

Tabby—I came to school for study hard . . . not just for play or sit do nothing.

James—I want to study and learns something. Why I go to school is not to hit the gril . . . and how to do thing when I grow up.

Amos—Why I came to school is to learn how to talk English. If you don't know English it is hard for you. If some white man talk to you you don't know his language. If you knew English you can talk to them. . . . I like this school.

Fred—When I came the first time to school I don't not know how to read the book and I don't know how to count the numbers. Now I learning hard with my work at school. Now I is know how to read the book and now I can write a letter myself. Now I can know how to work arithmetic and divide and add and take away.

[These are written as the children actually write, since they are just learning English.]

Who's Who for June

MRS. ARNOLD KRIEGBAUM

Laura Elizabeth, daughter of R. Paul and Anne Miller, was born July 7, 1917, at Spokane, Wash. She lived in Los Angeles from the age of three until after her first year of school. The family then moved to Philadelphia, Pa., where her father was pastor for six years.

High-school days were spent in Berne, Ind. After high school she went to International Business College, Wheaton College, and Ashland College, from which she graduated in 1938.

Laura then went to Bob Jones University to serve as secretary to Dr. Jones and as instructor in advanced shorthand. In 1940 she married Arnold R. Kriegbaum, climaxing a romance of "four long years." This marriage began her life as a young pastor's wife, with churches in Fillmore, Calif., Waterloo, Iowa, and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. One of the experiences she considers a high privilege in her life was to serve as secretary to Paul Hutchens, famous author of Christian novels, during the time she lived in Waterloo.

Under her leadership as district WMC president in Iowa, rally attendance doubled in numbers and is continuing to grow. Laura is now in her third year as national patroness of SMM. She now lives in Winona Lake, Ind., where her husband is editor of the Brethren Missionary Herald. Though her experiences have been many, she still counts the most thrilling, joyous, and contented years the three she and her husband pastored the church in Fillmore, Calif., where their three children, Richard Arnold, Ward Allen, and Karen Anne, were born.

JOHN W. MAYES

John Wallace Mayes, the writer of our Bible study for June, was born September 30, 1925, at Lanark, Ill. His father, Dr. Charles W. Mayes, had just completed the first year of his first pastorate, so John's life followed the usual pattern of a preacher's son. There was the disadvantage of being uprooted a number of times, but also the decided blessing of having many very wonderful friends scattered almost across the continent, whose prayers have meant much in his life.

To one who was there, it seems that he was born not only with a warm, friendly disposition and a sympathetic interest in everyone and anyone who came his way, but also with an unwavering and compelling desire to "be a preacher." These God-given qualities have helped to make him the successful pastor of the home-mission church at Paramount, Calif., and a much-loved Bible teacher in the Brethren high school located there.

He received his training at Bob Jones University, Los Angeles Bible Institute, Pasadena College, and Grace Seminary. While attending Pasadena College he met Marjorie Bradley, of Compton, Calif., and they were married on July 8, 1949, soon after they had both graduated from that school. They have three children—Richard Lee, Sharron June, and Linda Joy.

NORTHWEST DISTRICT PREPARES FOR PORTLAND

Dear Ladies of the WMC:

"We're on our way to Portland; come and go along."

So sang the Northwest District WMC officers as they appeared at the spring rally in Sunnyside, Wash., all carrying suitcases.

We were reminded, in many delightful ways, that we have many joys and responsibilities as hostesses at the coming national conference. How we look forward to it! A skit by the Sunnyside group, "Could This Be True?" made us laugh, but it put across a serious thought, too, and made us determine to finish our district project in time. We are buying materials to make a bulletin board for the Portland church.

Our theme for the rally was, "Daily Walk in the Word." It was ably developed by three of the newer pastors in our district: Rev. Don Farner, Rev. Jesse Hall, and Rev. Henry Dalke. Their subjects were, "Determine to Read," "Desire to Study," and "Delight to Memorize."

Altogether we had a very good rally, but we are looking forward to an even better time in August. So remember—"we're on our way to Portland," and we want to see YOU there.—Mrs. Ernest Morrell, secretary.

GENERAL AND PUBLICATION FUND

With this month of June we enter the final quarter of our WMC year and the quarter during which the MAJOR OFFERING is devoted to the budget needed to cover the ever-growing work of our national WMC.

It is with a sense of the extreme necessity of our making our goal in this offering this year that we urge every individual member and every local council to see that this offering is as large as any of our other three major offerings has been.

For a number of years we have consistently fallen short in this one offering with the result that what reserve we had in our general fund has been used and the future expansion of our national help to local WMC groups will depend largely upon what you do this year. In our WMC Herald for September 11, 1954, the budget for this year, amounting to $2,575, was printed. We look to the offerings of this quarter to raise that budget. Can we count on YOU?

If our local councils fail us this year, what shall we cut out for the coming year? Shall we give up our pages in the Herald, and so lose that monthly touch with each other? More than $1,500 of our budget goes toward our pages in the Herald. Shall we quite providing mimeographed lessons for all councils? Shall we discontinue printing membership, visitor, and prayer warrior cards? All of your national officers serve throughout the year without salary. It has been customary to give each of them a few dollars as a love gift at conference time to help defray their conference expense. Shall this be cut out? Every individual member of WMC will answer these questions for herself by the way in which she responds to the offering of the quarter.

We realize that one reason this offering falls so much below the other three quarterly offerings is that it is the vacation period, and many of you miss at least one meeting while away on vacation or at national conference. Would it not be a good idea for each one of us to resolve that if we are going to be absent from any of our regular monthly meetings during the summer that we will either leave our offering with someone in the council, or better still, send it in with a little word of greeting to be read at the meeting. Your "stay-at-home" sisters will love to hear from you, especially if your letter encloses a generous offering.

Your editor feels so deeply the vital necessity of our making our goal in this offering that she feels that any council whose offering for this quarter does not reach what they gave in each of the other three quarters should seriously consider taking enough out of the local fund to bring this offering up comparative to the other three. WMC cannot run without money and we are counting on YOU.

The month has arrived when we should again turn in our "Thank Offering" for our Jewish work in Los Angeles. That offering should be in the hands of our financial secretary by June 10. If your council has not yet sent the offering in, be sure to do it this month without fail.

We hope that you ladies have been faithful throughout the year in laying aside those pennies for our Jewish brethren. If you haven't given your "penny a day," then dig just a little deeper into your purse, teapot, or sugarbowl and make up the difference. We were so happy last year over the enthusiastic response of so many of our women to the "penny a day" offering and we are looking for many, many more of our women to follow suit this year.

Let us not forget that all that we have and are as Christians we owe to the Jewish nation. Our Lord himself was a Jew, our Bible was written by Jews, the Christian church had its birth in Jerusalem. A penny a day is a meager sum to give in order that the gospel story may be taken again to our Lord's Jewish brethren whose eyes have been blinded by sin and superstition. Just $3.65 to say "Thank You" to our Lord and to carry out His commission, "to the Jew first."

LET US TAKE INVENTORY

By Mabel Hamilton

Each September our WMC begins its new year with a definite set of goals and objectives for the year. As we enter the final quarter it is time to stop and ask ourselves a few questions about some of our objectives.

DAILY BIBLE READING—Have we met the goal and finished the suggested reading?

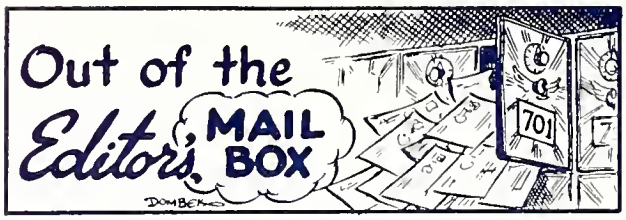
FAMILY ALTAR—Does the family meet together in daily Bible reading and prayer? "The family that prays together stays together."

PERSONAL WITNESSING—Have we been witnessing for our Lord by testimony and tract distribution?

PRAYER WARRIORS—Are we being faithful to our prayer covenants?

MAJOR OFFERINGS—Have we met all our financial goals?

Home Missions—Did we contribute to the Navaho school?



Christian Education—Did we share in this important offering to give our children a Christian education?

Foreign Missions—This offering should be in by June 10.

General and Publication—Let's put this over the top during the quarter.

Thank Offering—Are we willing to give one penny a day to carry the Gospel to those who first gave it to us? Let's get that offering in this month.

Birthday Offering—Will our birthday offering help keep two WMC missionaries on the foreign field this year? Should be in by July 10.

Before presenting council news this month your editor would like to make two explanations that we think will clarify some things concerning our WMC issue of the Herald.

First of all, we would like to explain that WMC is responsible for only three cover pages during the year. In September we sponsor a cover launching our home-missions project, in December we stress Grace Seminary, and in March we present foreign missions. All other covers on WMC issues are planned by the Herald staff and should in no way be thought of as WMC material. The cover cuts are very expensive and our budget is not sufficient to pay for them each month.

Secondly, your editor is in "hot water" over news items. Some councils cannot understand why your letters do not appear as soon as you write them. We would like to say that WMC has only nine pages in the Herald each month. We allow four of these to Sisterhood, leaving us only five pages for WMC material. We have planned a definite program of helpful items for each month. Then, whatever space is left we use for WMC news items gleaned from your letters. Some months articles are longer and there is practically no space for letters with the result that they pile up in our file. Please bear with your editor even though you may seem to wait a long time to see your council mentioned. We will get to you eventually. No letters are discarded until some mention is made of them in this column. By the way, WMC items appear only in the WMC number of the Herald, so send your news to your WMC editor and not to the Brethren Missionary Herald Company.

From the report of the Lake Odessa, Mich., council these interesting items were gleaned. The ladies make rag rugs and present one as a gift from WMC to each newly married couple in their church. They also had a Thanksgiving supper for some 60 children of the church and community last November. They raised money for a new hot-water heater for the church kitchen in a novel way. They passed around an apron and each lady sewed her offering onto the apron under a patch.

The latest project of the Winchester, Va., senior council has been the making of baptismal robes for the pastor and candidates.

The ladies of the La Verne, Calif., church are rejoicing in a wonderful year for the Lord. They have met all their goals in offerings and projects and have given gifts to a number of the missionaries on furlough.

The WMC of the McHenry Avenue Brethren Church of Modesto, Calif., met the family-altar goal by presenting, at a Sunday-night church service, the play, "The Value of Family Devotions," written by Rev. Ord Gehman. They also report an all-day missionary meeting in cooperation with the La Loma and Tracy councils, with Mrs. Sheldon, Miss Robinson, and Mrs. Churchill as speakers.

We are glad to report that a new WMC has been organized in the new Englewood Grace Brethren Church at Englewood, Ohio. We welcome them into our fellowship and hope to hear wonderful reports from them.

One unusual item from the Summit Mills, Pa., report was that they made plastic stockings with Scripture verses on them and filled them with candy for the children at Dryhill, Ky.

Mrs. Clarence Sickel was guest speaker at the first annual birthday dinner of the Sunnyside, Wash., WMC with 78 ladies in attendance.

The Everett, Pa., WMC held a covered-dish birthday dinner with their husbands as guests. They had a fine missionary offering.

The Southern Ohio District WMC spring rally was held at Troy, Ohio, with Mrs. Kliever as guest speaker. There were 80 women present.

The Jr. WMC of Rittman, Ohio, reports an average attendance of 20 members and three visitors for the spring quarter. One project was a new crib for the church nursery.

There were 125 present at the missionary birthday dinner sponsored by the Young Women's Fellowship and the Business Women's Council of the Inglewood, Calif., church. We quote: "In honor of the missionaries we are supporting this year our decorations carried out the African theme. Our African village centerpieces were composed of the African banks, crepe-paper palm trees, and pipe-cleaner African natives. We even had figures to represent Miss Myers and Mrs. Kennedy. To carry out the birthday motif we had our tables arranged according to the seasons and the various months were indicated by aluminum-foil letters. The covers for our programs were old birthday cards."

The WMC group at Beaumont, Calif., reports a satisfactory growth this past year. They have a work morning each month with the devotional meeting in the afternoon. Among other things they have quilted four quilts for missionaries. One 92-year-old sister pieces many of the tops.

The Michigan District rally was held at Alto with about 50 ladies present. Freda Kliever was the speaker.

The Waterloo, Iowa, council held a mother-daughter banquet with 155 present. Twenty-five men of the church assisted in the dining room and kitchen.

WATCH YOUR SPEED! RADAR CONTROLLED! (COLOSSIANS 4:5)

By AVA SCHNITTJER

(This may be presented as a radio program.)

JANE: This is Station SMM presenting our "Tips to Travelers Who Are Walking in His Footprints." Today's program: WATCH YOUR SPEED! RADAR CONTROLLED!

ESTHER: This is the month of vacations and travel. Let our Guide for the Christian traveler help you plan your tour. We urge you to consult your Infallible Map daily, keep in constant fellowship with your Faithful Guide, be sure you are well supplied with Superpower for your engine, and don't hinder your journey with excess baggage. Now today we bring a special exhortation to Christian travelers: Watch your speed! Radar controlled!

MARY: In many cities and towns, particularly near the public schools, there are signs to inform drivers to watch their speed. Often the sign reads: "Drive carefully. We love our children."

LOUISE: This is to help drivers realize that there are two reasons for driving carefully. The first is for the driver's own safety. If he rounds a curve too fast, he may overturn. If he exceeds speed limits or goes through stop signs, he may be fined or punished some other way.

JANE: Unfortunately, concern for themselves is the only consideration of some drivers. They'll say, "I know what I'm doing," or, "I know how fast I can take that curve," or even, "Sure; I saw the stop sign, but there was nobody coming."

But this sign reminds us of another responsibility: "Drive Carefully; we love our children."

ESTHER: You would be horrified if some reckless driver, speeding past your school without stopping, struck a little child who had darted out into the street after a stray ball.

Does it seem likely that our Lord holds Christians any less responsible for the spiritual welfare of others?

LOUISE: What responsibility do we have toward others?

JANE: "Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time" (Col. 4:5).

LOUISE: Who are "them that are without"?

JANE: They are the ones who are not Christians. They haven't received Christ and aren't "in Him." They are still "in the world."

MARY: But Christ died for them; He loved them, too. Remember, "God so loved the world"

LOUISE: Then why are they still "without" and why haven't they become Christians? Can't they read their Bibles?

JANE: Christ doesn't command the non-Christians to read their Bibles. He asks His own to witness to them so they will also want to receive the Saviour.

LOUISE: I wish there were more Christian girls—and boys, too. Most of the young people aren't interested in coming to our groups. There are only a few really Christian girls in our class. If they could only see and know what Christ is like and what He has done for them!

ESTHER: All they know about Christianity is what they see in us. All they know about Christ is as it is revealed in us, and if what they see isn't more attractive than what they have, they will probably prefer to stay as they are. As doorkeeper to the house of the Lord, a Christian girl may reach out to draw others into the fold; or by her gloom, her discontent, by her attention to the things she doesn't do rather than to the radiant presence of Christ, by unwise methods, she may block the doorway and keep others from seeing the wonders within.

MARY: We surely do need to "watch our speed." We can't hope to win any to Christ unless our lives demon-

PROGRAM GUIDE FOR JULY

THEME SONG—Open by singing the theme song, "Footprints of Jesus," which all should know from memory by now! Follow with a short opening prayer.

THE CHRISTIANS' ROADMAP—Read John 14:27-31.

JOYFUL SINGING—Have a singspiration, and if some don't know the words to the theme song, this would be a good time to learn them. Remember, after we leave this theme and go on to another, we don't want to forget about the "Footprints of Jesus" and all that we've learned from these topics.

PRAYER CIRCLE—Be sincere in your praying and God will hear you. Make sure that all the girls present take part in this phase of the meeting, even if it is just a sentence prayer.

SPIRITUAL FOOD—Seniors study "Watch Your Speed! Radar Controlled!" Middlers study "The Peace of God."

SPECIAL MUSIC—Use the talent which the Lord has given to you to His honor and glory.

LEARNING THE PAST—Make a study of these helpful articles. Do you know the history of your own church denomination?

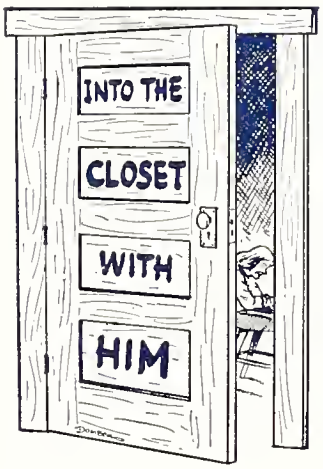
strate the difference between the Christian and the world.

ESTHER: And yet the difference can't be something that is just on the outside. The teachings of the Gospel must be so much a part of us that they come forth with the freshness of life. A life of fretting, discontent, and irritability is a denial of the blessedness of the Gospel. "The joy of the Lord" should be our strength.



MARY: Then if we are truly wise, we'll be "redeeming the time." It's easy to let opportunities slip by, and once gone, they may be gone forever.

JANE: You may miss a train by a minute, and only have to wait for the next one. You may miss a life by a moment, and it's lost for eternity. How can you be sure you won't miss opportunities? Only by turning over the controls to the Master. Certain air vehicles are so constructed that with no person aboard, no one in the pilot's seat, they can be guided by radar equipment on the ground. Christians are so constructed that if they will relinquish the pilot's seat to the Lord, the Holy Spirit will so guide them that they will always be in the right place at the right time with the right thing to say. Then they'll be "redeemng the time."

ESTHER: It always costs something to redeem any object. It may cost in money, in effort, in thought. It may cost in selfish ease, in comfort, or convenience. But the purchase has an eternal value and "he that winneth souls is wise" (Prov. 11:30).

JANE: Thas has been Station SMM presenting our "Tips to Travelers," to those travelers who are walking in His footprints. Don't forget to WATCH YOUR SPEED. This highway is radar controlled.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Pray for the national conference, especially in regard to Sisterhood. There is a problem of the national Sisterhood officers doing all their needed work out there. Also pray that the Lord will direct in all elections, business, etc.

Pray for the writers of next year's theme, that the Lord will lead them as to what they should write.

Pray for the local Sisterhoods, that they will have a vision of lost girls, and that they will also get their reports in on time.

Pray that we may meet all of our goals this year, especially in the national project.

Pray for the national officers, who have a abundance of work to do in the summer.

THE PEACE OF GOD

By Mrs. James Dixon

We have been studying God's Word to find out how to walk worthy of the Lord and how to please Him in everything. We have discovered we must cleanse our hearts from all filthiness, anger, blasphemy, and all lying. We must, in place of these things, put on tenderheartedness, kindness, humility, gentleness, and patience. We must put up with one another and forgive all those against whom we have a complaint. Finally we must love, fully and completely, as God loved us.

Colossians 3:15: "And let the peace of God rule in your hearts." The peace of God cannot rule in any heart where sin is. The peace of God cannot rule in any heart where there is no love. But if we put sin out of our lives and have love in our hearts, we are still told to "let the peace of God rule in your hearts." The word "rule" here is similar in meaning to "act as umpire or referee."

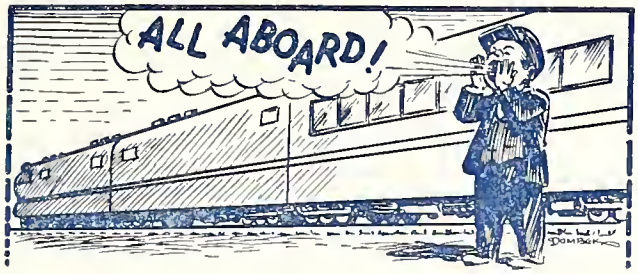
We are told to "let" (or permit) the peace of God control our hearts when temptations arise, when testings come, when trials descend upon us—"let" the peace of God rule in our hearts.

Remember, Peter could walk on the sea when his eyes were on Jesus, but when he saw the waves boisterous, he was afraid. He did not let the peace of Christ rule in his heart because his eyes were fixed on his circumstances.

Before our Lord went away, He left us a legacy. John 14:27: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." What a wonderful inheritance we have, the peace of Jesus Christ. The peace He had because He had perfect confidence in God, because He knew God was on the throne. He knew, though evil would have its day, God would triumph over all. He knew that all things work together for good to them that love God. He left us His confidence, His faith, and His peace.

It is a peace the world knows nothing about, nor can the unsaved man ever know the peace of God, for it passeth understanding.

It is faith that enables us to allow the peace of God to rule in our hearts. It is faith in the love of God and in the power of God.



It is important that early in life we learn that when calamity comes we can let the peace of God rule in our hearts or we can go the way of the world and go to pieces.

If we let the peace of God rule in our hearts, we will glorify the Lord. We will walk worthy of Him and please Him.

"Peace, peace, wonderful peace,
Coming down from the Father above,
Sweep over my spirit forever, I pray,
In fathomless billows of love."

QUESTIONS

1. What circumstances might arise in which you need the peace of God?
2. How would "letting the peace of God rule in your heart" be a testimony before the unsaved?
3. How does the peace of God differ from any peace the world can give?

"Hello there! Yes; I'm back again, all prepared for another exciting trip to several Sisterhoods. Hope you are getting some interesting ideas for your local group from this visit. First of all, we're going to go 'way over to Taos, New Mexico, in the land of the tamales, chili, and the Spanish language, and stop in to say hello to the SMM girls there."

Every third month the girls meet with the WMC. Last November each girl brought a jar of fruit or vegetables which were sent to the Navaho missionaries. In December they all brought items for a missionary chest, which were sent to the Missionary Residence in Winona Lake, Ind. Slumber parties interest the girls, at which time they roll bandages. A great part of the meetings is spent in memorizing verses for their projects.

"As much as we'd like to stay longer, we must be heading east. By the way, this next group of girls we are going to visit must have really been working, because they increased their group of eight to thirteen! What about YOUR SMM? Well, here we are at Osceola, Indiana."

The Lord has been blessing the middler group. In December all the mothers were guests, at which time each girl presented her mother with a corsage. In March a joint meeting with the Elkhart, Ind., SMM was held, and these two groups are planning a picnic for June. One of the things that are keeping them busy is preparing for a musical and devotional meeting which they plan to present at a nursing home. A box of crayons, pencils, construction paper, and tablets, were sent to the Navaho school in New Nexico.

"We always like to hear about Sisterhoods that are working hard. When we realize that the Lord is using us in SMM to help our missionaries on the home and foreign fields, there's loads to be done, isn't there? Now let's stop in on the junior group at Ashland, Ohio."

Before Christmas the girls handpainted hankies for their parents. They are enjoying the making of stuffed toys for children in hospitals, and are handpainting towels for their mothers on Mothers Day.

"Seems like those girls like to do quite a bit of handwork, which is fine. Hope you aren't getting too tired, because we have about three or four more interesting stops. So sit back and relax. My, here we are at our next stop already! Come on, while we spend some time with the senior girls at Johnstown (Mundy's Corner), Pennsylvania."

For different variety in their handwork, these girls have been making rugs for the missionary box, and slippers for the missionaries. We know that they are receiving rich blessings from their service to their Lord.

"I wonder how they made those rugs and slippers, don't you? Or maybe you've made something unusual in your own groups that we haven't heard about yet. We sure would like to hear about it, so it could be published in this section. Let's keep going, because we have quite a way to go. But before we leave this part of the country, let's stop in to see the middler SMM at Riverside, Johnstown, Pennsylvania."

Just organized in September, their average attendance is seven. For the National Project, the girls are babysitting. At Christmastime they stuffed dolls for the church nursery. The WMC added an enjoyable time for all at a valentine meeting, at which time the new officers were installed.

"Another group not too far from here is the SMM in Uniontown, Pennsylvania. This is a large group, so let's see what they have been doing."

On April 24 a skit was presented entitled, "What Is Sisterhood?" in which all of the 18 girls participated. It was enjoyed by many people.

"Now let's go down into Virginia. The senior SMM of Buena Vista have been . . . well you read about it!"

On May 5 the junior and senior SMM girls were guests of the WMC at the mother-daughter banquet. The girls are planning to give a play entitled, "Soup, Sand, and Sagebrush," at the church in the latter part of May. They have enjoyed their many practices, and the proceeds will go toward funds to be used for the glory of the Lord. Several new members have been gained this year.

"We have something extra special in this trip! We will visit the Northern Ohio District Conference and find out a few of the happenings in Sisterhood work."

Mrs. Jake Kliever was the missionary speaker at the SMM meeting of the conference, and gave an inspiring talk, telling of some of her experiences in the homeland and in Africa. All were challenged by her message. The Sisterhood Choir, composed of 148 girls, sang at the conference (see picture). A large offering was received, and a total of 3,276 bandages were turned in from the December and April rallies!

"Praise the Lord!

HISTORY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH--XI

By Rev. Gerald Polman

Strange as it may seem, it was only 55 years after the organization of the Brethren Church (1882), until another division of the churches of the Brethren Church took place. We should know the circumstances and results of this division. (Most of the information contained here was written by Dr. Alva J. McClain in the Brethren Missionary Herald, March 8, 1941.) The background for the division started as far back as 1919, when a question as to the faith and doctrine taught at Ashland College was raised.

"Through the intervening years there was a struggle in the church over this situation, one group insisting that the college teaching must conform to the Word of God, the opposing group defending the teachers under suspicion. The crisis of the struggle was reached in June 1937, when a coalition of liberal trustees and teachers accomplished the discharge of Dean McClain and Professor Hoyt of the seminary, who had been leading the battle for orthodoxy within the institution. Both were dismissed without notice or specific charges, in direct violation of the academic rules of the school. The college board then proceeded to change its constitution so as to place the power of election in its own hands, thus enabling it to exclude from membership those trustees who had been leaders of the orthodox group in the denomination. At the same time, openly defying the request of the General Conference, the college board increased the number of liberal and non-Brethren trustees. Facing frankly the loss of the school to the liberal party, and being opposed on historic Brethren grounds to the carrying of the controversy into the courts, about half the denomination's churches and pastors joined in the founding of a new school, Grace Theological Seminary of Winona Lake, Ind., to perpetuate the spiritual and Biblical ideals which they had hoped to see realized at Ashland College and Seminary. Thus the two groups of churches within the denomination came to be called 'the ASHLAND Churches' and 'the GRACE Churches.'

"In the meantime, the Ashland churches and leaders . . . managed to capture control of the 1938 General Conference officiary by the slender margin of an average of less than 12 votes out of 643 delegates. A year later (1939), with the General Conference officiary completely in their control, the Ashland group proceeded, in open violation of conference rules and established usage, to exclude nearly 100 delegates sent from recognized Brethren churches. By this scheme the Ashland leaders consolidated their control of General Conference beyond any possibility of loss. Immediately this controlled conference officially endorsed Ashland College as an institution of the Brethren Church, and later passed a decree of excommunication agains all 'churches, ministers, and laymen' which supported Grace Theological Seminary and any boards or organizations sympathetic with Grace Theological Seminary (1940 Minutes, page 13). Again the leaders of the Grace churches, because of their adherence to the historic Brethren doctrine of nonlitigation, decided to accept the loss of their conference rights rather than carry the matter into the courts, and met for fellowship in a separate group called the National Brethren Bible Conference."

It was during the year of 1940 that a call went out to all Brethren churches to send delegates to a legally organized 51st General Conference of the Brethren Church to be held at Winona Lake, Ind. (Tuesday) August 27, 1940. At the closing session of this conference (Saturday) a resolution was adopted which changed the name of the conference to the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. This is the present name of our denominatoin.

last stop in Cheyenne, Wyoming. They had a wonderful service, which we'll learn about, in April."

The senior SMM sponsored the Wednesday-evening service, April 6, in observance of the Sisterhood birthday month. The girls presented a short musical program, followed by a season of prayer. The special speaker for the evening was Mrs. Loree Sickel, a missionary on furlough from Argentina, who presented a challenging missionary message.

"Well, that winds it up for this time. Thank you for writing in, for it makes such an enjoyable trip! But why haven't more of you written in, especially you senior groups? Remember, write to the national general secretary this week. She'll be pleased to hear from you, and who knows, it may get in the Herald! So keep watching this section for more news."

ALL DISTRICT PRESIDENTS AND PATRONESSES

ATTENTION! Plan now to attend the early national board meetings which will be held on August 9 and 10 in Portland, Oreg. The meetings will start at 9 o'clock on Tuesday morning. It is necessary for each of you to be present to help make our plans for next year. If you cannot come, please send a representative in your place. Futher information will be sent to you concerning this.

1. DEADLINE FOR OFFERINGS—The offerings for the General Fund and the offerings for the National Project are due July 15. The General Fund offerings are almost a necessity for our conference expenses. These should be sent to the national treasurer.

2. BANDAGES—Yes; the bandages for Africa are to be sent to the DISTRICT bandage secretary before July 15. The district bandage secretary REPORT should be sent to the national bandage secretary by August 1.

3. STATISTICAL BLANKS—These must be sent to the DISTRICT secretary and the NATIONAL president by July 15. Please remember this if you want materials for next year.

4. LOCAL SISTERHOODS—Check your goals and see if you have met all of them. We want each of your groups to be an honor SMM this year. Is yours?

OLD GLORY AND NEW GLORY

SIX MEN charged up a shell-torn hill under intense enemy gunfire. Their struggle up the rough terrain was without thought of personal safety as they carried a precious object in their grasp. At the summit they hesitated a moment and then thrust a pole deep into the volcanic earth. As the pole stood erect with their united efforts, the cordite-laden wind unfurled a bright banner from the peak of the staff.

The year was 1945. It was a cold February day on the battle-strewn island of Iwo Jima. The tricolor flag that suddenly burst its color over the ash-gray hilltop epitomized in one bold flash all the aspirations, hopes, lives, homes, families, and desires of liberty of all American men on that island. It was the symbol of all they held dear, and for which some of them now lay very still. The same red-white-and-blue standard has been such a symbol to millions of Americans since its first unfurling 168 years before, whether in peace or conflict. George Washington expressed the drama of those colors when he said: "We take the star from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

Since earliest known times flags, standards, banners have been carried by men as visible representation of things unseen but real, inexpressible yet keenly felt, ties stronger than any of earth's stoutest chains. The tribes of the children of Israel are among the first groups recorded as having distinctive standards as symbols of their unity before the Lord (cf. Num. 1:52). Hardly a group is to be found today, whether it be a royal family or a sovereign state, that does not express its aspirations by the symbols of a flag. The first authorization for the flying of Old Glory came by congressional resolution from the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, although the familiar colors had been in use for nearly a year already. To loyal Americans the Stars and Stripes are still the symbol of the best in liberty and opportunity that the world, in the hands of the Evil One, has to offer today.

A flag is a sign of allegiance to some earthly alliance or power. When one joins in the recognition of some distinctive ensign as the mark of his devotion and obedience he is willing to give even life itself for its honor and sanctity.

While still earthbound the Christian is commanded to submit to the powers that be as ordained and permitted by God (Rom. 13). But we must all confess from the groanings of the Spirit within us that we are "strangers and pilgrims on the earth" and that we "desire a better country, that is, an heavenly," for which we seek and earnestly wait. There is our true citizenship; there is where our inheritance awaits us; there is where there will be no divided allegiances; there is where our treasures are stored. All allegiances from our earthbound existence will fade and pass, whether by choice or the crisis of death, just as will all other temporal things of this creation.

As much as we appreciate and thrill at the sight of Old Glory flying from the highest masts in its inspiring dignity, it will not compare with the sight of our heavenly home and the ramparts of light. Just as there will be no need of the sun there, there shall be no need of a national emblem, for all nations shall be one in Christ, completely.

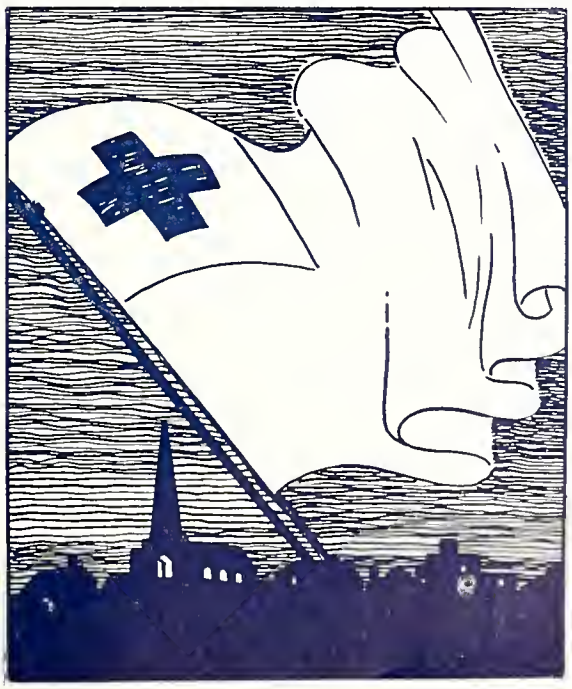
WHO MADE THE FLAG?



A flag was raised over the Jamestown worsted mills. From the owners of the mill itself I learn:

The flag was made of wool from American sheep—
Sorted by an American,
Carded by an Italian,
Spun by a Swede,
Warped by a German,
Dressed by an Englishman,
Drawn in by a Scotchman,
Woven by a Belgian,
Supervised by a Frenchman,
Inspected by an American,
Scoured by an Albanian,
Dyed by a Turk,
Examined by an Irishman,
Pressed by a Pole.—Selected

IF YOU DRIVE A CAR, READ THIS ARTICLE

LET'S CALL IT SIN

By THOMAS INMAN
Pastor, Grace Brethren Church
Denver, Colo.

A siren wails. A red light flashes in your rear-view mirror. A police car passes you and waves you to the curb. Are you puzzled as to why you are being stopped? If so, it may be that you are wondering which of the violations you have been caught doing! Is it for not coming to a full stop at that last stop sign? Perhaps you are saying: "But I always slow down and look both ways!" Or is it for driving a few miles over the speed limit? Maybe you console yourself by thinking: "But I was late to an appointment and, well, everyone else speeds a little."

Thus the reckless disregard for carefully planned laws goes on day by day in this "land of the free and the home of the brave." Not all of these involved are by any means nonbelievers. Some of them, one is almost ashamed to say, are Brethren —laymen and laywomen and ministers of the Gospel; people who know well enough that the Lord never gives a Christian the right to act in an un-Christlike manner; people who realize the value of the human life; people who read in God's Word that "the powers that be are ordained of God." For what reason this disregard of laws? For a little personal pleasure or comfort and because everybody else is doing it.

The writer once heard of a preacher who said that when he traveled, he just put the pedal to the floor and prayed the Lord to keep all the fools off the road! A joke? Perhaps, and then perhaps not. A fool is one who acts as if there were no God. How about you? Maybe you haven't been willing to call it by its proper name—"sin." "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin" (Jas. 4:17).

The Bible is quite clear on our relationship to the "powers that be." Let us take a brief look at Romans 13:1-4a:

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. [This was written to Christians. Do driving habits somehow lay outside the realm of the authority which we must be subject to—outside the realm of the Christian's manner of life?] For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. [Lawmakers and enforcers receive their power from the Lord; yes, even when they are making and enforcing traffic laws!] Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation. [You may know that the word 'damnation' refers to the condemnation of the civil powers, but back of that civil power is the mighty power of God, and our attitude is ultimately against Him.] For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. [If you have a sick feeling in the pit of your stomach every time you see a blue uniform astride a motorcycle or hear the wail of a siren or see a blinking red light, maybe it is because your road 'work' isn't what it ought to be.] Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have the praise of the same: for he is the minister of God to thee for good."

You judge yourself. Have you been calling this sin? Are your actions behind the wheel those of a believer? Are your driving habits a testimony for the Lord? Remember, the life you save may be your own, or it may be the life of someone yet without the Lord as his Saviour.

In just a few weeks many of us will be heading for the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches at Portland—many of us by automobile. Will ours be a cavalcade of calamity or a caravan of Christlikeness behind the wheel?

The San Gabriel Valley Academy

A HISTORY AND CHALLENGE

By Dr. Francis M. Altig, Chairman of Board

School had recessed for the summer of 1947 and the godly mothers of some of the children were observing the difficulty with which they were reading. They discovered that their children could not sound out new words and that they stumbled over or skipped words they did not recognize, even though they were ready to enter high school.

One mother who had been a teacher before coming to California and who had two children, one of whom was ready to enter school in the fall, became so perturbed that she called another mother who was similarly anxious about the scholastic welfare of her children. Together they began calling Christian parents of their acquaintance with the result that between 25 and 30 such folk gathered for prayer and planning to see if a genuine, Christian, high-standard, old-fashioned "Three R's" education might be possible for their children. Together they were led by the Holy Spirit to form the Christian day school since known as San Gabriel Valley Academy.

School opened a week following public school in the fall of 1947 due to the difficulty of finding adequate housing and playground space. The need was presented to the East Pasadena Brethren Church and, at the recommendation of the board of trustees, the church extended a welcome to the new-born school to use its facilities. Registration day saw the same crowded out as all eight grades and kindergarten were offered. A branch was opened immediately in the local Mission Covenant Church, whose pastor was a member of the school board of directors. Buses brought the children from and to their homes. The first year ended with two fine young ladies receiving their diplomas, the congratulations of the teachers and the board, and the good will of all who were interested in the school.

Since it was felt best to have the school all meeting in one place, the following year it used the Sunday-school facilities of the Bethany Church of Alhambra.

During this time the board of directors came to the conviction that an organized church should sponsor the school. They moved to ask the churches in the order which they had sheltered the school if they they would care to sponsor it. The first of these, East Pasadena Brethren, accepted the school and has carried it on wonderfully since January of 1949. At this same time the church was able to secure the temporary buildings of the Lutheran school and church on Las Tunas Drive in San Gabriel.

In 1952 a larger property was secured in the adjoining community of Temple City and the buildings were moved to this new location. From then till February of 1954 these facilities served for school and church alike when the new chapel was dedicated at 5537 Temple City Boulevard. Now grades four through eight meet in the two rooms provided for their use in the new chapel, and the lower grades and kindergarten, with the office, use the other facilities. Playground and gymnasium equipment are provided, and a large shelter area for eating and recreation is under construction.

The largest number of graduates for any one year has been 10. Because of additional attractions of the public schools, many of the students have dropped out in the earlier grades. We are happy to announce graduation service for two this coming June 16, the second such service

SOUTHEAST DISTRICT RALLY

The laymen of the Southeast District held their quarterly rally at the Vernon Brethren Church, Limestone, Tenn., on May 6, with approximately 75 men present.

We had a very enjoyable program which included a guest speaker, Mr. Grover Lee, of Cleveland, Tenn., a Fishers of Men representative, who brought us a very inspiring message on the responsibilities of laymen as commanded by God's Word.

The reports from the churches of the district showed much visitation being done by the laymen. Several groups reported that they had installed signs on roads and streets giving the directions to their church. The laymen have held a number of services in jails, sanatoriums, prison camps, and have had services at several little country churches of other denominations who have no pastors. Reports showed many rededications and a number of first-time confessions of faith in these services.

An offering of $48.71 was taken, which was designated for the Board of Evangelism.—Frank W. Campbell, secretary-treasurer.

NORTHERN OHIO RALLY

Friday, June 24, the Northern Ohio Fellowship of Brethren Laymen will meet to install new officers and elect officers-elect. The officers for 1955-1956 are Earle Cole, Cuyahoga Falls, president; Frank Marsh, Canton, vice president; Harold Quartz, Akron, secretary-treasurer; and Ray Casteel, Akron, boys club advisor.

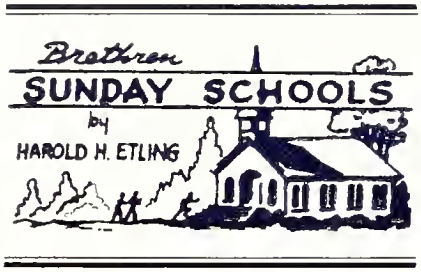
The nominating committee has prepared this list of nominees for the election of officers-elect who will have one year to serve on the district executive committee before taking office: For president, Herbert Houts, Rittman, and Neil Carey, Akron; for vice president, Harold Crone, Ashland, and Max Beal, Ankenytown; for secretary-treasurer, Robert Meiser, Canton, and Don Royer, Middlebranch; for boys club advisor, Ted Cellar, Ashland, and Ivan Amstutz, Wooster.—Earle Cole, secretary-treasurer.

ATLANTIC DISTRICT LAYMEN MEET AT ALLENTOWN, PA.

Visiting Laymen Gather in Front of Allentown Church

A time of Christian fellowship and business was enjoyed by those who attended the Atlantic District Laymen's Fellowship dinner meeting at the First Brethren Church of Allentown, Pa., May 7.

There were 94 men present, which compares very well to the number that were present at the first laymen's meeting at Hagerstown, Md., a little over a year ago, when 20 of the laymen met.



A tasty meal was furnished by the Allentown church, and afterward some of their talented men presented musical testimonies. Pastors Landrum, Neely, Weber, and Polman harmonized amazingly well as a surprise quartet. Then Rev. Clyde K. Landrum brought us the message concerning the Board of Evangelism and the need for more support from laymen for the Brethren Evangelistic Crusade.

In the business session that followed, it was decided to hold a laymen's retreat for several days in the fall as the next meeting of the fellowship.

SWEPT OFF OUR FEET!

It is literally true that on Sunday, August 22, 1954, we were swept off our feet! The National Sunday School Board of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches had prayed and planned and worked for a great national Sunday school convention, and now we stood to sing the opening hymn. Before we had finished the singing of the first stanza of that hymn, the ushers came to tell us that every seat in the auditorium was filled and there were more standing on the outside than had gathered on the inside. They were awaiting a place in the convention auditorium.

Quickly we moved to the lower auditorium of the Grace Seminary Building, and began all over again. Now the ushers were carrying chairs, making room in this lower auditorium for more and yet still more people. The second national Sunday school convention was under way. It proved to be more than any of us had even dared to think or hope. Within minutes of our moving to the lower auditorium, it too was filled to capacity, and still they came.

But we recognize that we dare not live in the past. The second national Sunday school convention can only be a stepping stone for the third. We are looking forward to this third convention with eager anticipation. We are trusting that you will help us to make it the "greatest."

THE THIRD NATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION WILL BE DIFFERENT.

It will be held in a different place.

Beautiful Jennings Lodge, located at the edge of Portland, Oreg., will be the scene of our activities for the two-day convention. Jennings Lodge with its tall and majestic evergreens will make us conscious of the marvelous creation of our God. It will be an ideal spot in which we can discover ways and means of reaching "men and women" for Christ through our Sunday schools. Ample room will be provided for the many worshops that we will be including in the program.

It will be held at a different time.

Tuesday and Wednesday, August 9 and 10, are the days given over to this Third National Sunday School Convention of Brethren Churches. Last year we began on Sunday morning and continued through Monday night. This year our convention will begin on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. That means that many can drive to the convention after their Sunday services are over, and be on time for the opening session.

It will feature different music.

One of the highlights of every convention is the good music that is presented. This year we believe your heart will be thrilled as you hear the singing of the delegates, and as special musical talent is presented. Watch the pages of your Brethren Missionary Herald for further announcement about the musical program of this national Sunday school convention.

It will feature different speakers.

Our convention this year will feature some outstanding Sunday-school speakers with messages on Sunday-school work that will be of vital help to you and your Sunday school. Full announcement will be made in future issues of the Herald.

It will feature different workshops.

The workshops of last year have been the subject of many excellent words of encouragement. This year there will be many new workshops, for the program is being enlarged. Subjects for workshops already assigned are:

The Task of the Superintendent.
The Obligation of the Teacher.
The Art of Lesson Preparation.
How to Use Visual Aids.
Helps for Children's Divisions.
The Cradle Roll and How to Use It.
The Responsibility of the Pastor.
The Opportunity of the Secretary.
The Art of Lesson Presentation.
How to Build your Sunday School.
Helps for Youth Departments.
The Home Department and How to Use It.

It will picture for you different displays.

Have you wanted to "see for yourself" the books, filmstrips, slide, materials that are available for use in your Sunday school? Then come to the Portland convention and see for yourself, for there will be displays of many items of interest to every Sunday-school teacher, officer, and pupil.

It will present different emphasis.

Yes; the year of 1955 has been a great year in Sunday-school work in our National Fellowship of Brethren Churches, but we are only beginning. Much more is to be accomplished, and we believe that under God the year 1956 will be our greatest year to the present. The new slogans, goals, contest plans, etc., will be set forth and we believe these will help you to make your Sunday school a greater Sunday school in the year 1956.

THESE TWO DAYS OF SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION will bring you information, inspiration, and fellowship that can only be found in a National Sunday School Convention of the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches. Plan to attend, to be inspired, and to go away from the convention ready to do a greater job for Jesus Christ. THE SUNDAY SCHOOL IS BIG BUSINESS.

from the new chapel. At present there are 83 students enrolled, one of whom is a seventh-grade honor student who has been with the school from the original kindergarten. We have five teachers, an office clerk, and the superintendent, who is pastor of the church.

This is opportunity for a mission work in a real sense of the term because many of the children come from homes where Christ is not known, loved, and served as Saviour. We greatly need a man teacher who can care for the upper grades and serve as principal. Credentials in this state are not required, but should be in the possession of such an instructor to maintain our enviable standards with the California State Board of Education. We earnestly solicit your fervent prayers for the Lord's guidance as we seek to bring Christ into the homes of the community through the children.

Need for More Workers

Anyone who follows the progress of our over-all church program can see that our fellowship is expanding rapidly. There is a need for more foreign missionaries, a need for more home-mission pastors, a constant need in the established churches for pastors, and a continual call for workers in other phases of the Lord's work.

Some have indicated that this may be the time to halt our expansion. Is this true? Is this the attitude that Christ would have us have? We are reminded that there were only a comparative few that were His followers when the Great Commission was given. Yet He instructed specifically that we were to go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature. This is our God-given task. Who among God's children can shirk this responsibility? Our Lord graphically told us that the harvest is plenteous, that it is white unto the harvest, and that the laborers are few. But He also declared that we were to pray the Lord of the harvest to thrust forth laborers into the field. Have we done this?

Each door of opportunity that is opened to the Brethren Church should become a challenge to the whitened harvest. Each believer must realize that God would not open the door of opportunity without the willingness to provide workers to meet each need. God will only open such doors to those who have the message to give and to those who will be willing to give out the message of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

Therefore a solemn responsibility rests upon every member of our fellowship. The Apostle Paul gave this instruction to young Timothy: "And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also" (II Tim. 2:2). Here is a principle that will help to meet this need. When the early church had a need for workers, they laid their hands upon those that were qualified and sent them to the task. May God enable us to pray about the need for workers, to see our responsibility to reach the world with the Gospel, and to do our part in helping qualified young men and women to arise to this need.

Child Smoking

A few years ago it was the goal of the tobacco companies to put a cigarette in the mouth of every man. When this was accomplished in a certain measure, they determined with the help of Hollywood to put one in the mouth of every woman. When one looks into the world, it can be readily seen that their effort has been largely successful. Next the teen-ager was in line. Today this is common among young folk. Those who do not use the "weed" are branded "nonsocial" or "religious." Now the market is flooded with candy imitations prepared in packages fashioned after the different brands. The child obtains these packages and proceeds to pretend. The appetite is being whetted until the time when he will muster enough courage to try a real one. Could it be that this is the plan of the advertisers?

The attitude of the world has changed toward this indulgence. When a child, I was taught in the schoolroom that the cigarette was harmful, poison to the system, injurious to health, and not clean. Today, teachers think nothing of "lighting up" in the presence of the young scholars. The power of advertising, the gradual lowering of moral standards, the working of sin in the lives of men and women have made this terrible habit common.

Recently in the newspapers an Associated Press wirephoto was carried showing a 3½-year-old boy who is a constant smoker of cigars. He spends a dollar a week on this habit. It all came about through a stunt in teaching him to smoke. The mother admits now that it was a mistake. But sadly, the family physician has said it is not harmful to his body.

This does not agree with the findings in medical circles today. The American Cancer Society has found that there is a definite link between lung cancer and smoking. Smoking shortens life, causes undue nerve problems. It becomes a habit which is not profitable or logical.

God never intended that these bodies should become slaves to such habits. The Christian parent must guard against this on both spiritual and physical grounds. Our bodies are the temples of God. He dwells in them; we are not our own because we have been bought with a price, the precious blood of Christ.

Missionary Herold Offering

The season for our missionary gifts to the Herald has arrived again. This year the need is greater. The Missionary Herald faces a building program. We must all agree that their work through the printed page has done much to sow the seeds of the Gospel, to promote all of our missionary interests, and to give us needed and adequate materials for churches and Sunday schools. Over and over again we hear of new folks who have entered the Brethren Church by first an introduction through the Missionary Herald.

We trust that each reader will make this need a matter of prayer and then will give as the Lord directs that there may be a sizable increase in their annual offering. Pray that the Lord will lead them in their expansion that our Missionary Herald will become a greater missionary organization to adequately meet the needs of our churches.

CLEVELAND DEDICATES COMPLETED CHURCH

The First Brethren Church, Cleveland, Ohio, dedicated their completed building on Sunday, June 5, 1955. The lower auditorium had been used prior to this time while members of the church worked to finish the upper auditorium. Rev. Lester E. Pifer, assistant field secretary for the Brethren Home Missions Council, was the dedication speaker. Read the July Home Mission Number for a complete report.

COME AND GROW WITH US

By Lester O. Smitley

Parkersburg, W. Va., may be somewhat isolated from the rest of the Brethren churches, but it is not insulated from the hearts of those who have been praying and giving for the Lord's work here in the Mountain State.

For some months a little group of God's people had been meeting together for Bible study and prayer. Occasionally Rev. Stanley F. Hauser, who was then located at Grafton, W. Va., came down to lead them in their study. In the fall of 1952 I came in answer to the call of God and of the people to pastor the flock. The people realized, and I myself realized, my inexperience as a pastor, but we also realized the adequacy and completeness in the Lord. We have been meeting in a building which at one time was a fire station. In spite of the earthly handicap, however, we have seen the Lord working in His own way. During the past few months the Lord has blessed us by adding about 12 to our flock.

We saw another movement of the hand of the Lord on May 1, 1955, when Brother Lockhart and Brother Gault lifted the first shovel of soil to initiate the building of the Grace Brethren Church of Parkersburg. We might have laughed a little in unbelief when Janice, a girl in Mrs. Smitley's junior prayer meeting, prayed a prayer in December: "Dear Lord . . . let us have our church finished in May," but thank the Lord for little (?) hearts that trust so simply. Who knows how many churches are built by the so-called simple prayers of children. "But without faith it is impossible to please him"

It was a beautiful day, and 62 people had gathered to witness the ground-breaking service on Sunday, May 1, 1955. The service took place immediately after the Bible school on Sunday morning. It was opened by the singing of a hymn, followed by prayer. Rev. James Moellendick, superintendent of the Union Mission of Parkersburg, gave a short inspirational message which challenged our hearts to press on for the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

This new visible movement of the hand of the Lord has given us new courage and zeal for the Lord. We continue to covet the prayers of all that God's work will go on, that many unsaved will be converted, and that Christians will grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord.

The little challenge on the bottom of our sign, "Come and grow with us," was suggested by Dr. L. L. Grubb. It is a very fitting one, and many have taken the message to heart. Our prayer is that many others will be sought out by the Lord here in our new location.

SECOND UNIT AT PARKERSBURG

James Knepper, Rev. Lester Smitley, Vernon Latham

The large letter "P" on the cover is not only symbolic of "Parkersburg" but also "progress." With the two units of the Brethren Construction Company now operating, it will mean more home-mission churches can be built by these Brethren men who have dedicated their talents to the Lord's work in this way.

Although this will be the first church for Mr. James Knepper as a Brethren Construction Company member, you cannot say he is inexperienced. It was this same Mr. Knepper who ate his lunch in a few minutes and spent the rest of his noon hour in helping build the York, Pa., church. Of course, he spent hundreds of hours additional in the evenings and other free time from his regular job. He is the first member to join the crew who was not a member of the Sidney (Ind.) Brethren Church.

Mr. Vernon Latham, upon whose shoulders will fall a great responsibility in building the Parkersburg church, has helped in the construction of the churches at Dayton, Ohio; Roanoke, Va.; York, Pa.; Wheaton, Ill.; and Goshen, Ind. As one of the pioneers of the Brethren Construction Company he has gained the experience that will be of great help now in forming the second unit. The large "P" in addition to being symbolic of Parkersburg and Progress should include the word "Prayer," for which there is a great need.

TESTIMONIES OF THOSE WHO HAVE "COME TO GROW WITH US"

"Since we have been under the teaching of the Word of God by Rev. Lester Smitley, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church, we have found our salvation in Christ Jesus. Our joy is in the knowledge that He lives in our hearts and is the governing spirit in our family. In Him we have found peace, joy, and new life. May we have the prayers of others that our church will grow in number and in strength for the glory of Jesus Christ."—Mr. and Mrs. William Walker.

"I'm thankful that the Lord is my personal Saviour and that He washed my sins away. My family and home life have been completely change with the Lord guiding us. The teaching of the Word has blessed us in many ways. We are steadily growing in the Lord and constantly praying for those still lost in sin."—Mrs. Edwin Morris.

"Since I first attended the Grace Brethren Church, I have been abundantly blessed. With the fundamental teaching of this church, truly the slogan, 'Come and grow with us,' means something to me."—Richard Runion.

"Two months ago I began attending the Grace Brethren Church, and ever since I have had more blessings than I can count. I thank the Lord for this church and for its ministry. I hope that some day I can play a bigger part in this church, helping to build God's heavenly kingdom."—Sandra Spiker.

REVIVAL COMES

Records Break at Martinsburg

By Earle E. Peer

The year 1955 has been a year of record breaking at the Rosemont Brethren Church. Our Sunday school won the Brethren National Sunday School Contest two months in succession. Easter Sunday saw all previous attendance records "smashed" as we crowded 255 persons into our Sunday school. For the month of April a 59-percent increase in attendance in the contest was only good enough to land us third place! However, in May we came back to win the first-place pennant again. The "battle of the bulge" tells the story. In the accompanying photograph, Mr. Robert Triggs, junior department superintendent, points his finger to the junior girls class meeting behind the curtain partition. If the partition were of a solid material, the class would not have room.

January 1, 1955, the Rosemont Brethren Church went self-supporting and God gave us a REVIVAL! The windows of heaven have been opened and the blessings have been falling ever since. The finances of the church are now better than at any time in the history of the church. January, our first month as a self-supporting church, was a record month financially, with more funds placed in the Lord's treasury than ever before. We are also happy to report an increase in our home-mission offering over last year, which, coupled with the fact the church went self-supporting, we feel is a real spiritual victory. Our Easter offering for foreign missions is now about $400 more than last year. Our goal is to double last year's offering. Truly God has been showering us with blessings!

April 17 is a day long to be remembered at Rosemont Brethren Church for a number of reasons. During the opening exercises of Sunday school that morning almost $2,000 worth of new equipment was dedicated to the Lord. A new Crown tape recorder and radio microphone used in broadcasting "The Gospel Truth," along with a Smith-Corona typewriter, a Gestetner duplicating machine, new Inspring Hymns songbooks, 48 new folding chairs, and a communion table presented by former Pastor and Mrs. M. L. Myers, were presented to our Lord to be used in His service. This new equipment has already substantially aided the pastor in the ministry of the Word of God in Martinsburg, W. Va.

The morning worship which followed that morning was the beginning of a two-week revival meeting with Dr. L. L. Grubb as our evangelist. This also proved to be another one of the greatest blessings in our church. In many respects this revival was the most unusual this pastor has ever experienced. The weather was bad, but the attendance was good. It was rainy and cold, but the attendance held up very well during the entire meeting, with the church filled almost every night. That morning service concluded with 43 decisions for Christ. Seldom today does one see such a mighty moving of the Spirit of God upon the hearts of men. Two women accepted Christ for the first time and 41 Christians rededicated their lives to the Lord.

Every service which followed that in the entire meeting saw decisions for our Lord, with a total of 116 decisions, of which 24 were first-time confessions of Christ as Saviour. Some of those who came for rededication came for the assurance of salvation. This revival was not only unusual for the way in which God moved by his Holy Spirit, but it was also unusual in the opposition presented by Satan, our archenemy and the opposer of revival. But, as always, God gave us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ, for when the enemy came in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord lifted up a standard against him. God used our Dr. Grubb in a marvelous way in the preaching of the Word of God. This, accompanied by prayer, was responsible for the many spiritual victories won for Christ. If you should ask me to characterize this revival with just one word, it would be "prayer."

A few other blessings which came along with the revival was that the pastor received an increase in salary effective May 1, a decision of the official board to purchase or build a parsonage, and the employment of an architect to begin work on plans for a new building. The pastor and wife are also very appreciative to the beloved of the flock for a new summer suit for the pastor and a 52-piece set of Rogers silverware for the pastor's wife, which came as birthday presents. Pray for your former home-mission church in Martinsburg that we may continue to hold forth the Word of Life and win many precious souls for our Lord.

GRACE GRADUATE GOES TO BERRIEN SPRINGS

Top: Rev. and Mrs. Gilbert Hawkins and son. Bottom: Sunday-morning congregation at Berrien Springs.

Rev. Gilbert Hawkins, a 1955 graduate of Grace Seminary, has moved to Berrien Springs, Mich., to assume the full-time pastorate of the Grace Brethren Church in that city. Brother Hawkins has been a student pastor during the school year while living at Winona Lake, Ind. Don't fail to remember these graduates in home-mission churches and other fields of activity as they now devote their full time to the Lord's work.

THE PARAMOUNT NEED OF PARAMOUNT, CALIF.

By John W. Mayes, Pastor

It is sometimes our privilege to go into new communities to build new Brethren churches, but it is not often our privilege to be established with a sizable plant in an area and watch it change from a rural-type community to an entirely new field. Such is our experience at Paramount. About six years ago, with the beginning of the Brethren High School there was little, if any, thought that we would have a Brethren church here in time to come. As the Brethren High School grew and the buildings became of sizable proportion with a 10-acre campus, it seemed a shame to have them idle each Sunday. A Sunday school was then begun, which in due time became the Paramount Brethren Church. Our buildings include about 18,000 square feet of floor space available to the church and divided into 15 classrooms of 25 to 50 seating capacity each, and with an auditorium seating about 500.

Paramount Is a Community of Need

If you have read much of the problem of juvenile delinquency, you no doubt have read the name of our small city. It ranks high on the list of problem cities for juvenile lawlessness. Into this Dutch dairy farm area have come many different peoples, some of them not of the highest sort, and consequently the problems of lawlessness skyrocket. Our town is not "overchurched." As in many other places, few people here attend church. The few churches we have are small, and until the present, the field was too widely scattered for rapid growth.

Paramount Is a Community of Expansion

Almost next door to us there is a new tract of 40 homes soon to be erected. All predictions are that the dairies near us have only a few short years before they, too, will be pushed out to make way for an expanse of new homes. The county planning commission shows new highways to be put through our area. The citizens are in community development meetings. Because of our facilities, two of these meetings have been held in our buildings.

With the completion of our beautiful new church auditorium we will be physically ready for a long-range church-expansion program along with the growth of our community.

Paramount—a Church of Influence

With a heritage of the Brethren High School, the impetus of its tremendous growth, the aid of its fine facilities so carefully planned for a church, and the love and admiration of our community, built upon our fine campus and our fine students, we believe in the providence of God that this church shall one day become a church of tremendous influence. Because of the unchurched here already, the unbuilt homes which are now surveyors' instruments in an open field, the cows now walking in pasture fields where soon children will be playing, and most of all, because of a strong nucleus of about 100 people who desire to build a church, we are trusting that the Lord will do great things for His holy name.

Pointers on Your Vacation

By Lester E. Pifer

Summer is the time for vacations. Christian people, too, look forward to that time in the summer when they can get away from the regular line of duties and enjoy some new scenery and atmosphere. However, too many times these summer vacations are marked with tragedies, wasted time, and little profit to our spiritual lives. A vacation can be profitable and blessed of God if used for His glory. Let's take the Lord into consideration in our plans, not merely for our own selfish desires.

Your vacation provides an opportunity for spiritual enlightenment. This year's national conference at Portland, Oreg., offers to every member of the Brethren Church a fine opportunity to combine the finest in scenery, fishing, boating, general sightseeing, and spiritual enlightenment that can be found anywhere. National conference is a spiritual highlight for all. The whole family would profit from this trip.

It may be that your vacation time or means will not permit you to go as far as Portland. There are many Bible conferences that offer a splendid vacation. Along with the outdoor beauty and recreation that the conference grounds offers there is that spiritual atmosphere, the meeting of new Christian friends, the messages from God's Word, and the working of the Spirit of God, all of which may make the vacation the best and most profitable that you have ever had.

It was on my first vacation in the new Christian life that missionary challenges and the call to God's service were presented to me so effectively. This was at national conference and Camp Bethany that the Lord spoke to me about His work. There I yielded my life to him, placed my fagot on the fire, and determined by His grace and power to become a servant of the Lord.

Those things which I learned that year made an indelible impression on my life. I have never forgotten the new Christian friends, the fellowship that I enjoyed with God's people, and the instruction from God's Word that came to me that year. God took that vacation and made it a spiritual victory in my life. It may be that the Lord will use this year's vacation as an instrument to lead you to new heights in your Christian experience. How important, then, that He be taken into consideration in our plans.

Secondly, your vacation provides an opportunity for the gathering of new methods and ideas for Christian service. Your trip may take you some distance away from home. It will probably cover a weekend or two and several prayer-meeting nights. To take a vacation from the services of the Lord would not be honoring to Him. Can it be that our vacation would be so planned that there would be no time for the Lord and His house and worship?

Plan to stop on the way for Sunday school and church. Do not fail to attend an evening service and prayer meeting somewhere. It will give you new inspiration and blessing. Keep your eyes open for promotional ideas that are being used, the methods that are being used in the various departments, the manner in which services are conducted, and any new means that might be used profitably in your own church or Sunday school. Note how friendly the people are, the type of message that is given, and the general atmosphere and characteristics of each church you visit. It will help in the appreciation of your own church and give you a greater interest in the progress that your group is making.

Do not forget that the Lord expects our tithe and gifts during vacation time too. Too many times the Lord's money is consumed in the vacation simply because we are not in our particular place of worship. The expenses back home go on whether you are there or not.

Thirdly, your vacation provides an excellent opportunity for personal witnessing for Christ. Our responsibility in soul-winning covers every moment of our life. We are the ambassadors of Christ. We are charged with the message of the Gospel. The Holy Spirit indwells the believer, endeavoring always to lead us to be a personal witness unto Christ. We are not our own. We belong to Him. Therefore, Biblically speaking, this vacation is His, and should be for His glory. Paul said: "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (I Cor. 10:31).

Arm yourself with plenty of well-chosen gospel tracts. The man who puts the gasoline in your tank, the waitress who serves you your meal, the clerk you may purchase a souvenir from, or the family you camp beside may need Christ. That gospel tract, that personal testimony, your very manner of life may be the message needed to bring that soul to Christ. Carry a New Testament or Bible with you on this vacation. Keep yourself well supplied with the Scripture and a willing heart to cope with any situation that Christ may afford you. Keep in mind His promise: "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." It may be that your vacation will pay off well in every respect and that the Lord will give you a number of souls for His glory.

Prayer is important in any vacation. Pray for safety on the highway or whatever your means of travel. Pray for God's leading in your vacation. Pray for opportunities to witness, and, finally, pray for your testimony that in every respect you will be an example of what God expects in each child of His.

I believed in God and that the Bible was the Holy Word of God; however, God was a remote personality and the Bible a mystery. Now, as I attend this growing church with its teaching ministry, I find my old concepts of a remote and an impersonal God and a religion of mystery being swept away. The shining light of increasing knowledge and understanding brings into sharper focus the God who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—Mary Lydick.

Alexandria, Va. (Robert Markley, pastor)—

No doubt you have already received a letter from our church secretary, Mrs. Wayne Smith, regarding the Commonwealth Avenue Brethren Church voting to go self-supporting as of January 1, 1955. I praise the Lord for this as it means that $1,500 can be used somewhere else. His name is to be praised, too, for under our refinanced program we will be paying on our total indebtedness $100 more per month, and at the same time we will need to raise only $240 additional per year to meet the payments. God is blessing us for being better stewards.

Cuba, N. Mex. (Evan Adams, missionary)—

The past month has been especially busy for the workers at the mission. I think we could say that May was the busiest month of the year. Our Navaho Bible Conference ended Thursday, May 26. The men could stay only five days of the originally planned ten, and I am sure it was directed of the Lord. We were so tired and the workers needed rest so badly that I doubt if we could have gone the full time. We are expecting the Churchill family and Marybeth Munn this afternoon for a two-day visit and missionary meetings with the Navaho Christians.

Dayton, Ohio (C. S. Zimmerman, pastor)—

The fifth anniversary of the Patterson Park Brethren Church was observed on Sunday, June 5, 1955, with Dr. Paul R. Bauman, vice president of Grace Theological Seminary, as the anniversary speaker. In the evening, Dr. Bauman gave an illustrated message on "Egypt: Its Riches, Its Ruins, Its Restoration." Our Sunday-school average was 102 for the month of May, which was a good record, but lacked 1 of equaling our April record.

Seattle, Wash. (Thomas E. Hammers, pastor)—

Dr. L. L. Grubb, of the Brethren Home Missions Council, Winona Lake, Ind., flew here for a building-program rally on Sunday night, June 5. On the following Monday we contacted various banking institutions in our city which are considering the possibilities of helping us finance our building program. On Sunday, June 5, we began our third year of regular services in the parsonage, and this is all the more reason we should pray about getting a building on our lots at 68th Street and 35th Avenue, NOW.

Clayhole, Ky. (Sewell S. Landrum, missionary)—

One more visit and the school work which takes almost three days per week will be over until next fall. I have had 11 classes totaling more than 450 children. We are now getting ready for Bible camps and DVBS. This will keep us busy from May 30 to July 15, with only two weeks between. The children look forward to the Bible school and we will have some help again this year.

FORT LAUDERDALE STARTS BUILDING FUND DRIVE

Fort Lauderdale group on a recent Sunday.

The Grace Brethren Church, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., started a building-fund drive on Sunday, May 1, 1955, which netted nearly $1,200 for the day. With the amount already in the fund and the $2,000-plus Minute-Man offering, the goal is to go over the $5,000 figure in the month of May. The architect has finished the auditorium plans and is working on the Sunday-school wings which will be ready in a few days. The pastor, Ralph J. Colburn, reports: "The seasonal loss continues to be felt in attendances, but we are making good new contacts and will get some real gains from them I am sure." Give praise to the Lord for the responses on behalf of this new work.

ISRAEL CALLS!

TRADITION—TRAGEDY

By Bruce L. Button

The greatest hindrance that confronts the missionary as he attempts to point his Jewish friend to Jesus, the Messiah, is tradition. Blind tradition never follows reason; rather it follows in blind obedience the pattern set in ages past, regardless of the facts. And such tradition, sooner or later, results in tragedy for all persons involved. Judaism and believers in Judaism hold tenaciously to tradition. Their beliefs, their hopes are based on tradition. The constant repetition of tragedy resulting from observing tradition has brought the average Jewish person to an almost fatalistic attitude in things pertaining to the spiritual. Occasionally, when tragedy strikes, one of these dear people will penetrate the blinding veil of tradition into the realm of reason and research. For such there is great hope, for the Holy Spirit is able to deal with such people.

About a year ago a Jewish woman rang the doorbell at the mission. After I admitted her and we were seated, she told me her reason for calling. She had a son—ach! such a son—tall, handsome, intelligent; a young David, if you please. She loved him; how she loved him; even after the death of her husband—may he rest in peace—didn't she see that her son received the finest education that could be had? And didn't she watch over him and encourage him when difficulties were encountered? Didn't she always live in a fine neighborhood where he would meet the finest people? And she saw he was bar mitzvah. And she attended schule; always she attended schule! And the result—trouble! Oi, such a trouble! That her son should want to marry a goy, a shiksa, a Catholic girl. Her heart was breaking. And at this point she broke down and began to cry.

I asked her what she expected of me in this matter. She replied she wanted me to talk to her son. Perhaps I could reason with him. Perhaps he would listen to me. I asked her why she did not go to her rabbi with this problem. She replied she had spoken to her rabbi about it, but that he refused to do anything about it. He had said his intervention in the matter could be construed as an anti-Christian attitude. This he would not have happen for the world. She would have to handle the matter herself. And then she pressed me again with the question: "Will you talk to my son and this girl?"

I told Mrs. F. that I would talk to these young people. I warned her I must deal with them as I felt led of the Lord. I also told her that she must also be present, for what I had to say would concern her also. She agreed to these conditions and then let me bear a witness to the satisfaction one finds in Jesus, Messiah and Saviour. However, she was so distressed by her immediate problem it is douhtful if she understood anything I said. When she left the mission, she gave me her name and address and told me she would let me know when I could call and talk with her son.

After an interval of three weeks, during which time Mrs. F. did not attempt to contact me, I called at her home. My knock went unanswered, even though I could see Mrs. F. through the glass door, seated in the living room. Two other attempts received the same treatment. On the fourth attempt, about two months later, Mrs. F. answered the door and recognized me. She told me her son would not see me, that he was married—and shut the door. In the months that followed I attempt to contact Mrs. F. at her home two or three times a month. At no time did she answer the door, and I was fast reaching the conclusion that tradition held full sway in this woman. Here also blind obedience had gained the upper hand.

My next contact with Mrs. F. was in the regular house-to-house calling program. I knocked on her door simply because her record card was next in line and not because I thought there would be a chance to witness. The door opened and Mrs. F. extended a friendly greeting and an invitation to come into the house. After we were seated she began: Her son had been home; not his wife, just the son. Such trouble! Oi, such trouble! She had gone to his traveling case to see if there were clothes to mend or buttons to sew on. As she examined his clothes, what did she find? A crucifix and a rosary! Oi, could you believe it? And her boy who had known the yamakah and talith. How could he do this to her? And he had been married in the Catholic church. Surely he was apostate, for one was not permitted to be married in the church unless he changed to a Catholic. No longer was her son a Jew. What should she do? If he would listen, would I talk to him?

GOSHEN CHURCH GOING UP

The new Grace Brethren Church of Goshen, Ind., is rapidly going on to completion. The latest available picture for this issue, taken about May 25, shows the laminated arches going into place. The church is being built by the Brethren Construction Company, and it was here that another new member, James Knepper, of York, Pa., joined the crew. To meet the demands for new home-mission churches, the crew was divided and Mr. James Knepper and Mr. Vernon Latham moved on to start the new building in Parkersburg, W. Va., while the other members remain to complete the Goshen church. Tom Bailey is supervising both projects, with Vernon Latham assuming much of the responsibility at Parkersburg.

I told her I would welcome the opportunity to talk to all of them. I told here there was a solution out of all this seeming trouble. And I began to deal with her about salvation and sacrifice and sin and Messiah from the Old Testament. I pointed out how she and her son and her new daughter needed a common tie to bind them together. I stressed that tie did not lie in the Catholic church or the Jewish synagogue. I pointed out it did reside in a Jewish God-Man, the Lord Jesus, the Messiah of Israel and Saviour of the world. I read such passages as Genesis 49:10; Deuteronomy 18:17-22; II Samuel 7:12-22; Psalms 2:10-12; 16:10-11; Isaiah 9:6-7; 53; 7:14; 61:1-3; 65:1-7; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Zechariah 12:10-14, and many other passages from the Old Testament. And each time I pointed out to Mrs. F. how these were fulfilled in Jesus of Nazareth. I dealt with personal sin and with the necessity of a sacrifice for sin, of the fact that it is the blood which makes a covering or a shield for the soul. And all through my testimony Mrs. F. repeatedly said: "Does it say that in the Jewish Bible?" I assured her these were the statements of the Jewish Bible and that I was reading to her from that very Book.

Our conversation lasted from 10 in the morning until 1 in the afternoon. During the conversation I invited her to our Bible class and she assured me she would attend the first week in June. As I was leaving, she asked where she might obtain a "Jewish Bible." She never knew these passages we had read were in the Jewish Bible. I promised her I would bring her the Bible she requested, and she could check the passages herself. And with that I hurried home to a belated lunch.

Mrs. F. has received her Bible and by the time you have read this article, she will (pray God) have attended one or two of the Bible classes at the mission. Perhaps I will have had the chance to talk to her and her son and her new daughter. Do remember to pray for her and her loved ones. And pray that I might have the opportunity to talk with these young people and have the wisdom of the Lord guiding me as I talk with them. Praise the Lord for those who are permitted to see beyond tradition. Last of all, pray for those who are still in the bonds of tradition, that they, too, might reach the point where research and reason enter the life and blind obedience flees into the darkness it causes.

PRAYERS FOR REVIVAL AT LANSING ARE ANSWERED

By Donald Hocking

Our revival meeting at the YMCA, Lansing, Mich., began on May 29 and ran through June 5 for a total of 10 services. An average of 40 people attended the services, with the highest attendance at 55.

The first decisions came on Tuesday night, when two men came to rededicate their lives to Christ. After the service closed a young man, 14 years old, came to find Christ as his Saviour. By the closing Sunday evening a total of 15 decisions were recorded, of which three were first-time confessions. "Unto Him be the glory."

Since January 1955 the Lansing folk have been praying for a revival meeting. Insurmountable obstacles in the eyes of men dimmed the outlook of our meetings time and time again, but "prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God." God removed every obstacle and answered each request.

God sent us Dean Fetterhoff as His messenger to revive the hearts of Christians and point others to Jesus Christ for salvation. Excellent music was provided by the evangelist and the Messner brothers, Dick and Bob, who will be representing Grace Seminary as a gospel team this summer.

How we praise God for doing more than we could ask or think! We were able to raise the expense of the meetings and in addition $212.40 was given for the work of foreign missions. "Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end" (Eph. 3:20-21). This is the testimony of the Grace Brethren Church of Lansing, Mich.

Now we are praying for continuation of the revival in the hearts of those who were contacted during the meeting, and that some who did not make a decision will do so very soon. The Lord has called the pastor to the foreign-mission field and the church is praying that God will soon send His man to Lansing to take up the work. We do not want Jeremiah 8:20 to be true of Lansing, Mich.: "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved." The possibilities are tremendous, the responsibility great. Who will stand in the gap?

TWO MISSIONS JOIN IN FELLOWSHIP

Rev. Sam I Horney, along with the native pastors of the Taos, N. Mex., area, recently drove to the Navaho Mission for an overnight stay, taking with them some 40 Spanish-American Christians. A service in the evening proved to be a time of real fellowship with members from both missions, the mission personnel, and representatives of the Brethren Home Missions Council taking part.

The occasion for the get-together was the shooting of pictures to be used in producing another Navaho film. The new film will replace the present "Forgotten Navaho," and is expected to be ready for release this fall during the Thanksgiving offering period.

In Memoriam

Buddy Dean Hughes, 20, a member of the Johnson City Brethren Church, was laid to rest May 11. The service was conducted by Pastor Dean Risser, with John Burns, former pastor, delivering the message. Mr. Hughes was drowned accidentally while swimming near Montgomery, Ala., where he was employed by the Woolworth Co.—Dean Risser, pastor.

Daniel W. Graybill, 81, went to be with the Lord following a heart attack on Feb. 8, 1955. He was a charter member of the First Brethren Church of Inglewood, Calif., and was a boyhood friend of the late Dr. L. S. Bauman. He has been a staunch supporter of all the interests of the Brethren Church. He is survived by his wife, Elva.—Glenn O'Neal, pastor.

Mrs. Frank Amstutz, of Berne, Ind., mother of Mrs. Gordon Bracker, went to be with the Lord on May 3.

Mary E. Bearss answered the summons of the Lord whom she loved to "come up hither" on May 6. She had been a member of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., since 1932. For many years Sister Bearss, together with her surviving husband, John H. Bearss, served on the board of deacons of the Long Beach church. Due to health conditions they have not been able to attend the services in recent years.—Dr. Charles W. Mayes, pastor.

Mrs. Katherine Raudenbush, the mother of Mrs. Stanley Hauser, of Conemaugh, Pa., died suddenly on May 24. Sister Raudenbush was a faithful member and worker of the First Brethren Church of Philadelphia. For many years she served that church as a deaconess, Sunday-school teacher, and young people's leader. There are many preachers, and missionaries and their wives who benefited greatly by the guidance and teaching of "Mother" Raudenbush.

Her son-in-law, Rev. Stanley F. Hauser, is now serving the Lord as pastor of the Conemaugh Brethren Church.

Funeral services were conducted in Conemaugh by the undersigned, who was privileged to receive spiritual help and teaching from this saint of God.—William A. Steffler, pastor, First Brethren Church, Dayton, Ohio.

"Our Father which are in heaven." What a blessed reality this! What a glorious truth! As the Apostle John declares, "Behold!" Behold what manner of immense and boundless love the Father has given to us that we earth-born, sin-conceived creatures should be called His sons. How is it that God should be a Father to us? From whence do we declare our pedigree that entitles us to this high privilege? Surely we cannot point to our human parents and say, "I have received it from them," or to our great nation and say, "America has made me thus," or even to our church and find our heavenly status there. Much less can we find in our own lives that which unequivocably qualifies us as His sons.

The only answer, the only record which is true, and which legitimately guarantees that we have a Heavenly Father is this: "And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (I John 5:11-12). There it is! In His Son. God only had one divine Son, His only-begotten. The only one of whom He could say, "My beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." And yet God wills His Son to us, so that by believing in Him we are accepted freely into his heavenly family. It is our faith in that Son as our Saviour, indeed as our very life, that entitles us to divine sonship. Truly such love manifested toward us by God should cause us, like the Apostle Paul, to bow our knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named.

We are now the sons of God, and it is our blessed privilege to call God our Father, provided that we have trusted in Christ as Lord and Saviour. However, our lives will only testify to that sonship as the life of the Lord Jesus is seen in us. When we look to ourselves for those divine qualities, we are immediately forced to cry out with the Apostle Paul, "O wretched man that I am." How far short we come, how little like the Master do we fill those holy requirements of absolute obedience to the Heavenly Father. Who of us can say like Him, "I always do those things which please him." Thus as His sons we must walk by faith, and not by sight. Our daily acceptance as God's sons is our faith which says, "Christ liveth in me." The more conscious we are of His abiding presence in us, the more conscious will we be of our Heavenly Father, for Jesus said that both He and His Father would come and manifest themselves to us.

The key to having a greater consciousness of their presence is by meditation in God's Word. As we behold God and Christ in the Word, the life pattern of true fatherhood and sonship is seen. And not only is the pattern of the life seen, but Christ is also seen as dwelling in us by the Holy Spirit as our life of sonship. As we lay hold in greater degree by conscious faith our very lives will be increasingly purified and sanctified unto our Heavenly Father. As we consider how He who dwells in us endured such contradiction of sinners against himself, we will be the more willing to gladly suffer shame for His name.

As we realize that there abides in us One who could say to His accusers, "Which of you convinceth me of sin," it will quicken our desire to have a clean-cut testimony before an unholy world. As we consider that Christ who is our life was absolutely undefiled, there will be no desire for a secret devotion to some idol of impurity in our hearts. When we think of His love toward His own, how He loved them to the very end, which meant laying down His life for them, we shall feel a fervent love for our brethren. As we see the absolute committal to the Father by Him who is sanctified in our hearts, there will be a delight in doing our Father's will. When we pause to think of His sacrifice for us while we were yet sinners and enemies of His Father, there will be a greater concern for the souls of our enemies, or those who are strangers to us.

As we are more aware that the same One who prayed to His Father with strong cryings and tears lives within, we shall more readily supplicate before the Father's throne. Like Him we shall take less of the counsel of men and more of God. We shall seek less the praise and reward of the creature, and more of the Creator. We shall care less for this world's good and more for the heavenly treasure. Anxiety will be displaced by quiet confidence, sorrow by joy. There will be compassion rather than condemnation, resignation rather than rebellion, obedience than obstinacy. This is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and the life which I now live in the flesh by the faith of that same One.

And yet we see through a glass darkly. It does not yet appear what we shall be. Before long we shall be beholding our Elder Brother face to face. Faith shall be turned to sight. Seeing our shame with sorrow, we shall admire His glory with fullness of joy. But a moment in His unveiled presence will transform us completely and forever into His likeness. The Father's great goal for His many sons will be reached. His unfailing purpose to conform those who love Him into the image of His Son will have been finally carried out. Then shall the righteous shine forth in the kingdom of their Heavenly Father, and the prayer that His will be done on earth as in heaven be answered. Then shall the entire creation awake to behold the manifestation of the sons of God. Truly we can rejoice in the goodness and the greatness of our Heavenly Father.

LIKE UNTO THE HEAVENLY FATHER

By P. FRED FOGLE
Missionary to France

The Word of God contains many admonitions for the Christian concerning his life on this earth while waiting for the redemption of his body at the coming of the Lord. Included in these are such passages as Ephesians 5:1, "Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children"; I Corinthians 11:1, "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ"; and another passage, though not an exhortation, I Thessalonians 1:6, "Ye became followers of . . . the Lord."

The word "followers" in these texts is actually "imitators" or "mimickers," that is to say, mimickers in the sense of imitating something good that someone else has done or is doing.

God is the Heavenly Father of all those who have become His children by personal faith in Christ. Because of this, we are to be His followers, His imitators. We are to imitate in that which concerns our children what He has done and does yet in His dealings with His children.

There is no better way to know how a Christian father should raise his children than to study, in the Scriptures, the characteristics of the Father in heaven.

God is a loving Father. Too often, fathers think that it is only the mother who is expected to manifest tender love for the children. Tender love is not restricted to femininity. The fatherly love of our God far surpasses the love of any woman who has ever lived. The fact that the Bible speaks of one person of the Godhead as "Father" should help us to understand that a father should love his children, and should manifest that love just as much as the mother.

God is a patient Father. The history of Israel teaches us this, as does the history of the Christian church. He is likewise infinitely patient and longsuffering toward the church of our day, a church so often lukewarm. There certainly is a noticeable contrast between the patience of God and the impatience of human beings. So often we are impatient with our children, and very unjustly so, because of nervousness or strain caused by the activities or work in which we are engaged. The friction between parents and children is not always caused by disobedience, but at times by the impatience of parents. Children often need severe discipline, but we must be careful to execute it after much patience has been exercised.

God is a forgiving Father. Children's actions at times give cause for vexation. This can easily become uncontrolled anger and the anger can lead to a spirit of unforgiveness. Turning the light on ourselves, we parents will soon see that our actions are enough at times to provoke the Lord to anger. But we have a God who forgives those who come to Him to ask for mercy. He is the "Father of all mercies." Let us imitate Him and be always willing to forgive.

God is a good Father. The psalmist said: "Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way." You may think that you are a good parent, but how does your goodness compare to God's goodness? Be ye imitators of the Lord.

God is a just Father. So often we are tempted to "play favorites" when there is more than one child in the family. We have a tendency to "spoil" one and not the others, and, in fact, be at times unkind to the others. The Heavenly Father does not do so. He is no respecter of persons. It may seem to us that this is not true, for some Christians get along so well while others have a very difficult time. We cannot understand, for we measure spiritual blessings in terms of the temporal. We approach the situation from a materialistic point of view. Actually, the Lord offers the same spiritual blessings to each of His children. He is just.

God is a holy Father. God told the Israelites that they were to be holy because He, the Lord God, is holy. Peter repeats this for Christians in his first epistle. Fathers, if our homes are to be godly, if our families are to live holy before the Lord, then we ourselves are to be holy and pure. "God hath not called us to uncleanness but unto holiness (I Thess. 4:7). In this wicked age, this admonition must be taken seriously.

God is a perfect example as a Father. In all these things and many more, our Father in heaven is an example. Can you say as much for yourself? Are you always a good example for the children? Can you say: "Do as your daddy does, and the Lord will bless you"? Are you the spiritual father of your children, as well as being the physical father? Have you been able to win your child to Christ at a tender age because your example has been such that he will listen to what you say about Jesus?

Be ye imitators of God—of Christ—of the Lord!

BE YE FATHERS LIKE UNTO THE HEAVENLY FATHER!

FATHER'S DAY . . . IN MEXICO

As we approach the day set aside on the Calendar as Father's Day, many passages of Scripture come to our minds relative to the duties and responsibilities of fathers. The great God-given privilege of fatherhood cannot be separated from its equally great responsibility. From the earliest times respect, reverence, and affection for father, as well as the guiding principles of his life, were most tenderly and sternly prescribed.

The tragedy is that so many fathers of this world never hear the Scriptural teaching concerning their position before God. We think of the burden of David's heart as he wrote in the 103d Psalm that the affection of a father for his children should be as the affection or compassion of God for them that fear Him. In this day when business and other cares occupy all the thoughts as well as time, many children are denied the proper concern of the father.

From the Scriptures we learn that the Hebrew father had supreme rights over his children in the home, even to the power of life and death. These rights were to be governed by love and an interest in the welfare of the child. Today, selfish interests often govern the training and guidance of the children. A lack of respect for individual rights is often noted in the parent. When these same traits are manifest in the child, the adult society calls it "delinquency."

In the average Mexican home the father holds a position of respect in the minds of the children. This respect will likely be based upon his power to instill fear in the heart of the child. His own background, especially religious, leads him to use this as his most effective means of control. The absence of Christian principles such as honesty and dependability is a noted condition. Human affection is usually present, but there is often a lack of real love. Since many of the civil laws are so lax, often the father feels very little responsibility toward family obligations. He can go and come at will and have no fear of the civil authorities. In this sense, every day is "Father's Day."

There is a gratifying contrast in the home of a believer and that of the average Mexican family. With the coming of a life-changing experience with Christ comes a sense of duty and respect based upon Christian principles. Fear gives way to trust. Doubt gives way to faith. Joy and peace take the place of sorrow and tragedy. I think of the testimony of Rafael Vasques, of Obregon, Sonora. He tells of his life as a fighter and ruffian. He spent much time and most of his paycheck in the bars and drinking places. He carried pistols as his means of protection. But it was not until he had buried his guns in a concrete foundation and placed his complete trust in Christ that he found real protection and peace of heart.

As one walks the street of the average Mexican village he is impressed by the overwhelming number of men as compared to that of women. A favorite pastime for the men is to meet friends in some bar or favorite lounging place and pass the hours in conversation. Since time means so little to him, a man can spend much of it in this manner. But the customs of the people are not our principal concern. They are souls for whom Christ died, and so few of them know the forgiveness of sins by grace through a personal faith in Christ. They have been taught that through faith in a religious organization and the teaching of the church they can gain the only degree of security possible of being had in this life.

From birth almost every child is trained by a Roman Catholic mother under the constant and careful tutelage of her confessor, the result being that he receives impressions that remain throughout life. He is by nature more religious and emotional than his comparatively cold-blooded Anglo-Saxon brother. The main outlet of this religious temperament has been the Roman Catholic Church.

Though the men are less inclined toward the religious things of life than the women, yet on special occasions many find their way to the place of worship, there to pay homage to some saint. He has been taught that there are many heavenly mediators to whom he may go in prayer. These mediators, or favorites with God, in turn intercede before the Father in behalf of the petitioner. In fact, Mary has such a special place before God that more prayers are offered through her than through Christ.

He has also been led to believe that he was born into the kingdom of God through the ordinance of baptism. It is very likely that his mother made sure of his baptism when he was very young. The Eucharist is a means of grace and necessary to salvation. Penance is looked upon as an outward sign of inward penitence of the heart. Since both of these are in the hand of the priest, he exercises great control over the lives of his followers.

Surely there can be no doubt as to the great need in Mexico for the Gospel. The vision of this need must stir our souls as we read again the words of Christ: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (John 3:3). The message of liberty in Christ must take the place of the message of enslavement to a so-called "Infallible Church." Father's Day will come to Mexico only when the Gospel has penetrated the darkness and scattered the night of paganism.

O DIA DOS PAIS

(FATHER'S DAY)

IN BRAZIL

BY BILL BURK
Missionary to Brazil

Annually a Sunday in August, it's considered a day especially "for the Chief of the House." On the six weekly workdays, O Pai (the father) awakens to the tune of the 5 o'clock whistle of the train (a 19th-century woodburner), reminding the people of the Vila de Icoraci that they have just half an hour before leaving on the one-hour trip to the city of Belém and the day's labor. O Pai always sleep in a bit on Sunday morning—he's allowed to stay in the hammock until at least 7:30 this one day of the year.

Shortly thereafter he's greeted by his children and wife, each with a gift to Father—useful gifts exactly like those any dad in the States might receive. In fact, as we ask various people what is the gift for "O Pai," they always tell us that it will probably be a handkerchief, tie, a pair of socks, or a tie clip!

When O Pai is a child of God, he will soon be at church this morning to worship his own Father in heaven. (We've found here that a good measuring rod of the father's interest in spiritual things is his presence in Sunday school. They seem to think that this service is only for the children, but gradually more of these Christian dads are coming with their families.) A few of the Roman Catholic fathers will go to a 9 o'clock mass, but the majority leave this sort of thing to the women and children, remaining in the house while the family is gone. (It's true that many men seem ready to point out the errors of Catholicism, and it's also true that they participate little in the services of that church; yet few will acknowledge that they are not "Catholics," for from childhood these people are reared around the dogma and festivities of Rome. What a contrast is the wholehearted stand for Christ taken by our families of believers.)

To us the next event of the day may be a picnic. To the Brazilian it's the same thing, but certainly not the word. They've adopted many words from U. S. advertisements, short-wave radio programs, and the ever-present Hollywood movies, one of which their own Portuguese dictionary nows lists as Pi-que-ni-que. In the States you'd pack a basket lunch, get into the car, and drive to some crowded park. The lunch is packed here, too, but the rest is different. A barco (or canoe, oftentimes a dugout) takes the place of the Ford and a sparsely populated island takes the place of the city park. The new National Geographic map of Brazil—March issue—shows clearly some of the many islands around Icoraci (near Belém at the mouth of the Amazon). The contents of the basket: the ever-present san-du-í-che, a pastry made with shrimp (either fresh or dried), and possibly a casserole of chicken and vegetables.

If they're home from the picnic in time, they'll honor the Brazilian custom of a snack at around 4 o'clock. On this festive occasion, mother will probably have ready for O Pai some cake and something to drink. Probably among the most popular family drinks would be listed cho-co-lá-te or cocoa, and Guarana, a bottled soft drink which reminds me much of our own nickel bottle of cream soda.

Without a doubt, the main meal of the day for the Brazilian family is usually served around 8 in the evening. (On nights when we have meetings in our central church, i. e., Sunday and Wednesday, two neighbor boys are regularly called out of the service for their family supper just after the preacher begins his sermon, promptly returning in time for the "conclusion.") A special choice dish reserved for receptions and holidays is pato no tucupí. Roast duck is served with a second dish of sauce made from the juice of the yellow manioc root (in contrast to the poisonous white root from which the juice must be discarded). O Pai breaks off the part of the duck of his choice, dips it into the sauce, and then proceeds to enjoy this specialty.

Often because of the cost they have no meat, but if at all possible for "the Chief of the House," the mother will have been at the market at 5 or 6 in the morning to buy beef, fish, or even some crocodile meat. (Incidentally, this manner of shopping also constitutes another of our petty problems, for Sunday morning is the time when most of the weekly shopping is done. The fathers who come to Sunday school always stop at the market on their way home; those who don't come shop earlier for a better cut of crocodile!)

Bedtime? Normally, possibly, but certainly not on Father's Day or on any other holiday. At around 9 o'clock a few of the intimate friends of O Pai will arrive "to count anecdotes," as the Brazilian would say, closing the happy day some time later with more cookies, sandwiches, and Guarana.

When bedtime finally comes, or on any occasion when the children will for a time be separated from their father, one observes in many happy homes a very interesting custom. The children, standing, will ask, "Father, give me your blessing." The response of the father may very well be: "It is God who blesses you. May God make you a good person."

SPIRITUAL FORCES AT WORK

By John Zielasko
Missionary to Brazil

"The forces at work in the Eisenhower family were, above all, spiritual." This statement was made by Bela Kornitzer in an article about the Eisenhowers and the reason for their success.

Arthur, the oldest son, said: "I'm pretty sure that any virtues we may have are the result of the atmosphere we grew up in—I mean our home environment when we were boys back in Abilene. Mother and Dad were both very religious. Dad's father was a River Brethren minister, you know. There were often religious services at our home, where Mother played the piano and sometimes Uncle Chris Musser, Dad's brother-in-law, would preach. We had family prayers and Bible-reading every night."

Every one of the brothers testified that their father was a powerful influence in their lives and that they are better men because of that influence.

In the 1800's Alexis de Tocqueville visited America and made the following observation: "I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her commodious harbors and her ample rivers, but it was not there; in her rich mines and her vast world commerce, but it was not there; in her fertile fields and boundless prairies, but it was not there. Not until I went to the churches of America and heard her pulpits aflame with righteousness did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, America will cease to be great."

We agree with Alexis de Tocqueville, but we feel obliged to add that the secret of America's genius and power lies not merely in the message of righteousness as proclaimed by ministers of the Gospel, but also that message as it is daily lived in the lives of Christians. The message from the pulpit means nothing if it is not put into daily practice by the families in the pews. It is the home that is the foundation of a society. It is the home that feeds the life blood to a nation. Schools, churches, colleges, social activities are influential, but the home is still the key which opens to the members of the family the activities of life and leads them to a life of righteousness or unrighteousness.

Roger Babson once said: "I have not been able to find a single and useful institution which has not been founded by either an intensely religious man or by the son of a praying father or a praying mother. I have made this statement before the chambers of commerce of all the largest cities of the country, and have asked them to bring forward a case that is an exception to this rule. Thus far I have not heard of a single one."

Fathers and mothers exercising their God-given responsibilities in the home are the backbone of a nation. David was a godly man; yet it is clear in the Scriptures that, in relation to Absalom at least, David neglected his responsibilities as a father. It was personal guilt which caused David to cry: "O my son Absalom, my son Absalom! Would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!" (II Sam. 18:33). David failed as a father with Absalom. Frankly, we expected more of a man with the spiritual insight which was David's.

Now in the history of another Biblical father, the story is somewhat different. I refer to Cornelius. Cornelius, you will remember, was a professional Roman soldier. He was the military officer in charge of a detachment of soldiers sent out by Rome to protect her foreign interests. His occupation force was responsible for the security of that particular part of the empire. Rome, as have all first-rate nations, expected of her soldiers obedience, physical fitness, pride, and combat readiness. She was concerned about the morale of her troops but paid little attention to the morals of her soldiers. Anything goes as long as it doesn't bring public disgrace or bad publicity to the outfit or the country. This was the slogan of Rome, as well as of modern armies. An officer must refuse to see the sins of his men if he is to win their confidence and lead them to victory. Therefore it is rather startling to read that Cornelius was a devout man and one that feared God.

So powerful was the spiritual influence of Cornelius that it extended far beyond the circle of his own immediate family. His servants and even some of his soldiers were ready to follow God because of the life of faith that Cornelius lived before them. When it came time for Peter to preach the Gospel in the home of Cornelius, we discover that all of his relatives were there and many of his friends too. What is even more amazing, everyone present accepted Jesus Christ and became a born-again child of God. Cornelius was a father who fulfilled his spiritual responsibilities to his family, as well as being the breadwinner.

Now, father, how are you fulfilling your responsibility to your children? Will your children praise you as the Eisenhower brothers praise their father for the spiritual guidance he gave to them? You have a responsibility along this line, you know. The Scriptures plainly say: "Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Father, it is your instruction and guidance in spiritual matters plus your godly walk (or the lack of these things) which will have the greatest influence on your children.

A preacher friend of mine was

speaking of God's relationship to the believer as a father, and he was attempting to show that the believer will be more apt to accept the words of God, his Father, than to believe the words of those who deny the truths of God. To better illustrate the point, he tried to demonstrate that a child will accept more readily the words of his father than those of a stranger. So he turned to a little fellow on the front pew and said: "Son, if I told you something, and your dad told you something else, who would you believe?" The little fellow looked into the eyes of the preacher and replied in a voice that brought a tear to most eyes, "I would rather believer you, mister."

I trust that none of your children have so low an opinion of you, father. Nevertheless, don't you think it would be a good idea to take inventory of the kind of influence you are having on your family? On Father's Day, as your children bring to you that new tie, or those new socks, why not ask yourself these questions, father: Am I fulfilling my God-given responsibilities in my family? Can it be said of my family, the forces at work are, above all, spiritual?

Covington, Va.

Our spring revival - evangelistic services were held May 1-14. Robert E. A. Miller, Roanoke, Va., was our evangelist for the campaign and from the outset it was evident God had chosen His man for this particular ministry in Covington.

Interest was fine; in fact, the best in two or three years. This good interest continued throughout the special services and many visitors were present each night. Christians from neighboring churches and communities including Roanoke, Buena Vista, Iron Gate, Clifton Forge, and Covington furnished a variety of musical numbers.

There were six first-time professions of faith in Christ and many rededications of life. The largest attendance was 235 and the lowest was 85, with an average of 132 for the two weeks. The meetings were climaxed on Sunday, May 15, with a homecoming Sunday school of 269 and worship service in the forenoon, a homecoming dinner in the church basement at noon, and a parsonage dedication service at 3 o'clock.

We thank God for the ministry of Brother Miller and we thank Him, too, for the spirit of our people for many weeks prior to and during the meetings which brought down a deluge of revival, evangelistic, and other unusual spiritual blessings.—Paul L. Mohler, pastor, First Brethren Church.

Riner, Va.

This new work at Riner is surely promising. It is a district project, sponsored by the local churches. Tommy Craghead, who graduated a year ago from Grace Seminary, is the first pastor of this new group. He is loved by the entire community, and it shows in church attendance. The prayer meeting attendance averages around 75. Scores of local people are now looking to this new work for their own spiritual future. The uncompromising stand of Brother Craghead for the Gospel, for the separated life, and for soul-winning is gaining the confidence of many.

The meetings drew a wide interest. Many drove long distances to the meetings night after night. Every service saw from 25 to 50 people that had never been there before. The neighboring Brethren churches had several delegations each week.—R. Paul Miller, evangelist.

La Verne, Calif.

March 20-April 3 were days of real joy at La Verne, Calif. During these days the Lord gave the thrill of preaching and meeting precious saints in the Lord.

Ted and Gloria Lee, formerly with Jack Shuler and Merv Rosell, were directors of music.

Prayers were answered, decisions were made, and we give the Lord Jesus the credit for working in this campaign.—Bill Smith, evangelist.

South Gate, Calif.

Recently we concluded two weeks of special meetings with Bro. Bill Smith, who brought us strong soul-searching messages from God's Word. Bro. Dan Thomas ably assisted by providing a feast of good musical features, including some of his own compositions.

Eight lives were rededicated, and seven girls publicly professed faith in Christ for the first time. Average attendance at the meetings was 115, with a high of 192. We were especially pleased with the faithful attendance of so many young people.

Our building program is not yet completed, but the sanctuary has been in use since the first service of this year, and we are hoping to have the work finished soon. Recently a beautiful stained-glass window was installed in memory of Conard Pieper, who was the second young person to have been called into the presence of his Lord since this church's inception over 25 years ago. —Mrs. F. C. Hickey.

Radford, Va.

April 18 through May 1 was a time of real blessing for us here at the Fairlawn Brethren Church when we had Bro. Edward Lewis with us for revival. Attendance was not as good as we had hoped for, but our Lord surely blessed those who attended. Several delegations from neighboring Brethren churches attended the services. Brother Lewis preached straight from the Word of God, presenting a real challenge each night.—K. E. Richardson, pastor.

The meetings which were held at the Fairlawn Brethren Church were a real blessing to our hearts. It was our first meeting with Brother Richardson and we found him to be zealous for souls. We had the privilege of seeing 18 people make first-time decisions and 44 rededications for Christ.—Edward Lewis, evangelist.

MISSIONARY CHILDREN . . . A HERITAGE

"Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord" (Ps. 127:3). This is God's Word and all Christian parents have found it to be true. It is not less true on the mission field than in the homeland and certainly not less true on the part of missionary parents compared to parents living in the homeland. Probably there are no people on earth who appreciate their children more than foreign missionaries.

In most of our fields, as in most other primitive fields, it just isn't suitable or advisable to have children remain on the mission field with their parents during the teen-age years, especially as these are the years of high school and college training. There are physical, social, moral, and spiritual reasons for this, and I believe it is a matter of general agreement by all of our missionary parents.

We all want to make the best possible arrangements, keeping uppermost in our minds the interest of the missionary children, as well as the interest of the continued missionary service on the part of the parents. Many plans have been tried in ours and in other mission fields. We should like to discuss these briefly.

Possible Plans

The central high school on the field.—This plan has been tried in a number of mission fields of the world with varying degrees of success, depending upon the field, the age of the mission, and the general moral and spiritual tone of the community. It needs to be remembered that these must be boarding schools. The children are away from their parents for many months at a time. Problems are multiplied. Sometimes this may be advisable in certain of our mission fields, but it doesn't seem to be the solution to our present problem.

Mother remains in the U. S. A.—Quite frequently from other mission fields mothers have returned to the United States and established homes in this country during the teen-age years of high-school and college life. In this case the father returns to the mission field for at least one term of service while the remainder of the family stays in the United States. This may have been successful in a few cases, but we have known few happy families so separated. The home in this country is not complete. The father is not acting as the father to his own children. The mother has responsibilities that she should not be asked to carry. Unless given very special grace the father will probably do a very poor piece of missionary work during such a term of service.

Both parents remain in the U. S. A.—Some missionary societies have followed the plan whereby the parents remain in the United States in what might be thought of as an extended furlough during the teen-age years of the children, or during the high-school and college periods. The father accepts a pastorate in the United States or other Christian service in the homeland. Usually this means the end of foreign missionary service for that family. It is possible, but it is not too probable, that the parents will return to the foreign field again. This plan would be a solution to the problem were it not for the fact that after one or two terms of service the missionary parents are only ready to begin doing their very best work, and the expenses to the foreign missionary society as well as to the family have been so very great both in money and in the time in language study and mission study that this as a general plan seems not advisable.

Residence in private homes.—Many godly Christians in the U. S. A., who love children and have had some success with them, have opened their own homes and welcomed one or more missionary children into them. This is the nearest possible thing to the normal parent-child relationship, and is probably the plan looked upon with greatest favor by missionary parents. Looking forward to such a relationship during the years on the mission field, parents and children freely talk of the experiences ahead and thus prepare themselves in much the same way that parents and children in the homeland prepare themselves for the time when the children leave home for preparatory school or college. These homes where missionary children have resided may be made available by the relatives of missionaries, by close personal friends, or by those Christians who, even though they are not personally acquainted with the missionary family, feel led of the Lord to offer themselves and their homes.

A missionary children's home.—There are some of these homes now in operation in the United States, and they seem to fill a real need. These are homes established, often by churches or denominational groups, for the purpose of caring for a number of missionary children in rather a dormitory arrangement. Godly couples are in charge and they serve in the capacity of parents in the absence of the parents. Should we ever establish such a home we would need godly Brethren families, possibly parents themselves, who, although not too old, have reared a family of children through the teen-age years and done a commendable job. Several of our missionaries have spoken with great favor of this plan.

Our Appeal

We are discussing these matters because they are very pressing present needs in the thinking of many of us.

Parents cannot return to the field, and we would not ask them to return, until they have some suitable and happy arrangement for their children in this country. A very urgent need for our missionaries in the foreign field accentuates the need for the solution to these problems in the homeland. There are ways in which you may help

"YES"

AND THE REASONS WHY

By Clyde K. Landrum, Assistant General Secretary

A missionary friend of mine home on furlough once told me of a question that was put to him upon his arrival back in the United States. He was asked: "Do you plan to return to the foreign field?" The missionary was shocked at such a question! Upon regaining his composure he replied: "Yes; of course. That is my place of service for my Lord."

Soon after I had decided to accept a position on the staff of The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church I had a similar question asked of me. It was: "Do you think that you can be satisfied to leave the pastorate and serve in that type of work?" My answer was a firm "Yes." I could have gone further and stated that I could not be satisfied to be anywhere else now that the Lord had shown me that this is His field of service for me. This article is my testimony as to why I am satisfied—yes, completely happy—to be in this new work.

As a child of God I am subject to His call and I desire His will for my life. This is a requisite for real peace of mind on the part of any Christian. Therefore, from the first contact that was made to bring me into this work, I wanted to be sure of the Lord's call in the matter. I prayed about it. My family and I prayed together about it. Not only did we pray, but we talked it over as a family. My feeling was that, since the whole family was affected, the whole family should be in on the decision, so I took them into my confidence. We looked at it from all angles. We claimed the promise of Psalms 32:8: "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go: I will guide thee with mine eye."

We began to see the hand of the Lord guiding us in the way which we should go. We saw His hand in the open door of invitation to serve here, and we saw it in the closed doors of service elsewhere. Praise Him for the closed doors, too! I could have been happy to remain in the pastorate which I loved dearly, but the Lord was leading to bring me here. After all of this I sincerely believe that I am here as the result of His call—and that by being here I am in His will for my life. Therefore, I am satisfied.

Another reason why I could answer "yes" was the fact that I like a challenge. I like a field with great responsibilities. I have it in the field of foreign missions. Our ministry as a Society has expanded considerably in recent years, but even with our growth and enlarged outreach we are still covering only a small part of the world. There is so much to be done. Millions of the earth's people have never even heard the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, much less having the gospel message preached to them in all of its fullness. Every second many people in foreign lands go out of this life without Christ into a hopeless eternity. The need to reach them is great and pressing. The field is a challenging one. I am pleased to have a small part in such a tremendous work.

Early in life I was impressed with the fact that the responsibility of reaching the lost millions of the world is the duty of all of us. The Scripture admonition is expressed in the plural "ye." I see this plural "ye" as including all of God's people, and somewhere in that vast throng I see myself as being addressed. I have no right to assume that someone else will do my share of the work, but rather should face up to my responsibility. As a youngster growing up in the church, no service stirred me as much as the services in which missionaries spoke. I will always remember the feeling of urgency and responsibility which came to my heart as I heard the Gribbles and other missionaries present the need of the foreign field. I was so impressed with the need for action that I felt we must all go right then to remedy the situation. I was not able to serve so fully then, but I am now able to have a part in that work. I praise Him for the opportunity.

Furthermore, I like foreign missions! It is my opinion that the Lord gives us peace of mind and joy in the work to which He calls us. I have always thrilled to the thought of foreign missions and I have always had a love for the work. In associating with missionaries and seeing how they face the seriousness of their work with joy in their hearts, one cannot help but love the work and thrill to its progress. Because of this I have always had a genuine freedom in appealing for funds for foreign missions and in promoting the cause in any way. My heart is really in it. I like it!

To sum it all up, I simply say that I am happy to be associated with The Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church. It will be a busy ministry, but I am anticipating many blessings in it. The few days that I have been here have served to impress upon me the great amount that there is to learn and the tremendous amount of work to be done. However, I claim for this occasion another promise from the Book which says: "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

ABOUT SCHOOLS IN AFRICA

As we have visited in the churches and spoken of our schools in Africa, many have asked questions we were not able to answer. Hence the request was made of Dr. Orville D. Jobson, the superintendent of our mission in Africa, to write rather extensively concerning our integrated school system in Africa. This article is a review of the material which Dr. Jobson gave us in answer to our request.

There are schools and there are classes. The schools are more official in their character, while the classes are the study groups before they are organized into schools.

Vernacular Schools

The missionaries refer to these vernacular classes by various terms—ecole catechisme, church schools, children's classes, reading classes, and so forth. These are classes held in the churches to teach young people to read the Scriptures in their native tongue. There is nothing official about these classes, but with a good teacher they can become "schoolish" and even include a little French, such as counting, reading, and writing with ink. The program followed depends upon the ability of the native teachers available.

Vernacular classes are for small children and are really children's Bible-reading classes. Children may attend these for two years before entering the regular day school of the mission or of the government. The vernacular classes are usually taught by native teachers or monitors under missionary supervision. Often, however, they are taught by the missionaries themselves if native teachers are not available.

French Schools

The French schools make up the day-school system of French Equatorial Africa, and we have the privilege of operating some of these schools under the oversight of the mission in a Christian atmosphere with Christian teachers. These are operated in much the same way that many of our Brethren churches are operating Christian day schools in America. These schools are referred to as regular schools, government schools, day schools, or French schools.

They have a well-defined schedule and a complete system worked out by the Government Educational Service, and they are supposed to follow that system. There are six grades, called the preparatory, the elementary, and the middle—all three with two classes each. The first certificate is given at the end of the six years' work in the French school.

Monitor's Schools

In order that we may have better native teachers for the vernacular classes and the French schools, we have what are known as monitor's schools. In these schools missionaries teach teachers how to teach.

One of Miss Grace Byron's vernacular classes at Bassai.

Bible Training Schools

There are two branches of Bible training schools—the junior Bible school, now called the elementary Bible school, and the Bible institute. The elementary Bible schools are taught by missionaries in each district of our mission and are preparatory to the Bible institute. We have tried to correlate these schools with prepared lessons and other helps so that there will be equality on the part of the men from the various districts who enter the Bible institute. Entrance examinations are given to try to insure that this equality exists.

The Bible institute, located within a few miles of Bozoum, is really our graduate school of theology in Africa. It is the training school for prospective church and lay leaders. The hope is to have a large number of the young men graduating from the French schools continue their training in the Bible institute. In this way they will be excellently trained for the day-school work. The Bible institute course has recently been increased from two years to a three-year course.

Classes for Native Nurses

Classes are held by the medical missionaries for native male nurses who desire to become medical assistants. Those who are finally to serve as medical assistants are urged to attend the Bible institute, taking a two-year course. Our only hope of greatly expanding our valuable medical program in Africa is through these trained native medical assistants.

Missionary Children's School

The missionary children's school, taught by a particular missionary, is to care for the education of the children of missionaries through the elementary grades. There are two four-month terms in the school year and two vacation periods of two months each. It is a boarding school, since all children, except those who may live on the station where the school is located, must be away from home for the two four-month periods each year. This school has been a great blessing to the missionaries on the field.

The "Why" of Church Day Schools in Africa

By Charles R. Taber, Bassai

The other day, while discussing with some of my fellow missionaries the contribution to be made by each department of our mission to the African church, the thought occurred to me that there has never been published in the Brethren Missionary Herald a real discussion of the "why" of church day schools in Africa. To meet that need, I am jotting down a few thoughts that occur to me on the subject.

Charles R. Taber

One thing must be made clear at the start—whatever does not contribute to the real growth and permanent welfare of the African church has no place in the program of our mission. No ministry or department is a law unto itself, and each must have its reason for being, or it should not be.

Two Mistaken Attitudes

There are two extreme, and I believe mistaken, attitudes that have been taken toward missionary educational programs. One, most often noticed among liberal, social-gospel missions, is that education is an end in itself. Its proponents may or may not avowedly profess the Socratic dictum that knowledge is virtue, but they act as if it were true. If one can only fill man's mind with knowledge (and his stomach with good food), he will be good, and the Kingdom will be brought in. The mistake here, obviously, is that it just isn't so. For good or bad, man's will is quite independent of his memory and of his reason, so that he often chooses to act against either or both. Man's depraved will must be changed—a work that only the Holy Spirit working in regeneration can do.

The other wrong attitude is that, since missions exist solely to preach the Gospel, education has no place in a mission program. It is quite true that Paul probably never established an elementary school. But have we any way of knowing what Paul would have done if he had been working in areas of total intellectual darkness? As far as I can find out from the New Testament, the people to whom he ministered, in both Asia and Europe, were quite well educated. They had a tradition of intellectual awareness and of scientific and philosophic research. Paul ministered to the sort of nations that produced Plato, Cicero, and other intellectual giants. It was to ordinary metropolitan churches that he was able to write, with the expectation of being understood, such closely reasoned and deeply philosophical epistles as Romans, Ephesians, and Colossians.

The Need for Education in Africa

The contrast between the Pauline Mediterranean world and Africa today is obvious. Here, centuries of degradation and oppression have wrought their nefarious work upon the human mind, quenching it, warping it, bestializing it, and all but destroying it. Can it be to the glory of God that His crowning creation should thus grope in mental night? Or is it not rather His will that man should love, worship, and serve Him with his whole being, including the mind?

At home, we tend to take education for granted. Of course, we expect our young people to go to high school, perhaps to college. We accept it as quite normal that a seminary should have high scholastic entrance requirements. We have no conception of what our country, and more especially our churches, would be like without this education, because the thought has never occurred to us that it could ever be otherwise. But, brethren, it is otherwise here. And there is no reason to expect that African churches can be strong without one of the things that provides the strength of our American churches.

Obviously, then, there must be some sort of program to awaken men's minds and discipline them to study if we are to prepare some of them to exercise the sort of spiritual and intellectual leadership we have found necessary at home. And the African church needs, just as much as the American church needs, a membership capable of reading the Bible intelligently and of making reasoned decisions in the exercise of their Christian liberty. In a word, the African church needs education.

Who can furnish it? Here, just as at home, one might look to public schools. But here, in addition to the materialistic influence exerted on children in public schools at home, there is the decisive factor that the government will not be able, even if it so desires, to furnish enough education to enough children to make a difference soon enough. So if Christian day schools are needed in America on spiritual grounds, they are needed in French Equatorial Africa on spiritual and statistical grounds.

Positive Results

Now what positive results can we expect by operating schools for the African church? There are several.

1. One of the most crucial and immediate problems in several of our districts is the loss of young people to agencies that offer them some sort of education. Some go to the government schools, and there absorb all that their impressionable minds can of worldly evil influences. One case may suffice to demonstrate this point. The son of one of our best pastors, a young man of unusual ability and promise, went to the government school, made good, won a scholarship for higher training, and was away from home for three years. It had been expected that he would become one of our monitors, and he even took the entrance examination and was accepted. But after returning home, he not only turned up his nose at the modest financial rewards of the Lord's service, but actually used his influence to turn away three others who had likewise been accepted.

In addition, the Roman Catholics are making a determined bid for the youth of French Equatorial Africa. Realizing the insatiable thirst for education that exists here, they have instituted a priority program of opening schools. One of our missionary pastors wrote me recently asking if something couldn't be done now to hold the numbers of children who are leaving our village catechetical schools for the glamor of Catholic French schools.

Unless we are to lose a large number of potential church members and leaders, we must hold these young people now, and the magic word now is education.

2. Not only will Christian schools hold the young people away from the evil influences, but they will put them under the positive, good influence of a Christ-centered, Christian-staffed school, with all the potential opportunity for character building.

3. One of the worst fruits of ignorance is superstition. Although this is primarily a spiritual problem, I believe that education can furnish a valuable aid in dispelling the intellectual clouds that so often serve as foundation stones for superstition. People often say, quite incorrectly, that Africans do not think in terms of cause and effect. The truth is that they do, because it is the nature of man, even of degraded man, to think that way. But they do, at least partly because of ignorance, assign wrong causes to the effects that they see, and this is the heart of much of their superstition concerning disease, the weather, and so forth. Now it is all very well to tell the African that the mountain spirit did not cause the rain, but his first question, spoken or not, is, "What does?" To give him the answer is to educate him, at least on that score. I do not claim this so much as a means of winning converts, but of building up the faith of Christians by adding a leg of reason to replace the toppled leg of superstition, in much the same way as arguments against the theory of evolution are used at home.

4. Finally, education will furnish us with better material for our Bible Institute, permitting the raising of standards, and resulting in a strong leadership, without which the African church will never stand alone. If you could hear the preaching of some of our better men, you would wonder how the church can ever grow. Of course, there are some, like Marc Volongou, who are of such intellectual stature as to transcend their educational limitation and become real scholars of the Word, but they are at least as rare in Africa as in America.

The Opportunity Is Now

I think we missionaries, in our enthusiasm to tell you of the successes and victories the Lord gives us, often give you too rosy a picture of the African scene. We too often tend to deemphasize the defeats, the setbacks, and the problems. Perhaps we have given you the impression that the work is practically done in Africa. If so, we should remind you that the work is far from done, that tremendous mountains loom ahead, that we are really just getting under way.

What are we going to do to fill the mental void in our African church, to give it the intellectual tools to go ahead with its own program and to stand on its own feet? Are we going to be able to do enough soon enough? Or are we going to forfeit this opportunity? The answer lies with you, with your giving, and especially with your prayers. "For a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries."

FACTS AND FIGURES

Communism, distributing literature by the billions, has already placed four pieces per person in Africa.

France is classed as a Roman Catholic country, but only 6,000,000 out of the population of 43,000,000 are practicing that religion.—E. F. M. A. Missionary News Service.

SHARING OUR SYMPATHY

The experiences of this life came to an end for our Bro. A. V. Kimmell on May 27, 1955. As we heard of his passing we, his many friends, desired to share our sympathy with Mrs. Kimmell and the family in this time of bereavement.

For your information we quote from one of the Philadelphia newspapers, dated May 28, as follows:

"The Rev. Arthur V. Kimmell, retired pastor of the First Brethren Church, Oxford Ave. and Knorr St., died yesterday in Albert Einstein Medical Center. He was 74. Dr. Kimmell also was a former president of the Foreign Missions Board of the Brethren Church and had traveled extensively abroad on missionary work. He lived at 7236 Tabor Rd. and had been pastor of the First Brethren Church for 20 years until his retirement in 1950. He is survived by his wife, Mary; four sons, Dumont, Vance, Paul, and Orlyn, and two daughters, Mrs. Ada Soubirou and Mrs. Ella Cameroun."

The funeral services were held at 2 p. m. on Tuesday, May 31, at the Wetzel and Son funeral home, 6902 Rising Sun Ave., in Philadelphia, with Dr. W. A. Ogden, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Johnstown, Pa., in charge. He was assisted by Rev. J. P. Kliever, one of our missionaries on furlough from Africa, and other minister friends. The burial was in the George Washington Memorial Park at Whitemarsh.

We will remember the many years that Brother Kimmell was prominent in the Fellowship of our Brethren Churches and how greatly he helped us with his wise counsel.

1. Pray.—Pray for all of our missionary parents and children, and pray too for our Foreign Board as we seek to assist parents in this most personal and pressing problem.

2. Volunteer.—Neither the missionaries nor the Board will approach you. You must volunteer if any arrangement is to be considered. If you feel led of the Lord to help in this matter, either by opening your home as a place of residence for one or more missionary children, or in offering yourselves to serve in the capacity of parents in a missionary children's home if such should be established, please volunteer.

3. Give.—Possibly you have a home that you would like to offer as a gift now or as a bequest when you are through with it to be used for the purpose of establishing a missionary children's home. You may desire to make money gifts designated for this work. If you are interested in giving in one way or another, please write to us at the Brethren Foreign Missionary Office, P. O. Box 588, Winona Lake, Ind.

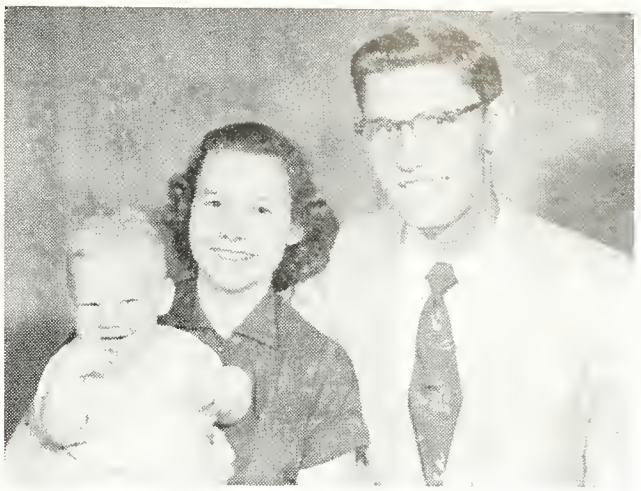
Help Hockings



From the time he was a small boy Don Hocking has been thinking and planning for foreign missionary service; hence, all of his preparation and training have been with this in mind. Following high-school days he attended Bob Jones University and graduated there with a B. A. degree in 1952. He then studied at Grace Theological Seminary, receiving his B. D. degree in May of 1955, with honors.

On June 5, 1953, Miss Betty Ruth Reeves became Mrs. Donald G. Hocking. Her home was in Miami, Fla. She, too, had been planning to serve as a foreign missionary; hence, it was just natural for Don and Betty to meet at Bob Jones University. Mrs. Hocking graduated from the university with a B. A. degree in 1953. They have one little son, James Randall, who will be a year old in July.

Both Brother and Sister Hocking are members of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., where for different summers Brother Hocking served as a youth worker. He has also served as a student pastor at the new Brethren church at Lansing, Mich., having just concluded his work there with a special revival meeting, which was greatly blessed of the Lord.

The Hockings plan to leave for France early in November of 1955, where they will spend several months in language study before proceeding to the field of their choice, French Equatorial Africa. The exact time of their leaving the United States will depend very largely on the receipt of outfit funds considered necessary for them.

Outfit Club chairmen in the different local congregations will receive full information in regard to the Hocking outfit needs shortly after July 1. They will immediately present this appeal for the Hockings and receive funds toward the supplying of this need. We believe

Jimmy, Betty, and Don

$1,100 is essential for the purchase of the outfit which they will need, and with another $1,100 for its transportation to the field and the customs which they will have to pay, the minimum which they must receive is $2,200. We could wish that they might have the maximum that is suggested for missionary families with one child, and that is a total of $3,700, with one-half designated for the purchase of outfit and the other half for the expenses involved in getting the outfit to Africa.

Will you please make your gifts through your local Outfit Club chairman and through your local church. We hope that all of the funds may be gathered in within the next month or six weeks so the Hockings will then have sufficient time to purchase and to pack the outfit and will not need to be delayed in their leaving for France in the fall.

THE BIBLE AN IMPETUS TO LITERACY

With few exceptions the greatest sustained impetus to literacy among primitive peoples has come from the intense desire new converts have to read the Bible themselves, and from the equally intense desire on the part of missionaries to teach them. God's Word in the hands of Christians who faithfully read it is a fountain of spiritual nourishment.

In primitive areas languages must first be reduced to writing and then the Scriptures translated. The task is only begun when the translators have finished. Influences from ancient prejudices and powerful taboos have to be counteracted in many places before people dare think of learning to read. Confidence must be instilled to help prospective pupils overcome the opinion that they can never learn such a lofty and mysterious art as converting written symbols into intelligible speech. Shyness that is literally painful hinders many of them and requires of the teacher the exercise of no little diplomacy. But the student's insatiable curiosity can often be turned to good account by a resourceful teacher who appeals to it in order to keep these active children of the forest or jungle attentive through long periods of methodical drill.

When, however, his basic desire is to read God's message, no barrier can prevent either a young or an old person from acquiring a command of his written language.

Some of our fields are in lands which have highly developed literary traditions and a class of people well versed in their written language. Yet there still exists a high percentage of illiteracy among the people. Not until the Bible is printed in their language and some of them become Christian does the urge to acquire the ability to read become really strong.—The Alliance Weekly.

FRANCE - - - A CROSSROADS OF NECESSITY

Editor's Note—This is the fifth in the series of historical sketches on our six fields of missionary endeavor.

For over 30 years our missionaries serving in French Equatorial Africa have been spending from several months to a number of years in language study and training in France before proceeding to the field in Africa. These missionaries have naturally had their faces set toward Africa and, although they cooperated with existing evangelical testimonies in France, no permanent testimony for the Brethren Church was ever attempted. This is not to be understood as a criticism of our fine missionaries in any sense whatever, nor of the Board of Trustees of our Society who sent them. Their immediate interest, and ours, was in Africa, and we were bending every effort to getting our missionaries to Africa in the shortest possible time.

Possibly 10 or 12 years ago from various sources our people began to ask: "Why don't we have a work in France—wouldn't it be a help to our work in Africa?" As a result, in 1947 the General Secretary and his wife, along with Dr. and Mrs. Orville D. Jobson, made a very serious attempt at investigation in France in relation to the possible establishment of a Brethren testimony there.

After returning to the States, the General Secretary very urgently advised our Board of Trustees to consider the establishment of a Brethren testimony in France. The Board of Trustees made this recommendation to our Society in August 1948 and it was unanimously approved by the Society.

At that time it seemed that missionaries were immediately available for the opening of the work in France, and many plans were completed for the beginning of the work. Then illness and other unavoidable circumstances caused the newly chosen field to continue without workers.

For a year or more before Rev. and Mrs. Fred Fogle were appointed to serve in France and actually sailed for that country, they had been in contact with our Society and very greatly challenged by the opportunities of the preaching of the Gospel in France. They sailed from the United States in November of 1951, arriving in France on November 13. After spending approximately a year in language study, the time came when a decision must be made as to the part of France which would constitute the center for our Brethren testimony and activity. Brother Fogle made a very extensive investigation of the various areas in France, both by visit and from accumulated information given by others, and finally recommended to our Board of Trustees that the work be established in Lyon.

At about this time Rev. Bernard Schneider, a member of our Foreign Board and pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Mansfield, Ohio, made a visit to Europe and advised with the Fogles. He concurred in the plan that the city of Lyon should be the center of our activity. This city is the third largest city in France, with a population in the greater Lyon area of between 800,000 and 1,000,000 people. It is the strategic center for all southeastern central France and has excellent educational advantages, a very fine system of roads, railroads, and bus lines. It seems to be very well fitted for our center of activity and for language study as far as the missionaries in preparation for Africa are concerned. There are about 15 or 16 Protestant testimonies in the city, many of them very small and some of them definitely modernistic, so it will be very easy for you to see that the city of Lyon is very, very far from being effectively evangelized.

Apartment houses overlooking the Saone, River, Lyon.

In the fall of 1954 the General Secretary visited France again and, in consultation with Brother Fogle, laid plans which have been approved by the Board of Trustees of the Society looking to permanent worship quarters, as well as to arrangements for community evangelization and for national French believers to assist in the work there. Property for our public meetings has been purchased, located in east central Lyon at 179 Avenue Felix-Faure, near the prominent street intersection called Place Robert de l'Isle, and the first services in the newly remodeled quarters were held on February 27, 1955. A national French evangelist, Bro. Andre Kasak, recently graduated from the European Bible Institute, has been employed to assist in the work. He and his wife and little child moved to Lyon about March 1. A uniquely planned portable tabernacle has been built and will be used in various locations in the city of Lyon. Word has just come to us that four were baptized at the first baptismal service on May 15, and that 13 took part in the first communion service on May 29, all receiving a real spiritual blessing. The attendance at all meetings is commendable.

The most critical need in France right now is for more workers—both North American and French national workers. We are asking the Lord to give us at least one family in the immediate future and another later, making a unit of three North American families to serve in that land. We believe that a minimum of three families is necessary before we can have an effective testimony that will have continuity and be energetically evangelistic. These three families, with French national evangelists—at least one associated with each family—would form three very definite centers of activity. Although they might be separated by hundreds of miles, they would be very closely knit together because transportation is not a serious problem in France.

By the latest census there are approximately 42,000,000 people in France, probably at the present time approaching the 45,000,000 mark. The Catholic Church only claims from 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 active communicant members. The Protestant church only claims from 500,000 to 1,000,000 active membership. Granting the extreme highs in each case, you'll be able to see that in France there are at least 34,000,000 who are unreached with any effective religious contact and certainly not with any gospel contact. There are probably between 36,000 and 38,000 villages, towns, and cities, and possibly 35,000 of these are yet without any effective evangelizing testimony. It is very interesting to travel through France and notice these villages, large and small, dotting the countryside. Many times as many as three, four, five, and six of them may be viewed from any one location. There are over 30 cities in France with a population of 75,000 or more, and most of these have probably only one or two small evangelizing testimonies.

Christian workers with whom we have talked on both sides of the Atlantic agree that "this is the day for France." Communism is making a great bid for France. We must win for Christ or we will lose to Communism. Self-preservation on both sides of the Atlantic demands the defeat of Communism and the victory for the Christian message.

Our missionaries in France, Brother and Sister Fred Fogle and family, will arrive in the United States on July 1 for furlough. While they are away, Brother and Sister George Cone, Jr., will be in charge of our testimony in Lyon, aided by Bro. Andre Kasak. The Cones are engaged in language study in France preparatory to their missionary service in Africa.

BAPTISMS IN BRAZIL

ARGENTINA—A LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

Argentina is a land which is growing rapidly as a result of the immigration of many people from Europe, the expansion of her industrial plants, and the raising up of new industries. It is a land of promise to many people who are coming into the country. The growth in population has given to us the responsibility of reaching that many more people for Christ. There are many churches in this land, but this is no indication that the people have Christ in their hearts. The vast majority of the people were brought up in the church, but they know nothing of salvation in Christ. Many of them attend church regularly, but they will spend eternity separated from Christ.

One man expressed the other day why he was a member of the church—he was baptized when a baby and was brought up in the church. This man had graduated from a university but had never read the Bible. Praise the Lord he and his wife are now reading the New Testament. We trust and pray that they will come to know Jesus Christ as their Lord and Saviour.

There is opportunity to preach the Gospel in the land of Argentina, a liberty which is not to be had in some of the other South American countries. We praise the Lord for this liberty. We pray that it will continue this way. There is the ministry of the tracts, children's classes, loudspeakers on the cars, personal work, and the posters which are placed on the walls of buildings. We trust that soon we will have a radio program over the local station in Rio Cuarto. Pray for each of these ministries that they will be used of the Lord to the salvation of many precious souls.

We praise the Lord for the opportunity which He has given to us to serve Him in this land—a land which needs to know Jesus Christ as its Lord and Saviour.—Donald E. Bishop.

SEATTLE, WASH. Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Hammers (above) extend a cordial invitation to all delegates to the National Fellowship at Portland, Oreg., Aug. 10-17, to visit their services at the View Ridge Brethren Church, 6242 30th Ave. NE.

FREMONT, OHIO. The mortgage of the Grace Brethren parsonage was burned by Dr. Robert Culver, former pastor, on May 15. On June 5 the Sunday school completed its project of payment for the pews and burned their note. On the same day the church gave John Martin, a student at Grace Seminary, a unanimous call to be the assistant to the pastor, Gordon Bracker, for the summer months.

DAYTON, OHIO. The First Brethren Church has unanimously voted to adopt the Broadway Plan of Church Finance, which will enable them to proceed immediately with the building of their new church at Philadelphia and Earlham Drives. William A. Steffler is pastor. Plans for the ground-breaking services are for June 26.

KITTANNING, PA. June 24 was the day set for the mortgage-burning of the parsonage of the First Brethren Church, William Schaffer pastor.

JOHNSON CITY, TENN. Miles Taber, pastor of the West Tenth Street Brethren Church, Ashland, Ohio, has been invited to be the speaker at the ordination of Dean Risser on July 6.

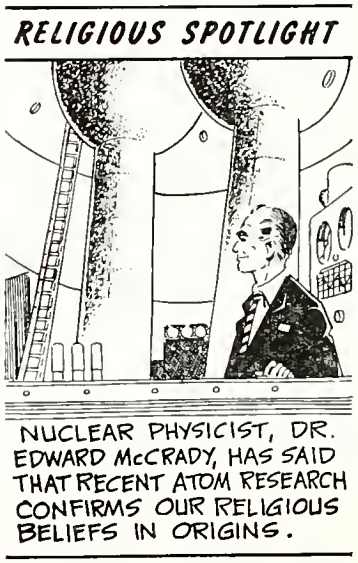
HAGERSTOWN, MD. Jack Peters, formerly employed in the shipping department of the Missionary Herald during his years of study at Grace Seminary, has accepted the call to the pastorate of the Independent Brethren Church. He is located at 207 Bryan Place.

PHILADELPHIA, PA. Mrs. John Gault, 308 Hampton Rd., Hatboro, Pa., is the new clerk for the Third Brethren Church. Please change Annual.

NEWS BRIEFS

FORT WAYNE, IND. It is a common thing for our Brethren preachers to speak on radio, but is a comparatively new privilege and honor for them to appear on television. Mark Malles, of the First Brethren Church, has appeared twice in the month of June. On June 12 he was on a half-hour program, with the choir assisting him.

PORTLAND, OREG. Vernon Harris will terminate his pastorate with the Grace Brethren Church in September.



DAYTON, OHIO. The Women's Missionary Council of the North Riverdale Brethren Church, Russell Ward pastor, sponsored a "Family Night" on June 7 in the form of a basket dinner. Rev. James Marshall and family, on furlough from Argentina, were the special guests and speakers for the occasion.

SUNNYSIDE, WASH. Eighty-four years in darkness! Such was the picture of Mrs. Bertha Feenstra before she accepted Christ in a morning service recently at the First Brethren Church, Harold Painter pastor. For the last 25 years she was in the darkness of Christian Science, but after accepting Christ she wrote her "mother church," denouncing that belief, and then burned her entire collection of Science books. When she was baptized (picture above), 15 others were also baptized, three of whom are new members of the Grandview Brethren Church.

WOOSTER, OHIO. Cynthia (Cindy) Jo was welcomed into the family circle of Pastor and Mrs. Kenneth Ashman, of the First Brethren Church, on June 2. Her father says she is as pretty as a picture and is a good baby. Her weight was 7 lbs., 15½ oz. She was 19 inches tall, with dark eyes and a good crop of dark hair.

THREE HILLS, ALBERTA, CANADA (E/P). The first annual Pacific Northwest Keswick Convention will be held here on the grounds of the Prairie Bible Institute August 9-14, 1955.

A SAILOR SAVED TO SERVE

Jack Peters

By Jack K. Peters

Truly the Lord "brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings." I was a member of one of the largest churches in Roanoke, Va., and I didn't have the Lord Jesus as my personal Saviour. I had the idea that salvation meant belonging to a church, so I made sure that I was a member of a big one. I would attend church in the morning on Sundays and serve the Devil in the evening.

In 1942 I joined the Navy and was granted leave after my boot training. On one of the nights when I was at home I was out drinking and serving the Devil. The Lord allowed the automobile that I was in to wreck. As the automobile crashed, the Holy Spirit of God said: "Jack, if you do not live through this, you are on your way to hell." This incident caused me to do much thinking about eternal things, but before long I had abandoned these thoughts from my mind.

As I returned to Chicago from boot leave, the Lord in a miraculous way separated me from my friends from the hometown. These friends were sent to Norfolk, Va., and I was sent to Bremerton, Wash. There I met some sailors who called themselves "Navigators." They invited me to a Bible class, and there for the first time in my life I came face to face with the fact that I was a sinner and that my sin's penalty had to be paid. I learned that Jesus Christ

Serving the Lord

By Betty Pratt

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths" (Prov. 3:5-6). The Lord has truly directed my paths since I accepted Him as my personal Saviour. When I was about 13 years old I attended a summer camp at Deep River, Iowa, and, along with a number of other girls that week, was saved. I am so thankful for the courage He gave me to take that step that I might put my trust in Him.

It was difficult at times to live a Christian life and testimony before my schoolmates, but the Lord was with me and helped me. While in high school I belonged to a Bible club which was held one night a week and was attended by many of the Christian young people of the high schools in Cedar Rapids. This Bible club meant a lot to me and helped me in my early Christian teachings. Through the help of my pastor I was drawn closer to the Lord and really learned what it meant to live a separated life.

After finishing high school I worked in an insurance office for about a year and then went to work in the office of the City Bus Lines, a national bus firm with suboffices in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. I had to work surrounded by the temptations of the world, but with the grace and love of the Lord Jesus Christ I was able to face them and through these temptations I learned to lean upon Him more and more.

PREACH OR PRINT THE GOSPEL?

By Jesse B. Deloe

Ever since the day in the early forties when I yielded my life to the Lord to use as He would, I have been amazed—yes, sometimes actually startled—at the way the Lord has worked.

On that day, at an evening service, my wife and I and four children left our seats in the First Brethren Church of Washington, D. C., and went forward to publicly dedicate our lives to Him in full surrender.

I soon became anxious to serve Him better and, having worked at night all my life on a newspaper, I felt the need of attending more of the services of the church, which such work prohibited. Speaking to Pastor Bernard Schneider about the matter, I was assured by him that the Lord was able to supply my need and that if I really meant it, he would join me in prayer to that end.

Accordingly, we met in his study one morning and Brother Schneider again said, "Jess, be sure you really mean what you are asking for. The Lord will answer." Together we asked the Lord to cause a change to be made in a working schedule that I had followed for 22 years.

God worked. He didn't change the working schedule. He took me out of the job! Within a day or two of our meeting together, an opportunity came to take a civil-service examination for the U. S. Government Printing Office—an opportunity which I took—and before the results of the exam were in I had been appointed and was working for Uncle Sam five days a week, leaving nights free to serve the Lord and attend prayer meetings (for the first time in my life).

PRAY AND GIVE FOR PUBLICATIONS

Serving the Lord as a Secretary

By BOBBETTE OSBORN

Perhaps some people think that one does not need to have a calling from the Lord to work in an office, but I know the Lord called me to work in an office.

The Lord saved me, when I was about 10 years old, under the ministry of Rev. Leo Polman, who at that time was pastor of our church in Fort Wayne, Ind. My mother and brother also made their decision for Christ at that time and we soon became active in the church.

As I recall my life after becoming a Christian, I believe the things that influenced me most were the weeks spent at Camp Indisinewa, where we became acquainted with our pastors and missionaries and their wives. It was one summer at camp that I gave myself completely to the Lord to use as He saw fit. The district youth rallies, SMM, and our Sunday-evening young people's meetings helped to mold my young Christian life.

In high school I felt the Lord was calling me to South America as a missionary and I began preparations toward that end. In the fall of 1947 I entered Bob Jones University to begin my college work. It wasn't possible for me to graduate there, but I did complete my college work in 1953 when I graduated from the Fort Wayne Bible College with an A. B. degree in Bible. During my later college years I did not feel the call of the Lord to be a missionary as I had before, although even today I am still willing to go if He should so lead me.

I began looking for work when I graduated and did not know definitely what I should do. I was offered a job as an X-ray technician. The day for me to start to work had been decided, as well as my wages. Even though everyone I spoke to about it urged me to take this opportunity, I turned it down because I felt the Lord was not leading that way. Instead, I took an office job for an automobile dealer in Fort Wayne. During the six months I was there I was discontented with my work and I felt the Lord had something better for me.

I made mention to my pastor, Rev. James Hammer, about my wanting to work for one of our Brethren boards at Winona Lake. He inquired when he visited Winona, but there was no opening and I gave up the idea of working there. Then one Wednesday evening he called my home and said that Rev. Arnold Kriegbaum was in his office and had an opening for a secretary at the Missionary Herald. I almost said I wasn't interested, but decided it would not hurt to talk to him, so I went to the church office and met Rev. Kriegbaum. Nothing was decided that evening, but within the next two weeks I felt that the Lord was leading me to accept the job. That was one and one-half years ago and I have had no doubt in my mind since that the Lord has called me to serve Him in an office.

I truly thank the Lord for leading me here. It is a real privilege and blessing to work with other Christians of like precious faith and to meet those who enter our building. Although I have been a Brethren for about 15 years I have learned to appreciate the Brethren Church even more from being closely associated with those of our boards.

Before I started working for the Herald I had never considered it as a missionary endeavor such as our home and foreign missionary work, but after I started working here I began to realize that the Herald magazine is really a "missionary." It goes into the homes of the unsaved and some have found Christ as Saviour through its pages. The Missionary Herald helps to establish new churches as it paves the way for a pastor to come to its town and start a home-mission church. Hardly a week passes that we do not receive a letter from one of our subscribers telling us how much the Herald is appreciated and what a blessing it brings into that home.

Each Monday morning our Herald family meets together for prayer before we begin a new week. We pray for the Herald as it enters homes that it may be used of the Lord. This time of prayer has been a real blessing to me and again I praise the Lord that He has called me to the Missionary Herald where I might serve Him in this missionary work as a secretary.

paid the penalty for me on the cross at Calvary. It was at that time that I asked Jesus Christ to come into my life and save me from my sin. The Lord then led me aboard a battleship in the Pacific, where two other fellows and myself began a Bible class. In the classes the Lord spoke to many hearts and drew them unto himself.

After I was discharged, my wife and I, who had both belonged to churches where the full counsel of God was not proclaimed, were led by the Lord to the Ghent Brethren Church in Roanoke, Va. The Lord later directed to Bob Jones University and to Grace Theological Seminary. The Lord led me to the Brethren Missionary Herald, where I could serve the Lord three years while completing my seminary work. This is my last year at the Missionary Herald as I have completed my course at Grace Seminary. I cherish the blessings that I have had while working for the Lord at the Missionary Herald.

SERVES THE LORD AS PROOFREADER

By Goldie Ostlund Buikema

Born in Minnesota of Christian parents, I was named "Goldie" for a devout Christian Jewess, but I did not fulfill my parents' Christian expectations until many years later. I spent my married life in Chicago, the birthplace of my husband, and we attended a modernistic church.

After major surgery my mother dealt with me about salvation. On recounting my good deeds to her, Mother answered they were as filthy rags to the Lord. Six months later she died, and at the funeral services the preacher said to us children: "We know where your mother is, but where are you going?"

To escape from the words of Mother and the preacher I buried myself in church and civic affairs. I was proposed for a state office in the Parent-Teacher Association, but the Lord blocked the way and used this frustrated ambition to draw me to himself. In my home on March 26, 1936, I accepted the Lord and in the four years following my conversion, my husband, three daughters, and at that time, our only son-in-law were won to the Lord.

In 1942 the Lord took my husband to himself. In my devotions shortly afterward I was led to Psalm 119: 165: "Great peace have they which love thy law: and nothing shall offend them." This verse proved to be a great strength in the trials that followed.

In 1943 I suffered a heart attack; in 1944 a broken back and financial reverses which later necessitated my going back into the business world. In 1945 my youngest daughter, Lois, and her husband, Lynn Schrock, went to Argentina; in 1946 the middle daughter, Mavis, now Mrs. N. O. Blake, to China. I comforted myself with the thought that I still had one daughter in the States, but in 1952 the Lord called her and her family to Kenya Colony, Africa.

I had gone back to Minnesota, and in 1946 the position I had held on a newspaper before my marriage was again opened to me. Later on I felt the call to go into Christian printing, which I did, finally settling back in Chicago working on Christian publications.

My health became impaired in 1952 and the doctor advised my leaving Chicago. In 1954, when Bro. Arnold Kriegbaum heard I was going to be free, he invited me to join the Missionary Herald staff, which I did in August.

The Missionary Herald is the voice of the Brethren Fellowship, and I have found it to be a worthy voice. It gives the entire brotherhood the opportunity of becoming acquainted

SERVES THE LORD IN BOOKSTORE

By Mrs. James G. Arrington

The Lord has given unto me a godly heritage. At the age of 12 I publicly confessed Jesus as my Saviour at an evangelistic meeting at a Methodist church. The family altar was the means of leading me to the Lord and growing in the Lord. I was sheltered from the world and wasn't allowed to attend worldly amusements. In fact, to this day I have never attended a movie in a theater. My mother's prayers followed me throughout my high-school days, although I failed to witness by lip. I was considered a "goodie" girl. As I think back on those days, I marvel at the everlasting arms of my Heavenly Father, which kept me from going with the crowd.

Upon graduation from high school I worked as office assistant and sales clerk. However, these were restless years, for the Lord was calling me to prepare for His service. It was at a Youth for Christ rally at Charleston, W. Va., that I was challenged with the white harvest fields. After much prayer, I left for Prairie Bible Institute, Three Hills, Alberta, Canada. The summers at home between semesters were spent in conducting daily vacation Bible schools. One summer my roommate and I conducted 12 schools in rural communities. In April 1952 I was graduted after four years of blessed study of God's Word.

I returned to Covington, Va., to work one year at J. C. Penney Company to save for further schooling, as my parents had so graciously financed the previous four years of schooling. I joined the First Brethren Church of Covington, Va., which I had been attending during the summer vacations from Bible school.

On June 1953, James Arrington and I were married. He was a student at Grace College and I returned with him in the fall to Winona Lake, Ind., where I attended Grace College for a term. James is now a senior there. The Lord has so wonderfully led me to work in the bookstore of the Brethren Missionary Herald. It is a real joy to meet

SERVES THE LORD AS BOOKKEEPER

By Blaine Snyder

Jesus said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me . . . for of such is the kingdom of God." How glad I am that our Lord uttered these words, for that makes them real to me. It was while I was a small lad that a revival meeting was held in our church (Conemaugh, Pa.) which has affected my entire life. For it was during these meetings that I accepted Jesus as my Saviour.

Looking back over the years it is with joy that I remember the influence and help that my mother was during my early years. It was through her that I was led to see my need of Jesus in my heart. The passing of the years has unfolded the true significance of that great day.

We have had many tokens of the grace and providence of the Lord. Wars, depressions, "the high cost of living" have brought home to us the ability of God to supply our every need. There have been many things which we have desired to have, but experience has shown that one can get along without them. Not the "things," but contentment and peace are our greatest ambition. Paul said that he had learned to be content in whatever state he found himself, and that this had been great gain.

In the providence of God it is now our privilege to serve Him and the church at the Brethren Missionary Herald Company. In our opinion there are two essential elements in the life of a denomination. They are a denominational seminary and a denominational literature. Of these two the first could go without its effect being felt as quickly as the second. For we remind you that the influence of the seminary through the men and women who have been trained there could not be cut off in a moment. However, even one issue of the weekly paper failing to reach its reader has an immediate effect. Thus we can safely say that our weekly paper is the very pulse of the church. Apart from it we cannot go on.

But the placing of this paper into your hands is a complex operation involving many persons. Among the "many" we find ourselves in the accounting department. Even in business there is a day of reckoning to be faced when the books are opened (technically "closed"!). It is the keeping of these accounts which constitutes our daily routine in the office.

It would be a privilege to meet all our friends who read our church literature. But whether we meet you or not, we believe that we both love the same Lord and count it a privilege to serve Him in whatever capacity and place He shall choose for us. Pray for us that we shall use our time and talents in the best service for the church.

SERVING THE LORD

In August 1953 I felt called of the Lord to serve him at the Missionary Herald and I have enjoyed my work very much. I count it a privilege and thank Him for the opportunity He has given me of serving Him in this way. It has been a real thrill to work with a complete staff of Christian people who love and serve the same Lord and Saviour I do. I still wonder sometimes why the Lord picked me to fill this position, but I know that I cannot lean on my own understanding, and if I acknowledge Him I have the assurance that He will lead me, which He has very definitely done so far in my Christian life. I really praise Him for it.

and serve the customers as they come into the store. My husband and I have longed to get out in home or foreign service, but as he prepares for the Lord's service at Grace Theological Seminary and College, I have been reminded by my Lord that my work at the Herald is sending out the Word of God by the printed page, which cannot return unto Him void.

PREACH OR PRINT THE GOSPEL?

only whetted my appetite for a wider ministry, and, after graduating from Washington Bible Institute, I asked the Lord to let me preach. He did—here and there—but He still wanted me to print the Gospel rather than preach the Gospel, so after I had hesitated about yielding fully to a call from the Brethren Missionary Herald (partly because I knew the Government would not allow me to leave the work area during wartime, and because I knew that my union would not grant me a transfer to another jurisdiction, and I knew that I had no funds with which to travel all the way to Indiana and move our furniture also), He began to work.

After a period of restlessness—I now know it was the Holy Spirit convicting me of my lack of faith—I yielded and told the Lord that if the call came again I would say yes first and worry (?) afterward. He took me up on it and when the call came in February of 1945, and I applied to the Government for release, asked the union for transfer, and prayed for the funds, each request was granted and we were on our way!

Ten years I have served the Lord in this place and as I see the work of our hands go out to the various places of the world, carrying the Gospel to all lands, I praise the Lord first, that I was able to yield myself to His will when He had something better for me, and second, that He is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think (Eph. 3:20). Praise Him for it!

Laymen Can Build Sunday Schools

By GLENN E. MILLER

Superintendent, Community Brethren Church Sunday School
Whittier, Calif.

Vision, prayer, sacrifice, and hard work add up and become miracles. In the late summer of 1950, three miles southwest of the city of Whittier, orange groves were vanishing and three-bedroom houses were appearing. Houses mean young families and lots of children. Five houses to an acre, multiplied by four in a family, gave an answer of 20 "souls for whom Christ died" for each acre of ground. One hundred acres meant 2,000 prospects. Here there were many hundreds of acres of beautiful orange trees soon to be sold. Yet there was no church. And "how can they hear without a proclaimer?"

VISION—The Lord sent a folding church trailer to Los Angeles to give three Brethren laymen an idea. Out of busy lives, God gave these men time and money to build a folding trailer church, 8 x 30 feet when folded, and 24 x 30 feet when unfolded, and seating 120 people. After four weeks of work, one Saturday afternoon this church which had been built was folded up and towed three miles to our six acres of Washington Boulevard property. By evening a new Brethren Chapel had been set up, ready for services, complete with boardwalk.

PRAYER is the key that unlocks the door of opportunity. In this chapel the first Wednesday night, by the light of Coleman lanterns, six young Brethren families kneeled on a board floor and dedicated themselves as missionaries to this mission field, with its city of homes and its thousands of people. Every Christian ought to be a missionary, though it means leaving the church of your youth, even if you must relocate your home, or change your job. Laymen ought to be starting new churches in new areas to reach new people. We had problems, three great enough to shut our work off as we dealt with planning commissions, zoning boards, and building departments. Prayer from yielded hearts opened the way.

SACRIFICE IS TO BE EXPECTED. God sacrificed His dear Son. Likewise we must be willing. No mission board helped us financially. No Brethren church gave or loaned us money. Our property cost us $22,000. We had plans for a 5,000-square-foot building. Seven months after our first prayer meeting, we had 118 in Sunday school, 80 in the morning church service, and 40 to 50 in the evening service. In the front of the chapel, tacked to the plywood wall, was a poster. It portrayed a mountain of debt. By the mountain was a verse: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, remove . . . and it shall remove." We believed that verse. It is God's Word. God's few people in this place sacrificed. The result, $22,000 worth of ground, 5,000 square feet of building, furnishings, and a final mortgage of $25,000. The Lord removed the mountain. Remember, His way is a way of sacrifice.

HARD WORK is a prime necessity. We hired only a portion of the carpenter work. Everyone helped. Even the ladies and children nailed lath and sheathing. Neighbors saw and heard the call to work; then some came to Christ. Blisters and blessings are inseparable. Hammers and Bibles do the job. For a year our laymen, without a pastor, organized a church, taught, preached, knocked on several thousand doors, hammered, sawed, plastered, and painted. Then our pastor came. Five months later, as we held our first service, a Christmas-morning Sunday-school program, in our new auditorium, we had over 300 present. God's people here know the value of hard work. It is necessary to build a church, and even more necessary to reach a home.

SUCCESS, both spiritual and growth in numbers, is the result of several factors in our school. First, we have the homes and their families. Doorbells must be rung and invitations given. Three busses have been of real value to bring in the children. Organization is foremost in our plans. The superintendent looks after promotion, teachers, and curriculum. The assistant superintendent supervises transportation, enrollment, and records. The secretary-treasurer does the work his title indicates. The most important part of our organization is eight departmental superintendents who are spiritual, capable, and real leaders. Consecrated teachers not only teach the Word, but bring children to Christ as Saviour. The result is that in our junior-high department of 30, almost every scholar is saved.

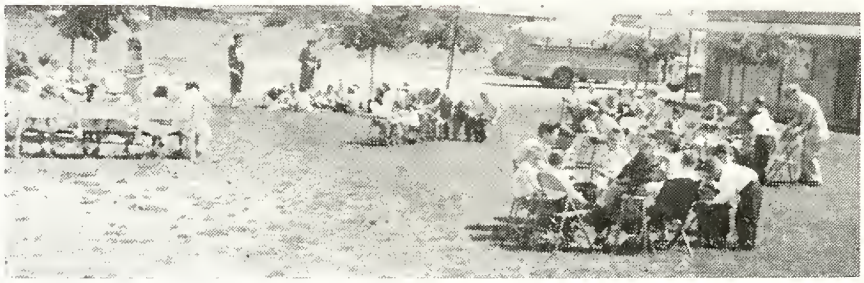
High-school young people are our greatest asset. God has given us about 30, 8 of which are teaching classes. Dr. Herold Capron is their teacher. The teaching of the Word plus weekly activity brings dedicated lives. Last Thanksgiving weekend we took them to beautiful Laguna Beach for a retreat. Christmas week was spent at Big Bear Lake by the fellows. Easter week, Catalina Island, 25 miles off the California coast, was their home for four days.

God grant today that Brethren laymen and their families might have a vision of new houses, new families, and the thousands of children and their parents that we can reach if we build new churches and Sunday schools. Laymen and pastors, let's look for strategic plots of ground from two to five acres, in new subdivision areas, buy them, and start Sunday schools. Then through the children reach dads and mothers for Christ and start a church building. Trust the Lord to honor vision, prayer, sacrifice, and hard work to see the project through. It works.

CHALLENGE UNLIMITED!



By WARD A. MILLER

Pastor, Community Brethren Church and School, Whittier, Calif.

Recently when Grandpa came to our house his first exclamation was: "My, how the children have grown!" We had seen them develop day by day, but the change was not so noticeable to us. At times this is true of the Lord's work. His hand of blessing is so constant that in the face of veritable miracles there is often failure to recognize His goodness. Because the Lord has blessed so abundantly we would like to share with you some of the blessings that He has bestowed upon Community Brethren of Whittier.

Following a burden of heart from the Lord to begin a new work, several Brethren families in 1950 purchased six and one-half acres of orange grove in a rapidly growing section of the city. A novel portable chapel was first placed on the property. It soon proved inadequate to accommodate the crowd and in May 1952, after months of labor and sacrifice a permanent building was dedicated to the Lord during the ministry of Wayne Flory. This building has three large classrooms for Christian-day-school and Sunday-school use, restrooms, kitchen, office, and an auditorium seating 250 people.

A glance at the Bible-school average attendances shows a steady increase from the beginning: 96 in 1950, 160 in 1951, 231 in 1952, 254 in 1953, and 274 in 1954. Almost phenomenal growth has been made in 1955, with average attendances for the first four months as follows: 302 in January, 335 in February, 378 in March, and 465 in April. Such growth is not accidental with such serious handicaps as 11 classes meeting out of doors on the lawn, in busses, etc.

Six primary classes meet on lawn because of lack of room in building. Two other classes of same department meet inside.

Church attendance has also made significant growth. Because of the crowded condition in our auditorium plans are being made to arrange for two morning services on Sunday, with the Bible-school hour in between. Sunday-evening attendance has tripled and prayer meeting has doubled along with the membership.

The first evangelistic meeting since becoming pastor was held in April, with R. Paul Miller as evangelist. The Lord gave the church family a good revival and a goodly number made decisions for Christ. Nine complete families came into the church as a direct result of the campaign. It has been wonderful to see "household salvation" as the Word of God was fearlessly proclaimed.

Last but not least is the Christian day school the Lord has provided. In the short span of two years the school has grown from a small beginning of four grades, two teachers, and 28 pupils to seven grades, five teachers, and 130 pupils. A school secretary and a janitor-bus driver have also been added to the staff. As far as we can determine, every child in our school that we feel is old enough to understand, has received the Lord Jesus as Saviour.

As we look over the fields around us we are overwhelmed at the small number we have reached. Several thousand families are our responsibility and they will not be reached with the Gospel unless we do it. We are inaugurating a regular visitation program whereby we hope to know the spiritual status of these homes. Our second house-to-house canvass will cover a new area just completed. Our last canvass netted over 70 new pupils for our Sunday school.

The Christian and the Oath

A decision of genuine interest and considerable importance to Christian people was recently handed down in Washington, D. C., by the United States Supreme Court. The court has ruled that witnesses with religious scruples against oath-taking do not need to make more than a simple affirmation that they will tell the truth. The ruling reverses the conviction of Perry Bowen Moore, of Sullivan, Ill., who received a two-year sentence on charges of draft evasion from a federal judge in Chicago when he was not permitted to take the stand in his own defense, nor were other defense witnesses permitted to testify for him because they refused to swear the usual oath or to "solemnly swear" that they would tell the truth. "There is no requirement," the high court said, "that the word 'solemnly' be used in the affirmation, and the judgment of conviction is therefore reverse and the case is remanded for a new trial."

Mr. Moore is not to be excused if he is guilty of evading the draft, and whether he was right in going so far in refusing even to use the word "solemnly" in his affirmation is undoubtedly open to debate. But he certainly stood on Biblical ground, however, when he refused to take an oath, and he stood on good constitutional right when he insisted on the right to affirm. Many Christian people do not know their rights in this matter, and, unfortunately, many do not know the teaching of the Scripture. The writer has been somewhat surprised from time to time as he has traveled about over the country to find how few of our Brethren people know what the Bible teaches about the taking of an oath. Yet the Scripture is certainly plain in its teaching. Jesus said: "Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths: but I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by the heaven, for it is the throne of God; nor by the earth; for it is the footstool of his feet; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, for thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your speech be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: and whatsoever is more than these is of the evil one" (Matt. 5:33-37 ASV).

When James wrote to those that held "the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory" (Jas. 2:1), he said: "Above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by the heaven, nor by the earth, nor by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay; that ye fall not under judgment" (5:12 ASV). Both from the lips of our Lord and His inspired apostle the words came as a command. Consider, if you will, the force of the command as it was reaffirmed by James—"ABOVE ALL THINGS"! Surely, then, the matter of a Christian's taking an oath can hardly be considered unimportant. But why?

Space forbids a full discussion of the subject here. Those interested may refer to books and pamphlets by Dr. Hoyt, Dr. McClain, and Dr. L. S. Bauman. The references in the Bible are not to the sin of profanity, which is something else. Nor is the practice limited to merely taking an oath in court.

The practice is wrong in the first place because it is a direct violation of the Lord's command. Jesus said: "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" It is wrong also because it may put the Christian under an obligation later which he cannot conscientiously fulfill. He is bound only to Christ; his full allegiance belongs to Him. If it is not sufficient guarantee for him, as a child of God, to give his word by a simple yea, yea, or nay, nay, then what good will it do to bind his soul under the penalty of a thousand oaths? The oath is wrong also because it so often binds a Christian in very closest ties to those with whom he should not be joined. The Bible says: "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers" (II Cor. 6:14). How many a man has been responsible for withholding blessing from himself and has been robbed of a strong testimony for Christ just because he has refused to obey the Lord in this command. Let us not forget that Jesus said: "If ye love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:23).

An Occasion for Prayer

The financial report of gifts to Grace Seminary's general fund during the month of May was $3,556.48. This is little more than half the amount set up in the budget for each month to care for the very minimum in the operational expense of the school. Bear in mind that this report is for May, and there are the summer months of June, July, and August to be reported yet. The work of the school will be greatly crippled if it is necessary to be deeply in the red at the opening of school in September. Will you join in praying that the Lord will in a very gracious way supply this summer need which is no less heavy than it is in the winter months? We are sure you will also make use of the little Monthly Plan envelope.

800 Attend Graduation Services

If you had been one of the 800 people who attended the graduation services of Grace Theological Seminary and College on the evening of May 20, you would have felt, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that your gifts to the school through the years was money well invested for eternity. Sixty-one men and women received diplomas and degrees. Many will recall that it has not been many years since there were not 61 in the entire student body and faculty combined. On occasions of this kind, as well as during the regular school program, we are almost "bursting at the seams." (See cover page.)

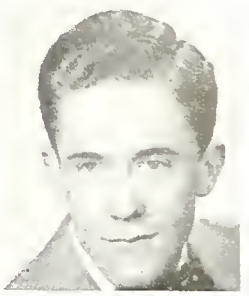
NEW STAFF MEMBERS AT GRACE



Nathan Meyer

Richard Messner

James Sweeton

Alva Steffler

Four new members will be serving on the teaching staff of Grace Theological Seminary and College when school convenes in September. Official announcement of their appointment by the Board of Trustees was made by the board's president, Dr. W. A. Ogden, at the graduation service on May 20. The additions will continue to strengthen and enlarge the ministry of the school.

Nathan M. Meyer will serve in the seminary as instructor in homiletics. For the important work of teaching men to effectively prepare sermons and preach the Gospel, Brother Meyer is well qualified. His college training was received in Elizabethtown College, Pennsylvania State College, University of Pennsylvania, and Manchester College. He spent five years teaching in the public schools in Pennsylvania and was an elementary public-school principal for one year. He also spent seven years in business. Brother Meyer's eight years of experience in the ministry have been especially valuable, for during this period, in addition to his duties as a successful pastor, he was a teacher in the Harrisburg School of the Bible, and in 1953 went to the Holy Land with the Winona Lake School of Theology Flying Seminar. For three years he has been pastor of the Leesburg (Ind.) Brethren Church. He was president of the student body at Grace this year and graduated May 20, but expects to continue his work in the seminary for the Th.M. degree.

Richard G. Messner, who is a member of the West Tenth Street Brethren Church of Ashland, Ohio, has been appointed as director of physical education and athletics in the college division. He will also serve as instructor in brass instruments. He received his A. B. from Wheaton College and next year expects to complete his B. D. degree in Grace Seminary. From 1952 to 1954 Mr. Messner was under contract with the New York Giants professional baseball team. He also achieved other distinctions as an athlete and in 1947-1948 he was selected on the all-Ohio basketball team. At the same time he was developing himself in the field of music as a member of all-Ohio boys band. Mr. Messner's greatest joy, however, has been the preaching and gospel-team work he has been able to do throughout his college and seminary life. Along with his brother, Bob, he has appeared in many of our Brethren churches. As a member of the teaching staff, he will be one of very few college athletic directors who are not only academically trained for their particular field of teaching, but who have also received a thorough theological training.

James Sweeton has received appointment as instructor in voice and violin. He received his college at John Brown University and Bible Institute of Los Angeles and has completed his first year at Grace Seminary. Mr. Sweeton is a member of the Second Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., and was assistant pastor and director of music there before coming to Winona Lake a year ago. He received special training under some of the finest teachers on the Pacific Coast both in voice and violin. Mr. Sweeton's addition to the staff of the music department at Grace is welcomed by all who know him.

Alva W. Steffler has been approved as instructor in organ and art. Coming from the First Brethren Church of Dayton, Ohio, he enrolled in Grace College as a transfer student from The King's College, where he had appeared on television and other programs with the King's Trumpeters. Since coming to Grace he has become well known throughout our churches from coast to coast as a member of the Grace Trumpeters. In addition, Mr. Steffler has taken private training in oil painting, and he has worked as a commercial artist and draftsman. He has achieved distinction as an organist and pianist. At the present time, in addition to his responsibilities at Grace, he is taking special training at Manchester College.

61 Receive Diplomas and Degrees in Rites at Grace

By Dr. Homer A. Kent, Registrar

The activities of the 18th annual commencement at Grace Theological Seminary and College came to a successful conclusion with the graduation exercises on Friday evening, May 20. A magnificent crowd of about 800 people was present in the lower auditorium of the seminary building to witness the graduation of the largest number ever to complete their work in any one year.

The academic procession formed on the main floor of the building and marched to the scene of the service to the strains of appropriate music played by Dona Beam, accomplished musician of the college student body. The procession included only members of the graduating classes of the seminary and college, together with the faculty and other participants in the exercises.

Graduation Service

The invocation was offered by Rev. Charles W. Turner, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Flora, Ind., an alumnus of the school. This was followed by the singing of "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God" by the college choir. The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Miles Taber, pastor of the West Tenth Street Brethren Church of Ashland, Ohio. Brother Taber had a daughter, Helen, and a son-in-law, Edwin Cashman, among the graduates. A brass duet was then played by the Messner brothers, Richard and Robert, students respectively in the seminary and college. They were accompanied by Prof. Donald Ogden, director of music in the school.

The annual announcements were delivered by Dr. W. A. Ogden, president of the seminary Board of Trustees, who announced plans for both the physical and academic expansion of the school during the coming year as he also noted the blessing of God upon the institution during the year just ended. The evening prayer was offered by Dr. Raymond E. Gingrich, president of Cornus Hill Bible College, and father of a member of the seminary graduating class. President Alva J. McClain, who presided throughout the service, then introduced Dr. John F. Walvoord, president of Dallas Theological Seminary, who delivered the graduation address on the vital subject, "What Is Christian Education?" Dr. Walvoord emphasized the importance of a Bible-founded and Christ-centered ministry.

Immediately following the address, the presidents of the two graduating classes, Ronald Meznar, of the seminary, and Walter Claeys, of the college, presented class gifts to the school. In behalf of the seminary seniors, Mr. Meznar announced that his class was presenting two gifts, an oil painting of Dr. McClain and a large campus sign with the words "Grace Theological Seminary and Grace College" beautifully inscribed upon it. Mr. Claeys followed with the announcement that the college graduates were presenting a set of much-needed laboratory equipment for the science department, whereupon members of the class brought to the platform representatives of the over 80 pieces in the set. Prof. John Whitcomb expressed the appreciation of the faculty and the administration for the gifts of both classes.

Dr. McClain then announced the honor students as follows: among the college graduates H. Paul Lauster was awarded the honor of cum laude and Lawrence A. Lawlor was awarded the magna cum laude; and among the seminary graduates those awarded the cum laude were Ronald Meznar, Nathan Meyer, and Donald Hocking; those receiving the magna cum laude were Dean Fetterhoff and William Male; and those receiving the summa cum laude were David Halvorsen, Ernest Lee, and Ramsey Michaels. As these students remained standing, Dr. Norman Uphouse, head of the college department of education, spoke briefly in recognition of these honors.

Diplomas and Degrees

Then followed the presentation of candidates for diplomas and degrees by Dr. Homer A. Kent, registrar and chairman of the administrative committee. The conferring of the diplomas and degrees was administered by President McClain, assisted by Vice President Paul R. Bauman and Financial Secretary James L. Boyer. Receiving the bachelor of arts degree were 23 students of the college as follows: Walter E. Blackwell, Clyde J. Caes, R. Douglas Cassel, Walter J. Claeys, Norbert H. Darr, Thomas L. Gossard, LeRoy F. Hawkins, James F. Hoffmeyer, Robert M. Horne, Kenneth R. Kueppers, H. Paul Lauster, Lawrence A. Lawlor, Glen T. Lockwood, Donald E. Matheny, Nancy Placeway, Peter C. Quiring, Mary E. Ringler, Milton M. Ryerson, John C. Sheley, William H. Snell, Paul W. Stagg, Helen L. Taber, R. N., and John G. Watts.

One student, Russell E. Konves, received the bachelor of Christian education degree. Two students, Hugh I. Coombs and Gilbert E. Hawkins, received the theological diploma. Six students, as follows, received the bachelor of theology degree: H. Crosby Englizian, Nathan M. Meyer, Homer R. Miller, Wayne L. Pontious, Joseph L. Sargent, and Leonard A. Uhrich.

The largest group among the graduates were those who received the bachelor of divinity degree. There were 25 of these, as follows: Jack R. Bacher, Charles T. Butrin, Clyde J. Caes (who was also included among those receiving the bachelor of arts degree as presented above), Edwin E. Cashman, Jack S. Christensen, Robert C. Early, W. Dean Fetterhoff, Wallace W. Geiger, Raymond E. Gingrich, Jr., Donald A. Girton, Eva M. Godfrey, Paul F. Goossen, Ira David Halvorsen, Donald G. Hocking, Richard W. Horner, Archie B. Keffer, Joel S. Kettenring, Ernest W. Lee, E. William Male, Ronald M. Meznar, J. Ramsey Michaels, Jack K. Peters, Richard D. Sellers, John H. Smith, and Allan R. Tschiegg.

There were four students who received the master of theology degree. They were Roy J. Clark, Clyde W. Field, Charles M. Horne, and Robert Wayne Snider.

The service concluded by a prayer and benediction offered by Rev. Clyde K. Landrum, recent pastor of the First Brethren Church of Uniontown, Pa. The recessional then took place and the graduates repaired to the social lounge, where they were greeted by their many friends.

Pregraduation Activities

The days just prior to the climactic graduation service were filled with all sorts of interesting activities. First came the college banquet, held on Friday evening, May 6, in the newly decorated Rainbow Room of the Westminster Hotel in Winona Lake. There were about 150 in attendance and they enjoyed a delightful evening of food, fun, and fellowship with a flavor of "de ol' South" accenting the occasion. The musical stars of the evening were the King's Choraliers, a mixed group from Dayton, Ohio, who thrilled their audience with several numbers. The evening was climaxed with an inspiring message from Rev. Ivan Lee Sisk, the director of Youth for Christ in the Dayton area.

It is somewhat unusual to have three children of Brethren ministers graduate in the same class. The picture at the left shows Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Gingrich and their sons, Raymond, Jr., and Samuel. Raymond, Jr., received the B. D. degree. His father, Dr. Gingrich, is also an alumnus of Grace and is now president of Cornus Hill Bible College (formerly Akron Bible Institute), in Akron, Ohio. On the right are the families of Rev. A. D. Cashman and Rev. Miles H. Taber. Edwin Cashman received the B. D. degree, and Helen Taber the A. B. degree. Rev. Cashman is pastor at Dallas Center, Iowa. Edwin is a son-in-law of Rev. Miles Taber and has recently moved to Ashland, Ohio, with his wife and son, where he is now serving as assistant pastor to Brother Taber at the West Tenth Street Brethren Church.

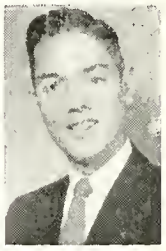
One entire chapel service on the morning of Friday, May 13, was devoted to a recognition of the college graduating class. During this period special music and testimonies were provided by members of the class. It was thrilling to listen to the way in which the Lord has been leading the young people of this class in ways of a fuller Christian life. It was revealed that most of the members of this class of 23 expect to enter the seminary next fall in preparation for definite Christian service.

The middler-senior banquet was held the evening of the same day in the spacious dining room of the Westminster Hotel. The banquet hall was crowded with 211 attendants who relished a delicious turkey dinner and enjoyed to the utmost the carefully prepared program under the direction of Charles Johnson, the master of ceremonies. The banqueters were blessed by the appropriate message of the evening brought by Dr. Frank C. Torry, pastor of the Calvary Independent Church of Lancaster, Pa., who stressed the privilege and responsibility of the ministry of the Gospel.

The annual seminary class day service was held in the lower auditorium of the seminary in connection with the Sunday-morning service of the Winona Lake Brethren Church, on May 15. The president of the class, Ronald Meznar, presided, and the entire service was cared for by members of the graduating class, who appeared in their academic regalia. Edwin Cashman was the song director and also played an instrumental solo. The message of the day was brought by H. Crosby Englizian, who was the choice of his classmates for this responsibility. He preached on "The Successful Man of God," basing his message on II Corinthians 4:1-5. The challenge of this message will not soon be forgotten by the splendid crowd in attendance.

The baccalaureate service was held on the evening of Class Day and in the same place with about 550 local and visiting folk in attendance. The sermon of the occasion was delivered by Rev. Arthur D. Cashman, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Dallas Center, Iowa. It was especially fitting that Brother Cashman should be the baccalaureate preacher since his son, Edwin, was a member of the graduating class. His message was a challenge to the graduates in particular to realize that no matter how strong the forces of the enemy may be, God will surround His servants with the "horses and chariots" of His protection (II Kings 6:13-17). The entire seminary and college student body was present for this occasion.

On the Wednesday evening of graduation week (May 18) a special communion service was held for the members of the graduating classes and their relatives, together with the members of the faculty. Dr. McClain led the service and those who were present will not soon forget these moments spent in the hallowed atmosphere of the Lord's table, a fitting conclusion to a busy year.



Each commencement season brings its moments of solemn reflection and its high hopes for glorious victories in the days and years ahead if the Lord tarries. Each class of graduates presents a new potential of blessing for the church of Christ. Let us pray that these most recent graduates will find just the place of service the Lord has planned for them and that much fruitage will attend their ministry.

DEAR HERALD READER,

To come right down to it, I'm reluctant to file my class notes and close up the Student News typewriter—it's been so much fun this year. Tell me (my permanent address is Paradise, Pa.), have you learned anything new about our school these nine months? I sincerely hope so. They're drawing the blinds on us Friday evening, May 20, when our vacation officially begins, to get ready for summer-school sessions. Why not drop in to see us next September? We'll give you a guided tour, and if you have brought your toothbrush and topcoat, perhaps you can stay on and enjoy some heavenly, down-to-earth training that we Christian young people need. Have a good summer, won't you? Most sincerely,

NORMAN ROHRER.

END OF AN ERA

At chapel time, April 2, Dick Coe, a Detroit Baptist, strode to the pulpit and preached the year's last middler seminar sermon. Preceded by the swan-songing trumpet trio, Coe said: "I'm faced with the Siamese twins of disadvantage and advantage. The disadvantage is that this is the last message of the year and determines the taste left in your mouths, whether it be like sour pickles or kosher dills. The advantage is that my evaluator isn't here this morning, and several of the faculty are in the Holy Land."

After hearing a creditable message from I Samuel 3, we obeyed the speaker by bowing our heads, taking inventory, and saying with Samuel, "Speak [Lord], for thy servant heareth."

THE GOOD BOOK GRACE

On May's first Friday, George Triandiflou and his 20-member staff unwrapped the snappiest annual ever published at Grace. Its crimson-and-white jacket with bold cross against a circular world map brought exuberant applause. Following other speech-making staffers, it was my privilege to describe in detail the "Fifty-Five Firsts." To mention a few, this year the Greek title has been changed to English so non-Greek students can latch on to the name. This book's the first with tinted pages introducing subjects by seasons. It's the largest, with 96 pages. And it's been superbly lithographed all at one shop, Gray Printing, Fostoria, Ohio.

Dr. McClain's assignment for the program was to somehow get Secretary Dorothy Magnuson on the front pew to be ready to receive the dedication. He did it by asking her to transcribe several parts of the program.

"I don't suppose she'll ever trust me again," said President McClain, midst thunderous applause for the year book's gesture. The secretary still hasn't gotten over it.

KEYSTONE GREEK FROM GREENSBURG

Everything Middler Nick Kurtaneck does he does well, or not at all. And ping-pong is no exception.

By the first day of spring, Nick had never touched a ping-pong paddle in his life. But a few days later, while strolling past the green boards in the lower auditorium, he agreed with a classmate to swat a few over the net.

Fantastically, with one month's practice, he beat last year's champ, Randy Maycumber.

"I'm a preacher of the Gospel," says Nick, "not primarily a ping-pong player. But it's a good game, anyhow!"

TRIUMPH THROUGH TRAGEDY

The air was cool over the Warsaw Municipal Airport on April 9 as Collegiate Junior Ralph Spillers spun the prop of his green Taylorcraft, climbed into the cockpit, and soared into the rising sun.

Below him sped his young wife, Delores, and two daughters, Ellen and Sharon. They arrived by car at hometown Covington, Ohio, ahead of the airplane that was giving Spillers valuable cross-country flying time against the day when he would use it in evangelism. His family kissed hello to kinfolks for the joys of the Easter season.

By midmorn, the flutter of a small motor in the sky announced Spillers' arrival, and a brother plowing in a nearby farm waved to him as he dipped low, circled, and dipped again. In an attempt to gain altitude the pilot was too low to fight a downdraft, and crashed, burned, and died.

Sobered by the tragedy, fellow schoolmates dug down into their pockets and sent Delores $263 via Student Body Prexy Nathan Meyer and the Student News re-

New Facilities Ready in September

THE DORMITORY

The Westminster Hotel

When the 1955-1956 school year opens on September 6 the students at Grace College will have the advantage of expanded dormitory facilities much nearer the campus than the school has been able to offer for the past two years. The rooms of the Westminster Hotel, located only two blocks from the campus, are filled to capacity during the summer months because of the conferences at Winona Lake. Throughout the remainder of the year, however, the building has been practically empty. It has been kept open chiefly to care for some of the personnel of the Rodeheaver Company, which owns the building.

This situation has proved to be a happy one for the school, and arrangements have been made to use the entire third floor of the building for dormitory students. The Rodeheaver Company has been most cooperative in this matter and during the spring months has spent more than $10,000 in refinishing, refurnishing, and modernizing the rooms. A lavatory has been installed in each room, and bathrooms with modern showers have been added at three different places on the third floor. New bunk beds have replaced the old double beds, and fine new desks have been added.

For their meals the large Westminster dining room will provide the students with a cheery atmosphere and plenty of room for expansion. Then there is the well-known Rainbow Room, where dormitory students can have an opportunity for recreation and special programs.

Young people planning to enroll in Grace College will do well to get their applications in early and assure themselves of getting one of these newly equipped rooms at the dormitory. Applications should be sent to Dr. Homer A. Kent, registrar.

THE GRACE ANNEX

The Former Bauman Home

It may be news to some that about a year ago the Board of Trustees authorized the purchase of the Bauman home on King's Highway, adjacent to the school property. At the present time, for want of a better name, the property is called "The Grace Annex."

The purchase of this property became an absolute necessity for several reasons. On the west side of the campus it has given the school a frontage on King's Highway, an important thoroughfare in Winona Lake. By joining with the East Wayne Elementary School of Winona Lake (each donating half of a strip 40 feet wide), a needed road now enters our parking lot. This change has provided much greater convenience to many who drive to and from the school, particularly from the south side of Winona Lake.

The house itself will help greatly to relieve temporarily the overcrowded condition of the main building. With the growth of the seminary, and particularly of the college, classroom and office space has been at a premium. The annex will provide needed classrooms and practice rooms for the music department, quarters for better instruction in the survey courses now being given in the physical and biological sciences. The school's bi-weekly paper, the Sounding Board, will have its office in the building, as will the staff for the school's annual, Grace. There will also be a darkroom in the building.

There is a small cottage at the rear of the property which at present is being rented to a student couple. Later this will probably be moved, but at present it serves as a source of income helping in a small measure to care for the investment.

porter to express Christian concern and to say they prayed.

"I could tell that you prayed," said the widow, whose magnificent testimony during funeral and homecoming bore witness to her peace with God. "I know Ralph is much better off with the Lord. If I didn't believe this, I'd have nothing to cling to."

TEAM PRESENTS PICTURES ON WESTERN TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. John Watts

Early on the morning of June 17, two young couples from Grace Theological Seminary and College began their westward trek for California. They are traveling in a Packard, but lest anyone unduly jump at conclusions, we should add that it was purchased by one of the couples for a bargain price of $400. These two couples are Mr. and Mrs. John Watts, of Glendale, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dice, of Harrisburg, Pa.

John graduated from Grace College this spring, having worked in his spare time as an accountant for the Rodeheaver Publishing Company. His wife, Patty, materially helped with the income by working for the telephone company in Warsaw. It was thus possible for her to lay aside some extra money during the year so that she can enroll in the college division of the school in September, while her husband enters seminary.

Roy has completed his third year at Grace College, having worked outside of school hours as a guard at the Arnolt Corporation. His wife, Faye, divided her time between her work at the Rodeheaver Company and the home responsibilities of caring for her husband and young daughter, Lynne. Both couples have been active in the life of the school and in churches and student teams.

GRACE AMBASSADORS ON NATIONWIDE TOUR

A uniquely talented team is already in the field this summer representing Grace Seminary and College on a coast-to-coast tour of our churches, conferences, and young people's camps. The group is composed of the well-known Messner brothers, Richard (Dick) and Robert (Bob), from Ashland, Ohio, and Donald Ogden, assistant professor in music.

Dick is a senior in Grace Seminary and next year joins the staff as director of physical education and athletics. He will also serve as instructor in brass instruments. Dick came to Grace after graduating from Wheaton College. Throughout both his high-school and college careers he distinguished himself as an athlete. During the past three summers he was under contract to the New York Giants as a pitcher, with a no-Sunday clause in his contract.

This somewhat rare provision gave Jack an unusual opportunity. Since both he and his brother Bob (now a junior in Grace College), had formerly won distinction during their high-school days as members of the all-Ohio boys band, the two formed a team and spent all the time Dick had free from his responsibilities on the baseball field to hold meetings at churches in the surrounding areas.

Bob also won distinction as an athlete during his high-school days, and because of the unusual background, the two men have made a powerful impression upon young people wherever they have appeared. Both, in addition to being talented musicians, are able speakers. With the addition of Professor Ogden's artistic work as an arranger and accompanist, their program has already proved a means of great inspiration and blessing to many churches in the east. We are glad it has proved possible for them to travel westward, appearing in churches along the way and at our national conference sessions in Portland.

The following schedule for the month of July is subject

Early in the year John and Patty began to prepare a series of kodachrome slides on life at Grace Seminary and College. Soon they came to the faculty, offering their services during their vacation to represent the school on the Pacific Coast, where they have their home and loved ones. Shortly before the end of the school year the project took on greater proportions and they were joined by the Dices to form a larger team during a portion of their time in the west.

Because their time is limited, the team, with their program of song, testimony, and pictures, will be able to get into only part of our California churches, but it is hoped that many will join in attending the service nearest their own church. On their way westward they conducted services in Dallas Center, Iowa; Portis, Kans.; Denver, Colo.; Phoenix, Ariz. Their first appearance in California was at Tahquitz Pines on June 23 at the Brethren young people's camp.

The schedule for the month of July is as follows:

July 3 (Sunday, 6 p. m.)—Inglewood, Calif.
July 3 (Sunday, 7:30 p. m.)—South Gate, Calif.
July 5 (Tuesday p. m.)—San Diego, Calif.
July 6 (Wednesday p. m.)—South Pasadena, Calif.
July 7 (Thursday p. m.)—Bellflower, Calif.

1954 ALUMNUS ORDAINED TO MINISTRY

Left to right—Russell Weber, Paul Dick, Paul Bauman, Conard Sandy.

The district conference of the Atlantic Fellowship of Brethren Churches was held in Martinsburg, W. Va., May 10-12. At the close of the evening service on the first day, Earle Peer, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church of Martinsburg, was ordained to the Christian ministry. It was the writer's privilege to deliver the ordination sermon. Rev. Russell Weber, of Hagerstown, Md., led in the ordination prayer. Others participating were Rev. Paul Dick, Winchester, Va., and Conard Sandy, Harrisburg, Pa.—P. R. B.

SENIOR CLASS GIFTS

Gifts from the senior classes are always matters of interest to everyone on the campus of Grace Seminary and College. Customarily these gifts are brought to the auditorium and officially presented at the graduation service. This year, however, it was not possible to bring either of the gifts given by the senior class of the seminary. One of these could not be brought to the auditorium because it had already been firmly attached to its foundation on the front lawn. The erection of a suitable sign on the front campus has filled a real need, for many visitors from all over the United States come to Winona Lake each year.

The second gift, a portrait of Dr. Alva J. McClain, president, was not completed in time for presentation at graduation.

FREEDOM AND LIBERTY

By Neil L. Beery
Pastor, First Brethren Church
Ankenytown, Ohio

These introductory remarks are taken from the little book, "Wake Up, America," written by Dr. John E. Zoller. In this book Dr. Zoller points out that in 1492 America was discovered and in 1620 the Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock. They came for one purpose—they wanted liberty. They wanted it so badly they were willing to suffer any hardship; if necessary, even die for it.

Then 179 years ago our forefathers gave us the Declaration of Independence in which they stated that all men are created free and equal. They stated the ultimate principles of human rights and threw to the breeze "Old Glory," the red, white, and blue, a symbol of the freedoms for which we stand. Wherever our flag has flown it has been not to acquire wealth or territory, but to free an oppressed people, to bring life and liberty to those in need. Because of this high and holy motive, God has blessed us.

We own today 58½ percent of all the wealth of the world; yet we are only 5½ percent of its population. The liberties and freedoms which are ours in this great land of America far surpass the liberty and freedom of any other people. Yet we in America have been careless and many times entirely ungrateful for the many blessings which are ours to enjoy. We are miserably misspending our great wealth. We spend $50 per person on gambling every year. We spend over $60 per person on liquor every year. Liquor is responsible for many of the murders which are increasing yearly. Every 40 minutes someone is murdered. If the murdered people last year were placed in hearses one behind the other they would form a funeral procession 78 miles long!

Fifty years ago America was the most law-abiding nation in the world; now we are the most lawless. We are spending over four billion dollars a year just to enforce law. In the past 10 years our population increased 17 percent, while crime increased 117 percent. The largest group of criminals in the United States averages only 23 years of age; the next largest group 19 years; and the next largest group, 18 years. Since 1870 the population of the United States has increased 300 percent, marriages 400 percent, divorces 2,000 percent. Divorces are increasing five times faster than marriages. We spend $30 per person on sports every year. We spend $15 per person on the movies every year. We spend more than $18 per person for tobacco every year. But we spend only $6 per person to get out the Gospel every year.

I have quoted these facts and figures for the purpose of impressing upon your thinking that even though politically we are the most free people in the world, yet the terrible truth is that as a nation we are becoming each year more securely bound by the deadly chains of sin. I am proud to be an American and I am proud of my country and love it and the freedom we enjoy. But may I show you a more important freedom from God's Word, which freedom, if followed carefully by the American Christians would help us to lead the people of our country and of the other lands of the world to Christ.

I would direct your attention to the Book of Galatians, chapter 5 and verse 1: "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." It is very evident from this verse that the instruction is to STAND. May I show you three things in relation to the stand of the Christian.

First of all, notice the place of standing. I read, "Stand fast therefore in liberty." This liberty is not only or primarily a position but it would seem to me to be a possession. One of the definitions which Webster gives to liberty is "freedom from bondage." I believe this is exactly what Paul had in mind in this verse. Just as we in America have freedom from the bondage of dictators and slavery, so the Christian is freed from the dictator Satan and is no longer a slave to sin. We as people who are redeemed from the bondage of sin and placed in the liberty of salvation then need a power to stand in this liberty, and that leads me to my second thought, the power for standing.

As we look at the next phrase in this verse it says, "wherewith Christ hath made us free." Now we who are standing in this liberty which we enjoy in America know that the liberty was not brought about without sacrifice and effort. Our forefathers braved the wrath of the land first of all and then found it necessary, by power, to protect the liberty which was so precious to them. They had been without liberty; they knew the bondage of another life in another land. Down through the years of our history we have found it necessary to use power to keep our liberty. Many of us have loved ones in graves of foreign soil; some have watched the death agony of dying comrades-in-arms.

The power to preserve that liberty is very important. So with Christian liberty; it took the sacrifice of Christ on the cross to initiate our liberty. He is the power, He is the provision, He it is who gives to us the power or privilege to become the sons of God. In this Christian liberty which we enjoy, all the power of human strength must fail and be inadequate. It is Christ who is the power of liberty and it is Christ who keeps us in that liberty. Which brings us to our third main point, the perseverance of standing.

The last phrase of our text says: "And be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." We in America ought to pray fervently that God will preserve our freedoms by helping us to live and labor in such a way that the existent conditions mentioned in our introduction might be overcome and done away with. There are so many still in the bondage of sin—yet in the slave yards of Egypt. We need not only to be careful in the preservation of our national liberties, and be thankful for them, but we ought also to be thankful for our spiritual liberties.

And just as our great democracy tries to convince other peoples of the advantages of our land and our form of government, we as God's ambassadors ought to be diligently and continually endeavoring to convince others, first of all by our living, that the liberty which we have in Christ is something which they ought to have too.

THE GREATEST

Declaration of Independence

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

"If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed" (John 8:36).

In the Declaration of Independence of July 4, 1776, it is written that all men are entitled to "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and that they have the right to do away with any government which tries to destroy those ends. Then the great document goes on to enumerate all the ways in which the enemy had striven to destroy them. This historic declaration was adopted in its final form on July 4, 1776. The founding fathers were quite sober about it. They did not know then of the great celebrations that would follow year after year in memory of that great day. Nor did they know that an enemy would strike again and again at our beloved country that gave so much blood and many lives for the great victory of July 4, 1776.

I. Our Independence Signed at Calvary.

When we are reminded of the great independence of July 4, 1776, our memory goes back to a greater Declaration of Independence, the time when sinful man, who had become an enemy of God, was set free from the wrath of an angry God and the penalty of the law, by God's own Son, the Lord Jesus Christ. Our first parents, Adam and Eve, were placed in the Garden of Eden with all the wondrous environment of nature, and with the promise of God of everlasting blessings, joy, and peace for them if they would obey Him. But they disobeyed, turned against God, and became enemies of God, and have caused the whole natural human race to become enemies of God. It has been in partnership with Satan ever since the fall in the Garden of our first parents.

It was while we were enemies of God—"But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us" (Rom. 5:8)—that the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, allowed himself to be put into the hands of the enemy (Satan and sinful man), and allowed them to put Him to death, that we, His enemies, could be freed from the wrath of God upon all sin. In I Corinthians 1:25, Paul says: "Because the foolishness of God is wiser than men; and the weakness of God is stronger than men." In other words, the Almighty, the One who is mightier than all, became weak, allowed himself to be taken and put to death by the enemy, that we who were also His enemy might be saved from the penalty of sin and have victory over Satan and our own sinful nature, inherited from our first parents.

The weakness of God spoken of in this verse is speaking of the cross of Calvary and the strength of this weakness is the wonderful power of the precious blood that was shed there for sinful man. Paul says: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ [death, burial, and resurrection of Christ]: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek" (Rom. 1:16).

II. Enemies Become Victorious.

In the Declaration of Independence of July 4, 1776, the enemy, the party that was really wrong and deserved to lose, was defeated and the loser when the peace treaty was signed. But when we look back to Calvary and realize that in the death of Jesus Christ we who were His enemies, we who deserved to lose and suffer eternal punishment, were set free from the wrath to come because He received our punishment for us when He became our substitute and died in our stead on Calvary's cross. "Therefore being justied by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ" (Rom. 5:1). This victory has not only brought us peace with God and we are no longer an enemy, but we also have access by faith into His grace, into heaven, into the very presence of God because of the wonderful power of that precious blood that has cleansed us from the guilt of sin.

III. An Everlasting Independence.

We can say by the grace of God that America, the country in which we live, has been a place of freedom in many ways, especially when we compare it with the other countries of the world. But as we see sin abounding all over our beloved country, we wonder how long God's grace will continue to protect this country that was founded upon the Word of God by our forefathers who came to this continent that they might have freedom to worship the Lover of their souls. So, even in this land, which we call the land of the free, we cannot know when this freedom will come to an end because of the world conflict caused by sin still dwelling in the hearts of sinful men. This conflict has been going on between the nations of the world ever since man became an enemy of God back in the Garden of Eden.

But when Jesus Christ made peace with God for us, it was an everlasting peace that will never again allow conflict to come between God and those who have been redeemed by the precious blood of himself. Paul says: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 8:1). Again Paul says: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day" (II Tim. 1:12).

How thankful we should always be that our independence won for us by our blessed Saviour, means freedom from the penalty of sin, now and forever more. It means freedom from the power of sin in this life. Finally, it means freedom from the very presence of sin, when the One who has freed us comes to take us home.

A CHRISTIAN'S Declaration of Independence

On July 4, 1776, the Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence. This document, signed by 56 members of the Congress set forth those "bands" by which the Colonies had been fettered, and now from which they were separated. Each year we remind ourselves of this precious freedom.

A Christian should have a separate and personal declaration of independence. He should have a specific declaration of independence from no less than three "bands" that could cause irreparable damage if allowed to be undissolved.

There should be a declaration of independence from the humanistic way of salvation. This clause must be first on the document. Other clauses are useless should this not be first. Christ is the way to heaven and the Father. And the Bible definitely ascribes all other ways as the ways of death. All people, until they have had a good look at their own black hearts and another look at Christ dying on the cross for them, have the impression that merit can be achieved before God. In Christ's time the rich young ruler thought that he might "do" something to "inherit" eternal life. He was referred to God's principle of law which is solely for the purpose of revealing one's sins against God, and to lead the convicted one to Christ the sinbearer.

At another time readers of God's Word were admonished to obey that which the Word said, but we are told they rather willed not to come to Christ. A man, 39 years of age, on a sickbed one month before he died told the writer of attending Sunday school as a youth, but he wasn't ready to meet his God. Upon a simple explanation of God's plan for the lost and their sin, this one readily and tearfully prayed for Christ to come into his heart and trustfully placed his soul into His care. After the prayer he remarked: "Why didn't I hear this wonderful Gospel before?"
